HOW TEXAS LIVES

Texas as a producer of raw materials leads all states, yet in turn Texas is the biggest customer other states have when they go to sell their finished products.

Lacking industries and manufacturing plants, Texas is thirty-ninth state in per capita wealth despite its vast natural resources and its enormous production of these resources.

Col. W. E. Talbot of Dallas is conducting a one-man campaign in behalf of Texas industrial development, the keynote of his plea being that "Texans buy Texas products."

Describing the average Texas business man, Colonel Talbot has this to say:

"He is a man who is awakened in the morning by a Connecticut alarm clock, kicks back cotton made in New Hampshire and rolls out of a Grand Rapids bed onto a Massachusetts carpet, pulls on Illinois pants held up by a Rhode Island belt, washes his face in a Wisconsin wash-bowl, brushes his teeth with a New York tooth brush, sits down to a breakfast of California grape fruit, Colorado sugar and Iowa bacon, gets into a Detroit car propelled by Pennsylvania gasoline and rides down to his office building, which is made from Indiana limestone, Minnesota marble and Arkansas brick, pulls his Philadelphia hat tight on his head and walks into his Michigan furnished office, looks over his collections and wonders why his Texas customers do not pay their debts.

TAX RELIEF SUGGESTIONS

The formation of paid commissions of practical experts who will spend eight hours a day drawing tax relief programs to present to the legislatures in the various states is probably the only way in which mounting taxes can be stopped in their ascent throughout the country, believes Judge Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit. He so told delegates to the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce of the United States at Atlantic City.

Mounting taxes are handicapping industry and discouraging land ownership, said the speaker to an audience vitally interested in both these subjects on behalf of their communities.

Judge Lacy, who is a well known attorney and who has made a special study of current tax problems during the past year as chairman of the National Property Owners Division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, declared that the only way to reduce taxes is to cut government costs, but that this can only be done by the appointment of new bodies to do it.

He declared that overlapping local government units employ too many people (one out of every nine persons gainfully employed in America draws the taxpayer's money), that the public purse has been treated as bottomless, and that real estate is bearing an unfair tax burden due to archaic system that allow owners of intangibles to use government services without sharing their costs.

Haphazard relief bills, drawn by well meaning persons who have other interests and other duties, are before the legislatures in many states, but the situation has become so acute from coast to coast that special study is needed by groups of experts who would have nothing else to do, said the speaker. He recommended the appointment of commissions whose duty it would be to draft bills for the consideration of the various legislatures, to exchange data with other states, some of which have undertaken successful programs recently.

He urged the calling of special sessions of state legislatures within the next six months, saying that it would be folly to let this matter wait for the two year period which must elapse before many state bodies meet again on the regular schedule.

Republican Leaders Hasten to Say That Curtis Can Have Vice Presidential Nomination, Again if He Wants It, But Some Believe He Wants to Return to the Senate

WASHINGTON. — One comfort about political writing is that whenever you get tired writing about presidential politics you can turn to vice presidential politics.

Hardly any state is so poor that it hasn't a candidate for a vice presidential nomination and plenty of reasons why its favorite son is the logical choice. Many states have potential presidents, too, but nowhere near as many as can produce what they term the best man to strengthen a national ticket. Some states have several such candidates.

Political writers usually are in deadly earnest when they discuss presidential possibilities, but everything goes when it comes to the vice presidency. For a long time back it has been common custom in pre-convention years for correspondents to light on some especially good friend in political life and give him a good boost as a likely vice presidential choice.

Makes "Hero" Happy
The practice doesn't cost anything. It makes a lot of people happy, especially the hero and his family. It's a good trick for a dull day when news is lacking. And the writer is always able to argue that the party is pretty sure to do worse when it actually does select the presidential candidate's running mate.

Also, there has been some serious discussion this year. The second place on the ticket is perhaps getting more attention than usual at this stage of the game because there is not quite the usual uncertainty about the presidential nomination. The Republicans expect to renominate Hoover. Most Democrats are participant or resigned to a presidential candidate from New York state, which leaves 47 states in which to find the other fellow.

Republican leaders have hastened to spread the word that Charlie Curtis can have the vice presidential nomination again if he wants it. Many of them hope he does.

Prefers Senate Activity
One hears of Charlie's yearnings to get back in the Senate where he can be more happily active, but conditions happen to be such that if he renounces the vice presidency next year so that he can run for the Senate again, altogether too many people would seize on that as a sure sign that Curtis felt the party was likely to be licked and was merely going after a sure thing. The old war-horse has held public office for 47 years and no one thinks he is going to retire voluntarily.

Nevertheless there is plenty of vice presidential talk among Republicans, based on the possibility that Charlie doesn't want it. Men-

How many hens did he start with and how many has he now? 12

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Today's El Paso Herald-Post told of a bank robbery at Santa Rosa, N. M., in which $45,000 was taken. Details of the robbery brought out the fact that a discrepancy had been found in the license plates of the robber's car. How unusual!

ishers, sanders and spray painters in the automobile trades. Lead continues to be a serious hazard and one that particularly concerns the painter.

The dramatic suddenness of deaths reported to have occurred from tera-ethyl lead when the manufacture of this product was first undertaken in connection with the development of anti-knock gas focused attention on this hazard. It is now avoided by proper measures both in the manufacture of the product and in its distribution through gas stations.

Control of the hazard is relatively simple under such conditions. On the other hand, control of the lead hazard as it occurs in the painting industry is difficult. For this reason, special precautions must be taken by workers with lead paints.

What a joke on officers it would be for some robber to actually use his own car and his own license plates while doing a job. Likely as not the mystery never would be unraveled.

A cigar store operator in El Paso filed a charge against an attorney there because the latter's $15 check failed to produce the funds. Looks like lawyers ought to be exempt from those kinds of charges, much as they have to be working with them every day.

The fact that 1,000 persons of one West Texas city have begun their annual siege of hay fever is nothing to sneeze at. It's time to cut those tumble weeds, just as fast as they begin to pop out of the ground. I am indebted to a neighbor of mine for a fine crop of tumble weeds this year. The seeds blew over my fence from his yard.

A swarm of bees buzzed into a store in another city. Customers became excited and a woman screamed. Hearing this, a nervous man turned in the fire alarm. Hearing if another customer turned in another fire alarm. Five fire companies visited the scene but the bees held the firemen at bay. Police were called but the sergeant refused to risk his badly needed officers in a swarm of bees. A man set fire to a paper torch and ran at the bees. They ran at him. He fled, the swarm of bees after him. The crowd dispersed. Heaven help the poor martyr who led the bees away from the store. He hasn't been seen since. Maybe he's somebody's honey now.

Since Alfonso Johnson made a talk on the need of courage in business, one Midland man has been wearing a stiff bosomed shirt just to keep up a front.

Stepping on the grass sometimes is no worse than stepping too heavily on the gas.

Oh Boy! What cake it is that Curtis Bond sent to me from My Bakery. I feel like asking all the people of Midland to come to see me and see what good cake those fellows make around at that bakery.

I'm going to quit calling the young lady who works around there by the name of an out-of-town bread. She is as sweet as the cake which her boss sent me and I'll call her by her real name.

HERE ARE 3 POINTS TO CONSIDER

When You Order Letterheads

- 1. COST
- 2. QUALITY
- 3. EFFECT

1. The cost of your letterheads depends on the quality and effect that you want. It is not a negligible factor, and we are prepared to keep that figure as low as possible for you.
2. The quality of your letterheads has direct bearing on its effect. You can't expect to have excellent quality with the cheapest paper.
3. You are not present when your letterhead is in the hands of the one to whom you sent it. Here is where quality counts. The recipient of your letter does not know what you paid for the printing, but he does know what quality is present in the letterhead. Your business is silent and so are you—all you have to represent you is the printed letterhead.

WE DESIRE TO ASSIST YOU IN THESE THREE POINTS ON YOUR NEXT LETTER-HEAD JOB.

EUROPE SHOWS LARGE INCREASE IN REPUBLICS

BY STEWART BROWN
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, May 13. (UP).—Europe, which had only two republics before the war, has dethroned nine kings and recast its map until today there are 17 republics and 11 kingdoms.

When Alphonso XIII, of Spain, renounced his throne recently, the 17th republic was born in Europe, the 15th since the war. He was the ninth sovereign to see his throne collapse and be replaced by a kingless government.

France and Switzerland were the only republican countries in Europe at the outbreak of the World war. Then thrones started toppling and before the end the number of monarchies had been reduced to 12. Spain reduced the number to 11 and republicans state that before another 20 years there will not be a single king left in Europe.

All Governments
Every shade of government, from the most dictatorial to the most liberal, is cloaked under the names of the 17 European republics. They are: France, Spain, Switzerland, Germany, Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia, Poland, Portugal, Greece, Czechoslovakia, Soviet Russia, Finland, Andorra, Austria, Turkey and the tiny republic of San Marino.

Rabid republicans might dispute that some of these are really republics, especially Russia and Poland, where virtual dictatorship exists. Practically one-half of these republics are countries which never existed before the war. The only European nations which are neither republican, nor monarchial, are the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and the Principality of Monaco, while Hungary is a country without a king although legal-ly still a monarchy.

Of the 11 remaining kings in Europe, there is not one, except possibly King Alexandre of Yugoslavia, which boasts a pre-war absolute monarchy. Some possess dictatorships even stronger than any absolute monarch. The European kings who still have their thrones are:

King George of England; King Zogu, of Albania; King Alexander, of Yugoslavia; Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland; King Albert, of Belgium; King Gustav, of Sweden; King Haakon, of Norway; King Christian, of Denmark; King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy; King Carol, of Rumania; and King Boris, of Bulgaria. All of them are known as "constitutional monarchies."

Crownless Nine
The "crownless nine," headed by the Duke of Toledo, the former King of Spain, are:

King Alphonso XIII, of Spain, who renounced his power in April of 1931;

Nicholas II, who abdicated in 1917 and was assassinated by the Soviets the following year;

Constantine, of Greece, who abdicated two times, in 1917 and 1922, dying in 1923;

George II, of Greece, who followed his father but lost his throne in 1923;

Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, who abdicated at the end of the war in favor of his son, Boris;

William II, who fled to Holland in 1918 from Germany and now lives at Doorn;

Charles I, of Austria, who abandoned his kingdom in 1918 and was given a pension of 800,000 francs;

Mohamed VI, of Turkey, who was dethroned by his subjects in 1922.

Drunk Gator Fights Anglers

NEWBERN, Tenn. (UP).—A drunk alligator weighing 17 pounds and fighting like a "Pirpo" was pulled in here recently by two fishermen. Earlier in the day the sheriff had emptied the contents of several stills in the stream and it was thought the alligator had eaten some of the mash.

By Laufer Screen Comedy Speeds Away and Beats Stage Comedy to Tape; Picture at the Ritz Today Runs in High All the Way

Comedy in any medium is still comedy, declares Charlotte Greenwood, which is why the elongated comedienne of "So Long Letty," "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" and other hits doesn't care whether she's on the stage or on the screen. The process of getting laughs is just the same, she says, because human nature is human nature, whether looking across footlights or into a screen.

Miss Greenwood proved it in "Stepping Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the New York stage hit, coming today and Thursday to the Ritz theatre.

"We did everything that was done on the stage," she says. "In fact, the original stage playwright, Elmer Harris, adapted the play to the screen."

Screen Is Elastic
"The only difference between screen and stage is, of course, that we could use elaborate scenes, actual settings and keep shifting from one scene to the other in a way the stage would not permit. That enables one to get a story moving much faster; in fact, the ability of the screen to do this gives it one advantage the stage will never have."

"You can tell a great deal more in a talking picture than in a stage play. There you have to talk about things; in a picture you actually show them. But to the comedian the technique of getting laughs is the same. The screen's main advantage is that you have more facilities for getting them, more tools to work with."

Miss Greenwood is one of a notable cast in the new production, a hilarious romance of Hollywood and Agua Caliente, of oil millionaires who try to produce pictures, of blonde vamps, jealous wives and all sorts of trials and tribulations. Lilla Hyams, Reginald Denny, Lillian Bond, Cliff Edwards, Merna Kennedy, Harry Stubbs, Richard Tucker, Kane Richmond and Wilson Benge appear.

Charles F. Riesner, producer of "Caught Short" and "Reducing," directed the new picture, which was staged on a lavish scale, with Hollywood swimming pools, the Callene races and other spectacular details as incidentals to the laughs. Many of the scenes utilized Buster Keaton's famous estate in Beverly Hills as a location—especially the swimming pool sequences.

Mock Warfare To Be Staged

EL PASO, May 11. (UP).—Problems of carrying on war under the most difficult or conditions will be presented to the only active cavalry division in the United States army in its maneuvers this month.

The First Cavalry Division has selected the Guadalupe mountains in southeastern New Mexico as the "battlefield" of its maneuvers. Opening shots in the "war" will be fired May 19, by troops from Fort Bliss, and a continuous battle, day and night, will follow for the next two weeks.

Varying from the typical desert warfare, signal corps, engineers and airplanes.

The division will operate under as near war conditions as can be obtained, and maneuvers will have all the aspects of reality except there will be no bullets. Where motor and wagon trains will be unable to operate due to sandy desert or high mountains, a mule pack train will fill the gaps.

The greater part of the troops of the division are stationed at Fort Bliss, but one regiment, the First Cavalry stationed at Marfa, Texas, and Troop "B" engineers, at Fort McIntosh, Texas, will come for maneuvers.

NEW YORK.—The sixth Herbert Spencer Dickey Expedition is on its way to Venezuela, to laboriously ascend the Orinoco River in native canoes to seek a race of "white" Indians. ON GREENS

There is a wealth of flavor in salads made of greens or simple vegetables. It will be lost, though, if you cover them with a thick, heavy dressing. The flavors of such salads suggests a dressing like French Dressing, Bachelor Club Dressing, or Vinaigrette Dressing.

To make Vinaigrette Dressing: Put one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, a little paprika, twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar into a bowl. Beat with a fork until thoroughly blended. Stir in two tablespoonfuls of chopped dill pickle, and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

ON FRUIT

Fruits, fresh or canned, respond happily to a dressing with a touch of sweetness . . . or one to which a little cheese or some finely chopped nuts have been added. The next time you have a fruit salad try this Cream Cheese Dressing.

To make Cream Cheese Dressing: Cream two packages of cream cheese with four tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil. Blend one-half teaspoon of salt, one eighth teaspoon of white pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls granulated sugar, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, four tablespoonfuls Wesson Oil and one of lemon juice. Beat into the cheese until the dressing becomes light and fluffy. Dust with paprika.

ON SEAFOOD

The generous salads that come to the table as the main course of a meal suggest a kind of dressing different than either of those used on fruits and greens. If the salad is going to be made of meat a Worcestershire Sauce Dressing would go well. If it is made of chicken or seafood, serve it with Lemonaise. When you have a seafood salad first marinate the ingredients in French Dressing. It gives them flavor and firmness.

*To marinate: Mix twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Add a teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Mix with the seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemonaise (mayonnaise made with lemon juice).

Mint with lamb cranberry with turkey jelly with duck

Just as we make the sauce or seasoning to fit the dish, so should the salad dressing be made to suit the salad. For salads are made of many different things . . . as different as grapefruit and chicken, fish and pineapple, ham and nuts. Serving one salad dressing on all of them would be like serving cranberry sauce on every dish that comes to our tables. So . . .

mix a dressing appropriate to the salad

If you have a salad of light greens or vegetables select a tart dressing like Bachelor Club, Vinaigrette or French Dressing. For fruit salads, try a rather sweet dressing or one to which a dash of cheese has been added. Seafood and Lemonaise seem to be meant to go together. But before the salad is made the seafood should be marinated* in French Dressing.

We would like to send you with our compliments, a little book by Mary B. Murray on appropriate salad dressings . . . a book that not only suggests what dressings go with what salads, but which offers many helpful suggestions to the hostess as to correct salad service. Send your name and address to The Wesson Oil People, 210 Baronne St., New Orleans, La.

DON'T DO IT HALF

NEW YORK.—If you intend imbibing a little in the liquid that cheers, it's best to drink yourself unconscious rather than only partly drunk, according to W. D. Bayley, director of temperance instruction in the Department of Education of Manitoba, Canada, who recently spoke here. He says that the first drink paralyzes the upper brain, leaving the lower cells, controlling baser emotions, active. These emotions should be drowned, he says.
