PENSIONS FOR THE NEEDY

The coming decade probably will see an enormous extension of the practice of giving money from the public treasury to people who are unable to support themselves without help. The concept of government as a paternal institution is growing. If the number of prospective wage-earners continue to be out of all proportion to the number of jobs available, state and federal pension and insurance laws will inevitably show an increase.

After the World War various states began to pay pensions to widows who were unable to support their children. Today such pensions are being paid in 44 states, two territories and the District of Columbia. Yet it all amounts to the merest drop in the bucket.

In Cincinnati, for example, the average sum received by a needy widow from the state is $30 a month. In Seattle it is $20. In many states the maximum is $20, with the average far under that figure. The Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, after surveying 61 large cities, found that on the average only about a third of the families aided under these pension laws get as much as is necessary for bare existence. In many states the number of mothers eligible to these pensions who are on the waiting list far exceeds the number of those actually being helped.

Furthermore, Department of Labor studies have shown that the married woman who works is not, usually, simply trying to earn pin money. In most cases she is either entirely or partially supporting a family. On top of that, in some parts of the country—especially in the textile regions—men's wage scales are based on the assumption that either the wife or one of the children will also be working and contributing to the support of the family.

The status of the married woman has changed vastly, and these figures make it obvious. It is also obvious that we have hardly scratched the surface with our pension laws so far. If, for example, more jobs are to be made for men by removing married women from industrial payrolls, an enormous increase in mothers' pensions will be absolutely necessary. Even to bring the existing pension payments up to respectable levels would entail a huge boost in public expenditures.

Yet these things, eventually, will probably be done. Direct payments to the needy from the public till are going to increase, not diminish. We might just as well make up our minds to it.

THE COP SPEAKS UP

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, of New York City, has passed a resolution urging motion picture producers not to make underworld films which "glorify the lives of gangsters, gunmen and racketeers."

A great deal of the protest against gangster movies is not very well founded. Here, however, is a kick with which one can sympathize. After all, it must be rather tough to be a policeman and to find that the gunman is frequently portrayed as a super-clever, brave and dashing chap who enlists the public sympathies even if he is a public enemy.

The patrolman gets less than his due in his fight on the underworld. He risks his life, and not infrequently he loses it. If he arrests a gangster he usually fails to get credit for it, and it often happens that corruption higher up enables the gangster to go scot free anyhow. Is it any wonder that the patrolman is tired of seeing the gangster glorified?

Girl Aerial Daredevil, But Is Afraid of Boys

Sixty-two consecutive outside loops, the most dangerous stunt in aviation's catalog of thrills, won for Dorothy Hester, above, her title of champion girl flyer, in addition to her 35 other stunts, 19 of which are performed while she is flying upside down. The sketch shows how the outside loop is made in a headlong dive, only the safety belt holding the pilot in her seat while she hangs downward at 250 to 300 miles an hour.

By HELEN WELSHIMER NEA Service Writer

CLEVELAND, O., June 5.—A slim, blue-eyed girl of 19 who admits that boys frighten her much more than turning somersaults in the air, is the new queen of America's women stunt flyers.

She is Dorothy Hester of Portland, Oregon, who after only a little more than a year's experience with airplanes—now performs practically every stunt known to the most daring men pilots, plus a few of her own. For this reason she has just been signed as a featured performer at the National Air Races at Cleveland in August, the first woman ever given such a contract.

In Dorothy's catalogue of air thrills are 36 death-defying stunts, 19 of which are performed while she is flying upside down. Moreover, she holds the world's record for women making outside loops—aviation's most dangerous feat—having made 62 in rapid succession at Omaha recently. She also holds the record for the inverted barrel roll, with 56 consecutive rolls.

STICKERS

Let each member of the family take a turn at forming the above pieces into a perfect circle. See who does it the quickest.

Only one flyer has made more consecutive loops than Dorothy, and he is Tex Rankin, famous Pacific Coast pilot and her instructor. Rankin set the world's record by making 78 of these headlong dives under full power of a roaring motor—but his head swam and his nose bled for a week after he did it.

"She is," says Rankin, "unquestionably one of the greatest pilots—man or woman—I have ever seen. That a slender, 19-year-old girl can handle an airplane in this manner proves clearly that lots of people could fly if they would only try it."

Dorothy's story is that of a modern girl who knew what she wanted and had the courage to go out and get it. Strangely enough, she once planned to become a nun, but that idea faded quickly when her ambition turned to aviation.

"I was a student in a girl's school," she begins, "One day a neighbor, riding with me on a street car, asked me if I had ever flown. I told her no, but that set me to thinking. I decided to take an airplane ride. Dorothy hurried home, borrowed the necessary money and went out to Tex Rankin's aviation school to make a flight. As soon as she looked down on the housetops from above she made up her mind. She would be a flyer!

For a year, the girl studied ground courses at a night school, traveling eight miles to the field and eight miles home again. In the daytime she worked as an inspector in a woolen mill.

There were 100 boys in the ground school class," she relates, "For a long time I was the only girl. I liked putting lacquer on wings and grinding valves and everything, but I was scared of those boys. I had never been around men before. I knew they were thinking that I was just a silly girl who thought she could fly. As soon as the class was over I would hurry home to get away from them."

There was enough to give her the air once a week for a short time. Every Sunday morning she went to church. Then she went to the flying field for a 15-minute lesson.

Then suddenly, her chance to make money dropped right out of the sky itself.

An American Legion convention at Medford, Oregon, wanted a girl to make a parachute leap. There was $100 in it. Dorothy "got the jump"—and the $100. That went on her lessons, and three more such jumps enabled her to complete her flying course.

Rankin, impressed by the girl's determination, took her in hand and began to teach her how to do stunts. He taught her feats that no woman had ever tried in the air before and she mastered them quickly.

Just a year ago she started her upside-down flying stunts, the most dangerous of all—when a pilot hangs head downward in a streaking airplane with only his safety belt supporting him.

Dorothy's crowning feat—that of performing 62 outside loops at Omaha—was responsible for National Air Race officials at Cleveland deciding to break their rule and employ a woman stunt flyer.

"I had made 23 outside loops before," she says, "That didn't sound very large when I considered Mr. Rankin's record of 78, but I wanted to make a better showing. So I went out to beat him.

Daily Washington Letter

Government's Low-Profit Contracts to Eliminate Wartime Profiteering; Plan for Manufacturers to Operate at Reasonable Return in the Next Conflict

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of several stories by Rodney Dutcher on how the United States plans to mobilize its man power and industry in the event of another war.

WASHINGTON.—For the past several years of peacetime the War Department has been bringing to the attention of various industries their wartime responsibilities and giving them estimates of wartime demands of the army and navy on their plants.

Approximately 15,000 large facilities have been surveyed, according to the army's war plans as submitted to the War Policies commission. Definite tasks for emergency have been assigned to each selected plant. In order not to upset national production more than necessary and to maintain normal commercial contacts on a reduced basis, such tasks do not involve more than 50 per cent of the plant's normal capacity.

Under the National Defense Act, the War Department points out, the government can place compulsory orders with any factory and is empowered to requisition such plants as may refuse to accept them.

The war plans call for an "Advisory War Council" to assist the president in carrying on the conflict. Besides the secretaries of war and navy, this council would include a Director of Selective Service, a Director of War Industry, Director of Public Relations and Administrator of Labor.

This is part of a general plan which, according to General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, is based on a great improvement on our 1917 position in that besides the skeletonized framework of a citizen army capable of rapidly absorbing the nation's man power, the army now maintains intimate contact with the industrial structure under a program which will enable American industry promptly to absorb our war requirements.

Delay in procurement of necessary munitions and supplies, guesswork about the amounts of supplies needed which results in wasteful overproduction and serious shortages, improper distribution of the war production load along with congestion and transportation facilities, inefficient use of resources, unco-ordinated purchases and unequal distributions of war burdens are some of the things which the War Department, profiting from lessons of the last war, will seek to avoid in any future big conflict.

The army's big shopping list included about 700,000 different items in the World War but the so-called vitally essential list now comprises about 4000 articles complete for issue.

Instead of throwing open their procurement necessities to competitive bidding, the War and Navy departments will base their procurement plans on allocation. Under this system plants are able to make some preparation for their tasks, prices can better be determined by negotiation and through definite assignments exact pre-arrangement for production of munitions can be obtained.

Many articles required in war are not ordinarily produced in this country, so the war department has assembled a great collection of complete drawings and specifications for delivery to manufacturers who would otherwise have no prior knowledge of applicable production methods. To develop this form of war preparation constant experimentation and actual production is in progress at government arsenals and laboratories. The War Department now seeks money from Congress for placing "educational orders" with factories, use of which would hasten production in any later emergency.

The army also has widespread plans to govern handling of raw materials in war time, especially those not readily produced in this country.

Among its designs for reduction of wartime profiteering is an adjusted compensation contract, applicable to large construction programs and procurement of non-commercial items. Tentative cost schedules would be agreed upon which might be revised from time to time. The government would audit all accounts as they arose and pay all approved costs of performance, plus a rate of six per cent a year on the value of the plant involved in the contract.

Contractor Protected If the company does the job at less than the revised estimate of costs the government pays him some added compensation. Hence, although the profit would be small the contractor is guaranteed against loss. If the cost exceeds the estimate the contractor's profit is reduced and there is no temptation to pad costs as there was with the old cost-plus system.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I'm sure everybody was interested in the story which appeared last Sunday in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram about Clarence Schaubauer and his remarkable rise from a New York City newsboy to one of the nation's biggest cattlemen. His picture appears in connection with the story.

There are some things, however, which haven't come out yet about Clarence and his "hard riding" cow work. One of these events occurred Tuesday of this week. Clarence was out with the boys, "making a hand," and rode up to a tall mesquite to rob a crow's nest. Instead of the eggs, he picked up a handful of dirt.

Now, if you don't know what I mean, Clarence just naturally fell off of his horse.

Hitting the ground pretty hard, Clarence got a little worried about the condition of his shoulder and finally was prevailed upon to have it X-rayed. The X-ray picture was compared to a similar one of Ab Cooksey.

Upon investigating the accident whereby Ab, also a hard riding cowboy, had to have his shoulder X-rayed, it came out that he just got "thrown off".

Gloria Swanson Celebrates 6th Birthday with Party

Complimentary to Gloria Swanson on her ninth birthday, a theatre party and picnic were given by her mother, Mrs. C. N. Swanson yesterday afternoon and evening.

The movie, "Fifty Million Frenchmen", was seen by the party at the Ritz early in the afternoon.

Mrs. Swanson assisted by Miss Peggy Alverson directed the entertainment at Cloverdale park later.

Those attending were Barbara Jean Harper, Lamoine Sindorf, Mary Elizabeth Newman, John Sindorf,

Queer Itinerary Is Presented Without Jaunt to Africa

Darkest Africa and the huge stage at Paramount's New York studio have something in common; both offer countless obstacles to travellers bent on crossing them.

In the talking picture plant on Long Island, it's all the fault of the maze of settings constructed for "Honor Among Lovers", which is at the Ritz theatre today and Saturday.

Here's a sample problem that the studio traveller has to face:

Suppose he starts from the penthouse apartment, a duplex with a solarium. It is in the middle of the stage. If he tries to work his way to the Wall Street office which is about forty feet away, he will find the most direct way is to jump out of the bedroom window. If he leaves by the front door of the apartment he will find himself in the living room of his next door neighbor.

Claudette Colbert and Fredric March, co-stars of the new production, are familiar enough with the confusion of sets to know a direct way through the maze of walls, halls, stairways, balconies and solariums.

Coming down from their dressing rooms by elevator, they enter the set through the butler's pantry of the town house. Then they pass through the lounge of the business men's club, which leads them to the ticker board room of an office.

A step more takes them into a Pullman compartment. As they walk through the compartment, they are confronted with the bars of a jail which is connected with the detectives' room of a police station.

Their journey is ended. Finally they have reached the country club set on which the day's filming is to take place. But when Miss Colbert and March go to lunch, their path to the studio restaurant will lead them through the corridor of a magistrates' court and two master bedrooms of the penthouse apartment.

Picnic at Park Is Honor to Contest Winners

Entertaining for winners of a class contest, two groups of the Co-Workers class were hostesses at a picnic supper at the city park Thursday evening.

Committees arranging for the affair were headed by Mrs. Bill Epley and Mrs. Claude White.

Members and their guests were Mrs. Hazel Saye, L. O. Walton, Leslie Stephens, Minnie Cowden, Logsdon, Francis Macatee, W. R. Shapman, Bill Epley, C. G. Newman, R. E. Witty, Butler Hurley, Anderson, C. H. Oliver, H. N. Phillips, Claude White and Miss Bertha McGrew.

Personals

The Rev. and Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy and children, Leiland, Thomas D., and Lois, left this morning for Arkansas where they will visit two weeks. Their first stop will be at Magnolia, where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. John C. Murphy and next they will go to Pine Bluff to visit Mrs. Murphy's mother, Mrs. T. Y. Murphy.

Mrs. C. N. Swanson and children, Rudy and Gloria, are leaving sometime this week for Oklahoma and Kansas where they will visit relatives about a month.

Mrs. Lee Cornelius and her daughter, Sheran Lee, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Graves, were in Midland this morning visiting Mrs. S. P. Hall. They are en route to Mineral Wells, Mrs. Graves' home, where they will visit several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Pyle are leaving today for Lockwood, Mo., where they will spend a three weeks' vacation. They will be accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. C. L. Sweat and her child, Martha Joan, who are returning to their home at Golden City, Mo.

Mrs. Leon Bryant of El Paso is here visiting relatives. She is stopping at Hotel Scharbauer.

W. F. Delaney, automobile dealer of El Paso, was in Midland this morning on business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dean and daughters, Ruby and Helen, have gone to Longview to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cowden and two children returned to their ranch home in eastern New Mexico yesterday afternoon.

ELKIN DIAMOND FIRED UP THURSDAY; PRACTICE GAMES PLAYED

TEXAS ELECTRIC AND BELL MEN WIN GOES

Elkin diamond, the playground ball hippodrome, was lighted last night, and four teams cavorted hither and thither. Traffic on the Broadway of America, detouring from the new paving project on the west side, thought an Easter egg hunt was going on, but the search parties were outfielders conducting a search for balls that had played hop-scotch for the rough.

A large crowd watched the Texas Electric trim the Cowden-Epley Ford distributors and later saw the Bell Telephone boys do things to the Rexal stores.

The light in left field was not focused right, apparently, for bingles in that direction resulted in lengthy base running.

It comes as a matter of logical succession that balls should be lost on the Elkin diamond; a golf driving course was once installed there for a limited time—until the caddy master found his company was out of balls.

The diamond is better than Scharbauer diamond was; faster, smoother and more removed. If one wants to raise a little racket he can raise himself and get by with a few decent yells, players being space is plentiful.

The night season gets under way Monday night—unless the association of amalgamated movers decide there's a better place for a diamond a few miles west of the spot.

CERF TRIAL FINALS

CORSICANA, June 3. (UP).—The trial of Currie Caldwell on a charge of kidnaping Robert Cerf, local banker's son, neared the end here today as the last of six attorneys was presenting arguments.

SPORTS REPORTS

By R. C. HANKINS

Saw a three-ring performance of women at Scharbauer diamond yesterday afternoon. Sure 'nuff, they all had rings on.

After displaying more form than any Midland team has dared on the first afternoon of workouts, the girls went home tired and happy a few minutes before dark. But worry they were sore two days from now? And what will they do to their manager, Col. Bob Scruggs, when they find out he had 'em playing scrum, not ball?

Aside from a few irregularities, everything went well. Mary Garrett wouldn't play first base when she found an ant hole nearby. But that made everything perfectly all right, for none of the base runners among the fair sex would have anything to do with that base when they heard of the ants. They cut the base short and bore down in a cloud of dust and excited squeals on second. The fact they had bunted and second base was a long way off made no difference apparently; the baseman on the second pillow couldn't catch a sack of stringed beans, as a general rule. What we can't understand is why any runner failed to circle the bases everytime she spanked the ball mightily in getting a bunt.

Stella Maye Lanham had a chance to complete a triple play. The ball hit her amidship her black and white (or blue and red, which ever they were) pajamas and she told the baseman to always holler when throwing. It appears she was dusting her face with a miniature pillow. Women take no responsibility for watching chances. They want the third alarm sounded; then they are ready to receive the ball.

Genavieve Derryberry was at bat. She had successfully achieved three bunts during the afternoon. She told two fair base runners to run, that she didn't want to hit the ball too hard. What are you going to do with them when they get enigmatic like that?

Daisey Lindsey, besides being one of the prettiest girls in ye township, has a whip that she developed throwing crockery at Mexicans a few years ago. The signal for fielders to move back is her appearance at the plate. She hits a mean liner.

Mrs. George Abell takes a cut at the ball like a boy. She rounds bases, too, even cutting them when the umpire looks the other way.

Mrs. Evelyn Herrington plays in tennis pants and tiny golf shoes. She has not hit any balls out of the park but she has swiped most of the bases. When she scores a run the umpire goes around to wheel the bases were and drops some identifying marker. It seems, Mrs. Herrington gets excited and forgets to put the base back where she found it. There's a regular pile of 'em near the backstop.

Speaking of Mrs. Herrington, she initiated a new one in sliding into second. She gave a jump and landed into the arms of Lillian Dunaway, baseman, who caught her just like that was the only way it should be done. Incidentally, we had been charged with backing up second base, and we were right there on the job. . . . we picked up the ball that Lillian let go when she had a chance to catch Mrs. Herrington on the first bounce.

It may be that the girls haven't caught on, but something funny did happen. Mrs. Abell was heading for a base and Daisey Lindsey was on that base. Mrs. Abell was taking three steps while Miss Lindsey was squealing four times. It appears that Miss Lindsey warning Mrs. Abell to hurry or she, Miss Lindsey, would put her out!

Mrs. Ivy Mitchell, one of the organizers of the league, had a heavy date to play ball with the boys. She played a nice game on a different diamond, getting two hits and two runs.

Mrs. Sam Warren openly admits she is a pitcher, or a catcher or a first baseman. She couldn't remember the other positions.

We don't pretend to know, why we'll take a chance on saying it—that, within a short time, the men's league, played at night, will be more benighted than at first feared. Everyone'll be watching the women bungle chances.

DULL HEADACHE, BILIOUS FEELING

Dizzy and Nauseated In The Morning—Relieved After Taking Black-Draught.

"Two years ago, I began to suffer with a dull, sick headache," writes Mrs. John Dodd, of 719 Bream Street, Charleston, W. Va. "I was bilious and would get up in the morning feeling dizzy and nauseated."

"My color was pale and my complexion was bad. I felt that all my trouble was caused from constipation. I told a friend how bad I felt, and she told me to try Theford's Black-Draught. I began taking it on her recommendation. I soon found it was helping me very much. I began to feel like I had more energy. It relieved constipation, and after that I had no more trouble. When I need a medicine for constipation, I take Black-Draught."

"I found that Black-Draught was good for biliousness and constipation," writes Mrs. E. F. Caughy, of 706 S. Elm Street, Sherman, Texas. "It is as good a home remedy as one can find. I prefer it because it is a vegetable medicine which helps to rid the system of poison and keep the body in good order."

ARGENTINE AND COTTON LEAD IN BRITISH OPEN

BY FRANK H. KING

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 5.—Jose Jurado, hard hitting Bantam weight from Argentina, and Henry Cotton, hope of England, Thursday led the British open golf championship field in the second round with 36-hole totals of 147.

Close on their heels came Tommy Armour, the transplanted Scot, who has lived in the United States several years, with 148, and one stroke farther back was Johnny Farrell, with 149.

Sarazen in Fifth Slot

Tied at 150 for fifth place were Gene Sarazen, like Armour and Farrell a former United States open champion, Joe Kirkwood of New York, and W. T. Twine, the Kent professional.

The Prince of Wales is coming today to witness the final rounds of the biggest international battle in British golfing history. Still in the running with Armour, Farrell, Sarazen and Kirkwood were Willie Hunter, who had 151, MacDonald Smith, 152, and Horton Smith with 156.

Cotton last night loomed as the likeliest winner. His play this season has shown he has the ability to continue his steady play.

GOLF as the STARS Play it by ART KRENZ

How can one avoid tension?

Nerves play a big part in a round of golf. It took Bobby Jones several years to conquer his nerves, and even after he became a champion his old troubles frequently cropped out. You may recall that in 1929 Bobby scored practice rounds of 73-72-70-67 and then qualified for the National Amateur at Pebble Beach with 145 for 36 holes. The reaction finally set in during his first match and Johnny Goodman beat him, simply because no golfer, even Jones, can hold that edge forever.

Tension usually creeps up on a player when the going gets toughest. Other times it may show up when the foursome ahead is too slow. Sometimes the delay will work up a nervous tension in the impatient one and then you'll see him swinging his club at dandelions, papers, or anything.

When you find yourself tightening up, loosen your grip on the club.

Even the stars admit that a certain number of shots are bound to go haywire in a round of golf. The idea, of course, is to take these shots as a matter of course and refuse to let them tie you into a bundle of nerves.

When you find yourself tightening up, loosen your grip on the club and make an attempt to swing more easily and smoothly.

A photograph taken from an airplane in South America covered a distance of 320 miles and clearly showed the curvature of the earth, specially sensitive plates being used.

Heat can't break down 997's Friction-Fighting Molecules

Overheated motors are one of the prime causes of inflated repair bills. But what can heat do against 997? Heat and friction can't get in their deadly work till the motor oil thins out, breaks down.

And Humble 997 Oil, true to its name, has registered a new high in boiling points—997° Fahrenheit. So every 997 user is now guaranteed a protection heretofore unattainable against heat and loss by evaporation. This means lower oil consumption. Humble has made that possible by selecting only 2% of the crude—the part that contains friction-fighting molecules only.

Then special refining gives them an extra fighting edge, so they won't break down. Let the thermometer go up. Get your Humble 997 Oil at the nearest Humble dealer's, and then smile with the sun.

ASKS COURT TO NAME PHYSICIAN TO EXAMINE FALL

WASHINGTON, June 5. (UP)—United States District Attorney Leo Rover today announced that he had asked the District of Columbia supreme court to appoint a physician to examine Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, to determine if he is able to come here for his sentence on conviction of accepting bribe.

Haley Case--

Charles C. Crenshaw for the defense then offered in evidence articles from the territorial laws of New Mexico showing that sheriff's had power to appoint deputies; that deputies could serve, with sheriffs, in counties outside their own. He also cited statutes covering various phases of assault to rob or attempt to murder, to commit felonies, for resisting arrest by officers and drawing of deadly weapons and also the carrying of concealed deadly weapons. Officers who killed persons in the pursuit of their duty, such as the serving of felony warrants or resisting arrest, were exempt from operation of the statutes concerning murder. Homicide in such cases was justifiable.

Only Details Left

An act to prevent larceny of livestock, adopted by the territorial legislature and approved March 12, 1901, with a later amendment that session, was read.

"This practically concludes our side, except some few small details," Crenshaw said.

This Liquor Tester Makes Booze Speak for Itself

A liquor testing apparatus that makes liquor speak for itself has been invented by students in the electrical engineering college at the University of Minnesota. A bottle of the liquor to be graded is put in the path of a light beam carrying music to a photo-electric cell, or "electric eye," which is connected with a loud speaker, as shown above. When placed in the path of the light, genuine Canadian Scotch gives off a high-pitched sound; ordinary Minnesota "corn" causes a painful moan, gin has its own "voice" as does alcohol and other liquor, while a sheet of paper placed where the bottle is will stop all noise. At least, that's the claim of Harvey Sedgwick, Leland Bauck and William Kinsell, the inventors, who are demonstrating the outfit here.

of an hour were spent in arguments and citation of decisions to support the defendants.

Admissibility Argued

At the morning session considerable time was devoted to arguments over the admission of certain testimony once given by John Spikes in a criminal case in New Mexico, in which his statements concerning the number of cattle he took with him to New Mexico over 30 years ago varied greatly from the number his brother Fred said he took. John Spikes, in defense of William and Jesse Smith, charged with cow theft, said he drove about 125 cattle to New Mexico from Texas but was unable to tell how many were calves. Plaintiffs objected to this testimony and three quarters arrived here she faced interviewers almost every day. And her conversation with them centered chiefly around the young daughter whom she left in Germany with her husband.

Oral Witness

J. P. Brooks, Fort Sumner, N. M., who entered the postoffice and store there during the time it was being robbed by the Hawkins gang after the death of the Spikes boys, testified orally. He stated he had heard of the Spikes boys in Fort Sumner.

Deposition of W. E. Gortner, court reporter for the old fourth judicial district, showing his official records, was read. Also cross-examination by the plaintiff, was read. It concerned trial of the Smith brothers.

Cross examination of Cabe Adams and Von Cissel, both members of the posse that met the Spikes boys, was read by plaintiff, Cissel, the officer of the party, boldly said, "Fred Spikes resisted arrest and I shot him."
