PUNCHER FOUND BY HUNTERS

Lee Reynolds Brought To Midland; Fell From Horse

Some time just before dawn broke a motorized searching party that had been hastily made up in the small hours was successful in finding Lee Reynolds, a P. Hill cow-puncher whose horse had wandered in alone to ranch headquarters hours after Reynolds had ridden off early Thursday morning.

Reynolds lies at the Calloway hospital, where full extent of his injuries had not been determined before noon. He was unconscious.

The man was found by Jay Floyd, driving at the extreme left of a line of 25 automobiles that formed at the ranch house and deployed so as to shine their lights to best advantage over the big pasture. Reynolds was sighted walking along in a daze, about 150 yards from Floyd's car. Immediately Floyd gave a signal and the rest of the party was rounded up. The man was rushed to Midland.

Reynolds' chaps were split and the supposition is he grew faint while in the saddle, toppled over and hung his chaps on the saddle horn, hanging there while the frightened horse plunged through the brush, finally kicking him loose. A place on the man's head attested to the probability of the theory.

The alarm could not be sounded quickly as there was no telephone at the Hill ranch. In the early hours, however, after one futile search had been made, someone rode to the nearest telephone and began calling various ranchmen. The response was fast, 25 cars arriving in a short time.

"Did your horse fall with you?" Floyd asked Reynolds when he climbed out of his car and went to the wandering rider's side.

"No," Reynolds said, and then apparently forgot what he was talking about.

Reynolds is about 50. His brother, Wes, is well known, having been foreman for several ranches of this section.

Holy Mountain, Between Alpine and San Angelo, Naturally Hand-Carved

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 13 (UP)—Holy mountain, one of the green-clad foothills of the Davis mountains, was named by Mother Nature herself. Centuries of erosion and vegetation have engraved into a landscape six miles wide the letters "H-O-L-Y."

This bit of nature's pen-work, comparable to the Great Stone Face and the Holy Cross, is generally unknown even in Texas. Conductors on the old Orient railroad first noticed the letters, formed by bushes, trees, ravines and bared rocks. The letter "H" of the word Holy appears soon after the train passes Chancellors, traveling east on the Santa Fe, about 22 miles west of Fort Stockton in Pecos county. The word is written on the left and north side of track, about three miles away. John Davenport, Santa Fe conductor, describes it as follows:

"As your approach comes nearer you observe two parallel ravines or small valleys which have their head near the peak, and come the entire distance to the foot. These two ravines have a ledge or outcropping of stone near the half-way point, which connects the two and thereby forms the alphabetical letter 'H.'"

"Then as you continue east and having covered about one mile distance, two more ravines come into view, starting near the cap-rock and very nearly connected at the top,

Fed Meat Contest Slogans Pour in

Entries in the Texas fed meat contest of the West Texas chamber of commerce are pouring into the office of the Breeder-Feeder committee secretary at Midland. Quere as it may seem, nearly 85 per cent of answers received are from east and central Texas.

The West Texas chamber of commerce contest is explained by J. C. Watson, Fort Worth bureau manager, as follows:

A prize of $100 in cash for the best trade-mark for Texas-produced meat will be paid by the West Texas chamber of commerce in its campaign to co-operate with the Texas Breeder-Feeder movement, headed by Frank P. Holland of Dallas.

The contest is open to everybody and will be conducted until Jan. 15, 1932, for the purpose of getting a suitable trade-mark, one that is effective, original, and easy to reproduce.

"Texas has on its farms and its ranches a total of approximately a billion and a half pounds of dressed meat, including beef, veal, pork and mutton," Jack C. Watson, C. C. representative in Fort Worth, points out. "Texas meat packers produce annually nearly 350,000,000 pounds of meat. Texas people, based upon the per capita annual consumption of meat, eat nearly 900,000,000 pounds of meat every year."

"Although much of the meat eaten by Texans is raised and slaughtered without going through the 26 packing houses in the state, it is very obvious that Texas produces upon its farms and live stock ranges a large percentage of the meat supply of the United States and the world. At the same time, Texas imports a great volume of the meat which its own people eat," he said.

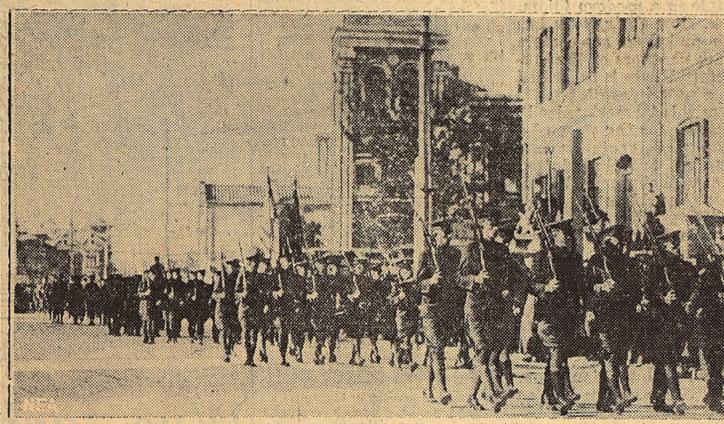

In other words, Texas produces a wide variety and great quantity of meats in the "raw state," ships much of its livestock to Northern, Eastern and Western centers and buys back the finished product at a higher price for its own use.

As Mr. Holland and his associates in the breeder-feeder movement have stressed, there is a profit in feeding out livestock that Texas has not been taking full advantage of, as well as the profit of manufacturing its own meat.

"Texas should at least produce, in the entirety of the process, all of the meat which its people consume, producing the live stock, fattening it and packing the finished meat. Then Texas should build for itself a great reputation for finished meat products all over the United States and supply a great part of the national market," the chamber contends.

The trade-mark or trade name might would be used to distinguish Texas meat wherever sold and used in promoting their consumption through advertising and publicity. Each entry should be on a separate sheet of paper, with name of the entrant and his address below.

Duck Hunters Prepare for Offensive Beginning at High Noon Next Monday

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 13. (UP)—A great offensive will get under way at noon Monday, Nov. 16 in Texas as hunters shoulder arms and go forward in their annual war against ducks.

For the first time in history of the duck season, the month of hunting will begin at noon instead of midnight. The season ends Dec. 16.

Sporting goods houses over the state have reported a large demand for hunting licenses, guns, shells, and other hunting equipment. Much enthusiasm has been shown. The federal law has ordered the season to begin at noon because it is contended that many ducks are shot the night before the actual season begins, and before game wardens have time to check up on the hunters. It is also believed that there will be less accidental shootings if the season opens at noon instead of midnight or daybreak. The ducks also will be given a better chance to get settled with the season opening at noon.

Nope, Friday 13th Is Not Bogie When Folks Interviewed

Friday the thirteenth! The superstitious walked about in a seeming daze this morning.

In the trade centers, astrologers predicted those who play the markets would stay home and refuse to dabble. An upward trend in stocks has been predicted after the 16th.

In Midland few seem inclined to take much stock in superstition.

A reporter met a few of the locals and visitors in Midland over the noon hour and propounded the same question to each: "Well, what about the Friday the thirteenth, anyway?"

And here are the answers: STANTON BRUNSON: "I'm scared to death. I didn't know this was Friday thirteenth. I wouldn't have come to town."

MRS. STANTON BRUNSON: "The same with me." She was laughing.

T. J. RICHARDS, Colorado City, said: "I'd just as soon go into a spin too close to the earth today as any other."

MRS. T. J. RICHARDS: "What's the diff?"

ARTHUR G. JURY: "I met my wife on Friday, and today is my twenty-first anniversary. I'm still going strong, so what is there to dodging a few black cats and the like?"

THE AMERICANIZED BIBLE

One of the most interesting events of the fall is the publication, by the University of Chicago press, of a new "American translation" of the Bible.

For years a group of scholars at the university has worked on a plan to render the Bible in a modern idiom, free of all archaic forms of speech. Now their work has been finished. It is an excellent job, and there are certain passages—notably the 18th and 19th chapters of the gospel of John, where Christ's trial before Pilate is described—that take on a new clarity and a new interest.

But in the main, one lays down this "Americanized" Bible with a new feeling of admiration for the men who rendered the familiar King James version, centuries ago. They were absolute masters of English, and they dotted their work with phrases and sentences that cannot be improved on, any more than "King Lear" could be improved by being rendered into Broadwayese.

And that is a point we too often forget. When we count up the great master-works of English literature we speak of Shakespeare's plays, Milton's poems and so on—and forget that the King James Bible (either in the Authorized or Revised Editions) considered purely as literature, is a heritage that can never lose its value as long as any men anywhere on earth read and speak English.

Consider, for example, the famous quotation from Paul's epistle to the Corinthians—"For now we see as through a glass, darkly." Something is lost when that becomes "For now we are looking at a dim reflection in a mirror," even though the meaning may become a shade more clear.

Nor does the line in Revelations—"And I looked, and behold a pale horse; and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him"—retain its original bites when it becomes "And there I saw a horse the color of ashes, and its rider's name was death, and Hades followed him."

Then there is the thunderous line from Jude—"Wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever"; its force ebbs out, somehow, when it reads, "Wandering stars, doomed forever to utter darkness."

The new version, to be sure, has been done skillfully and reverently. In the matter of clarity there is a distinct and valuable gain. But the mightiest lines of the old version cannot be improved upon.

PROGRAM NEEDED IN CONGRESS

That the new political line-up in Congress places a huge responsibility on the Democratic party goes without saying. The way in which the responsibility is met may well play a large part in determining the issue of the next presidential election.

One thing seems obvious. There is an imperative need for a logical, definite program on the party which now holds a majority in the House of Representatives. A policy of drifting and of sniping at administration measures simply for the sake of raising a row will not do the country any good—nor, in case it interests any one, is it apt to do the party that adopts it any good.

The coming session promises to be one of the most interesting in many years. The nation will wait eagerly to see what the Democrats will do with their newly-found power.

THE RISE IN WHEAT

The country at large seems to be waiting for only one more bit of news in connection with the spectacular and highly gratifying rise in the price of wheat. Before giving way to unrestrained rejoicing, it wants to be sure that the rise represents real demand and is not simply a reflection of speculative activities.

So far the indications are that the rise is substantial and genuine. If so, it constitutes one of the most encouraging developments, economically, that the United States has had since the stock market crash. Not only will the harassed farmers of the wheat belt be relieved from the menace of bankruptcy; their purchasing power, greatly strengthened, will soon have a highly beneficial effect on industry, and the city wage earners will find that better prices for wheat mean extra money in his own pocket.

Ultimately, it may well be recorded that the upswing in wheat prices marked the end of the great depression.

Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher

Impending British Tariff Measures Likely to Cut a Big Figure In Our Foreign Trade, and Germany Is Worrying, Too.

WASHINGTON.—The thing to remember about the prospective British tariff and its possible effect on our foreign trade is that the United Kingdom buys far more of our goods than any country in the world except Canada.

Outside of North America, Britain buys about three times as large a portion of our exports as our second best customer, Germany, or our third best customer, France. Despite all efforts to push our trade in the 20 Latin American republics she still buys more from us than all of them combined.

Consequently the present British government will be anxiously watched in this country as it formulates its tariff program. That Britain will abandon free trade and adopt some tariff is considered certain, but there is also a fear that the great Conservative election victory may be followed by unexpectedly stiff schedules of duties and the raising of a general tariff wall around the whole empire.

All tariffs automatically limit imports and the higher they are the harder it is for another country's exports to surmount them. But it is also considered certain that British duties will stimulate building of American branch plants in England, Canada, and other empire countries. The commonly acknowledged general bad effects of tariff barriers will be increased by the elimination of one great free trade country and recovery of Germany, so essential to the world's economic health and so dependent upon a favorable German trade balance, may be seriously retarded because the United Kingdom is Germany's best customer just as it is ours.

Last year Britain bought $678,000,000 in American exports and sold us only $210,000,000, leaving an enormous balance in our favor. She absorbed 18 per cent of our export trade and at the peak of her business her purchases amounted to about a billion dollars annually. In the first seven months of 1931 she took $260,000,000 of American exports, as compared with Canada's purchases of $265,000,000, Germany's $98,000,000, and France's $80,000,000 and Japan's $89,000,000.

Abandonment of her gold standard with its tendency to increase exports and diminish imports has already hit our export trade. New Canadian and Australian tariffs, regarded as retaliatory measures against the Hawley-Smoot act, had previously discouraged exports to those countries. In the first seven months of the years exports to Canada decreased from $428,000,000 in the corresponding 1930 period to $265,000,000 and in the case of Australia from $53,000,000 to $17,000,000.

The British empire as a whole has been taking about 40 per cent of our exports—a portion which in the period referred to was more than $600,000,000. Many of our largest manufacturing corporations already have branch plants in the British Isles and the bulk of our exports to them have been in agricultural products. In 1929 the United Kingdom bought $160,000,000 worth of American cotton and $80,000,000 of tobacco. Our other major exports there have been wheat, meats, lard, gasoline, lubricating oil, copper, wood and paper, automobile parts, fruits and furs.

The Germans probably are worrying more than we are about a British tariff because they depend on England for their vitally important favorable balance of trade. Last year they sold her $150,000,000 more in goods than they bought from the British. German exports to the United Kingdom are largely finished manufactures.

Can't Kill a Tree With Roots Like That!

Wee Jack Reynolds Won't Be Spoiled for Millions

By JULIA BLANSHARD NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—An inheritance of almost $2,000,000 won't get little "Jack" Reynolds a single bit more of rare beefsteak or one prune more for his dinner, though he has a lustrous appetite.

For his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell Reynolds 3rd, are bringing up their young son scientifically, with diet regulated by a baby specialist, and the vast inheritance he has just received from his great-grandmother is not going to spoil him.

In addition to the $1,785,415 which the late Mrs. S. Jennie Sorg of Middletown, O., has left 15-month-old John Mitchell Reynolds 3rd, he will eventually receive $14,000,000 unless some more little Reynoldses appear to share it with him.

Has Own Suite

Lucky Jack lives in comparative luxury already. He has his own little suite in the 10-room apartment his parents have sublet for the past two years in a spacious cooperative apartment house on the East Side just about a block from the river and its exclusive settlement. He has a charming little ivory and pink bedroom with his crib ivory trimmed with touches of pink, and pink blankets and pink sheets. The bath is ivory and pink, too, with pink fishes here and there to delight a child and stir his imagination.

He is tended day and night by Mlle. Pauline, the French nursemaid he has had since birth. He is dressed in simple but expensive hand-made French suits of white, pink and blue linen which emphasize his curly blonde head. He toddles all over the place now and is beginning to say "Da, Da" and a lot of other words and conversations which only Mlle. Pauline and his papa and mamma understand.

Just Four Bites

Every day he sinks his 15 teeth, some of them brand new, into four bites of rare tenderloin, steak or a loin of lamb chop, a couple of table-spoonful of two fresh vegetables, a baked potato and some fresh or stewed fruit for dinner. He has his quota of orange juice, gruel, hard toast and milk for breakfast and scalded eggs, a soup, some fish or vegetables with fruit for lunch. But he is not allowed candy and he can not eat between meals!

He spends many of his days playing on the spacious room of the apartment house where he mixes sociably with the other tots in the house, while Mlle. Pauline visits with the other nursemaids. He is quite unselfish in the way he lets anybody who wants to play with his modern toys. He is especially fond of a penguin which he carries upside down under his arm.

Quite a Traveler Last winter he went to Europe with his mamma and Mlle. Pauline and turned out to be an excellent sailor. This summer he took a long trip with his papa and mamma in their Pierce Arrow and seemed to enjoy touring quite as much. The rest of the summer he spent at the seashore, where he is going soon again with his mother for a quiet week at Atlantic City to recover from the shock of having so much money heaped on him.

Both of his parents are still in their middle 20's. Papa Reynolds, a tall, burly, good-natured dark haired man, vice-president of a silk company, has his studious side, as revealed by his study, which is crowded with books. Jack's mother is a short, plump, young matron of 26.

Both parents insist that Jack's college will be his own choice, and so will his career, when he grows up. But, after all, that is a long way off for a little fellow 15-months-old.

Canadian, Texas, boasts a hog market with gross receipts of one million dollars annually.

A new court house at Wellington, Collingsworth county, is nearing completion.

NEW BOOKS

Fines which have been charged for overdue books have been helpful in increasing the number of books in the Midland high school library. Books bought this way are ones that may be used by the English classes. Some English lists are short, but they will soon be filled with interesting, new books. It will not be necessary to check books from the county library, if the new book list keeps increasing in the manner that it has since school began. Students feel that the library is lacking, and the books which they call for have

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

They tell me around here that the depression is over. Had you noticed it? Maybe you hadn't but could detect some encouraging signs if you looked around. A lot of us get the habit of thinking that things have gone to the bow-wows, and by the time we wake up a lot of other people have taken advantage of the upward trend and have grabbed off everything lying around loose.

Midland, as a town, never sat prettier in the nearly 50 years of its existence. And, while I think of it, let's plan now to celebrate Midland's 50th birthday in a big way. As soon as I get the definite date I will print it.

Getting back to how pretty Midland is sitting. They whisper around that the play is "playing out" down in Etex and that the oil men are about ready to hit for the next big shot. The oil men say there are only two big shots, West Texas and western Kansas, and that both will get a play. West Texas has been touched but not scratched, insofar as oil development is concerned. Any oil operator with a few dollars can come out here now and pick up some acreage pretty close to wildcat production that should make him rich as soon as it opens up again.

In other words, it won't be long now until they start coming back, those that left, and start coming in, those that left from towns other than Midland. Sitting in the center of where the play will be, with ample hotel, office and housing accommodations, and with citizens who speak the oil man's lingo and know how to give him what he wants, Midland is on top of the world. Just open your eyes and, as was said back in 1926, keep your ear to the ground. The big noise is coming.

THE TATTLER

Everyone is thrilled nearly to death over the game Armistice day. All Bulldogs played a wonderful brand of ball. Murray, Edna Mae, and Virginia seemed to have a good time after the pep rally Tuesday night. The fish made a big haul on the boxes in the school neighborhood. We notice H. L. and Ruby Hodges are still good friends. Guess who Barney was with Tuesday night? Lowell Webb and Charlene Parrott seem to be very interested in each other.

Thrills in Boyd Film at Grand

Manager Hodge of the Grand theatre promises his patrons red blooded dramatic entertainment that satisfies to the last fade-out in "The Big Gamble." Bill Boyd's new starring vehicle which opens today, "The Big Gamble" tells a thrilling modern story with fast, absorbing action and strong, meaty dialogue. The play has a striking plot, and a perfect cast. It is directed by Fred Niblo.

Bill Boyd gives one of the best performances of his career, proving himself a powerful dramatic actor. Dorothy Sebastian plays the feminine lead opposite her husband and makes a beautiful and sympathetic heroine. Warner Oland, James Gleason, Zasu Pitts, William Collier Jr., Ralph Pace, June MacCloy, and Geneva Mitchell compose a supporting cast that leaves nothing to be desired. Their work is excellent.

SMU EXPECTED TO BE GIVEN CLEAR TITLE AFTER SAT. GAMES

RICE-AGGIE AND TCU-TEXAS GAMES

With SMU clearly picked to win from Baylor this coming week day, by almost any score the Methodists care to pyramid, interest in Southwest conference football narrows down to the TCU-Texas and the Aggie-Owl games, the former to be played in Austin, the latter at Houston.

Frogs to Texas

FORT WORTH, Nov. 13.—More than 1000 Texas Christian university students and other Frog supporters are expected to migrate to Austin Saturday to see the T. C. U.-State football game. A special train will carry the bulk of the rooters, accompanied by the Horned Frog band, but many will motor.

The squad left Fort Worth early Friday morning and were scheduled to take a limbering-up workout immediately upon their arrival in the capital city. With the exception of two men, Coach Schmidt's charges seem to be ready. Ben Boswell, the giant tackle, is at home with a broken bone in his knee. He probably is out for the rest of the season. Red Oliver is with the squad, but a bruised leg may prevent his starting.

Two years ago the Frogs invaded Austin and brought back their first conference victory over the Steers, to the tune of 15 to 12. This year the Longhorns are already out of the running for conference honors, while the Christians have a clean slate in the Southwest. If the latter can again find victory in Austin, the title decision will almost certainly be made in Fort Worth Nov. 28 when Frog meets Mustang.

Aggies vs. Owls

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 13.—Two light lines of almost equal weight and two backfields employing a variety of offensive tactics are scheduled to battle Saturday at Houston when the Texas Aggies and the Rice Institute Owls clash in what generally is conceded to be a "loss-up" football game. The Owls' advantage of playing on their home field will be offset somewhat by the fact that virtually the entire Aggie cadet corps will go to Houston for the game to support its team.

Tackling and blocking also are due to come more into prominence if seasonal records of each team are to be considered. The Owls are supposed to specialize in blocking and tackling and the Cadets are rated as one of the best defensive clubs in the Southwest conference, although imperfect blocking cost them 8 points and a possible tie

SPORTS REPORTS

By R. C. HANKINS

Two more games on the program pointed to by the Barrymen, Colorado here Nov. 21—that is explained by our calendar as Saturday week. We do not want to be the one to inspire over-confidence in our club, but we are due to run over Colorado this year. Do you remember that scoreless tie of last season, one of the fastest games ever played in Midland? But Coach Pierce does not have the rugged band of transfers and recruits that Harry Taylor did. For that matter, neither does Harry have them in his present position at San Angelo.

Which may or may not have anything to do with San Angelo's almost certain loss to Big Spring and to Sweetwater on the 21st and 26th.

A glance into the remaining games on tap shows that the Bobcats have the toughest games of the district. They must play Big Spring then grab Sweetwater the next week. Colorado has only to game in their contest with S. M. U. the past Saturday. Coach Bell has sent his charges through hours of blocking practice this week.

Both teams probably will enter the game without the services of injured stars, "Red" Dickey, a guard and Jack Frye, a backfield man, are reported to be on the Owls' hospital list. Carl Moulden, Aggie captain, wrenched his knee in the S. M. U. game and will not be able to play. Neither will "Pete" Robertson, cadet center who has been in the hospital for more than a week suffering from an infected elbow.

The Aggies finished their hard practice for the game Wednesday and Thursday they began to taper off their training. Scrimmage and intensive practice on blocking, especially while in punt formation, featured the Wednesday session. Thursday the Cadets brushed up on offensive and defensive formations and were scheduled to hold only a very light workout Friday.

The Aggie team will entrain for Houston Saturday morning on one of the three special trains chartered to transport the Aggie cadet corps.

The Aggie tentative lineup is as follows: Malone and Murray, ends; Magrill and Cummings, tackles; Hornsby and Moore, guards; Nolan, center; Aston, fullback; Graves and Davis, halfbacks; Rees, quarterback.

ROCKIES GET ANNUAL SCALP BLOW OF UTES

By CLAIRE BURCKY

NEA Service Sports Writer

The guy who told granddad that "the only good Indian was a dead Indian," couldn't have been in touch with the annual football reports. He probably never heard of Chief Ike (Sitting Bull) Armstrong and his Utah Utes.

They're back again, those Red Devils. Or have they never been away? Anyhow, they've only two more football scalps to peel off before they run out with their fourth consecutive Rocky Mountain football championship and their fifth in seven years with Chief Ike.

Any list of the 10 best football teams in the country, with University of Utah left off it, lacks something. The Utes belong, as do Notre Dame, Northwestern, Harvard, Cornell, Georgia, Tulane, Southern Methodist, Southern California and St. Mary's.

They were beaten this fall for the first time since 1927. Jimmy Phelan's Washington Huskies turned them back by the slim margin of a point after touchdown in the first game of the season. The score was 7 to 6.

But that defeat only made the suffering more acute in the Rocky Mountains. It started a landslide that buried Idaho, Brigham Young, Denver, Colorado Aggies and Colorado College. Only Colorado and Utah Aggies remain in the path of the avalanche and already they are beginning to tremble.

The Utes might still have their victory string intact if they hadn't grown too ambitious. They welcomed the chance to show their brand of football against Washington, although they much preferred a ruid season date. They lost, but they're dangerous now and their late scores prove it.

Chief Ike took the Utes in hand seven years ago after learning about football at Drake university. His teams have lost but six games in 49 since then. Only two of the defeats were given out by Rocky Mountain teams.

Utah is practically certain to go over the 1930 mark in total points by the end of Chief Ike's seventh campaign this fall. They have 1258 points now, for an average of approximately 25 points per contest. Their opposition in seven years has counted 230 points, averaging about per cent of a football man's appeal is his ability to understand clearly the word "no." Anyway, that leaves 95 per cent for maybe, as one might say.

Assistant Coach Lingo showed up with a black eye while going to college. "Where d'you get th' shiner?" his coach asked. "Well, you know the girl who lives in that cottage at the end of the street, whose sweetheart is in Dallas for the week end?" "Yes." "Well, he isn't."

"Pre-war stuff," said Bristow, to Hennig as they drank a bucket of water before the kickoff of the Steer-Mustang game.

In a scrimmage here not so long past, Bryan Henderson, assistant coach here, saw a reserve stand in his track without attempting to tackle Hillman as he spun past to break into a good center behind interference of Fennell, Sherrod and McCall. With his ironic words grating, the coach said: "Kissing is rather dangerous, you know." The one who had preferred to let the tough little back go by, remarked by way of repartee: "Yes, but ain't it wonderful if you live through it."

Actor Opposed to Excessive Realism

Noah Beery, the man who has thwarted the careers and interfered in the love affairs of more cinema heroes than could be computed without the assistance of an adding machine, and whose latest assignment is to furnish opposition to George O'Brien in the Fox western romance "Riders of the Purple Sage", coming Saturday to the Ritz theatre, is one actor at least, who is opposed to the excessive realism favored by numerous picture theorists.

"Naturalism is all very well, and I am heartily in favor of that school of acting," says Beery, "but not to the extent of letting it interfere with the portrayal of the character. A man's outward appearance and actions usually are carefully designed to conceal his real character from his fellows. If an actor is to convey that real character to the audience he must heighten a little the behavior of ordinary life. There must be a slight exaggeration if he is to interpret the inter-

Two regulars from the 1930 backfield and four from the line were missing when Chief Ike assembled his tribesmen this fall. The sophomore class presented him with some very promising talent.

Captain Frank Christenson, leading scorer in the Rocky Mountain district last year, promptly became the hub of the backfield at halfback. Fred (Fet) Tedesco moved over to quarterback from his halfback post. The remainder was filled with the reserve and sophomore stuff.

Two tackles—Jack Johnson, a 220-pounder, and Les Walling—and Winfield Croft, a veteran guard, were on hand for line duty. They stayed and more reserve and sophomore material plugged the gaps. One of the newcomers is Walker McDonald, who has been giving Chief Ike some of the best center play he has ever seen.

ROAD TO START

ODESSA, Nov. 13.—The breaking of ground on that section of the Potash highway, Highway 137, designated by the state from McCamey to Lubbock, will start Monday morning, according to R. G. Abney, resident engineer for the state highway department at Odessa. Sub-contractors are moving in this week establishing their camps north of Odessa. The contract for that section of the highway from the Ector county line north to the city of Andrews was let to McClure of Tucumcari, N. M.

A scenic drive in the Davis mountains near Fort Davis is under construction to extend approximately seventy-five miles.

ODESSA GETS RAIN

ODESSA, Nov. 13.—Rain the early part of this week brought a smile to the faces of local ranchers. While not suffering from the lack of moisture, all welcomed the sight of a few drops. The cattle here are carrying their usual flesh and bloom and are reported to be in good condition. Shipments have been a little light in comparison with the first week of last month but quite a number have been contracted for and before the month is over catlemen expect to pass the 144 carload mark of last month.

A Swisher county woman has preserved fifty-six different kinds of vegetables this season at a total cost of fifty dollars that is now valued at four hundred seventy-five dollars.

Says Woman Here Tipped off Law

BIG LAKE.—George Barber, 22-year-old desperado who with Donald Sessions escaped from the Reagan county jail in Big Lake on the night of October 18, was arrested by a deputy sheriff of Colorado on Saturday, October 24. Two hours later, after throwing two guns on the unarmed officer, Barber was again free, and to this date has not been recaptured.

An unknown woman gave a confession to the sheriff of Midland county last week telling the whereabouts of these two escaped convicts. According to her report, both Barber and Sessions were in Colorado October 24, in Big Spring on the 26th, and in Midland at 5 o'clock on the morning of the 26th. She said that they were driving a dark blue Chevrolet sedan with a Harris county license.

According to the report of the mysterious woman in Midland, Sessions picked up a woman and directly after that, Barber and Sessions parted, while the woman remained as the companion to Sessions. Sheriff Carroll is of the opinion that this may be Sessions' wife.

The Midland officer's informer continued to state that Barber was driving a Childress county car. The Houston car is supposed to be the one in which they made their escape, as these two men were brought from the state penitentiary farm at Houston to Big Lake after confessing to the robbery of the depot at East in 1927.

The Midland county sheriff telephoned J. E. Carroll immediately after he had gleaned this information. Carroll and deputy Parish went to Midland in an attempt to locate Barber and Sessions. Guards were placed close to a house where the convicts were supposed to have been, but they were not located. Charlie Parish again went to Colorado on the 30th and spent several days interviewing officers, but learned no definite information.

A cleaning and pressing shop in Stanton was robbed the night of the 24th, and it is the belief of officers around there that it was the work of Sessions and Barber. Four suits, 3 hats and a number of shirts were taken from the establishment.

Sheriffs in this part of the country think that both men are being harbored by friends in or around Colorado, Lamesa or Big Spring. Parents of Barber live in Colorado and it was there that he was reared.

Murderer Flees Jail in Cupboard

PANAMA, Nov. 13. (UP)—Andres Amos Martinez, Colba Island, Penal colony convict, serving an eight-year murder sentence, whose escape from the model jail recently, has baffled the authorities, was carried to liberty in a wooden cupboard, built for the purpose.

Martinez was brought here from the penal colony a few weeks ago for medical treatment.

A court investigation revealed that the sub-director of the prison ordered several carpenters, who were confined in the model jail, to build him a cupboard, and officials are convinced that Martinez secreted himself therein and when the cupboard was carried away Martinez made good his escape in it.

ARMY AIR CORPS HAS DECREASE IN ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—A vast decrease in the number of fatal accidents in the Army Air Corps, both absolutely and in proportion to "flying hours," was reported today by Secretary of War Hurley by Maj. Gen. James E. Fehet, chief of the air corps.

Only 21 men were killed in the air service during the fiscal year 1930-31 as compared with 37 in the previous year and 45 ten years ago.

An even more pronounced safety trend was reflected in the "fatal accident per flying hour" report. A decade ago pilots flew 77,351 hours with a loss of 45 lives, or one death for each 1,718 hours in the air. In the fiscal year 1930-1931 "flying hours" totaled 396,961. There were 21 fatal accidents. One for each 18,900 air hours.

Chances Increase. Thus, a pilot may now expect to fly 11 times as long without a fatal accident as he could have in the early post-war days.

Non-fatal accidents are decreasing, Fehet says. Although the total number of accidents in the last fiscal year—456—was more than in 1921—361—there were less in proportion to the time aloft. In 1921 there was an accident for each 214 hours of flying time, and last year only one to each 870 hours.

Fehet reported that the commissioned strength of the Air Corps was increased by 33 officers last year, bringing the total to 1,236.

New Aerial Film. The Air Corps has developed a new aerial film which makes it possible to take photographs at sunrise and sunset, a feat hitherto impossible. It also has adopted a new camera capable of picturing 126.4 square miles at one exposure made from a height of 15,000 feet.

Contrary to popular belief, Fehet said, the lighter-than-air division of the Air Corps has found the use of helium in balloons to be more economical than hydrogen.

Fehet said a scheme for the solidification of helium has been presented to the bureau of mines for further investigation.

Crocodiles Adopted As Latest in Pets

PARIS, Nov. 13. (UP)—Pet crocodiles are latest fad in Paris. The tiny amphibians can be bought from animal fanciers. They cost $12 each, but it is recommended that you buy two, for they soon pine away if left alone.

Crocodiles, it is pointed out, are ideal pets for these hard times. They will sleep most of the winter and will therefore not require any food.

Odessa Organizes 20 Sharpshooters

ODESSA, Nov. 13.—Some 20 business and professional men of this city have recently organized what is to be known as the Odessa rifle club. Rifles, ammunition, targets and other material have already been ordered and training should be started by the last of the week. Odessa has some expert riflemen and it is planned to pick a team representing the club to enter into competition with other clubs over the southwest.

Duck Hunters-- (Continued from page 1)

Marion counties. Fortunate "breaks" for the hunters are said to be the fact that the fowls are reported to be stopping at lakes and various places instead of continuing their flight further south.

Another factor is that the ducks have been protected from gun fire on their flight this far and are free from the wild tendency that ordinarily makes them leave.

The deer season also opens Nov. 16 but it does not close until Dec. 31. The bag limit is two bucks a season. Black tail or mule deer west of the Pecos is limited to one a season.

Hunters have been warned that it is unlawful to kill doe deer, fawns or spike bucks; it is unlawful to shoot any gun or fire arm in, along or across any public road in the state; it is unlawful to hunt, kill or possess game birds, game animals or other birds and animals except where provided by law; it is unlawful to hunt from a motor boat, sail boat, boat under tow, automobile or aeroplane.

Other "don'ts" are: don't hunt on state game preserves; don't hunt, kill or take any duck, geese or brant by any other means than by the ordinary shotgun, not to exceed 10-gauge, capable of being shot from the shoulder; don't use or possess a headlight at night in a territory where deer are known to range; don't use a deer call, except deer horns, which may be rattled.

INGTON: "I should say I don't pay any attention to such a superstitious belief. I met my husband on Friday thirteenth. And you ask me what I think of this day?"

L. B. HANKINS: "No difference to me. Maybe if I'd thought of the significance of the day I'd have watched better where I walked. Wonder what Big Spring is thinking after the game with Sweetwater?" These elderly gentlemen just will let their thoughts lightly turn to rough sport these days!

GEORGE DUNAWAY: "If someone thinks I'm superstitious, let him offer me a million dollar retaining fee and see what I do!"

EUGENE FRANKLIN, negro elevator boy at the Scharbauer and a veteran of the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection: "We went up San Juan hill on the thirteenth. That was on Wednesday. The Friday afterward we chased all the Spaniards in Cuba so hard their tongues lolled out. In the island insurrection we could come closer to shooting 13 Aguinaldomen on Friday the thirteenth than on any other day."

After Eight Years Officially Sane By Day, Insane by Night, Man is Free

By JESSE LAVENTHOL Written for NEA Service

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—James E. Macusker is hereby declared sane from 1909 to date and the court hereby orders the discharge of his guardian and the return to him of his estate.

Only a handful of people were in the courtroom when Judge Robert E. Lamberton of Common Pleas court returned that decision here the other day. It had no significance to them, but Macusker, successful after a legal battle of eight years, beamed his gratitude.

James E. Macusker, publisher of a weekly business periodical, had been the subject of an amazing and unprecedented judicial ruling which adjudged him "insane by night and sane by day."

A Strange Paradox. From 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. Macusker dined, walked the streets, conducted his business and mingled with friends as any other normal citizen, but from 8 p. m. until 12 hours later he was confined to an asylum.

It had been ruled that during that interval daily "he suffered delusions in which he imagined himself the victim of a political plot to ruin him, and infidelity on the part of his wife."

Day in and day out throughout the period of his nocturnal incarceration Macusker continued unremittently his legal fight to void the decree that he was "a weak-minded person" and to regain his estate, which in 1923 amounted to about $60,000.

Estate Dwindles. Legal fees, hire of investigators, hospital expenses and support orders paid to his wife had reduced his estate to less than $1,000.

Macusker's troubles began in February, 1923, when, arraigned in Domestic Relations court at the behest of his wife, President Judge Charles L. Brown ordered him committed to the Philadelphia General hospital for observation, and imposed a support order of $20 a week.

Macusker, who had been active politically, always maintained that he had antagonized certain powerful politicians and that their influences was partially responsible for his plight.

After a short time he was transferred from the General hospital, to the county institution for insane. In June, 1923, Judge J. Willis Martin in Common Pleas court issued the famous decree under which Macusker was declared "sane by day and insane by night."

Search failed to disclose a precedent for the unusual decision. The case gained wide publicity here and abroad.

Made Business Prosper. Accompanying the decree was an order removing Macusker from the county institution to the privately-conducted Friends asylum. There Macusker spent his nights, traveling from the asylum, in the suburbs, to his central city office each day and conducting the business of his periodical, which prospered. Friends cited as a commentary on the court order the fact that Macusker signed up $30,000 worth of business for his publication during the time that he was supposedly "sane by day and insane by night."

After four and a half years of this Jekyll-Hyde existence Macusker was finally permitted his freedom at all hours of the day or night. Judge Martin, who has since died, revoked his original order of commitment in October, 1927, but failed to restore Macusker's right to the sole administration of his own affairs.

Then began another siege of litigation which has now ended in complete vindication for the publisher in Judge Lamberton's recent decision declaring Macusker sane and restoring his estate.

Big Howitzers Dash Over Road

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (UP)—A picture of giant motorized howitzers—some of 8-inch caliber—dashing over highways at 45 miles per hour, was painted today in the annual report of Maj. Gen. Samuel Hoff, chief of army ordnance.

Guns of such weight have in past wars had to be moved slowly by mules, or crawling tractors. Now, apparently, it will be possible to transfer them between fronts 200 miles apart in five hours.

The first of these large mobile guns, Hoff reported, was completed last year at Rock Island arsen-nal. It is now at Aberdeen (Md.) proving ground, undergoing tests. "Preliminary firing tests," Hoff said, "indicate that it is satisfactory as a firing unit. In road tests it has been transported at 45 miles per hour, this being made possible by the use of pneumatic tires and spring supports provided in the carriage and limber."

Development of a semi-automatic shoulder rifle to increase the firing power of infantry is being carried out by the ordnance department, Hoff said. Three types of .275 caliber rifles—the Garand, Pederson and White guns—are now being tested.

During the last year the army increased its artillery by 15 75-mm. pack howitzers, 15 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, 11 37-mm. guns, 12 75-mm. mortars and 4 105-mm. howitzers.

The time of building the Seymour-Vernon extension of the Frisco railroad has been extended to the close of 1932 by the interstate commerce commission.
