MOTOR SYNCHRONIZER

BROWNSVILLE.—A synchronizer for motors are multi-engine airplanes, the purpose of which is to do away with the irregular beats caused by difference in revolutions per minute. They've been perfected by George Kraigher, in the experimental laboratories of an air transport company here. The device employs the shadows of the whirling propellers, reflected through convex mirrors to the pilot's eyes.

2 INJURED WHEN AUTO, BUS BUMP

Chas. King and Mrs. Buck King sustain Broken Members

Charley King, Midland cowboy, sustained a broken leg and a severe gash in his head and Mrs. Buck King suffered a broken arm and minor cuts and bruises when the automobile in which they were riding was struck head-on by a west-bound Greyhound bus shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon where Wall and Front streets merge on the Broadway of America.

King, driving a Ford ranch car owned by Leon Goodman, was going east on Wall street and met the bus which, bystanders said, was heading west on Front street. The bus, apparently in an effort to miss all oncoming traffic, pulled to the extreme side of the street near the railroad section house, and King, kept to the right, resulting in a head-on collision with the bus. A light car backward approximately 40 feet, throwing Mrs. Buck King out of the car.

The injured woman was taken to one hospital and the man, her brother-in-law, to another for emergency treatment. Both are expected to recover.

SAYS NEITHER VEHICLE WAS MAKING FAST TIME

Miss Mary Helena Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Price of Stanton and an instructor in the Stanton public school system, was aboard the bus. She was going to the Vickers dance and expression studio to continue study in a course for which she recently had signed.

She said she believed neither the bus nor the car was making fast time though she said she did not actually see the collision. No one in the bus was shaken much, though several women were much frightened, she said.

The bus was well filled with passengers, Miss Price said.

HOUSTON, Sept. 22. (UP)—The attorney for the railroad commission stoutly defended the East Texas field prohibition before a three judge federal tribunal today.

Independents, who rested their case late yesterday, were seeking an injunction to restrain the commission from limiting production. Expert testimony of geologists and engineers was used. Petroleum Engineers F. E. Hess, E. C. Buck, C. V. Milliken and George L. Nye this morning testified that state prohibition was necessary to make ultimate recovery of oil the greatest.

NEGRO GETS FOUR YEARS FOR MURDER

Case Is Second Four-Year Term for Murder Here

For the second consecutive day, prison sentences were given negro defendants in murder trials of district court here, when a jury reported its findings at 10:30 o'clock last night in the case against Searcy Baker, charged with administering with a knife wounds from which another Midland black died here a few months past. The case went to the jury at 9.

Doris Dixon, negress, was given a four-year prison term the day before. She had been charged with shooting to death Dewey Edwards, member of a negro orchestra, recently.

No cases were on the docket for today, but the robbery and theft from person charges against Sid and Ruby Hedges go to bat Friday morning.

Big Spring Rotates Stage Good Program

"Nothing to do" has no part in Rotary club work, judging from the moral of a skit by that title staged before the local club today by a group of Big Spring Rotarians. The program was the first of an exchange between the two clubs, the local organization to send a group there Tuesday, Oct. 4, headed by W. T. Pratt.

Elmo Wesson was in charge of the Big Spring program. He first introduced Father Theo Francis of his club, who made a brief talk on the advantages of reading "The Rotarian," official magazine, which he described as an artery of the Rotary body.

Using an office which had been arranged on the stage by Arthur G. Jury, four Big Spring Rotarians, including Wasson, W. C. Blankenship, Bruce Frazier and Ray Simmons, staged a playlet in the form of a Rotary committee meeting. A strong moral, to show the possibilities of Rotary work in the community, was developed, Simmons playing the principal role.

DuBois, shot himself, rather than face investigation of her death. He left a note saying she had shot herself and that he concealed the body, fearing this would not be believed.

MANY LONG-LASTING POSSIBILITIES SEEN AS OUTCOME OF CONTEST FOR TEXAS DEMOCRATIC GOVERNORSHIP

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Sept. 22. (UP)—There has been but one previous contest of a state-wide election in Texas that is recalled in the state capitol. It affords little precedent upon which to go for the contest filed by Governor Ross S. Sterling against Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, certified winner by nearly 4,000 votes of the democratic nomination for re-plot.

The former contest was between the late W. P. Lane of Fort Worth, and Jeff McLemore, Houston, for congressman-at-large, in 1914. The contest was tried while the court in Harris county, taken to the court of civil appeals and dismissed on the ground the court had not right to pass upon it, as the office is federal rather than state.

Most of the questions being asked as a result of the contest will require court rulings to answer. Leading points seem to be: Governor Sterling as the contestant must finance the bringing of contested election boxes and witness to Austin. Estimates of what will be run from $12,000 to $50,000.

Unless the contest is decided against Mrs. Ferguson by Oct. 9, Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum must send her name as democratic nominee to the county judges for the Nov. 8 election.

Although wounded at the university campus, Police R. D. Thorp arrested the man, about 45, at home. Mystery surrounds the case and the police are extremely reticent about the matter, and will not assign the reason why they arrested here today.

In the meantime, a 16-year-old Oklahoma boy is held. Five rangers are probing the shooting.

Bears Sent to Cover

The stock market rally was the first sizeable upswing since the market began to dip on September 12 after its summer rise. Apparently heartened by the recent action of securities, which, after resisting further liquidation earlier this week had become very quiet, buyers put in new orders for stocks, sending "bears" scampering to cover their short commitments.

WHAT MAINE'S VOTE MEANS

The old theory that the September election in Maine offers an infallible forecast of the way the presidential election is going to go has been shot full of holes in recent years. Nevertheless, there is no question but that the result of the recent Maine election is giving politicians in both parties a great deal of food for thought.

To a neutral observer it would seem that the result forecasts nothing quite so clearly as a very hot campaign all the way to election day. The Democrats will go at things with new hope, the Republicans with new determination; out of it ought to come a fight that fairly sizzles.

Meanwhile, it is worth remembering that elections are decided in November, not in September. There is still plenty of time for either side to make the converts it needs—or, for that matter, to alienate present supporters by blunders. The campaign of 1932 is not over. It is just beginning.

Apathetic voters should remember there is no recounting of ballots for the benefit of those who remain away from the polls.

Swapping Yarns with Col. True

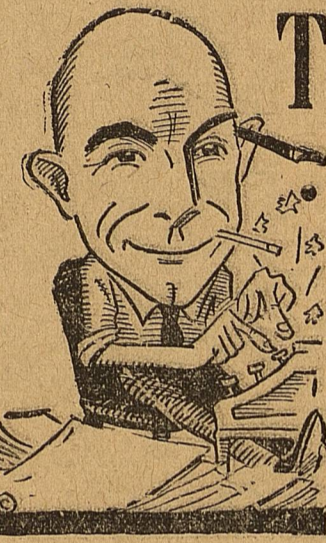

Col. True maintains a standing invitation to others to write to him and tell of their own extraordinary experiences. No holds barred. Address Col. True, in care of The Reporter-Telegram.

Dear Col. True: I have an uncle who has a very healthy appetite. He eats flapjacks made of chili powder, pepper sauce and dynamite. He eats nitroglycerine for syrup, plug tobacco for bread and washes it down with gasoline.

From South America. Thereafter, for several years he ate or drank little else. Not long afterward we had to insist that he sleep with his feet away from the fire; he had taken so much of the rubber tree sap that he was beginning to smell like rubber. A little later he discovered he could twist his head around and around on his shoulders, release it and it would spin back like a pinwheel. He could amuse little children for hours at a time with this stunt.

ALFRED BOYD. Sir: Apparently all of the remarkable people are uncles. But I am glad folks write me about their uncles because that gives me a chance to write about mine. My Uncle Eppson True has an unusual appetite, the principal feature of which is a fondness for the sap of the rubber tree. I think I mentioned once that I was familiar with this drink, having lived on it for some time through necessity. I brought some of it home and Uncle Eppson tried it, immediately ordering one hundred barrels shipped to him.

I remember one day when he was shingling the barn and fell off. He bounced sixteen times before he could get on his feet. His arms were just like rubber, too. He caught a hand in the back door one morning and didn't discover it until, when he was half way to the barn, someone opened the door and turned it loose. It snapped back to normal length and knocked him over the cow lot fence. My Pa used to remark that Uncle Eppson ought to be good for lots of miles, especially after he backed up against the cookstove and got a non-skid tread.

The Town Quack

The "mouthpiece."

A Midland woman, not satisfied with the way her husband was progressing in the business world, told him that the only mark he ever made in life was the bath-tub-rim. Up in Kansas the welfare associations are getting so tight that they won't give money to people who own automobiles. Well, right here in Midland, the able bodied man who won't pick cotton certainly deserves no aid. I heard one say the other day, when told of work in the cotton patches near town, that he tried picking the day before and didn't make but six bits. It sounded easier to him just to have the money for the groceries handed over the counter.

No, this isn't Col. True speaking. An unattractive bachelor, who had to "buy" all of his love affairs, said that all of his girls were "dear" to him.

After an El Paso dog bit a Mexican, the pooch was ordered by the police to be tied up so it could be observed for a few days. They may not have thought of it, but it would be a good idea to observe the Mexican, too.

A Midland ranchman who has always saved for a rainy day was complaining the other day about being broke. Asked about his rainy day savings, he said they blew away a couple of years ago during the hot, dry winds.

Up at school a student was asked to define "false doctrine," and he said it was when the doctor gives the wrong medicine. And then there was the football player in college who was ineligible because he said blue vitriol was green. He may not have been ignorant, but just color blind.

Some children out in my neighborhood were playing gangster, and one of the group was holding the hats of the others.

"Who's the guy holding the hats?" I asked. "He's our lawyer," one of the gangsters replied.

French Plans Work for Ships

CHERBOURG. (UP)—The Minister of Merchant Marine, Leon Meyer, better known as the Socialist Mayor of Le Havre, has announced he is going to put the French flag on the seas. "Without incurring the ill will of our neighbors," Meyer told a group of ship owners here, "we must get the French ships out of the basins where they are lying idle and place them in the service of our commerce, especially in instances where traders are favored with import licenses for France."

Minister Meyer was impressed favorably with the deep harbor facilities which the authorities of Cherbourg recently have inaugurated, enabling the biggest ships to moor in the port, but the most interesting information he gave out was that he expects to have a decree issued which will compel foreign importers to use 50 per cent of ships bearing the French colors, especially in the coal trade between Great Britain and France. The ship owners, dealing in coal, complained that eight-tenths of the imported British coal was carried on foreign bottoms.

French ships particularly are lacking, however, in the smaller tonnage coal ships of 600, 800 and 1,200 tons, for which British bottoms will be used.

BRITISH EXPERTS INTERESTED IN 5-DAY WEEK

By HERBERT MOORE United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON. (UP)—Forever amazed by the United States' daring financial and economic moves to rout the depression, British experts are deeply interested in the outcome of President Hoover's efforts to fight unemployment with unemployment—for that is what the five-day week proposal amounts to.

It happens that, just at this time, world discussions of the question of shorter hours of work as one of the remedies for unemployment are occurring as a result of the adoption at the last session of the Labor Conference in Geneva. By means of a shortening of the hours, the resolution affirmed, production could be adjusted to consumption, available work could be distributed over a larger number of persons, and the unemployed could be reabsorbed into employment.

Widely Discussed. The European leaders have been discussing the proposal in their own countries, seeking to line up public opinion and bring about governmental action.

In Britain the five-day week has many advocates in Laborite circles, but their approval is conditioned on a demand that the worker shall receive his full amount of wages, which economic conditions have prescribed as payable for a longer day and a larger output. In view of this condition and the rather strong position of Trade Unionism in most of the major industries, the five-day week is not likely to be introduced in Britain any time soon unless it becomes widely practiced and proves successful in other countries.

With proportionate wage reductions, British employers feel, they might undertake such a proposal, but only if it succeeds elsewhere. Not until Parliament reassembles in October, will there be much agitation in behalf of a five-day week here, but Laborites are expected to champion the idea at the first opportunity.

BUSY AIR LINE

MONTGOMERY BAY.—Another "clipper" airplane has been added to the Pan-American Airways lines, and now the huge "American Clipper" piloted by Jamaica by Col. Charles Lindbergh last fall, has a sister ship. The new plane is known as the "Caribbean Clipper," and will run on the Florida-Latin America route.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know. For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. "Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD" —and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes. ADDITIONAL SNAP SEEN AS BULLDOGS WORK BEHIND SHUT GATE

SECOND TEAM HAS NEW SPIRIT OF SCRAPPINESS

By JESS RODGERS

In their first days practice behind locked gates, the lack of a crowd seemed to have a different effect on the Bulldogs and Bull Pups Wednesday.

With the presence of a few spectators, the first string men have characterized their workouts with lots of vim and dash by most of the men while the second stringers have almost been sleeping on their feet. Yesterday was just the opposite. In two hours of scrimmage among themselves, the second team worked hard for Coach Henderson and then asked for a chance at the first team.

Faced only with the task of dummy scrimmage and the running of a few plays, the first team played like it had already done a hard day's work. Coach Barry has promised them a hard series of workouts the rest of the time elapsing before the Stanton game. The lack of their failure to take advantage of one of the first cool days of the season.

Barry says the team is much improved in condition over the club last year at the same date, but that he now has seven new men of the first string to point out their positions. He says nothing except hard work and concentrated attention to coaching will get the club ready for the first game on Sept. 30.

The coaches are also faced with the task of developing reserve strength and according to the present outlook, only a few of the second team men will be able to break into the lineup in the series of hard games. Most of the second stringers are green and inexperienced kids out for their first season. However, Maurice King, "Fud" Inman, E. B. Evans and Rick Liewellen are apt to see a lot of service on the first string. Should Roy Jones and Johnny Nobles continue their rapid development they will see some service in the first string backfield. Lack of weight is their greatest handicap.

The first string backfield seems to have plenty of power for line bucking and plunging, should their line give them a little help; but they are going to miss the speed of Burris and Midkiff on those sweeping end runs. What their passing game is going to be remains to be seen, as this department of the game has not been stressed during the early workouts. Next week should see the club hard at work on this. Present indications are that Sherrod and Jones will do most of the passing, with Hallman and Dorsey doing the most of the receiving. Hallman has proved his ability to snag the ball, while Dorsey has yet to show what he can do. With that pair of ham-like hands and the build that he has he should be good. If someone would walk in "Stink's" face and make him mad, then find some way of keeping him that way, the big end would be a power to the team.

BLONDIE Of the Follies

By Frances Marion

The heat and noises, the dust and odors still poured up from the tenement streets into the McClune flat, but it now had an atmosphere that had not known for a long, long time. True, the old place was stripped of all the presents Blondie had given her family during her heyday in the Follies, but there was something that more than took their places in the dingy rooms. Blondie was home. Her cheerful smile, her resonant voice and her lovable personality permeated the whole house.

Seated in her father's old chair, her legs propped upon pillows and covered with a blanket, she was listening intently to Gert reading from a theatrical trade paper.

"New Find in the Follies... Wow! Pickled up in Automat... New Blonde Promises to Panic Them Along the Main Stem... Gert paused and looked at Blondie. They both smiled significantly. Gert started to put the paper down, but before Gert could pick up the paper Peter burst into the room.

"Where's my hat!" he called cheerfully. "Where's my coat. How can any of you expect me to get out to work in the morning without a little assistance! Don't you know they're waiting for me!"

Gert rushed for the hat and the coat. "Here you are, precious!" she said lovingly, as she held the coat for him, then followed him out into the hall.

Well, there's a silver cloud to every lining!" said Blondie, laughing. "At least Pete's come to life!"

Mrs. McClune came in from the kitchen, went directly to the table beside Blondie's chair, and looked carefully over a tray of dishes sitting there.

"M-m-m... nice appetite," she said, very much pleased.

"M-m-m... nice food! Nothing like your cooking, Ma!" Blondie watched her mother go out with the tray. Then she closed her eyes rather wearily. Gert noticed it.

"Gee, Blondie, you've got to get away from your cooking, Ma!" Blondie opened her eyes, looking straight at Gert. "Let's face it, Gert. I'll never be able to dance again; the doctors say maybe I'll never walk..."

"Doctors... they give me a pain in the neck..."

"They're right—I know..."

"Don't worry, kid—I'm here—we'll wrangle things somehow..."

She rose quickly and went to the window to hide her tears. She looked down into the street. Suddenly she exclaimed wildly.

"Blondie! He's down there!"

"Who? The doctor?"

"No. Your friend, Larry Belmont!"

"Larry! What's he doing down there?"

"I guess he's coming up to see you."

"You didn't let him know..."

Blondie was alarmed.

"Cross my heart..."

"Is—anybody with him?"

"Not a soul!"

"Oh, I can't see him... I can't!"

Blondie cried, with a little catch in her voice.

Gert hurried from the window. "Let me fix you up—maybe you can get him back..."

"But I couldn't have him back—not now..."

Ignoring Blondie's protests, Gert picked up a bright colored scarf from the coat and threw it over the blanket covering her legs. She ran into the bedroom and came back with a little bed jacket which she carefully put around Blondie's shoulders.

"He's stuck on you, Blondie..."

he'll be all broke up when he sees you like this... as she straightened the scarf... now's the time to hook him, kid!"

As she spoke there was a sharp knock at the door. The two girls looked at each other excitedly. Then Gert hurried to the door.

"Why, Mr. Belmont!"

"Hello!" he said, entering the door, and then he saw Blondie.

"Hello, Larry!" forcing a smile she did not feel. She held out her hand. He grasped it in both of his and still holding it, dropped into a chair at her side.

"Toodle-oo! I'll be seeing you," said Gert as she went out.

But neither of them heard it. Holding her hand, Larry looked at her tenderly. Blondie returned his gaze, outwardly calm and a bit disinterested. But she was clenching her teeth to keep back the tears. With a mighty effort she managed to appear casual and slightly amused.

"Glad to see you back. Have a nice trip?" she tried not to let her voice break.

"No." Larry never took his eyes off her. "I was lonesome."

"In Paris?"

"Why?"

"You know why."

"Oh..." Blondie could trust herself to say no more. It was harder than ever to fight back the tears now.

Larry glanced down at her legs. "When are you going to be strong enough to ankle up the aisle with me?" he asked, trying to make light of a serious moment.

"Don't be sill!" Blondie was laughing bitterly—but her heart was breaking.

"You mean you can walk now?" asked Larry, hopefully.

"Why, sure—I've been walking for weeks. I'll be dancing my feet off in a month from now!"

"Gee, how up, then, and get your bonnet on."

"I said don't be sill." She said it so icily that Larry drew back.

"What do you mean?"

"You really want to marry me?"

"Why not? I don't want anything else. Love's a precious thing in life; it's like lightning—it never hits twice in the same place. Oh, Blondie, we're lucky!"

"Speak for yourself, Larry," she said, as cold and hard as she could, with a note of scorn and bitterness.

"That love stuff doesn't seem to ring the bell with me—the only time I was in love it hurt like the devil..." she was laughing, strange hollow laughter... and now that I'm over it..."

"What do you mean, you're over it?"

"You're kidding me, Larry, you're kidding me!"

"Just that, Larry, I'm sorry..." she answered harshly.

"You're not serious."

"Never was more serious in my life," she laughed sarcastically.

"Well, I guess I can take it."

"I did." Blondie clinched her teeth.

"You must be kidding," said Larry, convinced, yet hoping against it.

"Kidding nothing—you're pretty conceited, Larry, but thanks all the same," said Blondie, still laughing coldly.

"I've had many a sock on the nose—but I must say this almost floors me." He was trying to be facetious to cover his embarrassment and hurt. He got to his feet, stood up and looked at her.

"I know how easily you can forget," said Blondie, handing him the theatrical paper. "They've found a new blonde for the Follies."

Larry threw the paper down angrily. Without a word he turned and walked out. As the door slammed tears were streaming down Blondie's cheeks. She was at the breakfast table, laughing at the news completely, when suddenly a great sense of peace and quiet came over her. Quite calmly she realized that she had done the right thing—marriage was an impossibility for her now, and she looked down at her crippled legs. Then the thought of her old pa swept over her.

"Did I make good for you—Pa?" she said softly, smiling through her tears.

Suddenly she threw off the scarf and blanket from her legs. With great effort she struggled to her feet. Holding to the table she stood quietly for a moment. Then, by the aid of chairs, the table, the rickety old buffet, she managed to stagger to the window so she could watch him drive down the street, away from her... out of her life forever.

She looked down into the street.

Hi School Frosh Beat Junior High

Captain Billy Estes led his junior high school team to victory Tuesday afternoon against the strong freshman team of the high school, losing 12-0 the first game of the season here.

The game was exciting from the start.

The freshmen kicked to the junior high team to start the melee, and, on the fourth play, a blocked punt allowed the freshmen a chance to launch their first touchdown drive. They failed to kick goal.

At the beginning of the second quarter, the freshmen started their second jaunt for a marker. Roy Skipper, line-plunging fullback, and Clinton Buffington, speed merchant, taking the oval alternately through and around the junior high defense. These two boys carried the ball from their own 30-yard line to the junior high 3-yard stripe, where Skipper fumbled and the junior high lads recovered. On the first play, Lee Kirby went through the freshmen line for a five-yard gain, but fumbled and lost the ball to a freshman player. In two plays Skipper was over with the second touchdown.

The second half found a different junior high team. They carried the ball two-thirds of the time and kept the ball in freshman territory, but his mates could not summon the necessary punch to put the ball over into the end-zone.

Outstanding players for the freshmen were Buffington and Skipper in the backfield and Stout, Collins and Walker in the line. L. H. Collins was in every play and easily made a few of the freshmen tackles.

For the junior high team, Truex and Kirby made a two-man offense. In the line, Thurman, Bryant, High and Acker halves, Truex full, Chandler center, Rountree and Clifford guards, Bryant and Morgan tackles, Lee and La Mar ends, Junior High substitutes were: Chandler for Clifford, Midkiff for Estes, Estes for La Mar and Holder for Lee.

COMES TO YUCCA

Robert Hudson, 13, "boy prodigy," will be on the stage of the Yucca theatre tonight and Friday night. Manager John Bomer, announced today, he said the boy and his mother, Mrs. R. J. Hudson, of Omaha, Neb., are stopping over because of high water.

Mrs. Hudson said the young singer had been invited to the west coast for an audition by a screen company, and he has appeared on radio programs en route, also appearing on church programs as soloist.

and saw Larry talking to Gert. Suddenly he turned and almost ran back into the tenement house. Panic seized Blondie. Gert must have told him back out of pity for her! She must get away from him... hide from him.

She staggered across the room and into the hall. Wildly she flung open the entrance door of the flat. Her only thought was to escape—to run away from Larry—to hide. She started up the stairs, as she heard him running up from below.

"Blondie! Larry called as he reached the door of the flat. Then, seeing that it was open, he stopped suddenly. He turned and saw Blondie struggling up the stairs.

"Blondie!"

She broke into hysterical laughter and tears. "The doctors said I couldn't walk any more," she cried. "You little liar! So you were going to send me away, were you?"

"But I can walk—I can walk!"

"You'll never be able to walk fast enough to get away from me again," he said, grinning broadly.

"Okay, mister!" said Blondie, laughing.

"Mister yourself!"

Tenderly he picked her up in his arms and carried her down the stairs into the flat.

PERRY, Okla., Sept. 22. (UP)—A new mid-continent oil field was believed to have been opened this morning when a wildcat was brought in on the Wolfe estate, 14 miles southwest of here. It was a unit operation of Lew Wentz, wealthy Ponca City man.

DETROIT, Tex., Sept. 22.—In the quietness of a village cemetery, final rites were said Wednesday for the pioneer mother of John Nance Garner, the vice presidential nominee.

The mother, Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, passed quietly away in her old home Tuesday, surrounded by her children, three sons and two daughters.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 22.—Franklin D. Roosevelt last night proposed an eight-point plan for the regulation and control of public utilities engaged in the power business, one phase of which called for supervision by the federal power commission over holding companies.

BEAUMONT, Sept. 22.—Alex McColl, who several years ago was ousted from the Texas league because of a sore arm, took his former ailing salary wing to the mound Wednesday and pitched Chattanooga to a five to nothing victory over Beaumont. The win squared the Dixie series at one-all. Beaumont having won the initial contest on Tuesday, 1 to 0.

McCull mixed a baffling low curve ball with dazzling speed to check Beaumont with four hits, no two coming in the same inning. Beaumont never got a man on third. In the first series game Clyde Barfoot held Beaumont to four hits and if anything, McColl's pitching Wednesday was superior.

Stockyards Rate Reductions Asked

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 22.—Texas cattlemen, through the executive committee of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association, will ask a general reduction in stock yard rates throughout the country when they meet in Maria, Texas, Oct. 6-7. E. E. Mollin, Denver, secretary-treasurer of the American National Livestock association, said, Mollin with Charles E. Collins of Kit Carson, Colo., president of the American National, and Albert K. Mitchell of Albert, New Mexico, will attend the meeting.

enter politics. He was urged by many to be the candidate this year to defeat the Ferguson forces.

The contest may bring the mantle of fame to some of the contest participants, like Sam McCormick of Mexico, hard hitting prosecutor, who has resigned his office to wage the contest battle.

Already Attorney General James V. Ferguson, Tom Hunter and Lieut. Governor Edgar Witt are being talked as 1934 candidates for governor.

Whether Mrs. Ferguson would ask a re-election and a third term is doubtful.

In the offing is a possibility that the 43rd Texas legislature meeting here Sunday night, on Monday, Sept. 22, may take the whole race out of a primary and return it again to convention nomination.

WARD TEST STRIKES GAS

During the pebbly beach and grassy shores of a California island into a palm-bordered South Sea village was one of the miracles achieved by Director John Blystone and his staff during the filming of the Fox picture "The Painted Woman," the tropic romance coming to the screen of the Yucca theatre today and tomorrow.

Dozens of palm-thatched native huts, a combination of hot club-bar and general store typical of the locale and the residence of the Administrator, were constructed amid a small forest of cocoanut palms. Backed out drying fish-traps and a score of outrigger canoes along the beach, crude lean-tos where the native vendors spread their wares of fruits, vegetables, pottery and live-stock, and the whole peopled with some hundred of "types" among whom the principals carried on their dramatic story, all served to make the setting a vividly realistic one.

Spencer Tracy and Peggy Shannon head the cast of "The Painted Woman" with William (Stage) Boyd, Irving Pichel, Paul Roulien, Laska Winter, Murray Kinnell, Chrispin Martin and Herbert Maudin in important roles. Guy Blystone and Leon Gordon wrote the film versions of A. C. Kennedy's gripping play, and the picture is said to be one of the most unusual offerings of the season.

ROYALTY IN ECTOR SOLD

The purchase by James McCurdy of Fort Worth from Elliott Cowden of Midland of one-sixteenth of the royalty under three sections beginning Sunday night on Monday of L. C. Harrison's No. 1 F. V. Addis estate is the first deal reported near either of two wildcats in Ector county that now are attracting much attention. The sections under which the royalty changed hands are 14, 15 and 10 in block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

The price was on a base of $25 a acre, it is reported. No. 1 Addis is standing with 3 1/4 inch casing cemented at 2,720 feet and a cave below it recemented. Drilling of the plug is scheduled to start Sunday night on Monday morning. Drilling stopped at 3,640 feet in brown lime, grey and white anhydrite, red shale and sand, where, according to one report, some gas showed through a column of water. Top of the brown lime has been reported as 3,613 feet, 670 feet below sea level. No. 1 Addis is in section 35, block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, about two miles east of Weekley Oil Corp. and Casteel & McCurdy's No. 1 E. F. Cowden, which was completed as a small gasser.

Broderick & Calvert and others' No. 1 Parker, about seven miles east and slightly north of No. 1 Addis and in section 15, block 44, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, had drilled past 4,000 feet. Some have picked the top of the grey lime at 3,940 feet. Top of the first brown lime at 3,785 and the top of the main brown lime body as 3,875 feet was reported earlier. Elevation is 3,122 feet.
