HEARING ON CONTEST PROCEEDS

Team to Miss This Husky

Last year's grid captain, Lloyd Burris, pictured above, will be one of the powerful men missing this afternoon when the Midland Bulldogs line up against the Stanton Buffaloes in the initial grid card of the season. An all-district halfback last year, his place is filled this season by Gordon Jones, a well-built little player but who is as green as they make them. Frank Midkiff is another luminary who will not be seen today. Joe Roberts having been placed in his narrow shoes. Hallman (captain) and Sherrod are the regulars behind the line.

GAME IS POSTPONED UNTIL FOUR O'CLOCK

FREE TICKETS TO BREEDER-FEEDER BANQUET OFFERED

Cattlemen of Midland who plan to attend the breeder-feeder banquet to be given as compliments of the Dallas state fair can get free tickets by applying this week at the chamber of commerce office for reservations.

The plans of the committee in charge of the "Meat for Health Week" October 8-13, have been completed and pronounced by those in a position to know as the most complete ever undertaken in the United States.

Phone District Here Leads State

The Midland district of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company led the state of Texas in the net gain of new phones, based on proportionate population, figures sent W. G. Riddle, the district manager.

With the turf of Lackey field faster than it ever has been, the sun shining out of a cloudless sky for the first time in days and prospects of a big crowd, the initial grid game here this afternoon at 4 with Stanton assumed increased importance. The game was postponed from 3:30 because of the funeral this afternoon at Stanton of Horace Hamilton, who died Sunday.

And for the first time since the game was matched, Head Coach L. K. Barry issued a definite statement wherein he predicted the Bulldogs would win the encounter.

"If the game goes according to the way the coaching staff has hoped for, Midland will win," Barry said at noon. "With the clear weather that dawned today, Midland's chances went up considerably. We may be slightly outweighed, but I feel Midland has the superior team."

Officials were announced as Leonard Hill (AFC) referee, Alton Swain (Trinity) umpire, Tiny Reed (Texas) head linesman.

Barry's decision to use Dorsey at right end followed Hubert Mills' failure to show on the offense as he has been doing on the defense. Earlier, it had been planned to use Mills instead of Dorsey, a regular, because the bigger man was weak on defense. Maurice King may see service at the position before the afternoon is over, Barry said.

Sport fans may see Rick Lewellyn in action in the backfield. He is one of the inexperienced men who has been going strongly after a regular's berth, and it is only a matter of time until he lands. He is cocky, assertive and pugnacious type that makes a good quarterback and it is rumored he is gradually being groomed for that position.

Midland's last meeting with Stanton resulted in a two-touchdown victory for the Bulldogs, the two games before that ending in scoreless ties.

HOOVER TO START HIS SPEAKING

Opens at Des Moines To Bring Back "The Bacon"

(By United Press) President Hoover was ready today for his first campaign speech at Des Moines, as Franklin D. Roosevelt pulled into Albany. He said he was confident that he would "bring home the bacon."

Hoover will speak at Des Moines tomorrow night, the "battle ground of the farm belt."

Roosevelt plans to begin his tour of the south next Sunday or Monday. He was expected to join Al Smith in urging state democrats meeting at Albany today to nominate Lieutenant Governor Herbert Lehman for governor.

Tammany opposes Lehman, favoring Mayor Thacher of Albany. Republican midwest leaders from Chicago were urging Coolidge to stump for the republican party.

Ferguson's Idea of Ma for Governor Is A Peculiar Story

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, (UP)—The idea that a state might have a woman governor was born on a baggage truck at the little railroad station at Lometa, in Lampasas county.

"Governor Jim" had spoken at a country fair at San Saba. Will Cowan, San Saba editor, and Ed House, chamber of commerce secretary, had driven him and T. H. McGregor, another speaker to Lometa to catch a train.

Ferguson was sitting on the baggage truck apparently in deep thought. He had received a wonderful reception at the fair. In it he apparently saw a ray of light. Suddenly turning to McGregor he asked: "What do you think about my wife running for governor?"

"I've heard of a man running a grocery store in his wife's name. I guess this could be done, too," answered McGregor. "Do you think you can get her to do it?"

"I believe so," said Ferguson. "Shortly after, Texas and the whole country was startled with the announcement of Mrs. Ferguson for governor and her "vindication" campaign.

Political water has passed over the political wheel, meantime. The senate verdict sustaining impeachment had been given Sept. 25, 1929. Ferguson, and his family had returned to Temple. On Nov. 8, there was issued Vol. I, No. 1 of the Ferguson Forum, with James E. Ferguson as editor.

As leading article was a copy of his university appropriation veto. Its purpose, the salutatory announced, was to fight the newspapers which he accused of failure to deal fairly with him in his impeachment.

The war-heat had given wide spread to a report that the $156,000 whose source Ferguson refused to reveal came from the kaiser.

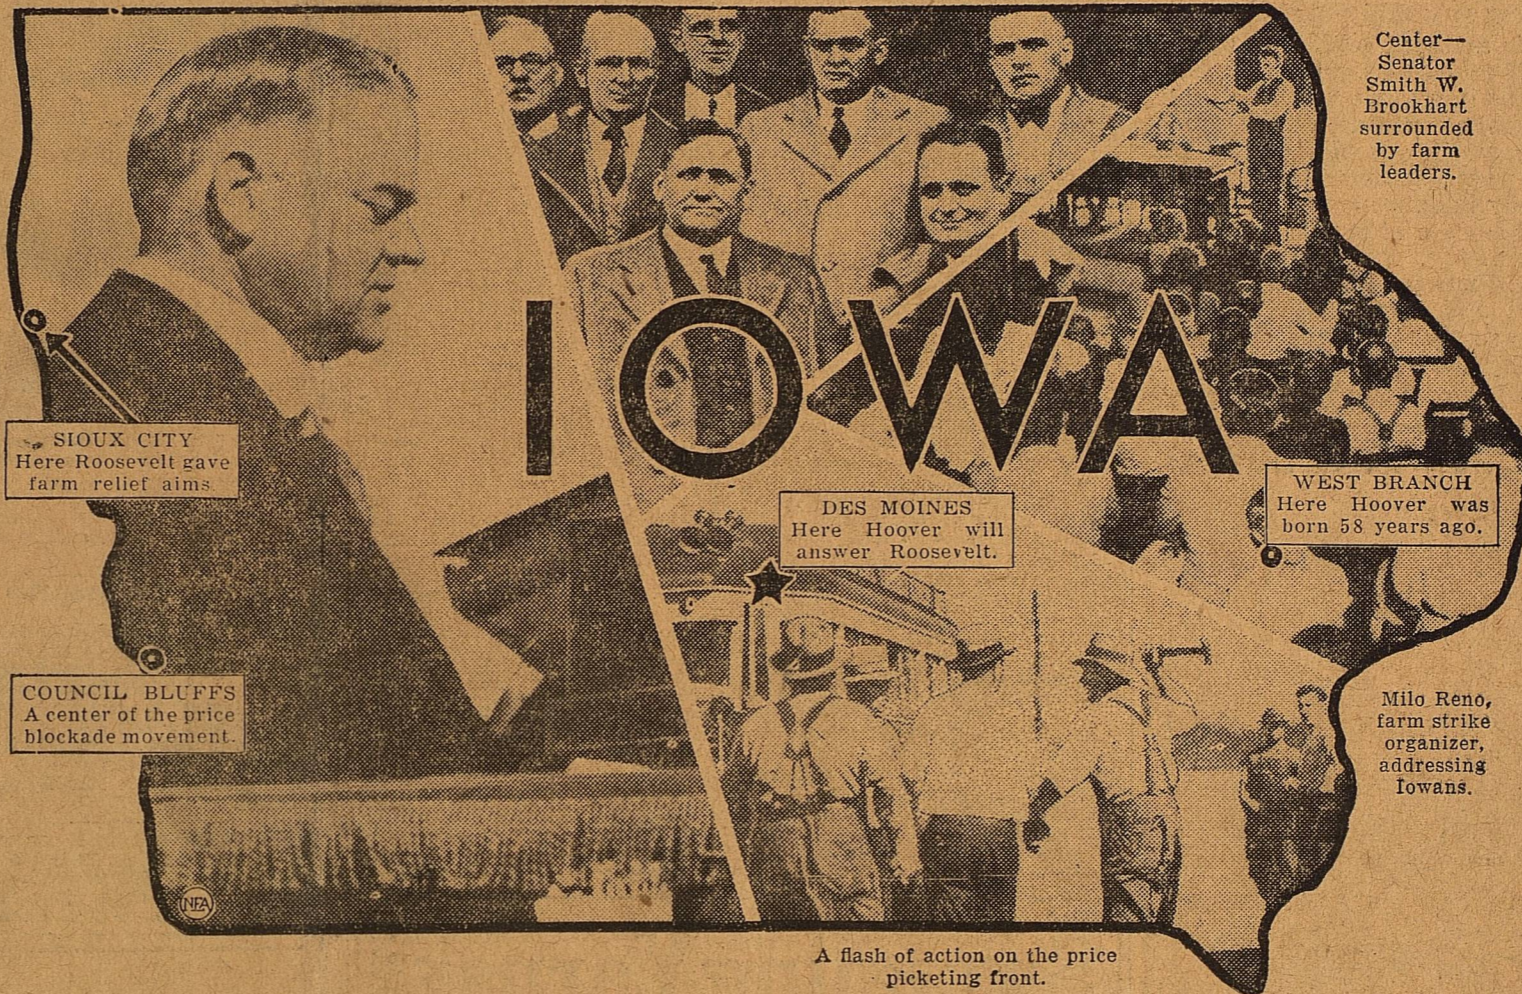

Ferguson issued a denial, but still refused to disclose the source. Then came federal court litigation in which the contributors themselves gave the information.

The Forum appeared with the heading "Two Hundred Thousand Liars Running Loose in Texas" and reproduced the information of that hearing.

Defying the senate verdict that he never again hold office, Ferguson announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination on April 6, 1918. Talk of barring his candidacy was rife but on June 10 the state democratic executive committee voted 26 to 3 to put his name on the ballot.

Governor Hobby, who had stepped into executive office, from lieutenant governor when Ferguson was impeached, also announced his candidacy. Statutory woman suffrage was enacted. There was no time for women to comply with the provision requiring payment of a state poll tax in January to qualify as a voter, so the poll tax payment was waived for them and the polls opened to all women of voting age. Governor Hobby won the election 461,479 to 217,012. Ferguson estimated 320,000 women voted and only 20,000 men. (See JIM FERGUSON page 4)

DAVIS TRIAL ON LOTTERY CHARGE ENDS A MISTRIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (UP)—Trial of Senator Davis, accused of violating the federal lottery laws, ended today in a mistrial. The mistrial was declared after Charles J. Margiotti, chief defense attorney, gave Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman information regarding one juror and an alternate juror.

Henry J. Moore, fraternal brother of Margiotti, told defense counsel Percy J. Mims will sing a tenor solo, Wallace Wimberly playing the piano accompaniment. The Rev. Winston F. Borum will give minstrel numbers, with Mrs. Borum playing the accompaniment. Borum also will direct the singing at the luncheon, using his famous trombone.

A committee on transportation was at work today, securing cars and assigning places for Rotarians making the trip.

SUNSHINE, CLEAR SKIES BRIGHTEN FARMERS' HOPES; TRAFFIC OPENED

Warm sunshine and a clear sky brightened hopes of farmers today, after cotton picking and gathering of feed crops had been held up for two weeks.

The heavy skies began to break up shortly after noon Sunday, resulting in clear skies at sunset. A heavy fog nearly this morning gave way to fair weather by 9 o'clock.

Traffic to the west was resumed yesterday, when state highway department trucks and tractors aided motorists to get through the washed out sections of the Broadway of America between Peecos and Kent.

About 100 yards of paving was washed away at Kent, 52 miles west of Peecos, but the road is now reported as passable. Highway department forces are standing by to assist any motorists who may get stuck in the 100-yard stretch.

The Peecos river went over the levee at a number of points between the New Mexico state line and Fort Stockton, flooding many river-bottom farms along the 100-mile stretch of the river.

Ranchmen of all sections in the Midland territory reported that heavy rains had fallen, assuring good winter grass.

Bob White, Midland Itinerant Speaker, Makes Address Here

Bob White, who kept Midland's name on the front page of the eastern press as he talked to street gatherings of his visit with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt after making a journey from Midland to Buffalo on a burro, spoke to a street group here this afternoon.

An ardent Roosevelt and Garner fan, he discussed in language typical of the laboring man his idea of the good to come from election of the democratic ticket, and issued a warning that reelection of the present administration would be a catastrophe.

White, who worked with the T. & P. Railway Co. at Midland 20 years ago, was well received by Gov. Roosevelt, who gave him a non-brew's classic drinking mug with the governor's picture pasted to it. White then started a speechmaking campaign that to date has resulted in more than 300 addresses.

FARMERS FEEL THEY ARE BEING CRUSHED

All of this, of course, is given especial poignancy by the fact that President Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt both have chosen to appear in person for Iowa's votes. Governor Roosevelt spoke not long ago at Sioux City; President Hoover speaks at Des Moines Oct. 4. He plans to deliver direct answers to issues raised by his democratic opponent. After his speech, the political situation in the corn belt may be clarified a trifle. Just now, however, it is perplexing and—to a republican—rather disturbing.

Among other things disturbing the republican leaders is the announced intention of farm strike organizers to hold a huge demonstration of farmers when President Hoover arrives here.

To begin with, the amount of discontent that lies back of the farm strike is almost beyond exaggeration. The corn belt farmer is sorer than he has been in decades. He is suffering, not merely from a depression which began in the fall of 1929, but from a long and painful deflationary process which started away back in 1921.

In 1924 the corn belt was demanding just about twice as much for its product as it was getting. In 1928 it was making the same demand even more loudly. It got the Federal Farm Board, whose name—if you don't believe it, go out and ask the dirt farmer around here—is anathema up and down and across the whole corn belt.

As a result, the corn belt farmer feels just about twice as mad about the depression as the ordinary easterner feels. Even in good years he is being squeezed, now he is being crushed, he feels.

But that, in itself, isn't enough to justify a forecast of a political upset. The corn belt farmer is inherently conservative, and by breeding and conviction he is republican. He squawked in 1924, but even La Follette couldn't coax him out of the G. O. P. pastures; he squawked in 1928, and he turned out to cheer Al Smith, but he voted republican.

FARMERS PUT ILLS AT ADMINISTRATION'S DOOR

There are one or two factors to complicate matters this year. First of all, many farmers feel that the government at Washington has fed them on false promises. A banker in Sioux City remarked recently that the corn belt is fed up on promises, and declared that "if there is an upset out here it'll be just because it has been forced by the government."

Secondly, there is unquestionably a revival of the sort of radical thought on money matters that nourished the free silver movement of 1896. I stood in the editorial rooms of a Sioux City newspaper while a dirt farmer came in to argue for a scheme for devaluing the dollar so as to lighten the agricultural debt load; and this farmer, clad in overalls and looking the very incarnation

COMMITTEE TO HEAR EVIDENCE IN B. S. TRIAL

Supt. B. L. McLain of Sweetwater wishes to present new evidence before the District 3 grid committee in the New Sheridan case, and has asked that a hearing be held at Sweetwater Wednesday morning at 10:30, according to Supt. W. W. Lackey of Midland, a member of the committee.

Committeemen declined to go to Sweetwater, but agreed to meet at Big Spring, a more central location for a district-wide gathering, Lackey said he had learned.

The sorrel-top athlete, one of the finest who ever dug cleats in this Class A district, was restrained from Sunday morning after a school week, the committee met at Big Spring Saturday. The meeting, characterized by heated speeches and vehement debate from start to finish, brought unanimous voting against the Sweetwater athlete, who was being tried on full four-year participation prior to this season because of one fall's play with the Sweetwater Rooters, on which club it was said in evidence Sheridan played while in the eighth grade, which is recognized state-wide by schoolmen as a high school grade.

YANKS SMASH WAY TO WIN SUNDAY; SERIES IS ENDED

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—In a rip-roaring climax that smashed world series records and blasted the faint National League hopes to fragments, the New York Yankees rode rough shod Sunday to their third successive clean sweep in baseball's classic championship.

By the record-busting score of 13 to 6, the American league champions overpowered and routed the last vestiges of the defense of the Chicago Cubs. Five Bruin pitchers failed in the last attempt to stop this steam roller as the Yankees pounded out their fourth successive victory, thereby running their unprecedented winning streak to an even dozen triumphs over the National league in the combined campaigns of 1927-28-29.

There has never been anything like it in baseball history. The statisticians as well as the Cubs were dazed after the last big bombardment in the ninth had been delivered against the veteran Burleigh Grimes. Another big crowd, estimated at close to 50,000, left silently and in awe of those mighty men from the big town after an afternoon of wild but futile encouragement to the home forces.

NEW TEAR GAS BOMB BALTIMORE.—The government's Chemical Warfare Service, at Englewood Arsenal near here, has developed a new tear gas bomb that is much more effective than the old one. It incapacitates a victim in 24 seconds, whereas the old type took four minutes to take effect. Chicago has added the new bomb to its police equipment.

DECISION ON BRIEF LACKING

Certification Is Not Made as Ballot Names Mailed

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (UP)—Judge Robertson was hearing briefs in the Sterling-Ferguson election contest this morning.

Ferguson's attorneys opened an attack on the court's jurisdiction which Robertson answered. He read a statement suggesting that as the supreme court had the right to pronounce under advisement, it would be a waste of time for him to proceed.

Both sides agreed that action of the supreme court would not be a bar to his hearing over the matter. Ferguson's attorneys later qualified the agreement, saying that the district court did not have jurisdiction in hearing the case.

Arguments were heard but no ruling had been made when court adjourned at noon. Ferguson's answer to Sterling including the accusation that he had spent half a million dollars for the office of governor. Principals in the case were not in the court room for the contest hearing.

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (UP)—Certification of names of candidates for ballots in the general election were sent to county clerks today by Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, with a vacant space for name of the gubernatorial nominee.

The governor candidate's name may be inserted after decision of lawsuits now under way.

Seven parties are democrats, republican, socialist, communist, Jacksonian, liberty and independents, with one blank with no heading.

Names of electors are printed for the presidential race, so John Garner's name appears only in the race for congress.

AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, last night filed an answer in the election contest suit filed by Governor Sterling, challenging Mr. Ferguson's nomination as the democratic candidate for governor.

Ferguson's attorneys previously had indicated they would not file an answer before today.

Their answer contained counter-allegations that illegal votes were cast for Governor Sterling, including names of electors in which Governor Sterling alleged irregularities.

Accompanying the answer of the Ferguson's were several special pleas, attacking jurisdiction of the court; claiming the case was moot and that it would be impractical to try it; that Sterling did not have adequate interest and that there was misjoinder of causes of action.

Several demurrers also were filed. A hasty check of the answer showed it to alleged 25,000 illegal votes cast in Sterling's behalf.

A general demurrer to the governor's suit was included in the Ferguson's pleadings. The answer contended he had no right to prosecute the case without disclosing sufficient "justifiable interest," and that his allegations were insufficient to entitle him to "any relief."

On their contention that the court did not have jurisdiction, the answer asked that the suit be dismissed and that further proceedings be stopped.

One of the grounds on which dismissal was sought was that it was not filed within the time stipulated by the statutes. The suit was filed within nine days and the answer filed within 10 days after the date of the democratic state convention at Lubbock, Sept. 13.

Counties listed in the answer as being those in which illegal votes were cast for Sterling included Midland, which was listed as having 201 illegal votes.

OBSERVER TRANSFERRED HOUSTON, Oct. 3. (UP)—Lawrence H. Daingerfield, chief government weather observer, has been transferred to Los Angeles, Calif., after ten years of service here.

ELIMINATE THE SLUMS

One of the biggest jobs facing the ordinary American city today is the task of eliminating its slums. Funds made available by the R. F. C. offer a splendid opportunity to begin this work in a big way—and the fact that the construction of model housing groups would provide employment for many jobless men is a strong added incentive.

These things being true, it comes as a surprise to learn that an association of landlords in a large middle western industrial city has protested sharply against the city's proposed slum elimination program. The landlords feel that the city has no right to put up new apartment houses which will compete with those already in existence.

The sheer selfishness of such a stand is dismaying, and the stupidity of it is surprising. For the elimination of slums will automatically add many dollars to the value of every landlord's property; and even if it didn't, the human need for such work is so great that no one financially interested in maintaining the status quo should be allowed to stand in the way.

Asked what is a "celibate," a local wise guy said it was a man who doesn't know he's old until his teeth fall out. I always thought that was the definition of a reprobate.

An easterner, tied up here last week while the roads to the west were washed out, asked if it were true that they make liquor out of cactus out around El Paso. When told that such was the case, he said he would hate to get stuck for the drinks.

Aesop Up to Date: A boy who was in town fell into the lake and a man stood on the bank and criticized him for not being an optimist and told him to look at the beautiful sunshine and the flowers, and called his attention to a nice new boat a hundred yards away, but the boy had good sense and reached for an old board on the water near by. The board was not beautiful, in fact, it was worn, stained and partly rotten, but it served the purpose for the time being and kept him afloat. The moral is very appropriate at this time. Do the best you can with what you have and don't reach out too far for something you can't have.

Little Isadore rushed sobbing into the house. "Oh, de meter," asked his mother anxiously. "Poppa, I got down in de alley vit his leg broke," howled Isadore. "O, gwait, how did it happen?" "A mad dog chased me up de telegraph pole," sobbed Isadore, "and he vas helt tay up hinging on vit both hends, van de cop come along and asks him vot's de meter—" "Oh, oil!" wailed the mother. "And did Poppa—" "Yes, he don't reach out too far for something you can't have."

And then there was the local stenographer who was asked by telephone to hold the receiver over the waste basket while the company blew the dust off the lines, and she held it in that position for ten minutes, calling them to ask if it would be all right to hang up.

Just because I haven't referred to Herbert's getting a bucket of hot water thrown on him while out collecting is no sign that I've forgotten about it. I just don't want to start any trouble for him while he's out keeping the circulation in shape.

Swapping Yarns with Col. True

Col. True maintains a standing invitation to others to write to him and tell of their own extraordinary experiences. No holds barred. Address Col. True, in care of The Reporter-Telegram.

Dear Colonel True: I dislike very much for anyone to doubt the veracity of your statements. Knowing you could tell the truth, a portion of the truth and nothing like the truth, I think they should be more careful in the future when they even think of calling you a liar, which you are.

Why don't our friends tell us more real experiences? Is it because they have had none? I remember back in 1916, B. C., I was living in Siberia and decided to make a trip to America. I mounted Jason, my pet rattle-snake and started out. England was part of the main land, then we were to signal the French and English people if we reached America OK, by Jason giving one rattle. So we headed out to sea. In eight hours we reached America. Jason worked only eight hours because he was a union snake. He gave the rattle by lifting his tail high in the air and letting it fall. It hit the earth with such force it jarred England loose from the main land to its position today.

Jason was a small snake, being 2000 miles long and not quite as broad. In coming across the ocean he caused the great tidal wave that flowed over the earth. Jason would eat nothing but whiting and other small fish. He would have to go miles, sometimes to get something to eat.

Have Paul Vickers tell you how "to keep cool with water-dogs."

RAY GWYN.

Sir: I appreciate your kind words; it almost breaks my old heart to hear folks say I misrepresent things. Lots of them are saying just that, too, and worse. Well, I guess it's just the cross I bear.

Which reminds me of a cross-eyed bear I encountered in Alaska one winter. He was a brown bear—that is, he was brown on the side next to the sun, no matter which way he turned—so he must have been a brown bear. And so cross-eyed that a cork-screw looked to him like the shortest distance between two points.

He attacked me at once, ferociously, with evil intentions, teeth and claws. But I have always been a good bear fighter, so he didn't catch me for several miles. When he did, I jumped around behind him, only to find he was so cross-eyed he could see better backward than forward. We fought furiously, and suddenly he hit me on the head. It sounded like a steeple bell. The bear thought this was the end of the round and dropped his guard. Seizing this opportunity, I hit the bear over the head with it and knocked him out. When he recovered he was quite docile and I made a pet of him. He made a great watchdog because he could lie on the back porch and see all four sides of the house at once.

Midland Music Teacher to Join Teachers' Ass.

Miss Lydia Watson, Midland music teacher, has been invited by the state executive board to join the Texas Music Teachers' association. The letter she received from Mrs. John Wesley Graham, president, follows:

"On behalf of the Texas Music Teachers' association, I want to invite you, personally, to join with more than four hundred prominent teachers of the state now allied with the organization. You are being asked to come as a leader. The state executive board has voted to invite you to represent the association as vice president of your county."

"This is the most auspicious time to throw your influence to the organization, as a state-wide expansion program is now under way. Preparations are being made for the annual state convention, to be held during the Thanksgiving holidays at Fort Worth, when an imposing program of activities for the ensuing year will be launched and officers elected."

"May we have your acceptance at an early date, in order that your name and photograph may be printed in the new literature and stationery of the association?"

Small Racing Autos Popular

INDIANAPOLIS. (UP)—Diminutive racing autos, tiny duplicates of the ones that roar around the speed way, soon may be manufactured here on a wholesale basis.

During the summer, pushmobile races have become popular throughout the state. Various sections of Indianapolis have been the scene of events, sponsored by civic organizations. A holiday was declared in Lebanon while a city-wide race was run. At least three similar events were held in the northern part of the state.

As the climax of the season's "racing," a free-for-all event was staged at the Indiana state fair. The tiny autos are made to conform in virtually every detail to regular racing cars. Pilots of the little machines carry out the racing atmosphere. They don helmets, goggles and jumpers, crouch behind the steering wheels and lean on the turns.

Power in the races, some of which are several miles, is furnished by re-chargeable pushers. The pushers usually are older brothers, or friends of the drivers. They have a specially constructed stick that fits in a groove in the rear of the car. Chassis of the autos are built of steel with aluminum bodies. Each machine is equipped with a full set of springs. They have wire wheels and pneumatic balloon tires. Pilots are between the ages of four and seven.

AGAIN PLANE BEATS

VANCOUVER.—One of the most dramatic stories of an aerial rescue ever to come out of the northwest concerns the successful attempt of two Vancouver airmen who risked their lives to drop food to hungry miners at the McConnell Creek field near Burns Lake.

The pilots, E. P. H. Wells and William Falkner, learning of the miners' hunger plight, loaded 800 pounds of food in their plane and flew to the scene. There they encountered bumpy air and Falkner had to be strapped to the floor of the plane to launch the sacks of food out over the side.

His ears and nose were nearly frozen in the flight over the camp, but after several narrow escapes he and Wells succeeded in unloading the plane of food.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED SEE ROAD SHOW "GRAND HOTEL" SUNDAY AT YUCCA; HOUSE RECORD LIKELY TO TUMBLE

Long waited, the most-talked-of road show talkie, "Grand Hotel," opened Sunday at the Yucca theatre to justify even the most extravagant expectations.

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer upon a scale that places the

1400 ARE PRESENT

And Midland responded to the great film and to Yucca Anniversary week, which began Sunday. The greatest crowds to see a film since the opening of the house with Rio Rita packed the lower floor and made for a good sprinkling in the gallery.

Fourteen hundred paid admissions were counted Sunday. Manager John Bonner believes the crowds today and Tuesday will set a new record for his house.

by comparison, the picturization of stage presentation to signify the famous Vicki Baum story marks a new milestone in artistic achievement of the screen.

This is not just another movie. It is a distinct accomplishment. To call it an epic would be trite. And triteness is exactly what "Grand Hotel" has avoided, even where pitfalls invited the enormity of dramatic license commonly known as hokum. In this, Director Edmund Goulding is to be credited. He has preserved the symbolism of Miss Baum's original novel and captured much of the realism the stage play missed.

Expectations justified—superb acting by an incomparable cast—spectacular picturization—a picture that will make history—thus spoke many who attended the first showing of "Grand Hotel," famous Vicki Baum novel at the Yucca preview Saturday night.

Preceded by thunderous publicity, no talkie has ever attracted such a large number of people at a Midland theatre.

The Barrymores, Garbo, Joan Crawford, Beery, Stone and Hersholt make it a completely star-filled, thrill-filled and excellent act-filled production. The story is unusual in that no one character dominates—all five are superb.

In the greatness of the Berlin hotel, where the action takes place, the finest talent in the world is lavished in every scene with the Barrymore brothers and Garbo leading.

Garbo as Grusinskaya a temperamental dancer places herself beyond the peak of her popularity—she's even more glamorous than in Mata Hari. One critic said, "Garbo is the supreme of magnificence."

John Barrymore, as the titled thief, steals not only Grusinskaya's gems but also her love—and the scorching love scenes that follow.

Lionel Barrymore, who regardless of his role never fails to "take" a picture, does his same stunt in "Grand Hotel." In a most remarkable manner, he actually lives his role of Kringlein, a sick little factory clerk.

Joan Crawford, said by some critics to be a little misfitted in her role of the unscrupulous stenographer, not only claims the charms of her audience but those of Freysing, domineering industrial magnate played by Wallace Beery.

Success of the production is also shared by Lewis Stone, who has the part of a shell-shocked doctor, and Jean Hersholt, who plays Senf, the hotel clerk.

The story is without a plot but truthfully represents a slice through life, running the whole gamut of human emotions—fear, courage, temptation, need, snobishness, generosity, sorrow, happiness, poverty, wealth, hate, love, sickness, health, birth and death.

Highest praise not only goes to the marvelous cast but to Edmund Goulding, director. What a picture! —P.W.

supported him. June 12, 1919 the Forum came out for "Joe Bailey for President."

August 14, 1919 the "American party" was born at a meeting at the "Byers opera house" then Fort Worth's leading playhouse. Senator Bailey, John Mathis of Houston and W. P. Sebastian of Breckenridge were among the speakers. Ferguson was vigorous in his support and defended the right to form a new party.

"Jesus Christ founded a new party. Martin Luther founded a new party. George Washington founded a new party. Thomas Jefferson founded a new party," said the Forum editor.

By December the late Senator Bailey's enthusiasm for the new party had cooled. He decided to remain in the democratic party and later ran for the democratic nomination against Gov. Pat M. Neff—his last political race.
