Favorable Weather Hikes Cotton Estimate One Per Cent

PRICE BREAKS $2 BALE FOLLOWING THE INFORMATION

Nice Weather in Four States Cause of Difference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (UP)—More favorable conditions in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma today figured in the estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics, forecasting the 1932 cotton crop at 11,425,000 bales, an increase of 115,000 bales, or one per cent, over the forecast of September 1. Recent weather in the four above states offered slight declines in Texas and Tennessee.

The condition of the crop as of October 1 was reported at 54.2 of normal, compared with 69.3 a year ago and a ten year average of 52.8. The average yield as of October 1 was 149.3 pounds per acre, compared with 201.2 in 1931 and a ten year average yield of 151.4 pounds. It was indicated that the crop would be 5,671,000 bales less than in 1931.

The Texas crop was estimated at 4,063,000 bales and the condition at 59 per cent of normal.

COTTON BREAKS AFTER ESTIMATE GIVEN OUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (UP)—Cotton broke two dollars a bale following the government crop estimate today. The estimate was 40,000 bales above general expectations. Cotton closed more than two dollars off.

720 Bales Have Been Ginned Here

Cotton ginnings for the 1932 crop in Midland county had passed the 700 bale mark Saturday afternoon. The gin yards were still swarming with trucks and wagons awaiting turns. The three gins reported a total of 720 bales.

Fair weather of the past week greatly aided the opening of cotton after the rains and cloudy weather had held up picking for the fortnight previous.

Although Midland county farmers were experiencing difficulty in securing pickers, indications were that the ginnings would gain considerably during the next week.

Storm Broke After Smooth Beginning In Ferguson's Term

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, (UP)—Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson's administration began with an era of good feeling. Proposed legislation against the Klan was toned down.

An amnesty bill was passed purporting to take back the senate verdict against "Governor Jim." Mrs. Ferguson supplemented it with an executive order.

The Forum blossomed with a "goodwill" issue, bulky with advertising. Soon the Forum was carrying good roads advertising campaign. Prominent contractors contributed to it and advertised in it.

At a later investigation, one of these told how the advertising solicited money. He did not solicit advertising. He took a room at a leading hotel and summoned the contractor.

Then the fireworks was touched off. A paving contractor awarded a city paving job in Houston, started work with equipment that bore the state highway department insignia.

L. W. Kemp, then secretary of a state organization of contractors, protested it was unfair and started an investigation. He was refused access to highway department records.

Ugly rumors began to circulate. Texas newspapers bound by the fetters of the Texas libel laws had to remain silent. A meeting of the county judges and county commissioners association was called for Big Spring.

Kemp and a Houston newspaper correspondent, who had gone from Austin to Amarillo in the hope the news would "break" there, sat up until 2 a. m. Kemp dictated his charges to be presented the next day at the convention and the newspaperman hammered them out on a typewriter, keeping a convenient carbon copy.

When Kemp finally took the floor at the Amarillo convention the story was on its way to the world.

Attorney-General Dan Moody already being at Big Spring at a date yet to be decided upon by the Big Spring Lions club.

SUPREME COURT NOT TO CONSIDER APPEAL

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (UP)—The Texas supreme court today ordered the name of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson certified as candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, on the ballot for the general election November 8.

The court announced also that no motion for rehearing would be entertained, thereby making the decision final.

The supreme court ruled on an appeal from the decision of District Judge Robertson, holding that he was without jurisdiction to try the election contest suit of Ross Sterling, saying that his ruling was correct and should be affirmed.

The clerk of the court was ordered to issue the mandate. Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum said she would certify Mrs. Ferguson.

"The supreme court has spoken," she said, "that is the final word." The governor issued no statement. He was closeted in his private office.

James E. Ferguson was all smiles. Shortly after the decision, Mrs. McCallum took the certification to the telegraph office, beginning transmission to each county. Ferguson stood by, peeling off bills to pay for the messages.

DECISION 'VICTORY FOR DEMOCRACY'

DALLAS, Oct. 8. (UP)—"The supreme court decision was a victory for the democratic party," said Maury Hughes, chairman of the state democratic executive committee.

Hughes announced a three way campaign for Roosevelt, Garner and Mrs. Ferguson, with machinery arrangements to be completed at the earliest possible date.

"The ticket is Roosevelt-Garner-Ferguson against the republicans," he said. "A slap at the democratic nominee is a slap at all three."

Pennsylvania Offers Couple Fish Stories

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—Two fishermen landed one fish and one fisherman two fish in unusual fishing experiences related by the state bureau of fisheries here.

W. F. Patterson, Harrisburg, fishing in Shermans creek hooked a small mouth black bass which appeared unusually heavy as he reeled it in. When he brought the catch to the surface he learned he had caught two fish with a single cast, he reported.

John McMahan and Joseph Hill, fishing in Hickory creek, Butler county, approached the same hole from opposite sides and cast simultaneously, according to the bureau.

Both felt strikes and found their lines entangled. When they retrieved their hooks they found a ten-inch brown trout had swallowed both baits.

ANGELO BOBCATS LEAD ABILENE 3 FAST QUARTERS

ABILENE, Oct. 8. (Sp.)—Trailing the fierce San Angelo Bobcats by 7 points for better than three quarters, the Abilene Eagles rose to the height of their fighting ability in the last quarter to win the non-official inter-district football game this afternoon 9 to 7.

It was Wyatt's unerring foot that turned the tide late in the game to give the Eagles a field goal that decided the game.

San Angelo made good the extra point after touchdown and held a commanding lead until the fatal fourth quarter. The Eagles took to the air in that period and put over a touchdown, but failed to tie the score with the extra point.

Again, Abilene began to pass desperately with only minutes left to play and took the ball to the 2-yard line. The Bobcats then began to pour through the Abilene line and throw the Eagles for losses.

Wyatt's beautiful kick from the 12-yard line gave Abilene the necessary winning points and the game ended after San Angelo could make only one play.

SPOON-FED ORCHESTRAS PASSING

Managers of symphony orchestras in America's principal cities met recently and agreed that the day of the rich patron of music in America was about over. If symphony orchestras continue to exist, they reported, it will be because they are wholeheartedly supported by the people in exactly the same way that moving picture theatres and professional baseball clubs are supported.

That may mean lean years for some symphony societies. But in the long run it ought to be all to the good. An art that cannot pay its way through the contributions of the general public at the box office has no real vitality. Symphony orchestras in this country needed spoon-feeding by the wealthy during their period of infancy, beyond a doubt, but by now they should be able to stand on their own feet.

New York's Lost Heiress Vanishes on 5th Avenue

Colonel Raymond Robins, a friend of President Hoover, has mysteriously vanished, joining the ranks of 10,000 persons who disappear annually in the United States. This is the last of a series of six mystery classics of real life—those who never came back.

By ROBERT TALLEY NEA Service Writer

The most famous "missing persons" case in American history is that of Dorothy Arnold, New York's "lost heiress" who vanished 22 years ago, and of whom no trace ever has been found.

Her case ranks with the kidnaping of Charlie Ross and the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby as one of the nation's classics of mystery, which time not only has failed to solve but has actually deepened.

Here is the story of her strange disappearance as it might have appeared in the newspapers when it was revealed by New York police on January 20, 1911, six weeks after she had vanished.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Following a futile search of more than a month, Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn announced today that Dorothy Arnold, 25, daughter of Francis P. Arnold, millionaire perfume importer and leader in New York society, was missing since Dec. 12, 1909.

Miss Arnold disappeared mysteriously while shopping on Fifth avenue. She had an engagement to meet her mother for lunch at the Waldorf-Astoria, but did not appear.

The young heiress, who is noted for her beauty, was last seen by Miss Gladys King, a friend, as she emerged from Brentano's book store at Fifth avenue and 27th street at 1:45 p. m. They chatted for a moment about a party that was to be held at Miss Arnold's home on the following day and then Miss Arnold hurried away with the statement that she was late for her luncheon appointment with her mother.

As well as the family can estimate, Miss Arnold had about $25 on her person when she left home that morning. No motive is known for her disappearance, as she was an unusually cheerful girl, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, an amateur authoress and very popular in New York society.

Police have been unable to obtain any definite clues. That was 22 years ago—and that news is just the same today, unchanged for the police are still without clues.

On that crisp December day in 1909 Dorothy Arnold walked out of the pages of life and left behind her a mystery that outdoes fiction. There have been a thousand theories, a million rumors—but not one shred of real evidence which might explain where she went, how she went, or why.

Her disappearance became a nationwide sensation, comparable in this generation—to the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. Pictures of her were published in every newspaper in the land, but no community has ever recognized her as a stranger in its midst. Her wealthy parents sent detectives to search for her in Europe, but this, too, was without result. Search for her body was made in the waters around New York, but her body never was found.

Dorothy Arnold's fate became a classic of mystery. Digging back into her past, detectives found a lot of things that were of much interest, but of doubtful importance.

Lorothy, an aspiring authoress, had submitted several stories to magazines and they had been returned. This, naturally, led to good-natured gibing by her family. A little later, Dorothy rented a post office box—apparently for a place where she could receive her rejected manuscripts in secret.

At Thanksgiving time, shortly before her disappearance, she had gone to Washington to spend the holiday week-end with two girl friends. On Friday morning a bulky package resembling a rejected manuscript (which seems to have been forwarded from New York, though nobody knows how) was delivered to her, whereupon she suddenly called off her week-end visit and went home.

Though she was never very much of an admirer of men, she had had

Swapping Yarns with Col. True

Col. True maintains a standing invitation to others to write to him and tell of their own extraordinary experiences. No holds barred. Address Col. True, in care of The Reporter-Telegram.

Dear Colonel True: I used to work in a hotel out west. It was a first-class hotel in most respects, but the bedbugs were bad. They used to come straggling down the stairs every night and look at the register to see which rooms were occupied, so they would know where to work that night.

EARL HORST. Sir: There is no more ferocious creature than a wild, blood-thirsty bedbug. I stayed all night in a little hotel away back in 1905, where the bedbugs were among the worst I ever saw. They were so big they came to my room, rolled me out of bed and slept in it themselves. I shot one the next day with my elephant gun and examined him carefully. I can make affidavit they were really bedbugs and not tumblebugs.

The next night I was the only guest in the hotel and all the bedbugs came to sleep with me. Some of them were so big they had to turn up on edge to get through the door. These insects were very enterprising and foresighted. When there was a good crop of guests the bedbugs all carried buckets in which to carry off a supply of blood to tide them over the lean nights. Sometimes when trade at the hotel was slow, these bedbugs would leave it and scatter over town to the various residences. In cases like this the inhabitants would make their jail prisoners stay in the hotel one night to entice the bugs back home. I interviewed the proprietor of this place after a few days and he told me he would give a thousand dollars to be rid of the bugs. When I went to Africa the next year I captured and shipped to him a full-grown Hiffawurufus. Less than a week after the animal arrived, the hotel proprietor called the money to me. I needed it, too, as I was in jail at the time.

Perhaps I ought to explain what a Hiffawurufus is. He is the bedbug's best-equipped enemy. He is distant, but he is as much ground as an ordinary animal; his sense of smell is so acute he can get the exact range of his prey with one sniff, and he can rope a bedbug every spot with his long, thin tongue, which also has a loop on the end of it.

Laurel and Hardy Create Laugh Moments To Insure Their Success at the Yucca

Having conceived a bare idea for a comedy, what is the most perplexing problem to be confronted in building it into a complete story for film production? That is the question an interviewer asked Oliver Hardy, co-starring with Stan Laurel in the latest feature-length comedy "Pack Up Your Troubles," which comes to the Yucca theatre today.

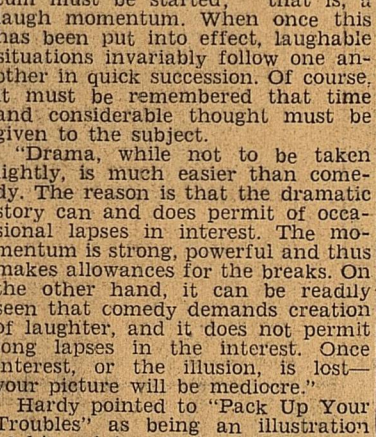

The inimitable comedian, who is never funny off the screen answered thoughtfully: "First of all, comedy is harder to stage than drama. In creating film comedy a momentum must be started; that is, a laugh momentum. When once this has been put into effect, laughable situations invariably follow one another in quick succession. Of course, it must be remembered that time and considerable thought must be given to the subject.

"Drama, while not to be taken lightly, is much easier than comedy. The reason is that the dramatic story can and does permit of occasional lapses in interest. The momentum is strong, powerful and thus makes allowances for the breaks. On the other hand, it can be readily seen that comedy demands creation of laughter, and it does not permit of any lapse in the interest. Once interest, or the illusion, is lost, your picture will be mediocre."

Hardy pointed to "Pack Up Your Troubles" as being an illustration of his opinion. It is considered an excellent example of well constructed comedy. Interwoven into the fabric of the story is a light, pathetic touch—the feeling that is aroused when a fatherless little baby girl is entrusted to the care of a couple of vagabonds.

In the production of this Hal Roach-M-G-M feature-length comedy, the popular team selected little Jacquie Lyn, a member of the "Our Gang" kids, to enact the role of the fatherless baby. And Jacquie is declared to convey with startling realism all the mannerisms and characteristics of the comedians. She reveals the embarrassment of Hardy when he twirls his tie, and the blank expression of Laurel when he

The Town Quack

(Reserve the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.) cents certainly is to be envied in periods of depression. My idea of the meanest man is the guy who always speaks of his late wife, just because she is never ready when he calls for her.

I went to the football game Friday. I watched the game all the time the second string was in, then when the first squad would go on the field I would spend my time looking toward Lou Lewellyn's to see if he was up in the peach tree. He lives close to the field, but I'm sure he wasn't up the tree any time I was watching. The fence was well policed and Lou still maintains that he won't attend a game, so the only thing I can figure out is that he was the clown running around there on the bicycle playing with the girls.

There are two sides to every question, even fly paper. And sometimes it makes a good deal of difference which side you get on. However, the fellow who gets on either one side or the other comes out better in the long run. Maybe some day he won't get stuck.

I see by the paper where they are going to have an election Nov. 8. The length of the runs made by Gordon Jones against Odessa Friday depended merely on where he started from.

A farmer with a big feed crop was asked why he didn't sell it. He replied that as long as he kept it, he had the feed and no money. If he sold it he would have no feed and no money.

STUDIOUS SINGER

SEPHENVILLE (UP)—J. Manley Head, 23-year old Texas legislator from Granbury, is pondering the "rules" of statesmanship between the songs he conducts at a revival here.

Veteran lawmakers have laid down two rules for Head, a school teacher, to follow. They are (1) never straddle an issue, and (2) to talk little or none at all.

But Rep. Head proposes to talk. His campaign gospel of economy in government led him to victory in Hood and Erath counties over five opponents whose ages ranged from 41 to 61 years.

After crasing the blackboards in his schoolroom next January, he intends to tell the legislature the wisdom of passing two bills, one considering government departments in the interest of efficiency and burdened taxpayers, and the second clamping down on lobbyists, those "snakes who slither in the grass" at Austin.

After two weeks of evangelistic singing here, Head will return to his classroom at Dawson to await the opening of the 43rd Texas legislature.

MIDLAND MARSHALED FOR WEEK'S FIGHT AGAINST FIRE MENACE

Programs to Be Presented Before Great Assemblies

The co-operative movement to prevent fires will assume city-wide proportion in Midland this week, according to the chamber of commerce fire prevention chairman, Claude O. Crane, who has detailed speakers to appear before church congregations today, before theatre crowds Monday, school assemblies Tuesday, has arranged service club and school programs Wednesday, inspection of school buildings and mercantile establishments Wednesday, judging of fire prevention posters and essays Thursday, awarding of prizes in these essays and posters Friday and exhibition of them on Saturday.

The schedule is the most ambitious ever attempted in Midland, and cooperation will extend to all classes, it has been indicated.

Prizes in the poster and essay contests, rules governing which are displayed in this issue, are offered by the Midland chamber of commerce.

The complete program as announced by Crane for the week follows:

Mayor Proclaims Fire Prevention Week

The week from October 9 to 15 will be observed this year in the United States and Canada as a time for special endeavor relative to the prevention of fire. It is this city's co-operation in an effort for greater safety from fire, which causes so vast a loss both of human life and property.

A renewed spirit of carefulness cultivated by every citizen and continued throughout the year will prove the soundest measure in reducing the danger of fire. Eliminating fire hazards wherever possible will be an act not only of humane importance but of incalculable economic significance.

Leon Goodman, Mayor.

Award Rules

1. All essays and posters must deal with fire prevention.
2. Essays must be submitted not later than Thursday to Mrs. Clint Myrick at the high school, who will turn them over to Chairman Crane, and posters must be turned in Thursday morning to home room teachers so they may be placed on walls for exhibiting to judges Thursday afternoon.
3. Essays must not exceed 250 words in length.
4. Posters must be on cardboard not to exceed in size 19x24 inches. This paper may be bought at The Reporter-Telegram office.
5. All work must be original. Parents may offer suggestions, but all work must be done by the student.
6. Essays and posters must not have names on them. Judges will deal with material, not names. All work must carry a number, which will be placed on it by teachers, for differentiation. In case a name appears on a poster or an essay, teachers must paste a piece of paper over that name and write a differentiation number on it.
7. The decision of the judges will be taken as final.
8. Effectiveness of fire prevention methods outlined, literary quality and neatness will be the basis for judgment.
9. Any writer's ideas may be embodied in the essay, but wording must be that of the student submitting the essay.
10. All essays must be written in ink on ruled paper, and must be flat (not folded). Pages must be held in place by a paper clip.
11. Winners will be announced in The Reporter-Telegram after judging is done.

"Horse Feathers" at Ritz Theatre Today

Having given the good old general public just about enough time to recover from successive pokes in the ribs, the Four Cocomnuts—pardon, the Four Marx Brothers—have gone to town again, this time in a concoction appropriately enough called "Horse Feathers," which opens at the Ritz theatre today.

Neither in heaven nor on earth on land nor sea, is there anything even remotely resembling "Horse Feathers." It is just about the most insanely delicious howl that has ever hit the screen. It has neither rhyme nor reason—except to make audiences laugh until the tears roll. You can take "Cocomnuts," "Animal Crackers," and "Monkey Business," lay them end to end (if possible) and you still will be a million miles from approximating this mad pandemonium which some inspired soul out Hollywood way saw fit to call "Horse Feathers."

This time the Marx-manics go collegiate—and with a vengeance. Groucho, D. N. (Doctor of Nutology), is the new president of Huxley college. He has accepted the post in order to get Zeppo, in his twelfth year as a freshman at Huxley, out of college.

They clown with the co-eds; they gag with the bearded gray-beards; they caper all over the campus. The dialogue is altogether insane, and the action is even giddier. Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, with S. L. Fertlyman, are the masterminds for the script. Norman McLeod directed. How the cameramen taking the picture ev' stopped laughing long enough to grind is a mystery.

BURIAL PLACE ST. PETER FOUND BY ARCHAEOLOGISTS

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME, (UP)—Archaeologists of Vatican City believe that they are about to discover the exact spot where St. Peter was buried.

The promise of this important discovery in Christian archaeology was occasioned by the fact that stretches of the original "Via Triumphalis" (Triumphal Way) of the Romans, leading from the north into Rome, has been uncovered 40 feet below the present street level. It was known that St. Peter was buried along this ancient Roman road.

There archaeologists began a thorough research into papal records and comparing the present discoveries, they came to the conclusion that "Via Triumphalis" cut through the present Square of St. Peter's. The great Cathedral of St. Peter was thought to be located on the spot where the Prince of the Apostles was crucified, which according to tradition was accomplished by having his body hung upside down upon the cross.

Dead Buried Along Streets

It is well-known that the Romans had the custom of burying the dead along the great Roman arteries. There is a wealth of evidence of this as practically all the ancient roads leading to Rome are lined with tombs.

The workers in Vatican City have traced the "Via Triumphalis" from the north where it enters Rome and along a modern Roman street to St. Peter's Square, which is almost bisected to lead to the Tiber and then across the river to the Eternal City.

Long Search

The Vatican City archaeologists were searching for traces of the ancient highway for some centuries and lately came to the conclusion that it would be necessary to sound the territory. They ran drills down and once they had struck the hard pavement on which the Roman roads were constructed, they decided to excavate at that particular point.

After the excavation had reached the pavement, they found corroborative evidence that they had discovered the ancient thoroughfare. Pope Pius was informed and he gave orders that the excavations should proceed with the purpose of finding the route of the famous "Via."

Though there is little hope that the actual tomb of the first bishop of Rome will be found, the searches are expected to throw considerable light on the tombs of both historic Roman pagans as well as Christians.

NOW THEY CAN DANCE

SEAGRAVES, (UP)—Repeal following resubmission of the question as to whether dancing should be permitted at Seagraves.

A year ago, the city commission adopted an ordinance forbidding dancing within the city limits. The citizens, however, recently indicated a desire for repeal of the measure in a referendum.

Accordingly, the commission repealed the ordinance. The reason given was that the city is host to numbers of transients for whom there is no other form of entertainment available.

Indians Dread "Were-Tigers"

LONDON, (UP)—The announcement that 85 persons were killed in 1931 by tigers in the state of Johore, alone, has stimulated discussion of a creature in comparison with which the man-killer is about as much feared as a kitten.

This supreme terrorifier of the Malayan natives is the "were-tiger," or tiger in human form. In spite of all civilizing influences, the legend of this dread marauder persists. There are even university-educated natives from whose minds nothing can erase the belief.

Unusual Features

Hubert Banner, a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and author of a number of books on the Malayan Peninsula, recently has revealed some interesting features of this institution. He tells the true story of a man selling brass-ware in the state of Pahang, who had the misfortune to come from Korinchi in Sumatra, accepted center of the "Were-tiger" race.

As he drew near the village of Bentong, he was overtaken by a tiger, took refuge in a tiger-trap. All night the tiger prowled around the trap. In the morning the villagers came to inspect their trap. They found a man inside, but no marks of human feet (which the tiger's restless pacing had obliterated). The man was speared to death without further question.

Local Rituals

When a man is suspected of being a "were-tiger," there are various local rituals. It is said, by which he may clear himself.

In Perak, for example, the witchdoctor will sprinkle the man's head with a mixture of sacred herbs. The test of true identity consists of whether or not the poor man's hair falls out after a certain time. If it does, he might just as well go on to his hut, gather his children about him, and say, "Come, kiss your father goodbye; he has lost not only his hair, but his life." After which he is speared.

Abbe Absolves Radio Waves

BOURGES, France, (UP)—That radio waves and currents through the air have a tendency to affect the atmospheric conditions of certain localities; and that the explosion of cannon during the war brought on excessive torrents of rain—are just two theories which fail to hold water, according to the Observatory here under the directorship of Abbe To. Moreux.

"The weather in France, admittedly, has behaved in a strange manner in recent months," says the Abbe, "but it has in no way been due to electrical currents produced by radio stations." Since it is a common belief that "figures never fib" the director of the Bruges Observatory consults statistics to back up his statement.

I take, for example, the statistics that have been accumulating since 1869. What do we find? Many sultry and tedious springtimes, the month of May often extremely rainy

Winds Trapped 8 Kidnapers

ISTANBUL, Turkey, (UP)—Kidnaped in his own motor boat by a group of Communists trying to get back into Russia, Stepan Kostka, a Bulgarian fisherman, has succeeded in reversing the plan and handing his abductors over to the police.

On a visit to the village of Ayincola, on the Bulgarian coast, Kostka was deep in a siesta when six men and two women invaded his boat, claiming they were secret police, and ordered him to put out to sea. Kostka refused, but was subdued by force and made to pilot his tiny craft out of the harbor.

For ten hours the strange party cruised along the Bulgarian coast, when Kostka was ordered to turn in the direction of Russia. It then developed that six of the group, including the women, were Communists seeking a clandestine entry into Russia.

The ruse might have succeeded but for that most common of accidents—the gasoline ran out. At the mercy of winds and currents, the boat finally drifted down to the Bosphorus, where alert Turkish maritime police seized it and its occupants.

Kostka was able to explain his part. The others were less lucky. Under police escort they were taken back to Bulgaria.

MIDLAND'S DOG PACK HOLDS SCORING MELEE, WINNING 41 TO 0

RUN THROUGH ODESSA CAYUSES WITH NO EFFORT; ROBERTS SCORES TOTAL OF 24 POINTS; LINE LEADS BATTLE

A fast, low-charging Midland line Friday afternoon wrecked every combination Odessa placed in front of it, and shook backs loose for six touchdowns that were piled up to conclude runs totaling 399 yards.

At the same time, the forwards, driving an intense defensive spirit into backs, held Odessa's charging Bronchos to a gain from scrimmage of just 39 yards.

Midland stacked up 15 first downs to Odessa's two, and Odessa was completely bewildered and lost in a 41-0 decision.

It wasn't the thrilling total of Gordon Jones' 132 yards counted in sprints for four touchdowns nor especially the late realization that Midland's team, despite its green material, is superior at the moment in many ways to last year's more experienced men—but the knowledge the club was playing as a power unit, that brought the stands repeatedly to bedlam of noise and activity. No matter whether the club was represented with regulars or second-stringers—and every one except about three players of the squad took part in the game—the machine functioned with a smoothness that was remarkable for the age of the season.

Scoring went on with monotonous repetition. Jones, a little 140-pounder who is new to the squad, romped away with four touchdowns before any other member of the squad had crossed the line for Sweetwater, Oct. 15. Only one of his counting jaunts was over a distance less than 50 yards, the first being a line play for four yards, the second a run around end for 52 yards, the third around end for 64, and the last around end for 84.

In the last period Sherrod hit the line for two yards and touchdown and Lewellen, who had been varying the ball through line on his only ball-toting assignment all afternoon, broke over left tackle for 72 yards and touchdown.

In resume, Jones scored one touchdown in the first period, two in the second, one in the third, and Sherrod and Lewellen counted in the fourth. Only one extra point failed to be counted, one of Sherrod's kicks being slightly low and missing by inches.

Without any necessity for the fact being mentioned, Odessa had no chance all afternoon. Never did the offense present a serious indication there was no serious indication the red-headed Cayuses would ramble over to the end zone.

It would be particularly difficult to point out the individual stars of the encounter. Baugher, Collins, Parr and Hill showed lots of power-house stuff in the first starting line, with Bonner and Dorsey playing great games at end. Bonner is looking like a threat for all-district, and Dorsey gave indication of much improvement. This powerful end served notice he was a smearer plays from one end of a Class A grid to the other. For the second stringers, Mills on end, R. Jones and J. Nobles looked particularly good. Lewellen and G. Jones appear to have already open, but blockers taking off too soon. Linemen had good drive but slipped off their men too frequently. We were weak on passing and the first team lacked snap in getting into and out of the huddle. Two seconds or less plenty of time in the huddle.

"Big Spring easily beat Roscoe 26 to 0. Friday Roscoe showed superiority over Stanton on the Stanton field. The game was scoreless, but Roscoe kept the ball in Stanton territory most of the time. Indications from this are that Big Spring is two touchdowns better than Midland, having beat Roscoe 25-0, and it should be remembered that the Big Spring Steers claim to have absolutely nothing."

Incidentally, Barry, Captain G. B. Hallman, Allen Sherrod, Bill Hoggett, Principal D. D. Shifflet, Conrad Bonner, Allen Dorsey and Assistant Coach Glenn Long went to Lubbock to scout Sweetwater Saturday.

Who was it who believed Dorsey wouldn't stage a comeback? If you'd like this department's candid opinion, we'll say it will be hard to keep him off the all-district team once he throws every ounce of his ability into his playing. We distinguish member Bill McCall, last year's all-district man, and how he got off to a bad start only to come back with such a bang all the coaches in the district had to wear cotton in their ears. Which further reminds us of a play in the Friday game. Dorsey snagged a pass hurried him by Sherrod who was run back to the Midland 49-yard line. The big end raced off for touchdown, but the referee called the play back under assumption Sherrod's knee had touched the ground. It didn't last to get you straight. Even the decision made Midland appear bad in the passing game.

The Rev. Winston F. Borum is planning a sermon in which football players made up of the apostles play a team quartered by the devil. Barry says the only difference in the sermon and actual conditions here earlier in the season is the devil plays quarter for the minister and Barry's quarter played the devil. Just a crack, and don't start tossing eggs at our field general.

Sixty-one points have rolled across the goal line, and Midland's goal is to pass. Times are about to change, we know, but it's good while it lasts, as one might say.

To get to other matters: Colorado's Wounded Wolves did the impossible Friday, beating McCamery's elephantine team 21-6, a 135-pound quarter named Burrows doing most of the gaining. Makes you think of our own Burris, eh, what?

Conglomeration: Baylor didn't look like a weak sister in her 18-0 triumph Friday over Loyola. Abilene barely beat San Angelo Saturday afternoon, Wyatt's toe making the difference in a 9-7 game that was won in the last quarter. Missouri was losing by about 65 points to Texas, and Pete Flanagan was grinning up his sleeve; someone offered him a five spot, gave six points and selected Missouri to win!

Two Important Amendments up

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, (UP)—Two amendments of particular interest to those who have become delinquent in payment of taxes are to be voted upon at the November election.

One proposes to give up claim to taxes that have gone delinquent for ten years. The other proposes to make it easier for a person whose property has been sold for taxes, to recover it.

No one knows definitely how much back taxes the state will abandon if the ten-year limitation amendment is adopted.

Presuming the 1933 legislature would follow adoption of the amendment by prompt enabling legislation, the taxes due from 1923 back would be released. A report from 1895 to 1922 shows a total of $38,041,024.71 state ad valorem, state school, state pension and state poll taxes became delinquent. The amount of delinquent tax paid by years also was compiled. It varies from ten per cent of the amount that became delinquent in the same year to instances of payment of delinquent taxes offsetting half the new tax that became delinquent in the same year.

A report read in 1927 put the delinquency due the state at $24,626,135. County figures were not compiled. It is estimated only about one per cent of the delinquent taxes collected in one year are paid on taxes delinquent for more than one year.

At present the state legislature has no power to release any indebtedness, liability or obligation to the state, any county or any municipality. The amendment will change the verbiage of Section 55, Article III of the Constitution from the present provision and add: "... except delinquent taxes which have been due for a period of at least ten years."

The provision for redemption of property sold for taxes makes a change in Section 13 of Article VIII of the Constitution which said the redeeming owner shall have two years from the date of the tax sale to redeem his land upon payment of double the amount of money paid for the land at the tax sale.

The new provision which voters are asked to adopt reads: "Provided, no man shall be made by the first legislature for the speedy sale, without the necessity of suit in court of a sufficient portion of all lands and other property for the taxes due thereon, and every year thereafter, for the sale in like manner of all lands and other property upon which the taxes have not been paid and the deed of conveyance to the purchaser for all taxes, and other property thus sold shall be held to vest a good and perfect title to the purchaser thereof subject to be impeached only for actual fraud, provided that the former owner shall within two years from the date of the filing for record of the purchaser's deed have the right to redeem the land on the following basis: (1) Within the first year of the redemption period upon the payment of the amount of money paid for the land including 51 tax deed redemption fee and all taxes, penalties and costs paid plus not exceeding 25 per cent of the aggregate total.

(2) Within the last year of the redemption period upon the payment of the amount as in (1) plus not exceeding 50 per cent of the aggregate total."

Ensemble Costs Girl 35 Cents

AMES, Ia. (UP)—Mildred Baudus, 17, wanted a new ensemble, so she made it herself. The entire outfit, including dress, hat, undergarments and a handbag, cost 35 cents.

The skirt and shot jacket of the two-piece dress were made from chicken feed sacks, dyed a rose shade. The blouse and undergarments were made of flour sacks. The close-fitting hat and the bag were fashioned from pieces of osanburg left over when her mother made new chair covers. Dainty lace, given Mildred by her grandmother, trimmed the undergarments.

But when the outfit was shown at a boys' and girls' achievement exhibit here, her brother was not content to bask in reflected glory. "See that buckle on her hat and that other one there on her belt?" he questioned spectators. "She took them off my golf knickers."

Dairy Products Replace Grain

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—Pennsylvania, once the greatest grain producing state in the United States has only 3,057 of its 172,419 farms dependent on cash grain crops for their principal income today.

Pennsylvania farmers are turning away from grain and toward dairying, a census of the agricultural situation by the State Department of Agriculture revealed.

Thirty years ago 15 per cent of the farmers listed dairy products as their main revenue producer. Today the number has increased to 26 per cent or 45,380 farms.

Only general farming, numbering 50,959 of the farms, exceeds dairying as the main income source of the agriculturists.

The census revealed a steady growth of "part-time farms." On these, the owners spend 150 or more days annually at non-farming occupations. There were 21,217 listed.
