GARNER THROWS GAUNTLET BACK AT PRESIDENT

Says Hoover Lacking In Honesty and Is Deceptive

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. (UP)—John Garner struck back at President Hoover's defense of government finances, charging that the president lacks honesty, has practiced deception and cannot explain away his record of failure on measures to relieve the depression.

NORTH CAROLINA BACK TO DEMOS

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 25. (UP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt will be back in the democratic column this year and promised, in a speech from the rear platform of his train, to attempt to restore nation wide prosperity.

He declined to say whether he would discuss prohibition in his speech at Baltimore tonight, as his advisers were urging.

Minister and Wife Off to Conference

The Rev. and Mrs. Edwin C. Calhoun left today for the meeting of the annual conference of the Methodist church at San Antonio. The sessions will be held in Travis park Methodist church.

Mr. Calhoun is a member of the conference board of Christian education for his church.

Bishop Sam Hays will read the appointments of ministers to their charges Sunday evening at the close of the service. The reading probably will be read over the radio broadcast.

Mr. Calhoun is closing his second year's work in Midland. Much progress has been made during his pastorate. Besides being active in church circles, he has identified himself with many of the social and civic organizations of Midland.

Mrs. Calhoun is a member of the "Fly Readers" club and of the Fine Arts club.

The minister and his wife expect to return from conference Monday night. The minister said that he did not know if he would be returned to Midland.

Beef Prices May Go into Decline

LUBBOCK.—Prices for beef cattle may work lower during October and November, according to Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the department of agricultural economics in Texas Technological college.

The exceptional feed crop of West Texas and the large corn crop of the nation as a whole, together with the low prices of feed, including corn, will probably account for the downward trend in beef prices. Especially is this true for the grades of killing cattle.

November prices of beef have been lower than October prices in 12 of 17 years when cattle prices were declining. November has been lower than October in only nine of the 33 years when the general trend was upward. The evidence points to a decline in four to five cents in November than in October and top light steers have only about one chance in four to be higher in November than in October.

It is further pointed out that available credit for feeding seems to be improved in some sections which may influence the price of cattle slightly upward.

Also the relative advantage of cheap feed makes this fall more desirable for feeding than is usually the case.

STARS LIKE JAZZ

DENTON.—The acceptance of jazz music by hotel musical piano artists came rather as a surprise to students of Texas State College for Women (CIA) when they recently interviewed Rosina and Josef Lhevinne.

"The definite melody and rhythm of jazz has its place in American music if played as it should be," the artists told the girls. "However," they continued, "after a good many years of quick syncopated rhythm, the people are beginning to appreciate the simple classical melodies."

On Political Front

ATLANTA, Oct. 25.—In a speech assailing President Hoover's farm policies and asserting that the democratic party intended to restore the purchasing power of the farmer, Franklin D. Roosevelt last night told thousands of cheering Georgians he could not believe in the "doctrines of despair."

The object of the democratic party, he said, must be "the rebuilding of the rural civilization of America."

Speaking to a crowd of Southerners that jammed the big Atlanta auditorium to the rafters, the democratic presidential candidate added:

"I am, moreover, enough of an American to believe that such a restoration of prosperity in this country will do more to effectuate world recovery than all of the promotional schemes of lending money to backward and crippled countries could do in generations."

"In this respect I am for America first."

AL SMITH ASKS FOR ROOSEVELT VOTES

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—"Al" Smith, before a police-estimated crowd of 20,000 concluded from the national campaign speech last night by declaring that nothing but the election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket would solve the economic problems of America. The crowd was in an uproar virtually throughout his speech.

Smith reserved mention of the name of his political ally, Governor Roosevelt, until he had lashed out at prohibition and had made extended criticism of the republican administration.

Reference to a Roosevelt-Garner victory set off a demonstration in the vast auditorium which was many minutes in ending.

Thousands of American flags were waved. Automobile horns set up a bedlam of noise. Whistles and cheers blended in the din.

All the while Smith, in his favorite "happy warrior" pose, stood in the floodlights and grained from the same platform which just four years ago he mounted to seek votes for his own presidential candidacy.

Smith would not ask his audience to go home and see if you can find one great big public question that they (the republicans) have made a reasonably good attempt to settle.

"Instead of that," he continued, "we received a program of threat that if the republican party is defeated the return to prosperity will be delayed."

"I deny that and I deny it emphatically, and I state from this platform to my nation-wide audience that the election of the democratic party is the best way to solve these problems."

HOOPER PREPARES HIS ITINERARY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Hoover poured over the political calendar of the coming year, aiming at a whirlwind finish for his re-election drive—but last night the outline of his political travels for the next two weeks was incomplete.

Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown talked with the chief executive for nearly two hours yesterday and immediately after lunch, Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown talked with the chief executive for nearly two hours yesterday and immediately after lunch, Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown talked with the chief executive for nearly two hours yesterday and immediately after lunch.

Secretary Mills told newspaper men after his conference with the president that the latter may travel to Indianapolis before speaking next Monday in Newark and New York. Should he visit the Indiana capital, he plans tentatively to go on to Chicago before turning eastward.

Both of them believed the chief executive was not inclined to make a round-trip trans-continental trip that would place him in his home state of California before November 8, but added that he had not yet decided against it.

BULLINGTON DOESN'T WORRY DEMOCRATS

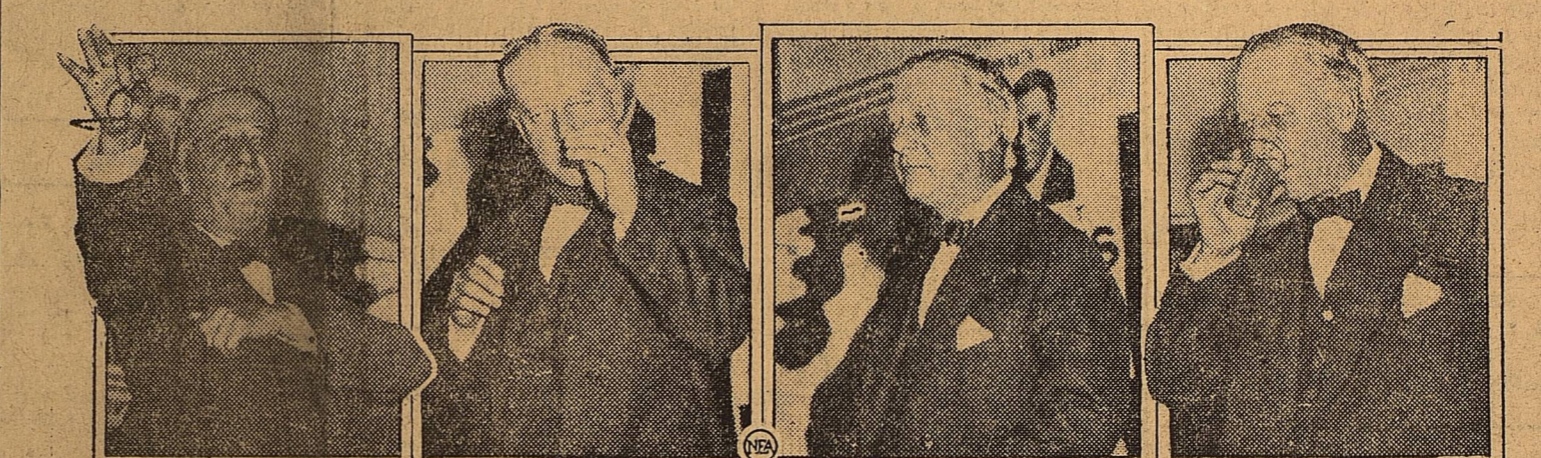

DALLAS, Oct. 25.—Democratic leaders were unperturbed today by republican claims that disaffected democratic support for Orville Bullington, republican nominee for governor, was increasing. They went ahead with plans for a final whirlwind drive for the candidacy of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, democratic nominee.

Former State Senator John Davis, member of the democratic state executive committee, took charge of the state headquarters and addressed to each of the 120 members of the Dallas county executive committee a form letter asking them to state whether they expected to support the party ticket without exception.

Maurry Hughes, state executive committee chairman, addressed a similar letter last week to all members of the state committee and to democratic nominees. Hughes has not made public the replies, but was expected to use them in a radio address at 8:15 tonight over station WBAP at Fort Worth.

The democrats planned party rallies throughout the state to appeal to party members with the slogan, "Democrats, vote or straight."

"Happy Warrior" Back on the Firing Line

"Open season on bunk" shouted Al Smith, arraiving Republican campaign promises to the delight of Tammanyites at the Tiger's annual ratification meeting in New York. "We make no special plea to any party class. We treat them all alike." And as for economy—

BULLINGTON MIDLAND SPEAKER WEDNESDAY

MISPLACED QUESTION

AUSTIN, (UP)—When a student travels from Vienna, Austria, to Austin to attend the University of Texas there usually is some reason—so a representative of the university daily publication undertook to find out from Guy Dudley Meadows.

"Mr. Meadows, you are from Vienna, Austria, as listed in the student directory, are you not?" the reporter began.

"Was it the climate, the hospitality, or just what was it that caused you to come so far to school?"

"Now," replied Meadows, "it's because I'm from Waco." Meadows explained that he had tested his guardian's home in Vienna rather than his home in Waco.

Dr. Little Will Preach Sunday

Holder lost out in general average by making his third catch in 78 seconds after missing a throw. However, he had good chances for a day money as the rodeo continues through October 31.

SPECIAL SESSION TO DISCUSS OIL IS UNNECESSARY

So Answers Sterling After Voiding Of Oil Curb

AUSTIN, Oct. 25. (UP)—Governor Sterling announced today that he sees no need of a special oil session on account of yesterday's decision at Sherman, adding that if a physical waste threatens in East Texas, martial law will curb the situation.

Sterling declared that if East Texas began flush production, the field would be threatened with destruction in 90 days. He pointed out that troops still were in the field and could be increased, but he reiterated his opposition to any attempt by the state to fix prices.

Commissioners Terrell and Smith, after studying the Sherman decision said it did not restrain except against plaintiffs who have agreed not to take advantage of any court ruling until new East Texas orders are adopted at the hearing to be held Nov. 3. Commission employees were ordered to report any violations of the present order.

DECISION CAUSED BY SHERMAN OCT. 25.—Three federal judges late Monday afternoon issued an opinion stating that the Texas railroad commission had exceeded its authority in issuing permanent prorations orders for the East Texas oil field.

The legislature had authorized the commission to regulate the field on a basis of physical waste but that the orders which followed were predicated on grounds of economic waste and were invalid.

What effect the ruling would have on the long-disputed subject of curbing excessive production in the prolific field was problematical.

Nathan Bryant of Sherman, J. C. Hutchison of Houston and W. I. Grubbs of Alabama—who signed the opinion could be reached for a practical interpretation of the decision, but Maurice Cheek, assistant attorney general at Austin, indicated existing orders in the field would obtain until a decree carrying out the judgment of the court had been entered. Judge Bryant was reported as being ill at his home here. Judge Hutchison was in New Orleans.

The complainants, in effect, upheld claims of Constantine and Warther and other East Texas oil interests that the railroad commission orders were arbitrary and unreasonable. The orders would deprive producers of rightful profits and were designed not primarily to prevent waste but to affect the market price for oil.

The complainants consolidated their case with many others and presented evidence in support of their claims at a hearing before the three-judge court at Houston starting September 10. Attacks on prorations in general in East Texas had been many and the consolidation followed in the hope of a final decision covering all cases generally would be handled down.

The railroad commission, at the hearing, contended its program actually had prevented waste, particularly in guaranteeing to the East Texas field a greater ultimate recovery than could have been expected under unrestrained production.

The complainants asserted the commission's real motive, in regard to the East Texas prorations orders, was to limit the state's production to such a figure that the crude could profitably be marketed at a given time. The commission then countered with the assertion that if the price of oil had been affected by any prorations order, it was a coincidence and not designed by the commission.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS: REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Such a condition developed in national administrations because the republicans were too strongly entrenched in power; it has developed in Texas because democratic leaders have decided that they rule by divine right of possession.

"Texas hasn't had a real governor since the beginning of the present century," an outstanding El Paso democrat asserted the other day. And the several democrats to whom he made the remark agreed with the assertion.

Seems to us, then, that it's about time for the state's independent voters to give democratic managers a demonstration that will be an compelling mandate for integrity and ability in party nominees.

If the Herald-Post believed that the nomination of Jim Ferguson, behind the skirts of Ma, was the overwhelming expression of voter sentiment that it appeared to be, it would raise no protest at Pa Jim proceeding into office.

It wasn't. It was merely a disgusted loss-up between an administrative numbskull and a political corksewer.

So, however remote the chance of success seems to be, the Herald-Post believes it would be a wise influence both on the democratic party and the state of Texas if Texas voters—this once, at least—would turn to the election of a republican governor.

A stilled air is a dangerous pose for folks on uncertain standing.

THE HUNGRY MUST EAT

It cannot be emphasized too often that the nation faces a job of vital importance this winter in maintaining its unemployment relief work at a high level. It is true that federal funds are being loaned to many cities for such work. It is true that we seem to be rising from the bottom of the depression. It is true that industry is at last showing signs of a revival. But no matter what happens, there will be thousands upon thousands of men and women and children who will have to get through this winter on the charity of others. Public funds are not sufficient to take care of them. As President Hoover and Newton D. Baker are repeatedly pointing out, we must give this coming season as never before.

One wonders if perhaps German equality and French security would be helped on a bit if "Deutschland uber Alles" and "La Marseillaise" were replaced with songs breathing a little less nationalism and not quite so much martial ardor.

Swapping Yarns with Col. True

Col. True maintains a standing invitation to others to write to him and tell of their own extraordinary experiences. No holds barred. Address Col. True, in care of The Reporter-Telegram. Dear Colonel: I read your dissertation on well-digging the other day and it brought to my mind a brother-in-law of mine who, in his time, he championed well-digging. He dug an average of four wells a day for many years, using three spades and a pick at the same time. While digging, he would throw out dirt so fast it took five men to move it back away from the well. He dug a well about a hundred and fifty feet deep one afternoon after having had a small drink of petrified cider. When he got through and started to come out he found that while digging he had looped the loop twice. The water that came out of that well was so crooked nobody but a corporation lawyer could drink it. Mack dug wells for 25 years, charging two cents a foot and was worth a million dollars when he retired. He certainly was a bear for work. SLIM MIZE. Sir: In my younger days I was

The Town Quack. (Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.) If you think that I don't know, You're afraid to tell me so. The twinkle in her hazel eyes, Is mischievous, yet very wise. With her rosy cheeks and pretty curls, She's twice as pretty as other girls. Her stature is low, for she is young, And many boys by her have been sung. But just the same she can't be beat, For her disposition is very sweet. With these few words I'll have to close, About the girl who shades a rose. With her good looks that ever grow, And if you ever chance to meet her, You'll see that no one else can beat her.

I read about a mathematics professor's daughter who made an example of herself. Some good news for Colonel True has been announced. He had a story the other day about being marooned on an island without clothes and had to gather a pair of pants off of a bloomer bush. Yesterday there was an article in a paper about the discovery of a ruffie plant over in the Davis mountains. Now, if Col. True can graft the ruffie plant to the bloomer bush, he can produce pants with the trimmings. An El Paso dairy advertises that its cows are milked to the tune of radio music. In which case they had better substitute the words "Give 'er Down" for "Drink 'er Down."

When I was a youth, and used to juice a couple of heifers twice a day, the only music around the cow lot was that made by the flies while the milking was going on. Of course the cat did "Meow" a little bit before I began squirting milk at her mouth. The music of a cow bawling still sounds good to me, however. My neighbor keeps a cow and it's a great thrill to me to lie in bed in the morning, hear the cow bawl and know the neighbor, and not I, will have to milk her. When asked if blondes or brunets were the prettiest, Hankins said, "Yes, and red-heads, too!"

Folks, this is rich. Right here while I am writing my column, in walks Jim Harrison with the mail and he produces this letter. Before the editor gets back from the coffee shop, this is going to be on the hook and 'Eeep us if he sees it before the paper comes out: Town Quack. Here is a fine piece of poetry that Paul Barron, Ye Editor, wrote about one of his girls in the senior class. Did you know that Paul was a poet? We still are wondering! A POEM By T. Paul Barron There is a girl in our town, Who seldom ever wears a frown; But in the Latin class some, QT's hard to put this in my rhymes, She has a hard time reciting; And it makes the event exciting. But just the same she's very sweet, As she trips about on her fairy feet. Her hair is soft and in long curls; Her teeth are white as large round pearls. And if you know another like her, Just show her to me or you're a piker. If you think you know one as sweet as she, I'm 'cross Missouri; you'll have to show me.

TEXAS-SMU AND BAYLOR-TCU GAMES HOLD INTEREST

TEXAS AND TCU SHOULD WIN EASY GAMES; TEXAS SEEN AS CHAMPION OF LOOP; TCU IS POWERFUL CLUB

DALLAS.—Faced with the almost hopeless task of fashioning a defense that will hold Eric Key, Bohm Hilliard and Indian Stafford, Texas' trio of great running backs, Coach Ray Morrison is drilling his Southern Methodist Mustangs overtime this week behind the locked gates of Owby Stadium.

Close followers of the team have little hope of the Ponies defeating the Orange juggernaut, which last roughed over the Rice Owls last Saturday while the Methodists were taking an 18-7 drubbing at the hands of little Centenary. The Centenary 155-pound backfield ripped the Pony forward wall to shreds and Mustang fans see little chance of the same line stopping the powerful Longhorn ball-carriers.

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS

From all appearances, Wink high school is turning out to look in Class B like Sweetwater in Class A. If you will recall, Stanton's Thundering Herd was expected to grab the gon-falon again this year—but the Winkler county club stepped the Martin county boys in a 39-0 cataract Saturday. Midland only scored three touchdowns against the Buffs, Wink lacking only point of doubling the Class A eleven's showing. And we had been figuring on bringing Wink here for a game!

Wink now stands with Pecons on top of the circuit, having played and won three games. Pecons has lost one game, but to McCamey, a Class A entry. Fort Stockton, Hobos and Lovington have fallen before. Pecons not only has lost a game, but eked out only a tie in another. Midland will play the Eagles Nov. 4 here.

By BEN BOSWELL

FORT WORTH.—Forgetting the 68-0 drubbing they gave a miserably weak Austin college team last Saturday, the Frogs are going to work in preparation for the Baylor tilt here Saturday. The Frogs have suddenly discovered that no T. C. U. team has ever won over a Baylor team in Fort Worth since the Horned Frogs entered the Southwest conference in 1924. "There is a jinx that must be obliterated," say the Christians.

The Purple and White muffed a chance to win from the Bears two years ago in Fort Worth. It was also this miserable defeat that put Pecons on the championship. Baylor won the game 35 to 14. Every man on the Baylor team crossed the purple goal before the game ended except the center. Even the guards broke through to intercept passes and score. It seemed that every time a Bear got his hands on the ball, something happened and he was off on a 50-yard gallop for a touchdown.

After all, it's speed that carries Colorado. The backs had no interference. They just got strung out and ran like locomotives with their safety plugs screwed down. The backs are quite faster than Sweetwater, but snow much inexperienced in keeping together. If the top passes to Stagner could be bulletted instead, the flashy end could score on any of these Class A teams. He is poison on grabbing heaves. Much of the credit for forward passes goes to the man who spirals the ball—but in Stagner's case he deserves practically all the credit, but the end jumps up to meet them and generally comes down with the ball. And, while we're on the subject, that boy is probably faster than Bud Hall, Colorado's fullback who amazed everyone with his speed. Stagner bore down the sideline once and his jaunt was blurred, so fast did he sprint.

Bill Parker tells us that the flash of the Texas U. backfield, Bohm Hilliard, and Maddison Pruitt, crack TCU end and all-conference man of 1931, are fathers. Curtiss Bishop writes in The Big Spring Herald that Red Sheridan was stopped against Big Spring Friday. After reading the play-by-play account we are at a loss to see how Bishop figured. True, Sheridan was smeared occasionally, lost a yard or so now and then, but he gained many yards, tossed passes and did some beautiful punting and punt returning. Richbour's Big Spring full-back, also looked nice. Next to Sheridan, he probably was the best the commission.

The judges' opinion MoHday was interpreted as granting the right of the commission to determine proration orders and issue them, but at the same time holding that the ones which subsequently were published constituted "an invalid exercise of power and authority" by the commission.

MAY HAVE COWBOYS

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—There soon may be a demand for cowboys in Florida. Hillsborough county commission has ruled that cattle may be grazed in no-fence territory, provided cattle are attended by enough cowboys to keep them from straying, or damaging property.

PEANUTS THRIVE

LONGMONT, Col. (UP)—The peanut crop over on the south forty is doing very nicely. John Hobday proved to the skeptical that Early Spanish peanuts will grow in Colorado. The peanuts are smaller than the usual gooder, but they are well developed and "taste exactly like peanuts," according to the folks who have tried them.

Steele, standing alongside Johnny Raeburn, was just about to jump into his saddle when an attendant hurried up to him and whispered in his ear. Steele, his face blanched, turned to Johnny and told him he could not play.

condition.

The crowd gave Steele a tremendous ovation as he entered the game. And if the crowd expected something from him, they got more than they expected. Steele played brilliant polo, and Johnny was a whirlwind. Steele was rough, though, and America was penalized several times through his fouling—mostly Morrell. Nevertheless the United States was trailing by one goal at the end of the seventh chukka. The players went off the field to change ponies. Johnny rode up alongside Steele's pony, "Skipper, don't you think I'm beeping," he pleaded, "but try and watch out for that rough stuff. You'll break your neck—or kill somebody!"

Steele nodded grimly. "You never know which."

O'Day assured them that Mickey was all right.

"Get Gray Ghost!" said Steele, grimly.

"I'll get better if you go," he choked weakly. "We've been in the Army—too long—together—for you not to see said thing."

The doctor took her pulse. "I think you'd better indulge her, Captain Steele. Her pulse is going up."

Steele grabbed him by the shoulder savagely. "Get off me!"

"I'll tell you, son!" said Jerry, horrified. "I'll tell you everything she told me!"

Steele's face was a mask when Jerry finished the painful recital.

"Get my ponies ready!"

He dashed out on the field. It was the rest period. Four chukkers had already been played, and the score was five to two for the visitors.

Steele mallet in hand, strode along the sidelines looking for his prey. He found him astride a pony, practicing shots.

Steele tried to restrain the savagery in his voice. "Morrell!"

Morrell was no coward. "When did I say that?"

"I said it!" said Steele, glaring. "You're mistaking my friend," Charles answered coolly.

Why Yucca's Film Depicts Satire

Truth is stranger than fiction, and in the case of the hilarious moving picture, "Once in a Lifetime," which is at the Yucca theater today and Wednesday, it is much funnier. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, who had never been to Hollywood, sat down in New York, and from all the funny things they had ever heard about the moving picture business, they wrote a play. The play ran for two years on Broadway.

They were both wrong. Carl Laemmle not only had the nerve to do it, but he felt that it was someone's duty to do it. The essence of humor is to appreciate a joke on yourself. "Once in a Lifetime" is a tremendous joke on the moving picture business, and it was up to somebody to show that the moving picture business could take it on the chin and like it.

Steele nudged grimly. "You never know which."

O'Day assured them that Mickey was all right.
