'SPRING DEATH' FEARED MURDER

Repeal Leaders Believe Resolution Would Pass Monday

INDICATION IS FOUND IN POLL OF THE HOUSE

Hoover Unfavorable To Beer Relief Bills, Said

(Copyright United Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—Democratic leaders charged by John Garner to conduct a canvass of the house to determine sentiment toward repeal of the eighteenth amendment have found thus far that the repeal resolution would pass if brought to vote next Monday.

They believe that 275 votes could be secured for outright repeal which, they anticipate, constitutes the required majority in view of the certain absence of some members.

OPPOSITION WAVES STEADILY TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (UP)—Opposition to a house vote on prohibition repeal Monday apparently reached a new peak Tuesday and then quickly diminished as both democratic and republican members began conceding that the quicker the question is disposed of the better.

Encouraged by reports that more than 100 republicans would vote for his flat repeal and state convention proposal, Speaker Garner said it was his intention to carry out his plan for action almost as soon as congress convenes.

In addition a large group of southern democrats, who had registered opposition to the proposal, told the vice president-elect they had decided the issue should come to a vote Monday to clear the way for consideration of other pressing legislation.

A division of opinion over the form the resolution should take appeared for a time in the chamber Tuesday. Some members favored submitting the proposition to legislatures for ratification and all others declared for provisions to outlaw the saloon and guarantee federal protection to dry states.

To Be Considered These views were to be considered by the judiciary committee Friday. Chairman Sumners will ask its authority to submit the proposal to the house. Sumners conferred with the speaker and agreed to take charge of the resolution if directed by his committee, although he favors ratification by the legislatures.

Referring to the planks in the democratic and republican national platforms calling for immediate consideration by congress of the prohibition question and for submission of the proposed new amendment to state conventions, Garner said:

"In view of the declaration by the parties and the result of the recent election, how could I do otherwise than to ask for outright repeal at once and ratification by conventions? It is our duty to keep good faith."

Majority Wants Vote Earlier, the speaker said he would canvass the situation to determine by Saturday whether a majority of the house wanted to vote Monday, but later he declared:

"I am convinced that a majority wants a vote. My intention is to carry out my original plans."

With the prediction by Representative Sumners that the repeal resolution would pass if brought to vote next Monday.

21 SHOPPING DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Four Musical Concerts in Midland in Next Two Weeks

When They Met 15 Years Ago

The historic meeting of President Hoover and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House was not their first in the war days of 1917, when the two men looked as shown above, they met in little groups which assembled on Sunday night in informal home gatherings in Washington. They may have discussed then the beginnings of problems that loom large today. They met on the same ship to Europe after the war. Roosevelt going to support naval demobilization. Hoover to feed the starving of Four great musical concerts with 70 Midland people, augmented with a nationally known soloist, summarize music activities in Midland for the next 14 days.

The first two concerts will be presented at Midland, the next two at Stanton and Big Spring.

Professor Theophilus Fitz will present 70 Midland men and women Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a sacred concert at the Yucca theatre in a program lasting one hour and 20 minutes. Tickets for the Midland city will sing. This program includes four living pictures based on Bible scenes.

On Tuesday evening, Professor Fitz and Midland artists will present "takes" from "Texas Under Six Flags," from the Centennial Texas opera, "Tejano," in which, according to critics, is the finest singing ever presented in Midland will be heard.

These two performances are given under auspices of the American legion post of Midland and are being given as a fund-raising drive for the aid of destitute ex-soldiers. Through cooperation of Manager John Bonner of the Yucca theatre, that playhouse will be used for both the performances.

On Sunday, Dec. 11, by invitation of Major J. B. Pickle of Big Spring, Secretary C. T. Watson of the Big Spring chamber of commerce, and Superintendent Blankenship of the Big Spring schools, the Midland concert of men and women will give a sacred concert at the magnificent Big Spring municipal auditorium. This performance will be at 8 o'clock. Big Spring musicians will give a 20-minute concert at the Stanton Methodist church. The Rev. Mr. Vaughn, pastor, has invited the Midlanders to give a short program at the Stanton church.

The Midland artists will appear at Big Spring Dec. 11 at 8 p. m. They will play at 1:30 p. m., 8:00 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. at Stanton, appearing in that city at 2 p. m., and going from there on to Big Spring. Both the Stanton and Big Spring concerts are given as a fund-raising drive for the aid of destitute ex-soldiers.

Crowded houses are expected at the Yucca Sunday afternoon and Tuesday night. The two programs are being given as a fund-raising drive for the aid of destitute ex-soldiers.

Another Western steer, and another Hereford, bearing the patriarchal title of "W. H. R. Aster Domino 56th," was reserve champion. It is owned by the Wyoming Hereford ranch of Cheyenne.

The award made exposition history. It marked the first time in the annals of the show that Texas, although premier fat cattle raising state, has been able to produce the king of cattlemen. And in winning, "Texas Special" brings the honor back to the West where, with exception of last year, it has consistently rested.

For 10 minutes Walter Biggar, noted cattle judge of Dalbeattie, Scotland, weighed the merits of five steers in the ring. From one to another he passed, running educated fingers over their marbled coats, prodding them to detect spots where the flesh was weak.

Three Aberdeen-Angus steers were in the championship arena—sooty, stocky beasts, not too impressive to casual spectators, but in the words of husbandmen representing much meat in a medium of space.

Another animal of the same distinguished line, "Briarcliff Artist," was groomed to take the title back to the East.

With "Artist" was "California Sportsman," shown by the University of California, and "Plato," owned by 11-year-old Lawrence Morgan, Alamo, Ill., who last year won the reserve championship in the junior feeding contest.

Short horns were left out in the cold. Ringsiders, realizing animal husbandry's climatic act of the year was being staged, leaned forward intently. The galleries, too, caught something of the importance of the occasion and remained silent.

When Judge Biggar directed distribution of the ribbons, a shout went up—and also the sound of one Willie Joe Largent, owner and exhibitor of "Texas Special."

Said Judge Biggar: "Texas Special" is a most pleasing steer; neat in the ground; beautifully balanced and with a deep and even covering of flesh—an almost ideal Hereford." (See MIDLAND STEER page 4)

Come for Fun and Not for Fight Is Dance Admonition

Midland negroes plan some merry nights in early December, according to the text of their announcements. One, referring to a dance Dec. 4 at Batle's hall, reads in the typical doggerel employed by the East side here for years:

Stop! — Look! Lots of hugging but no kissing. A WOMAN HUNG! Where? Her arms around her partner's neck, a dancer all night.

To the mixed rhythms of Paulie Christian and his Mid-West Rhythm Kings—featuring Harry Nelson, formerly of Radio Station KRAY, Fort Worth, the Little Earl Hines of the South at the Baldwin grand. Come early, stay late, don't forget the time and date.

Another one, at Watson's hall, reads: LOOKY HERE! Looky Here! For there'll be a big ball at Watson's Hall, Thursday night, Dec. 1.

Don't be late For we'll start at eight. Come and let's have a good time. For he is just what you make it. It can be sad or glad. People will be here from different places.

To see these new faces. Frenchy's new orchestra, Eight Aces. Come for fun and not for fight. This will be Thursday night.

BRITISH DEBT REPORT PUBLIC IN SHORT TIME

LONDON, Nov. 30. (UP)—The British debt note to the United States was transmitted to Washington today by the British ambassador, announcing that it will be published in a day or two. He said there was no foundation for reports that gold payment had been shipped.

PARIS, Nov. 30. (UP)—Premier Herriot won today his fight to settle the debt question without debate in parliament.

Crop Loans Due Today—Andrews

With today's maturity of the notes of the farmers who secured money from the government crop loan office to make this year's crop, this county is in good shape. Many have paid their notes in full, or stored sufficient cotton on the farm to back up their loans.

Others had almost reached their goal. Some held their cotton, thinking that the price would go up and will today either sell and pay up or collateralize sufficient cotton to take care of their notes.

This statement was made by the field inspector, John S. Andrews, in this district.

Over the state, farmers have been trying to pay loans. One case was reported of a borrower who lost his team of horses, trained two yearlings to take their place, made a crop in full, the government loan of $72. This encouraged a neighbor who lost one horse and who tied up the other singletree, to pay up his loan.

Another farmer completed his crop and paid a $45 loan. Other farmers went to the saw mills, to the logging camp, to road work and to other cotton fields when damaged conditions or short crops prevented the paying of their loans; and later, from their working efforts and determination, have already paid their loans in full. The resourcefulness in the determination to repay the government loan and to hold a clean record by the individual borrower has encouraged many neighbors to better provide for their winter supply of food and feed.

"It is certainly gratifying to see so many who have provided food and feed this year," said Andrews. "Many have sufficient food and feed to go through the winter. Many will make their own meat and have fine turnip patches and winter collards. All agree that more time will be given next year to this—the most important part of farm operation. One farmer told me that he had the first winter garden that he had ever planted.

"These are the things that the field inspectors of the crop production office have encouraged, as well as the replanting of new crops through the year where others fail."

AT SLOAN FIELD

Lieut. Col. A. L. Sneed, living from El Paso to Safford field, Mich., landed at Sloan field Tuesday afternoon. He took off shortly afterwards for San Angelo, where he spent the night. He was to continue to Hensley field, Dallas, today.

Commander Miles in a navy fighting plane landed Tuesday night en route to San Diego from Anacostia, D. C.

Hangs Up His Helmet

Then years ago James Montee was just learning to fly at 60. He is shown below in the cockpit of a plane with one of his flying sons, Harold. Above he is shown after his recent retirement, at 70, explaining the operation of a miniature airplane to a fair patron in one of his amusement park trainers.

He is James Montee of Los Angeles, oldest licensed pilot in the United States, only life member of the Professional Pilots' association, and "senior" pilot of the first family in the nation to produce four pilots in a single generation.

Midland recalls the name vividly as one of Montee's sons, Ralph, was stationed at Midland in 1927 with the Fairchild aerial survey. It was his big D-11 that carried Miss Hazel Fleming, former Midland girl, to an unofficial altitude record for women. It was Ralph Montee who attained to great publicity two years ago when he landed a biplane on a beach filled with passengers after his aileron cables broke while flying at great altitude over the Rockies.

Although grounded at the age of 70 years and financially able to retire, "Daddy Montee," as he is affectionately called, is not out of the flying game altogether. He operates a beach field, which now is Clover field, army flying base at Los Angeles.

Although Montee became interested in aviation when he was 44 years old, at the time when the Wright brothers first flew, he did not learn to fly until he was 60. His growing family kept him close to earth, but he read every book on aviation he could get.

Son in Air Force During the World War Montee's oldest son, Kenneth, entered the army as a pilot in the United States Army. He was a pilot in the United States Army. He was a pilot in the United States Army.

Montee's two sons still are engaged in aviation. Ralph, now 33, is senior pilot of the Western Air Express on the Kansas City to Albuquerque run, and Harold, 30, is an inspector of the department of commerce, stationed at Denver, Col.

Two other members of the Montee family also are aviation "bugs." They are Mrs. James Montee, and daughter, Pauline, aged 20. Both have flown many times with the flying Montees, but never craved to operate ships themselves.

Very often, when business on the pier is slow, Montee closes up his little stall and drives to one of the many large airports near Los Angeles.

"I get a great kick out of that," he says. "In the old days it was different. And they were so long ago—just 10 years. We had two or three little planes made of cloth and fabric and wood and thought it was never an accident. Death claimed Kenneth Montee shortly after, but not from the air. He died a victim of scarlet fever. The Montee family has never been in an airplane accident, although the sons and their father have had several narrow escapes from death.

MAN GROUND IN COLLISION WITH FAST PASSENGER

Identified Today as I. B. Ritchie of Tank Company

Big Spring, Nov. 30. (UP)—Officers here feared murder in the death last night of I. B. Ritchie, manager of the Lincoln Tank company, who was killed when a passenger train struck an automobile which had been parked several yards down the Texas & Pacific tracks from a crossing.

ENGINE CREW CHANGED FOLLOWING THE SMASH

The train that struck the automobile of Ritchie was the No. 1 westbound Sunshine Special due at Midland at 10:30 p. m. It was running fast at the time of the wreck, gradually getting momentum over the seven miles separating the crossing from Big Spring.

The engine was knocked off the track and had to be replaced by a wrecker from Big Spring. Engine and engine crew were changed before the run was resumed. The train reached Midland at 1:30, more than three hours late.

According to the conductor of the train, the automobile of Ritchie was struck in the back as it apparently was driving down the track, headed in a westerly direction.

A DEBT TO LIBBY HOLMAN

When that North Carolina solicitor went into court and nol prossed the murder charge against Libby Holman, on the ground that the evidence was so meager that the state would not be justified in bringing the case to trial, it became perfectly evident that the Broadway blues singer had been subjected to unwarranted humiliation.

For it is apparent to the prosecutor now that there is not enough evidence to justify a trial, it ought to have been equally apparent at the time the indictment was voted; and the logical deduction is that the charges never should have been brought in the first place.

Libby Holman stands freed today; but she has had to undergo a great deal of excruciatingly unpleasant publicity, and the whole experience has left a scar which she will feel all her life. The least the general public can do now is to forget the whole matter and remember the young woman simply as a talented public entertainer.

NATIONS SAY THEY CAN'T PAY WAR DEBTS, YET SPEND FOR NEXT WAR

By MILTON BRONNER
European Manager, NEA Service
LONDON.—For 13 years the nations of the world have talked about disarming and today, in net results achieved, they are practically as far from that goal as they ever were.
This fact stands out in bold relief as President Hoover and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt met in Washington to discuss collection of Europe's war debts to the United States, and it tends to minimize hopes for any real action at the forthcoming disarmament conference at Geneva. Sessions are due to be resumed in January with delegates from 60 nations in attendance.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS
After some heavy and exhaustive brain work (it required about 15 minutes) the writer on The Big Spring Herald, a gent known to his high school associates as Curtis Bishop, has run in an all-district club for your consideration. We note with mixed feeling that Midland does not play a man on the first eleven, with consternation at Bishop's mental processes when we find the second eleven devoid of Midland mention—and with a giggling sensation as the names of Hallman and Collins stand out on the third team as his choice for fullback and quarterback, respectively.

To repeat something we, no doubt, have said before (everything has been said before, has it not?) this department had not expected to find a Midland man on the mythical eleven. Only two men are good enough for that classification and they had little chance due to a season that everyone will do just as well to forget five minutes earlier than soon. But we had thought that Hallman, who was favored by several scribes and coaches last year for an all-district berth, might have given some consideration to this year as a half. There's not man in the district, with the exception of Sheridan, who can lug a ball in good going like that man. It is natural that sports writers see their own men best and men who play sterling games against their own club, but there is little excuse for a writer's memory being only an inch long and ravelled on the ends. Tom Collins, the other Midland player of great value, as value in District 3 is reckoned, has not been overlooked by any scribe this season. Who is more powerful than he in this district, more experienced? And what is one to do about it when the question is answered? Bishop placed him on the third team, that's one way of doing things, say the least.

We must give Bishop credit for making one sapient statement, where given some consideration by this to explain an all-district selection, nobody else will like it, anyhow."

The list, as prepared by the estimator to the east, gives four places to Big Spring, four to Sweetwater and one each to Colorado, San Angelo and McCamey. We assume that mathematics won over geography and that he will not forget Midland when he is drawing straws out of his hat for the first team. You see, Sweetwater had four men that could not be discarded, even by Bishop. It was natural that Big Spring would have to place equally as many. Not even Bishop could afford to handicap more from Big Spring than Sweetwater, so he let the Seismic City down light by splitting even with the championship city, which left three more men to be picked. The fact that there were only three men left from offered Bishop a momentary puzzle, but he took his luck penny from his pocket and flipped heads or tails, and Midland happened to be the unlucky one."

We haven't seen the selection of Chas. Green or of Blundy Cross, but want to assert that the latter's quarter-back will be a natural choice, and one end Pan Pruitt, Green's of course, will be reading from left to right. Sweetwater—and we don't blame him a particle.

Back to the matter in hand, you wish to see Bishop's choice—or, better said, we'd like to tabulate it for you.

We thought so. Here comes Bishop on a day later with an explanation, no doubt caused by a guilty conscience.

"We have changed our minds entirely about our all-district eleven. We were not fair to several Colorado and Big Spring players when we announced the Herald's choice Sunday. The following is our revised nomination. Ends: Vines (B. S.) and Stagner (Col.) Tackles: Armstrong (B. S.) and Church (Col.) Guards: Martin (B. S.) and Smith (B. S.) Center: Dyer (B. S.) Quarterback: Walter Bunker (B. S.) Halfbacks: Richbourg (B. S.)

NOTED REPORTER O'MALLEY DEAD

His Pasting Recalls Famous Story of Cop's Death as Told in Interview with Officer's Old Mother 25 Years Ago

A hurried piece of newspaper writing—an interview with a slain policeman's mother—found fame much less fleeting than that of most newspaper pieces, says an article in a recent issue of the Boston Globe. When the reporter did last week in France nearly every American newspaper referred to his interview of more than 25 years ago.

On the day that appeared a group of business men were riding from Peekskill to New York in a commuters' club car. Several games of cards were in progress, and the rest of the passengers were busy with their newspapers or in conversation.

THE DEATH OF HAPPY GENE SHEEHAN
A True Story of New York Life
By Frank Ward O'Malley
Mrs. Catherine Sheehan lived in the darkened parlor of her home at 361 West Fifteenth street late yesterday afternoon and told her version of the murder of her son, Gene, a faithful policeman who had been named Billy Morley shot in the forehead, down under the Chatham square elevated station early yesterday afternoon.

"Gene's mother was thankful that her boy hadn't killed Billy Morley before he died," because," she said, "I can say honestly, even now, that I would have been glad to see my boy brought home to me, as it were, tonight to have him come to me and say, 'Mother, I had to kill a man this morning.'"

"I saw him once after that, thank God, before he was shot. It's a new dress coat that'll make you proud when you see me in it, mammy." And he went over Fifteenth street whistling a tune and slapping his leg with a faded newspaper. And he hasn't come back again.

By the way, it seems more forcible when I have been offering coaches this year than backs. Howard Jones was an end in his days at Yale. . . though his brother Tad swept to fame before him as a back. Howard now is reaping the fruit of years of painstaking toil. . . Hunk Anderson was a lineman, too. . . and Jock Sutherland, coach of a splendid eleven at Pitt this year, was one of the greatest linemen Pitt ever had.

George Arliss at The Ritz Theatre

A new George Arliss picture is always an event of importance to the motion picture public and "A Successful Calamity," his latest Warner Bros. triumph, opening Thursday at the Ritz theatre, for a two-day showing, promises to excel in its excellent predecessors in popularity.

The story deals with an American family of great wealth; a great financier, his young and lovely wife and his two grown children; all of whom find themselves so busy with the pleasures and duties imposed upon them by their money and position that no time is left for the enjoyment of real family life. "A Successful Calamity" is adapted from a highly successful stage play of some seasons back, written by Clare Kummer, John Adoffi, who directed George Arliss in "The Millionaire," "Alexander Hamilton" and "The Man Who Played God," is credited with the direction of this new Arliss picture.

The entire program is dominated by the character portrayed by Arliss, the supporting cast is even more noteworthy than previous ones seen in Arliss pictures. Mary Astor, one of the loveliest and most capable of the screen's leading women, plays the part of the young and susceptible wife of the financier, Evelyn Knapp, who played the part in "The Millionaire" is seen again as his daughter in this picture. William Janney, promising youthful screen and stage actor, is the son, and plays in many lesser productions, has the important role of the Wilton butler, David Torrence, Hardie Albright, Hale Hamilton, Fortunio Bonanova, Randolph Scott and Murray Kinnell are featured players.

Pygmies, Waifs of Forest, on Screen

Revealing for the first time the secrets of that vast and unexplored Itura Forest, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's picture, the Fox production "Congorilla," which is the first all-sound film ever to come out of the wilds of the jungle, closes its engagement today at the YuCCA theatre.

Pygmies, Waifs of Forest, on Screen

They live off shrubs of the woodland, such as mushrooms, wild spinach and the few birds they shoot with their tiny bows and arrows. Martin Johnson contends that the pygmies are the most contented people on the face of the globe, without worries or troubles and perfectly happy in their savage ignorance. They are practically helpless, not being able to make a solitary thing for their needs. Even their bows and arrows they exchange in trade and barter with the larger natives on the outskirts of the forest.

Study Ousting Of School Man

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.—Charges involving alleged insubordination and misconduct of C. V. Compton, dismissed as superintendent of the McCamey public schools were presented Tuesday to L. W. Rogers, state superintendent of education.

Compton's dismissal was on appeal by Compton from the McCamey school board's action in dismissing him as superintendent. Rogers took the case under advisement.

The controversy which resulted in Compton's dismissal grew out of the scheduling of a football game between McCamey and San Angelo. Compton was charged with having made a contract for the game, in violation of state law, and the school board claiming the contract could be broken only on grounds of improper conduct or failure to observe the spirit of the contract.
