Judge Inclines To Whiskey Tenor For Celebrants

SAN ANGELO.—A whistling boy who didn't care anything about singing and a man overcome by Christmas spirits who wanted nothing but singing met on the streets here Christmas day. The inebriated one first asked the lad to sing a little bit. But the whistler trilled on John Barleycorn's friend became insistent, so much so that the lad picked up an old sign and hit the drunken one over the head.

Both were taken to police court, where Judge J. Sharpe Tuesday morning declared that the boy should have tried one song, at least. He dismissed them both.

Girls, Here's Your Chance—Gwyn Offer Is Good for Year

It required a story in The Reporter-Telegram to convince Ray Gwyn he is an eligible bachelor—and he goes almost wild with abandon at his realization.

In a letter this morning to a reporter, Gwyn offers his good offices towards "giving the ladies a break" in an old-fashioned "spelling bee" like to have a date, write me, giving your name, approximate age, telephone number and other information. His advertisement, in part, reads:

Gwyn coyly adds the following: "There are only a few limiting factors first, you must be under 60; second, you must not have been married; third, the right to accept or reject your proposal is reserved; however, each girl will be given at least one date for her answer. Girls, here's your chance, so write."

One mile less distance from Midland to Odessa will result from the straggling of three curves between the two towns. Due to the necessity for slowing on these curves when meeting other automobiles, driving time will be cut more than the lessened distance would indicate.

Hearing resulting from a granting of a temporary injunction against rerouting the highway through Odessa must result before work can be resumed on the Ector curve.

PHOENIX, Dec. 30. (UP)—The grand jury investigating the murder of Agnes Ann Lerol, for which William Ruth Judd was convicted, indicted a prominent, wealthy local man charged as "an accessory" after the slaying of Mrs. Lerol and Miss Hedvig Samuelson.

Name of the man was withheld. The incident followed three days of intense heat when witnesses were brought from prison, where she is scheduled to hang Feb. 17, for questioning.

She was reported to have "told all." It was said that she testified that the man offered to help her dispose of the bodies after the murders.

Actress Quits Husband After Spite Wedding

HOLLYWOOD.—A record for short lived Hollywood marriages was established by Elinor Fair, dark-haired actress when she announced she would seek an annulment of her marriage to John Daniels, young broker.

The couple flew to Yuma, Ariz., for the ceremony three days ago, returned three hours later and separated immediately, the actress revealed.

Characterizing the marriage as "just a big mistake," Miss Fair promptly became engaged to Frank Clark, film stunt flyer, with whom she had had a lover's quarrel.

"I was blue after having quarreled with Frank," she confided, "and I thought I'd show him how smart he was. I haven't seen my husband since I left the airport."

Clark, giving up the prospects of terminating the "180-minute marriage," "Well, we're engaged again," he said.

THE "SUB" LEARNS TO WALK

When Simon Lake sent his new "baby submarine" to the bottom of Long Island Sound a few days ago and proved that the tiny craft might have some real commercial and scientific uses, he took a step that has been awaited ever since the first submarine took its first trip.

The submarine, beyond question, is one of the most ingenious mechanical devices of modern days. It makes reality of a very old dream—the dream of sailing the seas in a boat that could dive under water whenever its skipper felt like it.

Jules Verne, of course, foresaw other uses for such craft. His Captain Nemo had a submarine that was a kind of yacht, and in it he made long trips and had a great deal of fun.

Not long ago there was an attempt to use a submarine for Arctic exploration. But the results weren't as startling as they might have been.

Now, however, Mr. Lake is trying to convert the craft to peace-time uses. His "baby sub" crawls along the bottom of the sea, emits divers through special hatches, extends mechanical arms and what-not to pluck sponges from the rocks, dig up oysters and clams from their beds, and so on, and permits naturalists to study the ocean bottom and collect specimens from it with ease and comfort.

For it is, in a way, something of an indictment of our society, this fact that we can devise a marvel like a submarine and then use it only to send other ships to the bottom of the sea.

HURRAHS FOR THE FUGITIVE

The sympathy which so many people extended to Robert Elliott Burns, the Georgia prison fugitive whom New Jersey's governor refused to send back to Georgia, undoubtedly was due not so much to the man's story of injustice and brutality as to the age-old impulse to extend good wishes to any man who is fleeing from the law.

That impulse dates away back in the history of civilization. Automatically, without inquiring into the justice or otherwise of the case, we have a queer fellow-feeling for any chap who is running away from restraint.

Burns had got away, made a useful citizen of himself, been recaptured, escaped again and established himself once more. That a great many people were glad when Governor Moore refused to send him back does not necessarily mean that the nation as a whole is aroused about the condition of Georgia's penal system.

A NEW FRONTIER

Nobody knows how much land has been taken back by the states for taxes from its former owners. But some indication may be had from the fact that South Dakota recently sent more than 5,000,000 acres under the auctioneer's hammer.

There's a problem for you! You have grown accustomed to the thought that public lands were exhausted. Are we to have great areas of public lands again? If so, what are we going to do with them? A way must be found to dovetail this new factor into the unemployment situation.

Side Glances By Clark

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

A friend of mine was referred to the other day as the type of man who is very much interested in prayer meetings and poker games.

Another friend of mine told me that he believes I do the very things I preach against.

A Kansas columnist says it has always been his ambition to become as well known as Horseshoe tobacco. I never heard of Horseshoe tobacco and I don't know the columnist's name, so both may be easily satisfied.

There is a fellow here in town who is so susceptible to women that he falls in love every time he sees a skirt hanging on a clothes line.

I saw a man yesterday who was so hard boiled that he said our tax money ought to be used to pay for the essentials in operating the government and not for the expenses of political lectures.

I made a couple of mistakes the other day which were entirely original. At least I have a claim to originality.

In speaking of the "beautiful" relaxation of Sunday, a business man told me that if he meant on Monday, consequently I am inclined to believe relaxation is wrong in principle.

It used to be that a man could say he wasn't a tax payer. I've even

Developments in The Oil Industry

AUSTIN—Recent outstanding developments in the oil industry include such widely diversified items as the order of the Texas Railroad Commission to shut down both production and transportation of crude oil in the East Texas fields from Saturday, Dec. 17, to Jan. 1, 1933; the cancellation of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company's vast concessions of Persian oil lands by the Shah of Persia—a concession which has been in operation for more than a quarter of a century; the break in gasoline prices in the Pacific Northwest—a movement brought about by the importation of East Texas gasoline, and which has caused considerable discomfiture in the California oil industry; the realization that the Congo oil pool in Montgomery county, though less than a year old, has attained first rank in the Gulf coast country; and the attention West Texas oil men are giving to the Standard Oil and Gas Company's deep test on the Todd ranch in Crockett county. This list by no means exhausts the number of important items that have come to the forefront in the oil industry, according to Elmer H. Johnson, industrial geographer in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

December Much Colder Than November

MIDLAND TEMPERATURE DISTRICT

HEATING WEATHER FOR DECEMBER PERIOD 1932 WAS 1 1/2 TIMES AS GREAT AS NOVEMBER PERIOD 1932.

Midland thought November was an unusually cold month this year and it was, in comparison with the same month in previous years. But December has made November seem like summer time in comparison, as will be noted in the accompanying charts.

Degree-days are the gauges of heating weather to the heating engineer. Thus, Dec. 21, had a mean or average temperature in Midland of 42 degrees, which was 23 degrees lower than the temperature at which heat is required for comfort. That particular day, therefore was given a heat requirement rating of 23 degree-days.

Table with 5 columns: District, Average Mean Temp., Degree Days Dec., Degree Days Nov. Rows include Amarillo District, Midland District, Lubbock District, Plainview District, Clifton District, and Dalhart District.

Some even were sent to Uruguay in South America.

"All of these items are indicative of the fact that business actualities in any one industry are part and parcel of the sum total of the economic structure which may be nationwide or even world-wide in its fundamental features.

"For instance, not only has gasoline consumption for 1932 been considerably lower month by month than for 1931, but the summer of 1932 failed to register the usual seasonal expansion.

"Crude oil prices have been fairly well stabilized during the past 12 months and especially so during the past eight months—until the recent price drop which will put them in line with the beginning of 1932.

Clemency Record May Be Equalled

AUSTIN (UP)—On the basis of the first 23 months of his administration, Gov. Ross S. Sterling appears likely to equal, or at least nearly equal, the highly publicized clemency record of former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson before his term expires.

Up to Dec. 22, Governor Sterling has issued 2,106 acts of clemency. Included therein were 2,085 general pardons and only 21 pardons.

In her first administration, Mrs. Ferguson granted 2,343 acts of clemency. Her list varied from Sterling's, however, in that only 215 of her proclamations were general pardons whereas 1,328 were full pardons and 800 conditional pardons.

Authorities point out that a general parole generally has the same effect as a pardon except it leaves the government with a "string" on the released prisoner.

Lloyd George Gets American Pension

LONDON (UP)—David Lloyd George, Britain's "Grand Old Man" of the war, receives a pension of $10,000 yearly from the U. S. according to "Everyman."

Lloyd George and John Burns, it is claimed, are Carnegie political pensioners.

When Andrew Carnegie became a British radical and controlled several Radical newspapers, he is said to have endowed four Radicals. Two of them are Lloyd George and John Burns. The other two were the late Lord Morley and the late Thomas Butt, who was a member of parliament. The pension granted to "L. G." as the wartime prime minister of Britain is sometimes called, was $10,000. Burns receives $5,000 annually.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and respiratory tissues, inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Water Levels Are Four Feet Higher

ARTESIA, N. M.—Water levels in the Artesian basin of the Pecos valley continue to hold up and average four feet higher at this time than they did at the corresponding time in 1931. G. G. Smith, Artesian well supervisor, stated at Roswell after completing the testing of a number of observation wells in the basin.

These observations have recently been taken in an effort to determine the water level elevations as compared with the winter high of 1931. Smith said that the average of the rise in the water levels for all the wells observed in Chaves county records show the water to be 4.1 higher than in 1931 and Eddy county levels are now 4.12 feet higher than in 1931.

Areas where the plugging of abandoned and leaky Artesian wells has been most active show a water level elevation this winter of 10 feet higher than last winter. High water levels were reached in Eddy county during the latter part of November, the well supervisor said. This fact was demonstrated by the automatic water stage recorder, located five miles south of Artesia, the water levels in November being about two feet higher than recent tests by Smith showed.

Smith said from these observations he was convinced the Artesian head high in Eddy county during the latter part of November reached an average of more than six feet higher for 1932 than at any time during 1931.

Plugging of leaky Artesian wells in the Dexter and Greenfield districts has been most active, the state engineer having plugged four wells in this vicinity.

The Hagerman and Lake Arthur districts to the Chaves and Eddy county line show an average water level elevation of 2.65 feet higher for 1932 than 1931. Wells in this vicinity average one to five feet higher this year than last. In the Colquhoun district wells show an average of 5.98 feet higher this year than last. This district also has a number of wells which show as much as ten feet higher than the year previous.

That part of the Artesian water basin from Artesia south to Dayton shows an average of about 7 feet higher in the wells this year than last. There are a number of wells south and east of Artesia in the heavy flow zone which are 10 feet higher this year than in 1931.

Smith said that as a result of the recent moisture, irrigation would be curtailed for several days and that the Artesian head would continue to rise in all parts of the valley. He plans to begin immediately inspecting all wells in the valley and to enforce that part of the Artesian well law pertaining to allowing an Artesian well to flow uncontrolled.

Smith said with the proper cooperation from Artesian well owners and the continued plugging of leaky and abandoned wells in the valley by the state engineer and the Pecos Valley Artesian Water Conservancy district there was no doubt but that the water levels would continue to increase year by year.

NOT EVEN COUNTERFEIT HOUSTON.—You can bet your last dollar that Miss Jennie Loyacana will give all big bills a careful examination hereafter. The other day Miss Loyacana was selling ties at the exposition at Sam Houston hall. A man bought six. He gave her a $10 bill and she gave him $8 in change. The next morning she found that he had given her an advertisement that looked like a bill. The police are looking for the swindler.

Shaw High-Hats Us On World Trip and Will Not Visit Us

LONDON.—A cat may look at a king. At least there is a proverb that says so.
But America, the cat which has been the special target for George Shaw's verbal brickbats for 30 years, won't get even a look at the man she has helped crown king of the literary world.
George Bernard Shaw (now you know him) on his way around the world on a cruise. But that world won't include America. The Empress of Britain will halt momentarily in the Antipodes before going through the Panama Canal, and probably will also call at New York. But Ireland's Shaw does not plan to land in America.
"I may meet a few friends and do a little broadcasting. I have made no arrangements. But every conceivable person in America seems to be making arrangements about me. This will mean nothing to me, nor to them. Really, I shall just look in at America—and look out again."

Chose Policy Deliberately

Shaw, as a satiric young playwright of the 90's and the first two decades of this century, shocked and thrilled two continents with his scathing reform lectures painlessly delivered through the medium of brilliant plays. Appreciating to the full the value of the old American slogan that "it pays to advertise," Shaw has always oscillated between pulling the British lion's tail and angling America by turns. Americans, especially, loved it, though it has become less fun recently, now that we are panning America ourselves.

Shaw's characteristic shrewdness early pounced upon that fact that nothing could make him more talked about in America than to attack the United States and its people. He himself put his program in distinct words:
"I myself have been particularly careful never to say a civil word of the United States. I have scoffed at their inhabitants as a nation of villagers. I have defined the 100 per cent American as 99 per cent idiot. And they just adore me and will go on adoring me."

"Liberty" Too Irric

On another occasion explaining why he did not go to the United States, he said:
"I do not want to see the Statue of Liberty. I am a master of comic irony. But even my appetite for irony does not go as far as that."
In May, 1928, he called upon Adolphe Menjou, the film star, who told Shaw he ought really to visit the United States. The folks would be crazy about him. To which Shaw blandly replied:
"I am getting too old for that; besides there is no point in it. An American goes to England and then come straight to see me."

One of the oddities about George is that he does not seem to be able to keep off the topic of prohibition for long. If he talks about Russia he contrasts it with America.

In Oct. 1931, knowing that he was a rabid dry, the World Prohibition federation asked him to speak to them at Caxton Hall in London. To the astonishment of the dries, most of his speech was taken up with an expose of what he called the evils of prohibition in the United States. He said the bootleggers had discovered they had the police and the courts corrupted and intimidated, and ran them down.

G. B. S.'s Favorite Topic

Then he went on to contrast the United States with Soviet Russia, where he said the Bolshevs would not give bootleggers or gangsters ten minutes.
The amusing postscript to all of this anti-Americanism is that Shaw is always glad to write for American newspapers and magazines at so much per "write", is always eager for the American production of his plays, has made more money from American royalties than from any other source; has made of Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina his chief biographer; and in London his favorite hostess is the Virginia-born Lady Astor, who always exhibits Shaw at her garden parties as her "lame lion."
Probably the United States will get greatly excited," said Shaw before sailing, "but there is nothing for them to get excited about. I am going on a cruise and part of the time we shall be in the neighborhood of the United States. When we are, I may land, but only for a few minutes. But there is no need for America's eager millions to come racing to the favored spots. They might upset the continent, and all to no purpose."
From America one hears a faint echo of the last words of that Shavian shot—"all to no purpose."

Cohan Returns to Screen at Ritz

One of America's best-known stage personalities makes his talking picture debut in "The Phantom President," comedy drama which comes to the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday with preview showing Saturday night.
He is George M. Cohan, known to both Broadway and the "road" as one of the stage's most prolific actors, playwrights, producers, and song writers. Claudette Colbert and Jimmy Durante are also featured in the cast.
Though it is his first talking picture, and his first venture into Hollywood, "The Phantom President" is not Cohan's first movie. Back in 1915, when films were still a more-or-less crude proposition, he made several in a New York studio. During a career extending back more than three decades Cohan has personally written and produced 40 plays, and collaborated in writing and acting ten others. His musical efforts have kept pace. "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and "Give My Regards to Broadway," written by him for a show of his own back in

MASK OF FU MANCHU COMING FRIDAY AND SATURDAY TO THE YUCCA HOUSE

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By GORDON SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, (UP)—A jury is more important than a trial judge, says District Judge Carl Runge of Mason.
"A judge," he said, "is just a sort of an umpire. He sits up here on the bench and calls balls and strikes on the lawyers. If he guesses wrong, they can appeal to a higher court."
"You jurors, however, determine what the facts are. When you decide, that is final as to the facts. There is no appeal from your findings."
Judge Runge used the term "guess" only in an illustrative way. A judge takes pride in deciding right, he pointed out. It is a blow to his pride to be reversed.

Personally, he takes no unnecessary chances of such a blow. When his court here recessed, he spent much time in the supreme court library studying.
How intricate law points can be was illustrated here the same week in another case.
One district judge became annoyed because a newspaper referred to a "temporary injunction" issued out of his court.
He pointed out that it was not an injunction but a restraining order.

The distinction seems to be, that a restraining order is effective only for a time certain when a hearing is to be held. The injunction is effective indefinitely until it is set aside. An appeal can be taken from a temporary injunction. None can be taken from a restraining order.

A laughable incident occurred in the recent trial of former Governor James E. Ferguson's application for an injunction against the state highway commission.

Attorney General James V. Alford, an Attorney General's former member of the commission to assist the supreme court argued back and forth over admissibility of testimony about an item.
They both discovered that it had been admitted as a fact in the case, the day before.

John N. Thomas of Tahoka, who will represent an area larger than some states in the 43rd Texas legislature, has been on the plains 26 years. His district comprises Lubbock, Lynn, Hockley, Dawson, Yoakum, Gaines, Terry, Cochran and Crosby counties. He is for an elective state highway commission.

"I believe anybody with the responsibility of spending $50,000,000 should be accountable to the people," Thomas says.
He is a booster for Texas Tech and for education in general and does not believe the heads of state schools ought to have to devote time that might be spent in their school work, in working for adequate appropriations by the legislature.

Thomas, a Georgian, spent most of his boyhood in Alabama. He came to Texas when he was 22 years old and moved to Lynn county in 1905, going to "what is now Tahoka."

Harold Kayton of San Antonio, coming back for his fifth consecutive term in the state legislature, still believes in Santa Claus and government of the people by the people, for the people. The depression, he says, has given the people, for the people.

1904, were his first hits.

"Over There," to which American troops marched off to France in 1917 and 1918, was perhaps his greatest.
Making his talking debut in "The Phantom President," Cohan plays two roles. His first is as a banker who is qualified for the presidency in every respect but one—he hasn't the personality to get votes. His second is as the banker's "double," a medicine-show barker fairly oozing personality, who is hired to impersonate the banker and get him votes. A dramatic but amusing climax ultimately reveals the situation to the public.
Miss Colbert is cast as the daughter of an ex-President, object of adoration of both Cohan's. Durante, with his "schmozzle," is the medicine show barker's pal.

Farm Taxes Discriminate

By HORACE BOWKNER
(President, American Agricultural Chemical Company)

NEW YORK, (UP).—Taxes on farm property absorb nearly 12 per cent of the gross farm income of the United States as compared with only four per cent before the war. This means a farmer must give three times as many bushels of corn, wheat or other products for the support of the government than he did in the years before the war.

In paying 12 per cent of his income in taxes, the farmer bears a very unjust portion of the taxes of the United States. The farmer is the one class in our population who is bearing all the brunt of the depression. Not only does he pay a substantial part of his income in direct taxes, but he also pays the many indirect taxes the same as do the other elements of our population.

Farm products are selling at pre-war prices, yet the prices the farmer receives for his products are considerably in excess of the pre-war level. In other words, his dollar is worth much less than it was in the days of the general public. There is no question but that the general tax system now in effect discriminates against the farmer, who constitutes one of the most important parts of our population. The system was unjust even before and after the war; now under the extraordinary economic conditions prevailing in the United States, the tax system is unbearable and intolerable to the farmer.

He must be relieved of this discrimination, which can be accomplished only by revision of methods of state and local taxation. Such tax revision will require substitute taxes—income, sales, excise—in lieu of the excessive general property levies now imposed. This shifting of the burden will naturally evoke opposition, notwithstanding its fairness. However, such revision of state and local taxes cannot be expected to bear the tax burden of the country forever.

ernments for the purpose of developing any new ports or creating any new inland waterways for purposes of commercial navigation. "It being our belief that the development of additional ports and waterways will serve only to complicate the present transportation situation for which this development will benefit the interests only of those communities which happen to be located on or near such waterways. Resolutions also deplored the fact that our national government is spending large sums of money on surveys and investigations looking to possible development of additional navigation facilities."

Indian Princess To Sing Tonight

An Indian Princess who was named in tribal ceremony of the Sioux "Princess White Cloud" will dress in beautiful ritual robes and sing this evening before beautiful stage drops on the stage of the Yucca theatre.
Her rich, full voice has been heard in many cities of the country and critics have given her uniform praise, writing of her grace while singing before the drop wings and the Red Man's path. All the beautiful qualities of her voice succeeds to her voice and an instrumental novelty she introduces never fails to please.
Princess White Cloud doffs the beautiful habiliments of her tribe in her last appearance and wears an evening dress of the race that was destined to oust her people from their favorite hunting grounds.

"LET ROOSEVELT DO IT" SEEMS TO BE ATTITUDE OF LAME DUCK CONTINGENT

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Among all the forecasts we Washington correspondents are making for 1933, there is only one sure bet.
Everything gets tossed into the lap of Uncle Frank Roosevelt.

Uncle Frank is not merely receptive; he is eager for it—eager for the most gosh-awful accumulation of aggravated, intensified, vitalized and toughened assortment of problems that ever confronted a newly inaugurated president.

We were given to understand that Uncle Frank would be pleased no end if this lame duck session of congress would provide repeal of the 18th amendment, legalization of beer—with a tax on it—farm relief, through some such scheme as the domestic allotment plan, and a certain amount of budget-balancing.
It now appears that Uncle Frank was rather optimistic—that he had much more faith in congress than has ever been justified in its past performances or is now being justified in its current performances. It now appears that we are not going to get any of these things, which means that they will be passed on to the special session of the 73rd congress which Uncle Frank will be calling some time after the fourth of March.

A repeal resolution seems hopeless since the defeat in the House. Beer, if it should pass the Senate, would almost surely be vetoed by President Hoover. The farm relief prospects are poor, what with the probability of these things, which calling himself, along with such other issues as he was sure would have to be reserved for him in any event.

The purposes of the Interior Protective and Development association are vague and obscure," Coombes message said. "If selfish, we are opposed to it. If legitimate, it is a duplication of the West Texas chamber of commerce and weakens our strength and security. If the movement is good, why not further it through our own organization?"
"We therefore protest against this organization and call upon our member towns to stand with us in fighting our battles for West Texas interests within our own well-organized regional chamber of commerce without outside interference."

Widow of Baker Named Defendant

EDINBURG, (UP)—Mrs. Lena S. Baker, widow of the late A. Y. Baker, known as the "millionaire sheriff" of Hidalgo county, is named in a suit on file here.

The action is brought by the Edinburg consolidated independent school district in the 92nd district court. It is the third suit of a series seeking recovery of part of an alleged shortage of $946,000 in the funds of the school district.

Purpose of the suit is to collect $65,000 or title to the Baker home in the country club estates near Edinburg.

The suit alleges the money, deposited in 1927 in the old Edinburg State Bank & Trust Company was used in construction of the Baker home and in improvement of the block on which it is located. The bank was the depository for school district funds at the time of the alleged misapplication.

There are also such matters as tariff reform, government reorganization, economy—featuring the democratic promise of a 25 per cent cut in federal expenses, railroad legislation, the St. Lawrence waterway and the five-day week in government service which are going over into the Roosevelt administration.

But there is no question that Uncle Frank, regardless of how fervently he hoped that some of his favorite measures would be enacted at this session, is preparing for one of the snappiest, most active and most effective sessions of Congress this country has ever seen.

His agents and investigators now operating in Washington, officially and voluntarily, are so thick that you can hardly turn around without bumping into one. By March he should be as thoroughly informed on all phases and aspects of the government as any gent who ever stepped into the White House.

His confidence in being able to force early action on that great variety of problems demanding solution may be well justified. After all, he will command the largest congressional majorities which were ever elected with any new president and he probably will be in a perfectly grand position to dictate legislation.

The whole vast machinery of procedure, about to operate with unprecedented velocity, will be at his disposal. And behind him is an unequalled popular majority of the votes.

NAVY FIGHTER LANDS

administrator of the Baker estate were decided in favor of the defendants. Attorneys for the school district in filing application for a new trial, declared information on which the suit was based was obtained in recent audits, that it eliminated exemption from suit under the statute of limitations.
