STEVENSON TO LIKELY BECOME HOUSE SPEAKER

New Members Swing Control; Senate Is Placing

BULLETIN

AUSTIN—Coke Stevenson was elected speaker of the house and Senator Woodul president pro tem of the senate.

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (UP)—Coke Stevenson was favored for speaker of the house as the fight for that place started with the opening at noon of the legislature. A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs was his strongest opponent.

Ferguson supporters were backing Stevenson, who Johnson was "the choice" of Sterling. New members of the legislature will control the decision, with 84 votes.

Senate places were being decided at a caucus this morning, while the house will vote on its positions. Senator Walter Woodul's forces were confident they would seat him as president pro tem of the senate. Senator Woodul called the senate to order in the absence of Lieutenant Governor Witt, who is ill in Walter Reed hospital in Washington.

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (UP)—It was unofficially announced today that Jack Flynn of Houston will be the new state labor commissioner. The friends of W. B. Arnold of San Antonio conceded the appointment of Flynn.

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (UP)—The Ferguson will not have the customary noon meal awaiting their arrival at the mansion Jan. 17. Servants asked permission of Mrs. Sterling to leave the mansion the day before. She indicated that the request would be granted.

Colorado Springs, Col. (UP)—Johnny Jones wants the world to know he was innocent of any or all parts of the free-for-all scrap at the Alhambra club—a negro social organization.

The free-for-all waxed so hot the law took a hand. In court, Johnny appeared before the judge and asked him to tell his story of the affair.

"Yoh honah," answered Johnny. "An 'don' know nothin'. An 'dida' do nothin'. An 'dida' hurt nobody. An 'dida' hear nothin' and An 'dida' mean no harm." The judge took the statement under advisement.

Springfield, Ill. (UP)—A toothpick is the basis for a suit pending before the Illinois Supreme court. The suit was brought by S. J. Porter of Galesburg, against the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, of Peoria, Ill.

Porter was riding on an Illinois Traction System passenger car en route to Peoria from Springfield when the accident occurred. He was attempting to remove a berry seed from a tooth with a toothpick when the car gave a sudden jolt. The jolt caused bundles placed over Porter's head by another passenger to fall from the rack and strike him on the head.

As a result the toothpick was jammed deeply into Porter's gum. The piercing of the gum was followed by infection which led to the removal of all of his lower teeth. The case was referred to the Illinois Industrial Commission for review and the commission later denied compensation.

Porter appealed to the Peoria county circuit court, however, which remanded the case to the commission. The Burroughs company, then appealed the lower court's decision to the supreme court.

ST. LOUIS. (UP)—Thomas McMunn, 73-year-old bachelor who routed two robbers in a fist fight, won't even consider two marriage proposals he received as a result of his clash with the robbers.

"I'm not afraid of robbers," he said, "but I know a wife would heap me. McMunn, who weighs 150 pounds, knocked down both the robbers with his fists.

Two women who wrote they saw his picture in the papers said they were looking for a brave husband. McMunn threw both letters in the stove, answering neither.

Choice this lot $1.00

DURING the past two years, there has been a great temptation to buy "PRICE."

During this time the whole country has been flooded with merchandise of questionable value. Merchandise produced wholly to meet the PRICE demand—merchandise a great part of which has very little value regardless of how cheap it has been produced or sold.

This store has consistently refused to buy any merchandise on PRICE alone.

This store has and will continue to refuse to handle any merchandise that we cannot recommend to the customer and stand behind.

Eighty-five per cent of our dry goods comes from Marshall Field & Co. This in itself is a recommendation for there is no higher standard of quality.

When we sell "FIELD QUALITY" merchandise we know that the customer will find satisfaction in the purchase.

In some instances it may be a few cents more in price but in the long run it is dollars more in value and satisfaction.

The merchandise offered you during this January Clearance Sale is GOOD MERCHANDISE and we believe you will find it priced lower than you would ordinarily pay for questionable quality.

As always, this store says, "Anything you buy at this store during this sale must be a bargain, must be satisfactory and worth the price you paid, or we want it back." Your money will be refunded cheerfully and promptly.

You do not take any chances on what you buy here and I am proud of the fact that people expect to buy BETTER MERCHANDISE at this store.

I believe that 1933 is going to be a better year than the one behind us and this store is going to back up that confidence in a bigger and better selection of GOOD MERCHANDISE, sold as reasonable as good merchandise can be had from any source.

This store is going to put forth a sincere effort to serve you better in 1933.

"JUST AS THE DEVIL C'OMMANDS"

Serialized by Arrangement with Columbia Pictures

WHAT HAS HAPPENED Robert Waldo, cousin and lawyer to John Duncan, and Dr. David Graham, Duncan's protegee, are both in love with Jane Chase, nurse to the helpless invalid, Duncan. Waldo sees that his chances for marrying Jane while David is around are naught. He persuaded Duncan to change his will so that everything will be left to David. Duncan, knowing that death with him is a matter of weeks, pleads with David to kill him mercifully, but the young doctor refuses. Waldo murders the old man the same day the new will is drafted in David's favor. Waldo thinks he has committed the perfect crime, but he does not know that he has been watched, until after David is convicted and sentenced to prison. Then, Morgan, who saw the deed, blackmails him. Waldo, trying to rid himself of the blackmailer, brings to light a suicide note written by Duncan, and David is freed. Shortly afterward, Morgan is run down by Waldo's car in what seems to be an accident. Before he dies, Morgan tells all. Unaware of what Morgan has revealed, Waldo, pleading illness, asks David to come to his house to attend him.

Upstairs, Waldo sat at the chess table where he had played so many games with Duncan. He was watching the figures in neat arrangement upon the board. A ring at the doorbell aroused him from his absorption. He looked up quickly with a puzzled, worried frown upon his face. He arose and went to the front door, where he paused. The sound of the bell came again, insistently, as though the person ringing it were in a panic. Waldo opened the door and Jane entered. "Where's David?" she asked. Waldo pretended surprise. "David?" She went past him into the living room, looked around and then turned to the lawyer as he entered. "Where is he?" "What makes you think he's here?" "I had an appointment with him at four o'clock at his hotel, and when I got there I found a note saying that you'd called him here." "True, I was sick. But there was nothing he could do for me, so he left. Perhaps you can help me." He looked at her for a moment, then walked over to a corner of the room where he pressed a button in the wall. Jane looked quickly up and an expression of amazement came into her face when she beheld a life-size picture of painting of herself come into view. "Do you remember the picture of yourself that you gave Mr. Duncan, the one he had framed? It used to stand on the table by my couch; and one day it disappeared. I stole it. I've kept it ever since. It's on the desk in my office now—and I had this oil painting made from it. I've spent, I don't know how many hours, before this picture—at night when I was alone. It used to think that perhaps the wish in my heart would effect a miracle—change oil and paint into flesh and blood—and that you'd be here with me in my loneliness." He turned to confront her. "I'm the honestest man in the world."

WHY DID ANOTHER REORGANIZATION PLAN GO BLOOEY?

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Another ambitious program for government reorganization has gone bloeey.

Its failure may be traced to the usual reasons—and a few new ones.

President Hoover proposed the plan in December. It shunted or re-grouped 58 bureaus or other federal agencies, many of them inconsequential. One plan grew steadily as the plan was studied, until at length Chairman John J. Cochran of the house expenditures committee decided:

"Nobody appears to favor the consolidations as outlined."

So Cochran introduced a resolution certain to pass, to disapprove the Hoover program, which with-out disapproval would have taken effect in 60 days after presentation.

Neither you nor I know whether the effect of this action is good or bad for the many intricacies, merits and demerits in any such large scale plan are too much for one person to assimilate and assay.

It's easy to explain why the program fails. Here are the general reasons paralleling those which have killed ambitious reorganization schemes in the past.

The major changes each inspired a certain amount of opposition while the numerous minor shiftings were those about which nobody cared.

The program succumbed beneath the combined pressure of all elements opposed to individual items. A half dozen congressmen protesting a single reallocation might get nowhere, but when nearly everyone is found yelling at one phase or another a reorganization measure dies.

Government employees scurried to members of congress, fearing for their jobs, for the future status or for the best interests and efficiency of their own bureaus.

When the cabinet members' departure from office gave them no inspiration to oppose such rejections—as they usually do—or to support the president vigorously, took little more than lobbying.

But men and women who have spent their lives thus far in certain federal agencies—and hope to spend the rest of them there—were quick on the job.

There were also these reasons, which helped doom the Hoover program.

1. Important folks connected with the administration either opposed it or saw no reason why it shouldn't die. Col. J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget, said he thought reorganization should be left to the next administration.

2. Congress is looking for quick, painless possibilities of economy. Hoover couldn't expect to get it, if any, economies his plan would provide. Opponents even asserted it would increase government costs along with its other disadvantages.

3. The Roosevelt administration is imminent. Democratic house leaders preferred to let their administration receive any credit that may be forthcoming from successful reorganization and didn't care to do any wholesale rejiggering which would take effect during the confusing period that attends a change of party control and administration.

President-elect Roosevelt is expected to evolve a reorganization plan, for which his scouts here are now gathering facts and figures.

It is said that he seeks blanket authority and expects an overwhelmingly democratic congress to give him all the power he wants. East of the river, however, the tendency of congress to reserve its powers to itself clouds his chances of success, but a drastic reorganization program tied up with a genuine economy program probably could be popularized.

Modern Art Has Laughs

DETROIT (UP)—Modern art is full of laughter because the modern artist laughs at life. Sackelicht Hartman, German painter, painter, himself a modern painter, believes.

"The art of today is full of laughter," he said in a recent interview. "It was before. There was no laughter in Michael Angelo or in Leonardo da Vinci—a faint smile perhaps, but no laughter."

And the reason that laughter is the moving force of modern painting, Hartman said, is because the artist is baffled by the problems of life. The artist is always ahead of the game, he asserted, because he feels the trends of the future and expresses them before they become mass ideas.

That is why art was beginning to get jumpy way back in 1900," he explained. "That was 14 years before the war. The artists of the world are sensitive. They felt the great unrest that was shaking the world. They feel it still, and are groping for the next thing."

Hartman, author of 17 books on art and allied subjects, is now completing his most important work, his "Aesthetic Verities," on which he already has expended five years of labor.

Expresses Ideas on Wrecked Marriages

FORT WORTH.—The main cause of marriage failures is "this business of not being grown up emotionally."

This is the opinion, at least, of Mrs. Helen M. Morgan, expressed in a Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. open forum at Texas Christian University.

Mrs. Morgan is one of the outstanding leaders of the associations in the Southwest.

"Live is not affection just for the person," Mrs. Morgan explained. "It is to love many things together. When you're in love with someone, you're proud of being with them, and you do not get bored. Persons in love usually have the same social background and the same philosophy of life."

Mrs. Morgan disapproved of long engagements but approved of long courtships.

Extended courtships are best because they tend to teach couples to do things together. Most divorces today are among those couples that had a "whirlwind courtship."

Each person should determine the financial status he or she requires before marriage is entered into, Mrs. Morgan advised T. C. U. students.

"It is too bad," she commented, "when a $25 a week man falls in love with an $85 a week girl."

Motherhood Is Its Career, Says This Distinguished One

WOOSTER, O.—"Motherhood is its own career. None is superior to it. It is woman's greatest privilege, responsibility and challenge."

These are the words of Mrs. Otella Compton, 74, Distinguished Mother. This is her comment to women who seek to mix career and motherhood, to those who choose a career other than motherhood.

Mrs. Compton is the proud holder of an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

The degree was not awarded to her because she was learned in the usual way. She was a law student at the university building fund. She got it because she is the mother of three distinguished sons and a splendid daughter, she got it because one college at least believed that a distinguished career as a mother merited its honors.

It was a far step taken by Western Reserve University, headed by President Ralph K. Hickok, when it said to a woman: "You have given useful children to the nation. We want to honor you for it."

Mrs. Compton is the wife of Prof. Elias Compton, for 40 years, and more a member of the faculty of Wooster College, and for several years its dean. From the little mid-western college she sent into the world three sons and a daughter. And the years of careful, sympathetic training bore fruit.

Karl H. Compton was for a long time professor of physics at Princeton, and now for a number of years has been president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, by many considered the premier scientific school of the country.

Arthur H. Compton, the second son, became professor of physics at the University of Chicago, and a few years ago won the Nobel prize in physics, which he shares with Dr. Millikan of Chicago on the nature of cosmic rays was the outstanding feature of the recent meeting of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science.

The third son, Wilson Compton, became an outstanding lawyer and economist in Washington, D. C. The fourth son, Charles H. Rice of Ewing College, Allshabad, India.

Surely any mother might be proud of such a record. But too often the mothers of such distinguished sons of such mothers goes unrecognized in the world at large.

Mrs. Compton's did not. She happens to be a graduate of Wooster College, Ohio. It was 46 years ago that she was a student there, in days when women students in college were not so common as they are today.

She said she went to work my way through college since my family fortunes were swept away in the inflation period following the Civil war. She recalls that she had to have or to much of a sacrifice to achieve the kind of children I wanted to send out into the world."

Western College felt such service should be recognized. And this winter it conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Mrs. Compton. "To mark its pride in Mrs. Compton's rich achievements," the college said, "a friend of youth, a servant of the church."

The address of the day was delivered by Arthur Compton, and her family lined with her alma mater in honoring a mother.

Mrs. Compton feels that rearing splendid children is a job in itself. "I didn't have time for many things outside the home when they were little," she says. "I was unwilling to leave them to nurses. I feel that the same rule holds good today. We can't live our children's lives, but we must be ever near to guide. We must constantly discipline ourselves if we are to train children aright."

Fines May Halt Hunting Habit

MADISON (UP)—Assessment of nominal fines against two hunters was expected by insurance department officials today to break what they termed a "habit" of 50-year standing.

For nearly half a century farmers near the huge Horicon marsh set fire to brush to drive game into traps for shooting. The game, Kennedy, fire marshal, Layers of peat underlying the once famous hunting grounds were ignited as a result, and burned for many months.

Little property was endangered, but choking fumes have drifted over large areas, as much as 100 miles away, causing many complaints.

The marsh, once drained by a reedy company, was flooded by an emergency order intended to extinguish the long-burning peat fires. The public service commission later ordered the dam gates lowered, and the conservation commission subsequently was unable to account for a lightening of the dam gates.

Water department employees bickered over responsibility for the water level in the marsh, Kennedy expected conviction of two hunters for invading the game refuge to discourage further hunting and prevent the supposedly incendiary fires.

Version of Pony Express Staged

BIG SPRING.—Postmaster H. I. Bohannon staged a 1933 version of a ride of the Pony Express Saturday when a railway mail clerk failed to put off first class mail and registered mail from Texas and Pacific train No. 7, which arrived at 7:10 a. m.

The postmaster got in touch with E. E. Pistole, division superintendent of the T. & P., who notified the train crew. Bohannon went to Midland and got the mail returning here in time for it to be distributed in the morning. Otherwise the banks and other concerns which daily receive valuable registered mail delivery would have had to wait until Monday for delivery.

RICE PROFESSOR SCOFFS AT IDEAS INSTILLED BY TECHNOCRATIC SCHOOL

HOUSTON. (UP)—Technocracy's idea that humans and human desires can be standardized is "communist" and for that reason the technocrats have gone beyond their sphere in their conclusions, in the opinion of Lee M. Sharrar, attorney and former instructor of economics at Rice Institute.

"The facts discovered by the technocrats are undoubtedly valuable," said Sharrar, "but when they try to work out a mathematical formula for civilization they go wrong because you cannot ignore the human equation as they have done."

Technocracy, according to the claims of its exponents, has the ability to reorganize America on a basis of prosperity, employment and increased leisure, achieving those ends by revolutionary methods.

A 16-hour working week, abolition of debt and a high standard of living are some of the results technocrats claim they can accomplish.

Sharrar believes the chief value of technocracy so far has been that it has aroused people to an interest in national planning.

"In so far as articles on the subject show the development technocracy has made in the study of economics, they are interesting and valuable," he said, "but who is responsible for those far-flung conceptions they draw? I believe the scientists have been saying for ten years it has gone too far."

"I should very much appreciate knowing to what extent the engineers engaged in this valuable work are being designed, tested and permitted the spokesman to interpret their scientific data."

Sharrar found several points to commend in technocracy.

"That any group of scientific men would study and furnish factual basis for things some prominent thinkers have been saying for ten years is a great accomplishment," he said.

"One of the chief virtues of the studies has been that they indicate to me what has always been a fallacy of economic theory. That when a mechanical development threw men out of employment, the cheapening of the product by mechanical improvement immediately effected savings and increased purchases and created a demand for the services of the displaced workers in other fields."

"I think technocracy has pointed out and is going to point out even more clearly than they indicate that the displaced workers do not inevitably find jobs."

The four-hour day and the four-day week are desired and are certainly commendable, Sharrar believes, but technocracy's plan to centralize manufacture and turn out in tremendous quantities all manufacturing products is a fallacy.

"The engineers' idea that people will be satisfied with stereotyped houses and other standardized things is equally fallacious," Sharrar also found fault with the technocrats' plan to substitute "energy certificates" for money as a medium of exchange.

"Vanity Street" Is Vivid Ritz Drama

Columbia continues foremost among the studios for dipping into today's hardy-dry headlines for the timely drama, or which it develops its pictures.

Another example is "Vanity Street," at the Ritz theatre today. This is a story that catches vividly and disturbingly an undercurrent of the modern day girl—many of whom are broke, homeless, and lonely.

With Charles Bickford and Helen Chandler in the leading roles of this dramatic film, Columbia has reached down under the cloak of topology for a poignant and realistic picture that is not so spectacular as it overshadows the dramatic plot that Gertrude Purcell has written into the script from the story by Frank Cavett and Edward Roberts, two of Columbia's younger writers.

Charles Bickford will win many new admirers. Mayo Methot, Raymond Hatton, Arthur Hoyt, and the rest are all admirably cast. Nick Grinde, who made "This Modern Age" a "Gone With the Wind" of the "Gone With the Wind" type, handled the direction, and has treated the story with a delicacy and subtlety that completely overcomes the heart-complaining that runs through it. A thoroughly worthwhile picture.

Clara Grows up, Yucca Fans Find

Film fans who have expectantly awaited Clara Bow's new picture were amply rewarded when "Call Her Savage" first of the flame-haired star's productions for Fox, opened at the Yucca theatre this week.

She is far lovelier than ever, more poised, dignified, and has a certain confidence which should re-establish her as the one really great star of the screen.

The story is a stormy-plotted romantic drama affording her every opportunity for a full display of her emotional ability, from the headstrong willfulness of her youth to the sublime tenderness of mother love through flirtatious courtship days, a hasty and repented marriage, and the reckless, carefree escapades thereafter. Clara leads three men a merry chase in the picture.

They are Gilbert Roland, her half-breed Indian sweetheart who wins her in the end, Monroe Owsley, her worthless husband, and Anthony Jovitti, her weak-willed suitor following her separation.

Others prominent in the supporting cast were Estelle Taylor, as her mother; Willard Robertson, as her stern father; and Weldon Heyburn by Edwin Burke from Tiffany Thayer's novel of that name and was directed by John Francis Dillon.

Prohibition Agents Uncover Huge Still

HELENA, Mont. (UP)—Prohibition agents watched an unusual number of "prospectors" file in and out of the trail to the Hellgate Creek mining district.

"Sniff, sniff," said the agents. "There may be stills in them thar hills."

There were. Investigation disclosed the largest plant for making moonshine liquor ever uncovered in the Helena district, with a 600-gallon capacity and an estimated daily output of 250 gallons. The agents confiscated 215 gallons of mash.

COSTUME CAUSES RIOT

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Robert R. Bailey, fully grown—and husky—entered a restaurant here dressed as a child. Special Deputy Sheriff Arthur Larsen, who allegedly had been imbibing, laughed and made some pointed remarks. Bailey knocked Larsen down through a glass window at police headquarters.

Bailey explained he had been at a costume party, and was released. Larsen was temporarily deprived of his star.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR MANY ECONOMIC SUITS

WASHINGTON. (UP)—The economic turmoil engulfing the nation has reached the quiet precincts of the Supreme Court. Economic questions which now are worrying Congressmen promise soon to take up the major portion of the court's deliberations.

The tidal wave of new legislation, state and national, being passed by legislatures was foreseen almost a year ago by Justice Louis D. Brandeis. His exhaustive and scholarly dissenting opinion in the Oklahoma case was a plea with his associates to face the coming problem with fortitude and above all, "an open mind."

Already the court has indicated it will go part way in meeting the new conditions. How much farther they will go is one of the questions perplexing lawmakers.

Oil Legislation The court has already approved legislation by California and Oklahoma to restrict oil production in a time of over production.

Although it recently condemned the use by Gov. Ross Sterling of Texas of his state troops to enforce his own ideas as to oil production, the court did not in that instance rule on the state oil proration law. The law recently has been changed to conform to the Oklahoma statute and in that form is likely to meet the court's approval.

Others of the court's decisions affecting the Lone Star State involving questions of growing economic importance. The most recent was the ruling upholding the state's right to impose rigid restrictions on private contract truck carriers.

Chief Purpose The chief purpose of this law was to relieve the congestion on chief traveled highways of the state. The wish to relieve the railroads and other common carriers of serious competition was also given as a reason for the legislation.

It is in this latter aspect that the ruling may prove important. For years there has been agitation to cut carriers competing with the railroads under similar regulation. The Supreme Court ruling is at least a straw showing which way the judicial breath may blow.

The cry from business for liberation of the anti-trust laws also has been heard by the court. So far it has indicated that it will continue to interpret the present law liberally and that modification if it comes will not be through judicial channels.

New Site for Radio Beacon

BIG SPRING.—Crating of electrical equipment valued at $15,000 is under way at Sweetwater, preparatory to removing the radio beacon station of the department of commerce from Sweetwater to Big Spring, according to reports received here. It is understood that the equipment will reach here this week.

The station recently was erected at Sweetwater. Orders recently were issued for removal of the station, which had not been put into operation at Sweetwater.

A building had been erected at the Sweetwater airport for the station, which had not been put into operation at Sweetwater.

The Big Spring station, it is reported, will be located a short distance west of the airport, on the prairie land, but likely will be operated by remote control from the airport. In that event it is expected a new building or an addition to the present administration building may be necessary.

The Big Spring station will be the only one between Dallas and El Paso. It will be for the purpose of directing airplanes along the airway by a radio beam.

Removal of the station from Sweetwater will result in a loss of approximately $7,000, it is said, represented by moving costs, investment in the building, power lines and other equipment. Burton-Lingo Company has the contract for crating the equipment. J. P. Dockendorf has been operator in charge at Sweetwater for the bureau of light-houses, which has supervision of such stations.

WINTER PLOTS A WICKED CRIME

THE VICTIMS: Those Motors Using Ordinary Oil that Drains Away from Heated Working Surfaces.

THE TIME: Those Cold Starting Minutes While Precious Motor Parts Must Run Dry at Warming Speed Until Oil Is Pumped from Below.

GET THE "HIDDEN QUART" * IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

CONOCO

The One Oil that Gives You Perfect Protection for Winter's Worst Days Ahead

Drip! trickle! drip! through long night hours, ordinary oil drains away. When the pump quits, ordinary oil quits, leaving the motor's parts high and dry. You touch the starter. The motor roars. The pump strains at the sluggish oil. It is only a few minutes till circulation is completed. But in the meantime, working surfaces only partly lubricated are in contact, while the motor makes three to five thousand revolutions. This causes 50% of all motor wear.

Prevent this loss. Choose not merely a quick oil, but an oil that never leaves. Choose the oil with the *hidden quart that penetrates and combines with the metal surfaces of the motor itself. In the emergency of an empty crankcase, users have driven many miles, without damage, on this *hidden quart alone. This proves that your motor need never suffer while waiting upon the pump. Don't remain in doubt. Drain and refill with the *hidden quart oil today.
