THOSE WHO SERVE

It was interesting to read the other day that the Great Western Railway of England lost a crack express train in a blizzard—lost it when the train got stuck in snow drifts on its way to London in one of the worst winter storms England has known in years.

Even more interesting, though, was the news of what the passengers on the train did when it finally got to London. The news dispatches relate that "passengers rushed forward to the locomotive and congratulated the engineer for getting them through. One woman kissed him."

This, to be sure, was no more than fair. But it is the sort of thing that seldom happens to railroad engineers, or to any other of those skilled technicians on whose devotion, endurance and ability the lives of travelers depend. It ought to happen often, but it doesn't.

Probably there is not a reader of this newspaper who has not at some time made a trip by train, by steamer, by bus or by airplane at a time when the elements were actively hostile. But is there one reader who went out of his way, after it was over, to shake the hands of the engineer—or the captain, the driver or the pilot—and thank him for getting him through safely?

We take the work those men do for granted. We climb aboard a train on a cold, nasty night when the air is filled with flying snow and the thermometer registers zero weather, and we snuggle down comfortably in a berth and drop off to sleep with nothing to disturb us, and when morning comes we stroll into the diner for a hot breakfast and wonder idly if the train is going to be a bit late.

And through it all we hardly give a thought to the man up in the cab, peering out into the blinding night and holding the train to its course in spite of the weather. Nor do we consider the other men who helped get us in safely—the signalman, the dispatchers, the track walkers and so on, who fought the storm while we slept cozily in a warm berth.

That, of course, was their job. They got paid for it. But they deserve at least a passing thought from us, whom they serve. These English passengers were exceptional in that they remembered it.

NEW GOLD SUPPLIES MAY HELP

One of the most important developments of the current year may eventually prove to have been the discovery of a new gold field in South Africa. This field is believed to have a capacity of about one-eighth of the world's present gold production, and if its yield comes up to advance estimates it could have a profound—and welcome—effect on the world business depression.

It is common knowledge that the great depression of the '90s was overcome in large part by the new supplies of gold which poured into the world market from Alaska, from South Africa and from an invention which increased the efficiency of the process of extracting gold from ore. If the same sort of thing should happen again, we might find many of our present difficulties dissolving almost without warning. A harassed and sorely-tried world hopes that this possibility may speedily become a reality.

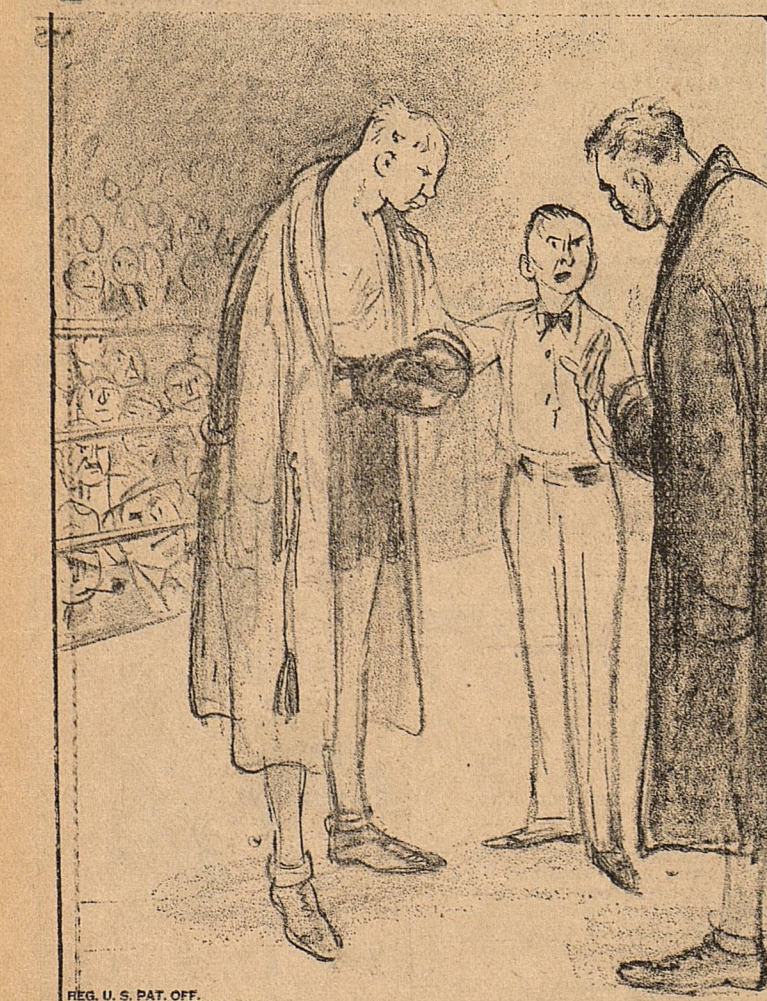

BRITAIN DECLARES FOR PEACE

It is small wonder that England's House of Commons burst out in hearty cheers when Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon declared categorically that England is not going to get involved in any far eastern war.

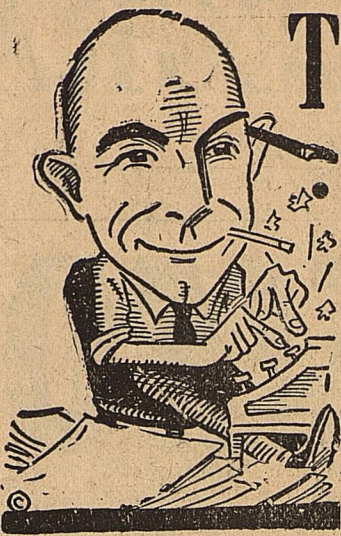

Reminded that the present crisis is the most serious since 1914, Sir John asserted: "The great difference between 1914 and now is that in no circumstances will this government authorize this country to be a party to the Sino-Japanese struggle."

The horrors of the World War are not so far away that the people of England cannot easily remember them, and their relief at this unequivocal declaration is perfectly natural. And that leads one to wonder if similar cheers would not greet a similar announcement in Washington.

A lot of people think the newspapers are putting out small editions because of the depression. That's the wrong idea. We are running fewer pages so you will have more time to work jig-saw puzzles.

One newspaper columnist throws out very little hope for his profession. He says, "We doubt that there are any newspaper people in heaven. Our doubt is based on the fact that newspaper people are always hankering to get out of a newspaper, and heaven is so nice and quiet that it is a poor field for a newspaper. Newspaper people would be restless and unhappy there."

President Roosevelt has appointed G. H. Dern as secretary of war, and the tiresome paragraphs began at once to call him Gosh Dern.

Office boys who plan to attend grandfather's funeral on the opening day of baseball in the east have been advised to forewarn the old fellow that the opening day is April 12.

Roosevelt has been given power to make drastic reductions in government expense by eliminating duplicating departments and bureaus. It is likely that he will find a lot of dead wood in some of the bureaus.

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN. (UP)—What a "government on wheels" costs has been compiled by State Comptroller George W. Shepard and Editor John T. Smith of the Texas Tax Journal.

Hold your breath. The total of traveling expenses for the last state fiscal year will astonish you. It was $773,094!

This does not include the state highway department. The report from that department was omitted because of inability to get segregated items.

Of the total, $101,692 went for rail and bus fares; $263,556 for mileage on personal cars; $109,131 for rooms; $146,931 for meals; $107,431 for gasoline and oil; $12,404 for tires and tubes, and $34,839 for auto washing and repairs.

Commenting on the amounts, Editor Smith says: "Assuming each government employee paid full three cents per mile tells many things that aren't true. He knows the present generation cannot disprove his weird statements.

Many people listening to you are merely polite, and aren't interested in your opinions.

It's easy to look a man squarely in the eye when you are talking to him over the telephone.

The man who doesn't take your advice may not be bull headed, but merely feels that your advice isn't worth much for the reason that you aren't worth much.

An old country boy was back from college and he thought he was pretty smart. Two young chickens that had been broiled or smothered or something, were placed on the table and the country boy with the freshly-acquired college learning thought he would show off. He said that he could prove there were more than two.

"This," said he, pointing to one of the chickens, "is one and this other is two, and two and one makes three."

"Very well," replied the old man, "since you figure it that way, mother will have the first one and I'll take the second and you can have the third chicken for your meal."

Stopping to pass the time of day with a Missouri farmer, a tourist learned that the farmer's father was 90 years old and was still living and working on the farm where he was born.

"Ninety years of age, eh?" asked the tourist.

"Yes, he was 90 last month." "Is his health good?"

"Tain't much now; he's been complainin' for a few months now. I don't know. Sometimes I think that farmin' don't agree with him."

On account of the fact that income tax reports must be in March 15, all social affairs in which men are involved will be called off for the night of March 14.

for his or her transportation, the traveling agents of the government, traveled 3,373,633 miles for the one year ending August 31, 1932.

"If an employee of the government owns a car and uses it in the government service, the law allows him or her five cents per mile which includes gasoline, oil, casings and repairs. According to the figures furnished us, the employees owning their own cars traveled 5,269,820 miles. Total miles traveled 8,643,453.

"On a basis of $2 per room, 51,573 rooms in hotels and rooming houses were paid for by the state last year for government employees.

"On a basis of 50 cents per meal the state paid for 273,594 meals for government employees last year."

Texas eleemosynary institutions will get $7,894,352 for operation the next two years under the appropriation bill drafted by the house appropriations committee.

This compares with $9,841,342 for the preceding two years and $9,

ENCOURAGE KIDNAPING

LONDON—Anyone who intends to rob bank messengers in this town will have to be a kidnaper as well as a robber. Bank clerks who carry cash and negotiable documents from one bank to another no longer carry them in a case attached only to their wrists. They now use a stout chain which is strapped across one shoulder and under the waistcoat of the clerk. This not only makes it impossible to snatch the case away from him, but leaves his hands free to protect himself.

Photography is about to become a lost art. Texas photographers are set in a preamble to a bill they are asking to be passed.

These solicitors are often importunate, insistent and sometimes abusive in their efforts to sell their wares to a reluctant prospect, especially if the potential customer should be a lady of the house," says the association resolution.

Clarence Osley, for many years one of the most noted editorial writers in Texas, once told a legislative committee that, though he had followed the writing trade for more than a quarter of a century and prided himself on some knowledge of words and skill in their use, he did not pretend to say what a word meant when put in a law.

So pertinent is this comment, that a large per cent of the laws now being offered in the legislature take no chance with legal construction of words. Acts proceed with a minimum of dictionary telling just what words in them mean.

Punctuation still offers a judge a chance to construe the meaning as he deems best, but he can no longer fall back on the distinction between "or" and "and." Most of the laws now use conjunctive phrases in duplicate.

Therefore a bill reads like this: "Any person who engages in the business of buying and or selling . . . Sometimes they write it 'and or' sometimes 'and-or' and sometimes 'and (or)'"

Which suggests the next lexicographer might as well include a new word "and-or."

Radio Autos Keep Criminals on Run

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah. (UP)—Radio equipped police cars have enabled Salt Lake City police department to "keep criminals moving," E. L. Mathewson, chief radio technician, said.

"This city is the crossroad of criminals from the larger centers," Mathewson explained. "But we are able to keep them moving as fast as they come because of the speed with which calls are handled by the radio cars. We have men at the scene of a crime a few minutes after it is committed. Such speed frightens criminals away."

A BIG HAUL
DETROIT—Hijacking is no longer confined to liquor. Two armed men jumped on the running board of a truck and trailer which carried 48,000 pounds of sugar. They forced Ernest Gibbs and William Brozek to stop the truck and get out. Two more men came up and they loaded Gibbs and Brozek into a car and took them to a garage in the rear of a vacant house. The two men were held under guard for five hours. When they were finally released no trace of the load of sugar remained.

Mrs. Veal Sues Mr. Hamm at B'Spring

Cermak

Likeable Lad At 16, Tony was a husky, likeable American lad, with the stamp of Bohemia in features and voice. The time clock at the mine had written his name "Tony Cermak" because that was the way it was pronounced. Tony had caught step with the surge of the new world tempo and his ambition was as boundless as his good nature.

Strenuous Life It was a strenuous life and sometimes a lonely one. It happened that Mary Horejas, a milliner then 17, was in the restaurant where young Cermak did. She was as lonely as he was. They were attracted to each other and the youth determined to make a man of himself.

Deal was consummated last week for the drilling of a location 2,316 feet from the south and west lines of section 16, block 43, township 2 south, R. & P. Ry. survey, Ector county, by L. G. Bradstreet of Fort Worth.

Home First Real Estate The first real estate he owned was the home he bought for his bride. Later as his family increased he moved to another house in the same vicinity. His wife died there after they had been married for 35 years. Mayor Cermak lived there until his last illness. His three daughters and seven grandchildren visited in the home frequently.

Three New Tests For East Howard BIG SPRING.—Three new wells will be started soon by the Magnolia Petroleum company in the East Howard county field southeast of Coahoma, according to reports received here.

Popularity Responsible Cermak's popularity brought him into politics. After testing his political wings as precinct committee man and ward organization president, he was elected to the state legislature in 1902 and was re-elected for three more terms. He served in the Chicago city council from 1909 to 1912 and was re-elected in 1919 and in 1921. He retired to become president of the Cook county board of commissioners, the post he held when elected mayor in 1931. In 1912 he was named bailiff of the municipal court.

Negroes Go Driving During Jag, Jailed

HOUSE COMES DOWN ROME.—You've all heard about the house that Jack built, but Foggia, Italy, has a house that is equally as famous. This house, a relic built over 80 years ago, was erected after an argument between an influential business man and a wine merchant. The merchant vowed to build a house on his lot to cut off the view of his enemy. But there was a law prohibiting him doing such a thing unless he got consent of authorities—and his rival ruled the authorities.

A lawyer advised the wine merchant that if he could complete the house before he could be seen erecting it and stopped, he would be within his rights. He rounded up 12 men to do the work, but his rival ordered all the wells guarded so he couldn't obtain water. Not to be outsmarted, the wine merchant used wine to mix the mortar. Although the laborers were quite drunk from the fumes of the wine they used, they completed the house in one hour.
