TURMOIL IN GERMANY

Watching the turbulence and excesses of the new government in Germany these days is a little bit like sitting by the bedside of an old friend who, burning with fever, is striking out wildly and raving desperately in a delirium. We are horrified by what we see and hear, and we wish earnestly that something could be done to stop it; but at the same time we remember that our friend is not himself and that in his sober senses he wouldn't dream of doing the things that distress us so greatly.

The things that are happening in Germany today do not make pleasant reading. The prospects for continued peace in the near future are dark. But we remember that Germany has been driven unmercifully by the Versailles treaty; a thing which, like a fever, has raised a delirium. Is there much chance for improvement until the fever itself is broken?

The man who proposed liquidating the international war debts with one cash payment appears to be something of a genius. What other three words can be thought of in these times which would so facilitate the clearing up of any little indebtedness as "one cash payment?"

A liar is a man who starts his speech this way: "When I look into this sun of upified, intelligent faces, etc." In the first place, there usually are less than 50 people present and that does not constitute a sea. In the second place, those faces do not look intelligent.

Three Song Hits in "They Call It Sin"

The inclusion of music in the 1933 manner gives added flavor to the unusual drama of the First National picture "They Call It Sin," that opens at the Ritz today for three days, with Loretta Young, George Brent and David Manners in the leading roles.

This story of a girl who is still faithful to the love of a man whom she discovers to be married, carries the audience through the maze of ultra-modern New York's night life and behind the scenes of the production of a large musical show, thus making music a vital part of the picture.

The script, called for Miss Young to play the organ and piano in this picture, and arrangements were being made by Director Thornton Freeland for someone to double for the actual playing, when it was discovered that Loretta is no mean pianist herself.

All the scenes in "They Call It Sin" in which she is at the piano or organ are actual recordings of her own playing.

Three songs, destined to become popular hits, have been specially written for this picture. The songs are "Where Are You" written by Jay Gorney; "You'll Never Lose Me" written by Juan Lossas; and "Along Came Love" by Henry Tobias.

New Texas Almanac Now on the Stands

Many new features are contained in the Texas Almanac and State Industrial Guide for 1933, which has just been issued by The Dallas News. There are more than 1,000 articles, statistical tables, illustrations and news answering between 50,000 and 100,000 questions about Texas.

A large folded sheet between the leaves of the volume carries political and railroad map on one side and highway map on the other. These maps were made especially for The Texas Almanac and are up to date and accurate. As one runs through the leaves of the volume, one comes across such interesting miscellaneous articles as Historical Landmarks of Texas, Archeological Research in Texas, Noteworthy Texas Caves, the Program for State Parks, Health Resorts and Places of Recreation, Arts and Artists, Libraries, Old Cattle Trails, Boundary Disputes, Kinds of Salt and Fresh Water Fish Found in Texas, Home Canning and Farm Terracing, and Home Tenantry.

If one wishes to know where the principal lakes of Texas are found, how to fly the Texas flag, the depth of the deepest oil well, the amount of oil and gas in Texas reserves, where the McDonald observatory is to be built, how much is collected from the gasoline tax or the amount of the pay roll of Texas railroads, he will find it in the Texas Almanac.

While many new articles have been included, the chapters of information that have become standard in the Texas Almanac are retained, completely revised and enlarged. There are more than 7,000 names of individuals in the book. Special attention is given to historical features, particularly those of importance in connection with the tentative plans for a centennial celebration. The volume this year lives up to its reputation of being the "Encyclopedia of Texas." Incidentally, a review of its contents reveals a marvelous amount of development in the Lone Star state, even during the last few years of business stagnation.

European Director Makes Yucca Film

Charts—hundreds of them—covered with diagrams and cabalistic marks and arrows and dots and brief notations, form the unusual basis of a new method of visual direction introduced to American studios by Harry Lachman, whose European made films have won him wide attention abroad.

In making "Face in the Sky," showing Wednesday and Thursday at the Yucca, for Fox, Lachman employed his system on the Spencer Tracy-Marian Nixon-Stuart Erwin vehicle with what is reported as considerable success.

A separate diagram of every individual scene and camera placement was made in advance.

There is a right way to do everything—even the wrong thing! With only a few exceptions, everyone in Constance Bennett's new RKO-Radio picture, "Our Betters," showing today at the Yucca theatre, is busily engaged in doing the wrong thing in such a gay and charming manner that it seems all right!

W. Somerset Maugham's play that shocked London and New York provided the story for "Our Betters," adapted by Jane Murnin and Harry Wagstaff Gribble and directed by George Cukor. The cast includes Anita Louise, Gilbert Roland, Charles Starrett, Phoebe Foster,

MAGNOLIA HAS CONFIDENCE IN BUSINESS SURGE

DALLAS, April 11.—As evidence of confidence in the revival of business activity, the Magnolia Petroleum company is celebrating "Founders' Month" in April with one of the most extensive sales and advertising programs in the long history of the company, it is announced by E. P. Angus, vice president and manager of sales. The "Founders' Month" observance this year is of particular significance as it marks the induction into office of D. A. Little, as president of the company, and Ralph H. Kinsloe as vice president and general manager. Mr. Little succeeds E. R. Brown who has been elected to the position of chairman of the board, and Mr. Kinsloe succeeds B. H. Stevens, elected vice chairman at a recent meeting of the board.

Thirty-five years ago J. S. Cullinan, Calvin N. Payne and Henry C. Folger laid the foundation for the Magnolia Petroleum company when they built the South's first petroleum refinery at Corsicana, Texas, where oil was first produced in the Southwest. Magnolia's three founders are celebrating this momentous day by employees of the company and by the 12,000 Magnolia stations and dealers who serve motor vehicle owners in the five Southwestern states.

In the celebration of "Founders' Month" this year Magnolia is introducing new services to motor vehicle owners and operators including "Mobilization," a scientific program of specialized lubrication developed in collaboration with motor vehicle manufacturers. This improved method takes the guess out of lubrication and assures longer life and more economical operation of motor vehicles, Mr. Angus said. While Magnolia's sales program for April is being devoted to "Mobilization," the company's advertising program takes all the time from the remarkable growth of the petroleum industry in the Southwest and its past and present contributions to the progress and prosperity of this territory. The part played by Magnolia, the pioneer producing, refining and marketing organization, is subordinated to the industry as a whole in presenting the story of petroleum.

D. A. Little, Magnolia's new president, and Ralph H. Kinsloe, vice president and general manager, are both veteran employees of the company. Mr. Little, a native of Corsicana, entered Magnolia service in that city 19 years ago and advanced steadily through the accounting and executive departments to the position of vice president and assistant general manager which he held prior to his recent promotion. Mr. Kinsloe became associated with the petroleum industry in 1904 following his graduation as mechanical engineer from Texas A. & M. college. In 1912 he joined the Magnolia Petroleum company and became assistant manager of Magnolia's Beaumont refinery in 1913 and was elected vice president in 1929 following his transfer to the home office in Dallas.

Paul Runyan Was Pro at Seventeen

Paul Runyan, the New Yorker... youngest member of the Ryder Cup team... is the same Paul Runyan who used to caddy out at Little Rock, Ark., where he was born, July 12, 1908.

Runyan never played tournament golf as an amateur... As early as 1925, when he was 17, he began teaching the methods of correcting hooks and slices. His first professional job was at the Concordia C. C., at Little Rock, in 1927... He stayed on the job until 1930.

Today Runyan gives more lessons than any other traveling professional, averaging about 1000 lessons a summer at the rate of $4 an hour.

In the spring of 1930 Runyan won his first major title, the North and South Open at Pinehurst. He followed up by a win the Jersey Open. In 1931 he won the Metropolitan P. G. A. and the Gasparilla Open in 1932.

His game rounded into top form early this spring with which he won the $10,000 Agua Caliente Open, the Miami Four Ball with Horton Smith as a partner, and the first tournament with the six-inch cups, the Florida Year-Round Open. He continued his excellent play during the spring trek north and ended his winter campaign by winning the final tournament of the season at Virginia Beach, bringing his winnings for the tour to more than $5000.

The average player making the swing around the circuit during the winter has all he can do to break even, says Paul. The expenses of a single player comes close to $1700. A married man spends $3000 or better.

This year will find Paul making his second attempt at a National title. He received his baptism of fire in the National Open at Fresh Meadows last year, where he finished twelfth. This makes him eligible for the open at the North Shore C. C., Glen View, Ill. June 9-12 without a bye through the preliminaries of qualifying.

Asked about the American team's chances to win the Ryder Cup matches, Paul said he was confident that the American team would return victorious and that one of the American contingent would win the British Open. American golf is on a higher scale than British, says Paul. American pros regard it as a job requiring training and good physical condition. One must keep early hours to compete in two or three tournaments a week.

Runyan is much in favor of the six-inch cups. The larger cup not only affects a player's game on the putting green but speeds up the game considerably. He will try to have the greens committee at his home club adopt the cup for play over the week-ends and on days when the course is crowded.

A No. 4 iron and the spoon are his favorite clubs, with the nod going to the spoon. With this club he has no equal. Runyan isn't exceptionally long off the tee and often must depend on his spoon to reach a green where others would use an iron.

When playing a spoon shot, Paul uses the over-lapping grip, with the "V" formed by the index finger and the thumb pointing over each shoulder. The ball is played a bit further back toward the right foot than for the drive, but the swing is

Tips on Taxes

LEGISLATIVE NEWS SERVICE OF THE TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION, AUSTIN

AUSTIN—Action of appropriation bills thus far carry out the announced intention of the Legislature to trim government expenses by from 25 to 30 per cent. Several of the major items have been finally acted upon by both houses and are in the Governor's hands. There is a difference of some $600,000 between the House and Senate on the eleemosynary appropriations. Ten Senate amendments the House bill to provide for construction of buildings, said to be needed to take care of the increasing number of inmates in various institutions.

This is the only serious difference between the branches of the Legislature with regard to important appropriation bills. For the most part the House schedules have been lower than the Senate, but thus far differences have been compromised without serious difficulty.

The one big question yet to be determined is the amount of support to be provided for public schools. This situation is more difficult than the other major items of expense, because schools throughout the state are suffering from the double embarrassment of reduced State support as well as reductions in the payments of local taxes.

During the past few years state support of the public schools has steadily increased. State appropriation in 1923 was $12,965,960. In 1931 this had been increased to $27,362,912. Special rural aid appropriations in 1923 were $1,000,000. In 1931 they were $2,500,000. Local tax support in the same period increased, though by a smaller ratio.

Increases in support from both local and state sources have far outrun increases in enrollment, earning power of the people and net wealth of the state. Likewise public school costs have mounted more rapidly than have the costs of other functions of state government. Illustrating this point, total property assessments in 1923 were approximately three and a half billion dollars. In 1932 they had increased to slightly less than four billions, a gain of about 14 per cent in taxable wealth, compared with increases in expenditures for public schools of considerably more than 100 per cent from the state and somewhat less than 100 per cent much the same. When the ball has found a cuppy or close lie, the ball should be played still further back toward the right foot and the swing should be like an iron shot.

from local sources. It seems fair to point out that while school enrollment was increasing about 10 per cent and taxable wealth about 14 per cent, public school costs were more than doubled. These percentages are averages for the state. The factors vary in different localities.

That it will be a difficult problem to adjust these differences goes without saying. It is clear, however, that if the existing standards of support of the public schools is maintained new sources of revenue must be found.

An income tax bill has received a favorable report from a House committee. The rates for individuals scale from one per cent on the first $1,000 of net income up to seven per cent on amounts in excess of $11,000. For corporations the rates scale from two per cent on the first $1,000 to six per cent on incomes in excess of $6,000.

The sales tax has been killed again in a House committee, but there is talk of it being brought out on a minority report. Its prospects of passage seem slim, but search for needed revenue may win sufficient support to bring about enactment of a modified sales tax on certain specified articles.

Appropriations for the support of the state board of water engineers and the board of mineral development have been killed by the House. The items are small, the two combined amounting to only about $36,000 per year. The Senate has not yet received the departmental appropriations bill from the House.

This medicine can change your whole outlook

It's lucky for a lot of us, that happy health does not depend on strength. But like any other machinery, the human machine must be properly regulated to run right.

Here is a simple means of regulating the system which most people will be mighty glad they tried. You may think yourself in fairly good health today, and after two weeks of this stimulation realize you were only half alive.

This way of staging a complete physical "come-back" is a famous doctor's prescription, so do not be afraid to try it! Any druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is made of fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Start today! One spoonful will drive away any bilious headache. A larger dose will clear up any constipated condition. A little every day or two will relieve auto-intoxication—and from that day on, you are a changed man. Or woman! This likeable and agreeable medicine does something for women. And gives sluggish children appetites and energy, and real bowel movements. (Syrup Pepsin is the only laxative a person needs at any age.)

Did you know that you can try a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and receive your money back if you don't feel better in every way?

TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY

1898 When automobiles looked like this, and only a handful of them were in existence, the founders of the Magnolia Petroleum Company started the first refinery in the Southwest at Corsicana, Texas. The picture below was reproduced from an actual photograph of this first refinery.

1933 Just thirty-five years later, there are over twenty-six million motor vehicles in the United States; petroleum is the fifth largest industry in the country, topped only by agriculture in the Southwest. The photograph below shows the present Magnolia Refinery at Beaumont, Texas.

Magnolia and the Automobile... They've grown together for thirty-five years!

WHEELS, as a rolling device, had been in use for more than four thousand years before the invention of the automobile. From available records, the first application of mechanical power to vehicles seems to have been a carriage propelled by springs, built in Nuremberg, Holland, by Johann Hauslach in the sixteenth century. To Charles E. Duryea, a bicycle manufacturer, who first experimented with steam and later made his first gas engine studies at the Ohio State Fair in 1886, goes credit for the first gasoline engine automobile built in the United States. In 1892, Duryea built a makeshift, under-powered affair of one cylinder. The most that can be said for it was that it did achieve the amazing speed of seven miles per hour.

Perhaps it was coincidence, but, at about the same time the automobile began its meteoric rise, the Southwest came into the picture as a producer of petroleum. By accident, oil was discovered at Corsicana in 1896. Two years later, on Christmas Day, 1898, the founders of the Magnolia Petroleum Company fired the stills in the first refinery in the Southwest. Without the Southwestern production of petroleum to supply popular priced fuel and lubrication, it is doubtful whether the automobile could have come into such widespread use in so short a time.

As pioneer refiners of the Southwest, the Magnolia Petroleum Company has seen the automobile industry grow from a clumsy, lumbering infant into the world's largest industry.

Just as the founders of this Company were the pacemakers of Southwestern petroleum production, so has Magnolia set the pace for better gasolines, motor oil and greases. Many people living today remember when they chugged over Southwestern roads in their rambling, horseless carriages... fueled and lubricated by Magnolia Products! Today these same people may speed over broad paved highways... using Mobilgas, Mobilgas Ethyl and Mobiloil, fitted to the needs of their modern motors. Drive in and enjoy these up-to-the-minute petroleum products.

SUPPORT WILL BE NEEDED IN MIDLAND

Skipper Ellis of the Midland Indians baseball league can be a success from the Midland standpoint if the merchants and populace will give support. He said a club can be whipped together that will offer a vital threat for the championship, one that will be well worth 25c a game to see in action. For years he has managed a ball club, bought balls and defrayed expenses when money was not otherwise available. He hopes Midland will

Woman Informs And Rum Runner Hubby Aids Law

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—"Plant" and "double cross," fake "steer" and ambush—so runs the tangled tale of liquor enforcement.

In enforcement headquarters here they tell the story of Captain Jim Turner of the 69-foot auxiliary ketch "Marie Louise."

A girl stood at a desk in the New Orleans customs house—the prettiest girl that had ever entered that sombre building. Her eyes were brown, and enormous, and there were tears in them, perhaps of fright.

"I want to tell you about Captain Turner," she said. "He's running liquor."

"So?" Inspector Davis leaned forward. "What Captain Turner is that?"

She seemed to hesitate. Finally she said: "Jim Turner. He's captain of the Marie Louise. He came in today from British Honduras with a thousand cases of Scotch."

"How do you know so much about it?"

"I should know," she retorted. "He's my husband."

Sometimes that sort of thing happens, and it's no duty of the law to inquire too deeply into the reasons.

The ground west of El Campo is a natural ball diamond, he says, and he hopes, with the assistance of Midland merchants, to erect bleachers, possibly a small grandstand.

son for it. Usually it's money. Informers are entitled to 25 per cent of the value of seizures made by their information.

But money didn't seem to be the reason in this case. The girl appeared surprised to learn about that. Even then, it didn't particularly interest her.

Davis was puzzled. If her story was correct, it was enough to act on. Also—the Mississippi delta below New Orleans being a place where many sinister things can happen—maybe it was a "plant." The inspector suspected something of the sort. He and his men had been targets for rum-running bullets more than once. Never, indeed, at the invitation of such a pretty girl.

Anyhow, he took her name, which was Marie Louise Turner—and told her to come back with more facts. Just where the liquor was cached, for instance.

Outside, standing in the doorway of the custom house, Marie paused, irresolute. More information, the inspector wanted. She wrinkled her pretty brows.

Then suddenly, she screamed. A big man in sea-faring clothes closed a heavy iron door behind her.

"Jim!" she gasped.

"What you been doing in there?" he demanded.

She didn't answer for a minute.

"Funny I just happened to come along, ain't it?" he said. There was menace in his voice.

But just to show that you never can tell—where liquor traffic is concerned—fifteen minutes later Marie Louise and Captain Jim Turner stood side by side in front of Customs Inspector Davis's desk. Jim was speaking.

"You see, inspector, I was walking down the street when I happened to run into Marie Louise. She says 'comin' out of here, and I says 'What you been doin'?' And she answers me—'Jim, I just informed on you.'"

The inspector nodded to the official who had tiptoed quietly up behind him. Jim, just as well make sure—

The "Trisk" revealed nothing. Jim had no gun on him.

"She told me Jim was speaking again in his slow Southern drawl—that she had to make good. She said you told her to, Inspector. So I says to her—'Well, Marie Louise, I'm goin' to help you. If the Inspector wants you should make good. I'll do all I can to help.'"

It didn't seem to make sense. Even at the height of Southern "shivah" it doesn't require a man to help his wife "make good" in becoming him to the law for smuggling. But like so many puzzles, the answer was simple—once you know it.

You see, Inspector," Jim explained, "things were pretty bad for me this winter. I couldn't get any cargo for the Marie Louise. Couldn't seem to keep going. So when they promised me a thousand bucks for bringing up the load from Belize, I jumped on it. And now they've run out on me. I can't collect the money, Marie and I had a fight about it before I started—she told me I was a fool to get mixed up with liquor and she warned me not to go. Well, she's right. The young skipper nodded sagely—

"She's right, I guess."

"Success in police work depends greatly in knowing whom you can trust—and when. Maybe it's instinctive. Anyhow, Inspector Davis instantly made up his mind to trust Turner. The man looked honest enough. He had sailed his little boat in Belize down to Belize—six days—and back again—eight days more. He had paid out money for his crew, for provisions, for fuel. The sum of $1000 was mighty little for the voyage, particularly as he brought back a thousand cases. And now he had been double-crossed and was burning up.

At this point, Marie Louise steps out of the story. She had fought her fight for the honesty of her man and won. The danger to her home, to her husband's life, was fended off.

That night Inspector Davis—that isn't his name, of course—loaned Turner a pistol for self-defense, and a car—Davis' own car. Turner was to lead them 50 miles by road down the Mississippi to Pointe de la Hache, a bit of sand among the bayous. Once there, he was to drive on leaving the customs men in the other car to find the stuff, whose whereabouts he described.

That arrangement was for Turner's protection. His life wouldn't be worth much if the liquor syndicate which he sailed found out he had been squealing.

The plan worked. They found the cache behind the revetment of the levee at the point Turner described. Davis and one of his men also found other souvenirs—bullets fired point blank by the bootlegger guarding the liquor.

The wounds weren't serious, but, serious or not, it's all in the life of a custom officer enforcing the law against contraband.

Once there, he was to drive on leaving the customs men in the other car to find the stuff, whose whereabouts he described.

That arrangement was for Turner's protection. His life wouldn't be worth much if the liquor syndicate which he sailed found out he had been squealing.

The plan worked. They found the cache behind the revetment of the levee at the point Turner described. Davis and one of his men also found other souvenirs—bullets fired point blank by the bootlegger guarding the liquor.

The wounds weren't serious, but, serious or not, it's all in the life of a custom officer enforcing the law against contraband.

At this point, Marie Louise steps out of the story. She had fought her fight for the honesty of her man and won. The danger to her home, to her husband's life, was fended off.

Frigidaire Models Draw Home-Makers

The new Frigidaire that uses no more current than an ordinary electric bulb is being displayed at The Reporter-Telegram All-Electric cooking school this week, through the courtesy of Midland Hardware & Furniture Co.

Women at the school today showed great interest in the new machine. There are many new features, outstanding of which are the exceptionally low prices of the new models. The smallest machine sells in Midland for $96 plus freight.

Wiley

Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, president of the court, and his associates, Captain H. E. Shoemaker and Commander Sidney Kraus, listened with rapid attention, making frequent notes, as Wiley went on.

His own doctrine, said the grey-haired officer, speaking of what he was taught on storms in the station ground schools has been to place the ship on the west side of a circular storm in the northern hemisphere.

"That is why you would have laid your course to the westward?" asked Judge Advocate Lieutenant Commander Ralph G. Pennoyer.

Wiley said he mentioned the possibility of changing the course to the westward when he saw the first lightning flashes to the south. Captain McCord, he said, told him that he had noticed lightning in the west and was shifting the course eastward. In this regard, Wiley observed that he had not seen any lightning flashes in the west himself until a half hour after this conversation in the control car.

After the ship took the course seaward a mistake was made in navigation, Wiley informed the court.

"The captain told me he had ordered a 15 degree change in the course and that a mistake had been made and the course changed 50 degrees."

No apparent significance was attached to this either by the court or the judge advocate.

HUNT GOES ON

U. S. S. PORTLAND, Off New Jersey Coast, April 11.—Concluding a week's hunt for bodies and wreckage from the giant dirigible Akron which plunged 73 men to death in a storm last Tuesday, navy searchers last night ploughed into a new area mapped by Captain Leary after an exhaustive study of the entire New Jersey coast line.

His opinion that he was driving in the right direction appeared confirmed by the finding of the body of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett.

ists acting badly with the restored beverage there may be just enough of a reaction to enable the drys to hold the 13 states they need to prevent repeal's consummation.

If a few high school boys and girls get funny and get loaded up on beer before classes the repeal cause may be done definite harm. The drys will magnify each such incident and cite them far and wide. And there is also the possibility that other evil results of the present widespread prohibition violations with reference to hard liquor will be blamed on the relatively innocent brew.

The hotel men of the capital, hearing about all the "new beer" parties that were going to get started around here about midnight, became alarmed and unanimously petitioned that sale of beer be barred until 7 a. m. They explained that many beer celebrants were likely to celebrate with gin and whiskey, and that any disorder would be attributed to the new law.

Hit at Saloon's Return

The wets also realize that in some places sale of beer is likely to be used as a cloak for dispensation of hard liquor, which might give beer another black eye.

Politicians appear to have been trying to chisel in on the new beer business in nearly all states. There has been a notable fight in New York, where Governor Lehman has led the forces favoring nonpolitical control. But the general fear that beer might get out of hand and restore many of the old abuses has led to stringent regulations in many states, especially against the old-fashioned saloon.

The drys have always argued not only that 3.2 beer is intoxicating but also that beer is just as vicious a beverage—if not more so—than hard liquor. Even if the 3.2 per cent beer were not highly intoxicating, they said, it would set up "lifelong alcoholic habits" among the citizenry, take away money that was needed for bread and baby's shoes, excite automobile drivers to recklessness and stimulate most of the other evil results of the old liquor traffic. Now they try to prove that these things are happening.

The consumer is finding out how the beer tastes and how he reacts to its alcoholic content. As for taste, the official warning is that for a while—except at the very outset—most of the available beer will be green. How serious this handicap on beer will prove to be can only be guessed.

It must be admitted that many members of congress who voted for this beer as "nonintoxicating" did so with tongues in cheek. The arguments on the point of its intoxicating potentialities will not be secured by everyone at once. It does seem to be established that the beer is at least as strong as that commonly sold before prohibition.

Changing Our Habits

It is accepted that beer intoxication is less vicious than hard liquor intoxication. But if enough people seem to be getting stewed on beer they will give the drys a further argument against restoration of all types of alcoholic beverages.

A further problem involves the extent to which the beer experiment can change the nation's drinking habits. There are those who claim prohibition has bred millions of hard liquor drinkers who cannot be weaned away. They think beer will be a fad at first, but never will gain permanent popularity.

Already the great army of home brewers is boasting that it will continue to make its own beer, preferring both the taste and the greater alcoholic content. Their case may parallel that of the home makers of bathtub gin, few of whom may now be persuaded to exchange their simple product for the pre-war gin.

"Let the husband feel the party is his own. Let him and his friends make their own sandwiches. Lay your prettiest cloth and lay the napkins in one pile. Be certain that flowers are on the table.

"Don't use candles; turn on plenty of light. Did you ever see a man who wouldn't turn on all the lights anyway?"

"Ice the glasses ahead of time, and have a bowl on the table into which to empty them just before the beer is poured.

"As I say, limit the beer but do not limit the food. What the most want, even if they don't realize it, is just an appetizer before their food is eaten."

One other class remains to be considered—the speakie proprietors. They also wait with bated breath to learn whether any large portion of their customers is going to desert them for the pleasures of beer in lawful surroundings.
