MIDLAND TO GET FIRST VIEW OF PERMIAN LEAGUE

Seminole Comes for Golf; Tourney On Courts

With a Permian Basin baseball game, a Kat Klaw golf match and a City of Midland tennis tournament, the sports fare for today is unusually heavy.

Both golf teams are at the top of their associations. The tennis club is opening the way for selecting ranking players for future inter-city tournaments.

The baseball game will begin at 3:30, and will be the first game played between Permian Basin Baseball league clubs this season.

The Wink club, with a large number of fans, will arrive at 8 o'clock this morning.

"The team and fans are welcome to Midland," announced Mr. David M. Ellis of the Midland Indians.

The Indian skipper announced readiness for the game. Water has been piped to the diamond west of El Campo Moderno.

The diamond was worked and a backstop constructed. "Everything is in readiness," he said.

Addition of a crack Mexican infielder, Val Moreno, has strengthened the club. He will play short stop.

On account of an asserted rough and tumble Friday, Fred Girdley will not be in the lineup today.

The club hopes to win today, and we hope a large crowd is out to see the result," the manager said.

DECISION MADE AFTER 5 YEARS IN THE COURTS

Suit Resulted From Turner's Filing on Oil Land

This character portrait of President Roosevelt was taken as he addressed the nation after two months in office.

Decision in the famous "Fred Turner strip suit," involving title to oil lands valued at several millions and the payment of many additional millions tied up by pipe line companies, was rendered Saturday by the state supreme court, advice received here said.

Turner, Midland oil operator, filed a suit June 1, 1927, against land owners, oil companies and royalty owners, oil companies and royalty owners, oil companies and royalty owners.

An additional 93 acres was filed in suits filed and later a compromise effected in favor of Turner, which was for the 561.2 acres, filed originally in district court.

Turner then appealed to the supreme court in the fall of 1928 and the decision came almost five years later.

His suit was for the royalty under those acres, the state joining in the suit in order to receive the one-sixteenth royalty.

When the original suit was filed, one producing well was on the acreage. Later, two additional producers were drilled.

In the course of the suit, in its various stages, the value of the lands and royalties involved has fluctuated considerably, dependent upon the price of oil.

Additional acreage, bringing the total to 5200 acres, was cleared of the disputes by the supreme court's decision, it was said here.

LOW WAGES, RACKETEERS MENACE LABOR

American labor today presents one of the oddest jumbles the American people ever had to tackle. At each end there exists an evil so serious that the whole labor field will eventually be demoralized if a corrective is not soon applied. And in the middle there is a vast burden of unemployment which has jarred society almost to its foundations.

At one end there is the sweatshop evil—a thing which has its roots in human greed, which helps to demoralize labor and industry alike and which is paid for by those least able to pay; women, children and the aged.

At the other end is an evil equally disturbing; the racketeer. He has been most active in New York and Chicago, but many other cities have felt his heavy hand. In instances he has taken over whole union organizations; in others he has chiseled his way in from the outside; but wherever he operates he has sold out the workingman, taken tribute from industry and helped to raise problems that will take years to settle.

Pennsylvania, so far, has figured most prominently in the stories of sweatshops. It is in Pennsylvania that children have gone on strike against wages of $1 to $5 for a 60-hour week. But there are plenty of other states that contain conditions about as bad as anything to be found in Pennsylvania.

Two potent remedies for the sweatshop evil lie at hand; the minimum wage law and the child labor amendment. Get these two adopted and have them enforced energetically and one of labor's—and the nation's—greatest handicaps would vanish.

Against the racketeer the procedure is not so clear. Federal officials in Chicago are trying to cooperate via the income tax evasion law; and Attorney General Cummings is investigating to find out if the federal government might not pass new laws to make possible a determined federal drive against racketeers on all fronts. It is to be hoped that definite action will come out of this.

American labor is under three courses. Unemployment is only one of them.

Today Is Mother's Day

Why Not Canonize Life of Mother?

Mother's Day again! On May the twelfth or thirteenth we go to the shop and buy a box of candy, a plant, or a new pair of gloves and on today we hand over our offerings at the breakfast table and congratulate her for being such a noble person.

She—poor soul—being grateful for any sort of recognition fills up and cries about having such a thoughtful, appreciative family, kisses everybody all the way round, then begins to scrape up the dishes. Some way or other we ever dramatize one day a year and the rest of the time we get all we can out of her and think too seldom of the little gifts and attentions that would please her immensely.

Mother Is Getting Wise

But mother today is not the mother of 1910 or even 1920. She is, thank heaven, beginning to think about this motherhood business and learning day by day a few of those truths that all women should have known dozens of years ago.

Among other things she has discovered that being a doormat for the family isn't the noble thing it used to be. Not that she isn't willing to work and sacrifice for her children and her husband but because she thinks she can be of better use to them if she adopts a different attitude.

Penalty of Indifference

Who suffers most when children become indifferent, imposing and even cruel? Mothers? Not at all—the children themselves eventually. The child who is reared to regard his mother with love and respect, who learns that every consideration and thoughtfulness is her right and

Ready-to-Serve League Holds Annual Banquet

The spotlight of church society for last week was turned on the Ready to Serve hi-league of the First Methodist church. Friday night, when it held its annual banquet in the assembly hall of the court house.

Banquet tables arranged in the form of a U were decorated with the league colors of yellow and white. Yellow and white streamers were dropped from the ceiling and massed to form a centerpiece.

A three-course luncheon prepared by Mrs. S. H. Gwyn was served. Miss Bessie Flournoy, toastmistress, toasted the sponsor of the league, Ray Gwyn, who responded. Miss Melba Nixon read and Edwin Ferrell gave a toast to the league.

Features of the program were several songs sung by the boys' duet composed of Erwin Ferrell and Odell Ponder, the girl's quartet consisting of Bessie Flournoy, Doris Tidwell, Betty Minter and Willie Mae Mercer and the girl's duet composed of Willie Mae Mercer and Bessie Flournoy.

Concluding the program was a toast to the officers by David Jolly. The Schaubauer cake prepared the turkey and dishes were loaned by the Midland Hardware company and McMullan's store.

The pampered, indulged child who looks upon his mother merely as a convenience and who lacks respect and courtesy, cannot help building only the flimsy type of character that such a weak foundation will bear.

It's Time To Speak Up

The wise mother today demands for herself a place in the sun. As I said before, not selfishly certainly, but for the purely altruistic reason that it is better for everybody.

In time we shall not have Mother's Day once a year, but every day. When that happens the gift her children present to her in May will be a different symbol from what it is now, just as the gift today represents something different from that of the past.

It will be the wise men from the East bearing offerings of reverence and love, not the almsgiver tossing a coin to a mendicant and feeling very holy about it.

One Day Not Enough

Naturally the figure is overdrawn. There are too many children in American homes filled with real reverence and love for their mothers to deserve such comparison, but we still have a long way to go.

Alas, there are still too many who think one day a year enough to show their affection! Motherhood is one thing that neither kings nor Communists can change. It is a sacred relation of spirit as well as body. Let us canonize, not "Mother's Day," but "Mother's Life."

Pastors of Midland churches announce that various tributes will be made to motherhood in their sermons address Sunday evening. Recognition of Mother's Day is also to be given in some of the Sunday school programs.

Flowers are to be furnished visitors attending religious services Sunday. For the person whose mother is dead a white flower will be provided and for those whose mother is living a red one will be in order. Distribution of the emblems will be made at the church buildings.

There will be no regular preaching services Sunday morning, due to the baccalaureate sermon at high school auditorium.

New District Director Named

Miss Evelyn Whitfield of Eden will replace Ray Gwyn as San Angelo district director of the Methodist Young People's union, according to word received here. She took office Sunday, May 7.

Sidney and Raft Co-Featured in A Ritz Showing

The offering at the Ritz theatre today and Monday is "Pick Up," a picture taken from Vina Delmar's story of the same name, and starring Sylvia Sidney and George Raft.

Comparison can be made to Vina Delmar's earlier success, "Bad Girl," with entire credit to "Pick Up," a B. P. Schulberg production. For "Pick Up" as played by Sylvia Sidney and George Raft, is in the same human, tender vein as "Bad Girl." It deals with youngsters of the same kind, groping for love, buffeted by fate, finding happiness out of tragedy.

The girl in "Pick Up" as portrayed in Sylvia Sidney's superb performance is a warm, living character are invited.

whose story captures interest and holds it throughout. George Raft is an excellent co-star. The versatile player whose roles have been alike in their suave, menacing way, reveals himself in "Pick Up" a player of mood. As the crude, groping taxi driver who knows what he wants in women, but can't find room in his heart for a "pick up" girl, Raft gives a masterful characterization.

The love story of these two youngsters develops in a series of powerful scenes, culminating in a trial scene of gripping strength. It is a fine, affecting film, played with genuine tenderness and emotion, directed with skill by Marion

Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper Show 3 Days at Yucca

The combined appearance of Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper in a story written by the brilliant American writer, William Faulkner, and directed by Howard Hawks of "Scarface" fame, are the factors which give "Today We Live," opening today at the Yucca theatre, the reputation of being the most anticipated motion picture of the current cinema season.

Miss Crawford is cast as a member of a British ambulance unit in the present picture which is described as the experiences of a woman and three men during the World War. Cooper, in the principal male lead as an American aviator, follows up his effective performance in "A Farewell to Arms" and the other members of the male triangle are played by Robert Young and Franchot Tone, the New York Theatre Guild star, who scored in "Success Story."

The activities of the British navy, particularly their dangerous "sketcher destroyers," play a prominent

To Stage Revue

David Dallas, above, managing director of "Queen of the West" revue, Roswell, N. M., is in Midland making arrangements for the Yucca theatre's annual fashion parade and beauty revue. Dallas has had charge of the "Queen of the West" pageant for the last four years, and was formerly with the International Beauty Pageant, Galveston, Texas.

To Select 6 Girls In Fashion Revue

David Dallas, well known director of the "Queen of the West" revue of Roswell, N. M., arrived in Midland Saturday to make preliminary arrangements for the Yucca theatre's annual fashion parade and beauty contest which will be staged May 25 and 26.

According to Dallas, the models this season will feature the very latest in 1933 swim suits, evening gowns, and sport clothes and a number of models will depict the styles of the "Gay Nineties." Out of town judges will select six young women on any basis of poise, figure, and grace to compete with girls from Wink, Kermit, Monahans, Odessa, Stanton and Andrews for the title of "Miss Southwest Texas." The winner will be given a free trip to the World's Fair at Chicago.

In addition to the revue show and beauty revue a kiddies bathing revue will be staged for little girls between the ages of 1 to six. The audience will select the winner by applause, Dallas said. No entrance fee will be charged.

part in the action of "Today We Live," with further exciting episodes centered on the aerial spectacles of bombing squadrons. According to the Faulkner story, however, although the war serves as a background for the plot, the conflict is never allowed to submerge the focal point of drama in the strong personalities who are entangled in a struggle for life and love behind the lines.

Comedy interludes are brought in to the story through the antics of permanently destroy one third or more of that great oil reserve and thus remove it as a menace to the industry.

This latter group is neither wiser nor more public spirited than the ones who want to see the independents eliminated.

Outside of being a criminal waste of an irreplaceable natural resource there are several things wrong with the plan of letting East Texas run wild. To begin with, the field would last longer than the financial resources of the people who advocate that policy. By the time East Texas began to slacken its flow Conroe would be ready to take its place. Kettleman Hills from a relatively few wells can already supply 400,000 barrels per day.

A little sober thought should convince anyone that there is no hope for improvement in the industry except through a controlled production and there isn't an intelligent man in the business who really believes that control by the states is likely to be accomplished.

Let us see what calamity it is that the Texas senate and some oilmen see in federal control.

Under federal supervision the production of the state would be held to about 800,000 barrels per day and the price would be fixed at an average for the state of about one dollar per barrel.

That would give the producers a daily income of $800,000. At present the state is producing 900,000 barrels, or more, and the producers are receiving less than $125,000 per day.

The gain under federal control to the producers and royalty owners would be $675,000 per day and a saving of at least 100,000 barrels of oil per day.

There isn't an oilman, merchant or banker in all Texas who would not welcome this addition to the daily income of the state. Directly or indirectly it would benefit every citizen. Then why oppose it?

Roscoe Karns as the "life of the billet," whose humorous pillock-pieces serve to relieve the tension of the aviators who expect each day to be their last.

William Faulkner, who wrote "Today We Live," is the author of "Sanctuary" and "Light in August," two of the outstanding American novels of the past decade. His latest story was adapted to the screen by Edith Fitzgerald and Dwight Taylor.

10,000 Acre Ranch Of Stokes Is Sold

The J. V. Stokes cattle ranch at Midland, containing more than 10,000 acres held in fee besides several sections of leased land, has been sold to Andrew Fasken, it was announced by Stokes Saturday. Cattle were sold to Foy Proctor. Consideration was approximately $10 an acre, cash.

This is perhaps one of the best known ranches in West Texas and one of the choicest blocks of land west of Fort Worth. Ninety-eight per cent of it is well adapted to agriculture.

The ranch is one of the oldest under one ownership in the Midland country, and is well equipped.

In May 1893, 40 years ago, Stokes settled on the place. The country was then open country. He leased and began fencing a large block of land. The neighboring ranchmen were said to have been "peevish" at this action, as they assertedly wanted to keep the country wide open. They soon began to see, however, how much better it was to have their cattle enclosed in a good barbed wire fence and within about six months they had joined fences with Stokes on every side.

Stokes raised pure bred and registered Hereford cattle for years and sold bulls over a great part of the west. The only ranch better than the one he sold, he says, is one his sons, Dewey and T. J., operate in New Mexico, the old O. Z. Finley ranch. He says the ranch is the best in New Mexico.

Stokes went on the cattle range 60 years ago when he was 10 years old, locating between Austin and Lockhart. He herded his cattle during the day and either penned or bedded them down at night. A tent had to suffice for a lodging, as he had no house. Ranchmen in those days could move to fresh range any time they liked. There was only one house between Austin and Lockhart.

Stokes has been in the cattle business practically since that time. "I tried the merchandising business a time or two and doubled a little in the bank business," he said, "but I never made any money out of anything but land and cattle. If there is anything in the world that Stokes said he had decided to 'slacken up' a bit as the strain had been too much.

"Nothing succeeds like success," he said, "but what is success? Money is a good thing to have around the place but it makes lots of work and worry, and won't keep or satisfy."
