with tweezers each torn or imperfect cigarette.

Each tray of CHESTERFIELDS from the cigarette-making machines passes under the watchful eyes of inspectors, trained by long practice to see flaws such as an end of torn paper, or a poorly filled cigarette.

And there's still another safeguard ... two "electric detectives" on each packaging machine. Electric fingers "feel" each end of every cigarette, and throw out every imperfect package.

Open your pack of Chesterfields, and look at them. It's no accident that every cigarette is round, firm and full. Somebody's been on the job every minute to give you what you want . . . a cigarette that's made right in every way and that's milder and tastes better.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED Karl Schlemmer, the only living person who knows where $3,000,-000 in gold lies below the sea, and Steve McCreary, a young under-sea diver, secure a ship to hunt for the treasure. The ship is wrecked in a storm and only Mc-Creary and Schlemmer escape. McCreary acquires one-half of the chart showing where the gold is buried. Three years later they get obs aboard a scientific expedition hip, which is going to sail in the Bahama waters near where the treasure is sunken. The financier of the expedition is Diane Tem-leton, a beautiful young heiress. McCreary falls in love with her, though he will not admit it. Diane goes down below the sea in McCreary's diving suit. The air is shut off and the girl collapses.

CHAPTER FIVE Diane was revived in the compression tank.

They pull her to the surface.

"It must haff been," Schlemmer declared urgently. "Somet'ings must haff gone wrong mit the equipment. McCreary wouldn't do a t'ing like that. He vouldn't hurt a fly."

"What's this—a grand jury?" McCreary inquired, coming up on the pair.

"In a manner of speaking, it is," said Chapman. "You might have been guilty of homicide at that."

McCreary looked across at Diane, who had joined the party. "Well, it would've been justifiable homicide. I gave orders that nobody was to fool around with my equipment. I specially warned her to leave it alone."

"McCreary, I insist that you apologize to Miss Templeton," said crossly. "I don't t'ink your mind's on golt at all."

McCreary replied dreamily. "This morning she took out a strand of her hair and showed it to me under the microscope. It's just the color of gold—have you ever looked under a microscope. Schlemmer?"

"He's quite right," Diane interrupted. "Twe been interfering with the discipline of the ship. I had no right to do it. I can recognize the truth. I'm the one that ought to apologize to Mr. McCreary, and do. I humbly apologize."

She walked away and McCreary followed her.

"Miss Templeton—" he said desolately.

The girl looked up, her eyes wet. "You promised to teach me how to become a gentleman, didn't you? And it's no good. You put me under the microscope and what did you find? A first class, crawling louse on two legs."

Diane spoke with difficulty. "But I don't want you to be a gentleman. I hate gentlemen." She paused. "Besides no gentleman would kiss a lady when she's unconscious—even in a decompression tank. A lady likes to be conscious when she's kissed."

Two days later found Schlemmer in his cabin with McCreary study, in the chart of which each held flaif.

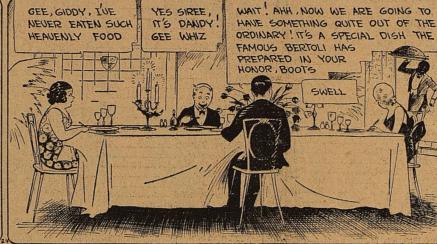

"Here's vhere ve're anchored," Schlemmer's finger moved. "Some-where about here is where the U-170 in the tender. The side of the sunker craft."

Roettger Kills

Hard Tee Drive Doley Roettger didn't hole out his tee shot, but he sent a hard hit, low ball solid against the cranium of a ground squirrel and set him kicking. "One less hole on the fairway from now on," Roettger grinned.

Joe D. Chambers shot his first course par for nine holes last week, shooting one birdie, seven pars and one hole in bogey. Billy Moran, who is a forrid hombre when he's hot, has shot only one 36—and that on a fluke—but he's been under that figure several times including two figure several times, including two Felix Stonehocker and Jimmy Harrison, Kat Klaw players, had an Harrison, Kat Klaw players, had an unique honor at Big Spring Sunday. Coming up to the first tee to shoot first, a visiting team's privilege, the Midlanders shot first on every hole thereafter. When one was in distress the other took the low ball. This is believed to have established a record of some sort for the season. Incidentally, which may set another record, Midland and Big Spring halved the last 11 holes in that four some. On two holes, the 17th and 18th, every member of the foursome 18th, every member of the foursome shot an identical score; each ramming down his put for a bogey.

Of more importance, six of the eight members of Midland's Sand Belt club shot in the 70's in their sweeping match Sunday with Sny-der. It might be interesting to notice the team averages. Midland's average for eight men was 78.25; Snyder's 82.37. In the Kat Klaw, Midland's average was 89.75, Big Spring's 87.87, the losing team in the latter sense being slightly ahead on medal score. medal score.

Midland, thus, still holds a tie for first position in the Sand Belt, Colorado, though the locals drew out ahead yesterday in total points scored, still playing in the top place, too. Colorado's score with Stanton was 24 to 16.
