SELCMAN URGES DEVELOPMENT OF THE PERSONALITY

Declaring that people of the present age are living in too easy a world, Dr. Chas. C. Selcman, president of Southern Methodist university, delivered a stirring commencement sermon to the Midland high school graduating class Sunday morning at the school auditorium.

His subject was "Personality" and he urged the development of each person's personality in order to bring out the best in life. He said that in this era people are less aggressive and are too prone to accept the comforts and conveniences of a machine age without exerting all possible effort.

He said that personal ambition should be encouraged and that it should not be sacrificed on account of depressions and conditions of the present day.

The speaker delivered his sermon in a simple and direct style, although it was inspirational and pointed. He was introduced by Dr. John B. Thomas, president of the school board.

Choruses, mass readings and selected musical numbers added to the program.

Most churches of the city adjourned their morning services to join in the school program, a packed auditorium resulting. The crowd was estimated at 900.

LOCAL GOLFERS WIN KAT KLAU, TIE SAND BELT

Midland golfers, on a day of bad golfing weather, tied their Sand Belt opponents and won out over their Kat Klaw visitors Sunday, remaining on top in both associations.

Playing in a drenching rain, the Midland Sand Belt golf group halved their match with Sweetwater Sunday on the tricky Sweetwater course, 20-20.

Jackson and Day lost their matches and low ball to Southworth and Ritter of Sweetwater, taking the small end of 8 to 2.

Kidd and Miller reversed matters for Midland against Whitley and Lowe, winning both games and low ball, 8 to 2. It took 21 holes to decide low ball in this flight.

Moran and Douglas won 6 to 4 for Midland against Lovorn and Shaw. Douglas won his match and Moran lost, but won low ball.

Chambers and Sivalls lost both of their matches against Newman and Dilz, but won low ball for Midland, giving Sweetwater the bigger end of the 6 to 4 result.

Kat Klaw Locals Win

The Midland Kat Klaw golfers won their match with the Seminole players on the local course Sunday, coming out 26 to 14.

Felix Stonehooker and R. C. Hankins for Midland lost low ball and Stonehooker's match against R. Cothes and R. M. Halley. Hankins won his match with Halley. Low ball was won by Seminole on the twentieth hole, giving the visitors the 6 to 4 result.

LONG'S INCOME AND FORTUNE LIMIT BILL RECALLS SYSTEMS OF EUROPE

By T. S. HOGAN

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Huey Long has just finished making a speech on the senate floor in favor of his amendment to the revenue bill. His amendment would, by a progressive increase of tax as income increased, limit the income of any individual to a net amount of one million dollars per year. It would also limit inheritance to five million dollars to each child or heir.

It would levy a capital tax, high enough to take for the federal government all of any individual fortune above one hundred million dollars. Huey's enemies, and they are numerous, would have to admit that he made a good speech and one very difficult to answer. He was particularly impressive when he pointed out how absurd and incongruous it was that he or any other senator would find it necessary to battle for a limitation of one million per year income to a single individual, five million inheritance to each child and a limit of a hundred million of each individual fortune at a time when fifty million of the men, women and children of America could not buy sufficient food and clothing for their normal needs, and that in spite of the fact that the food and clothing were amassed throughout the nation in greater quantities than ever before.

He quoted the U. S. trade commission to show that in 1916 87 per cent of the population owned sixty per cent of the national wealth but in 1931 less than one per cent of the people owned 59 per cent of the wealth. Incidentally the recent statistics tend to show that the so-called middle class owe more money than the total value of their assets. The expansion of great chain stores and chain banks account largely for the elimination of the middle class.

Of course Huey's amendment will be beaten, though probably 70 per cent of the 96 senators think it would be a great thing for the country if such a limit were placed on wealth.

Timidity is the most marked characteristic of public men and the untold and unusual appalls them. It is more than likely that if this proposition of limiting income and wealth were submitted to the few who have such incomes and such wealth that Huey's bill would get a larger percentage of votes than it has in the United States senate. Those men of wealth cannot be blind to the trend of the modern world. In fact many of them recognize that the time is near when they or their descendants must yield to the evolution of society. Many would be happy if they had assured and then divide it. In Italy Mussolini made without violence.

Thirty years ago an American multi-millionaire could, and some of them did, move to Europe to escape a rising demand for curtailment of their fortunes. Now there is no place for a billionaire to go where the taxes, restraints and risks to his fortune would not be greater than at home. In England through graduated taxes such a fortune would soon be diminished. In France the law of inheritance coupled with taxes would first diminish an then divide it. In Italy Mussolini would confiscate it unless it was applied to some useful purpose.

Stamford Prepares For Annual Reunion

STAMFORD, Tex., May 15.—Memories of stirring days of the past range of the old West will be revived when pioneer ranch workers who saw service with lariat and saddle prior to 1898 hold their annual round up here during the fourth annual Texas Cowboy Reunion July 3, 4 and 5.

More than 500 of these old time cow-hands registered for the meeting here last year and were guests of the Reunion management. Total attendance at the 1932 session was estimated at thirty thousand.

The cowboy rodeo, featuring performers actually employed on the ranches rather than professional riders, will be held each night for the entertainment of cowboys and visitors of all ages. The most typical active cowboy over 55 years of age and the most typical cowboy under 55 will be selected during the reunion and a prize awarded to each. John Selmon of Stamford received this honor last year for the youngest cowboy and Jake Raines of Spur was selected as the most typical among the active cowboys over 55.

As in past years, a number of ranch outfits are expected to bring their own chuck wagons to Stamford for the Reunion and camp at the grounds during the three-day celebration.

GOVERNOR SIGNS RESOLUTION FOR VOTE AUGUST 26

Bill Introduced to Allow Votes if Poll Unpaid

AUSTIN, May 15. (UP).—Final sanction was given today to the resolution to submit the proposed $20,000,000 bond relief issue to the voters of Texas August 26 when Governor Ferguson signed.

The sanction came after advocates of the resolution had sought concurrence of the senate with house revisions on the proposal. The house had revised it to provide that real property would not be taxed to relieve the bonds.

The resolution provides for vote by the people on the bond issue August 26, at the same time they decide whether 3.2 per cent beer is to be made legal in Texas and whether the state is to ratify repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The relief bond issue is proposed to match federal aid funds.

CAMP DESCRIBES TEXAS EXHIBIT AT WORLD FAIR

Van Camp, former Midland civil engineer, was here today from his Fort Worth office, visiting Mrs. Camp, teacher in the Midland schools, and attending to business in connection with the Texas exhibit at the World's Fair. Camp recently was appointed as chairman of book and sales division for Texas and has been serving in an advisory capacity in compilation of the Texas exhibit. He conferred with Clarence Scharbauer, one of the Texas commissioners, while here and made arrangements with the high school band to sell booklets, "Texas Under Six Flags," as a part of the Texas financing plan.

The state has what is regarded as the best located and best arranged exhibit space, Camp showed with blue prints and drawings. Its make-up is a work of modern engineering skill, showing through mural paintings, dioramas and a system of neon maps the various activities, resources and historical events of the state.

The fair opens June 27 and it was believed by Camp that the exhibit will be ready on or about that date. The problem of financing the exhibit through private subscription and book sales is of greatest importance at present, he said.

West Texas resources and activities are shown in the exhibit, he said, and the West Texas chamber of commerce is cooperating.

DEPRESSION TRAGEDY
One of the saddest of all the stories of the depression is the one about the 14-year-old Indianapolis school girl who tried to end her life because her schoolmates taunted her when they found her wearing a shabby pair of shoes which one of their number had thrown away.

The girl was one of 12 children of a jobless miner. The family had no money for shoes or anything else. She had to wear the discarded shoes, which had been found on some scrap heap, or go without.

It has often been remarked that the weight of the depression rests most heavily on the children; and this painful little story is a reminder that it is not only the physical deprivation which counts. The mental anguish inflicted on this youngster by the thoughtless cruelty of her schoolmates is the sort of thing that is a long time healing.

The fitness of things is served by the New Hampshire engineer who perfects devices that allow ordinary conversation to be carried on in an airplane just as the flying public, grown blasé, reaches the point where it wishes to talk.

Side Glances by Clark

"Please, darling, stop skipping. We don't want to attract attention."

A great deal of talking is under way again about the proposed old timers' reunion, rodeo and race meet for this summer. The proposal was talked up last year until all the old timers over the country heard about it and were ready to come, the neighbors around the Midland country awaited definite announcement of dates, rodeo performers and race horse men sent in letters by the score, asking for dope about purses, events, etc., and the affair became so well advertised that it almost put itself on.

This year the situation is almost the same. Those who wanted to "come to Midland" last year are still ready to come. All they need is the assurance that the entertainment will be put on.

If it doesn't rain, Midland doesn't need to put on any entertainment. However, if it does, the time is ripe. A good two-day show, with one day the big day, would go over in great shape here now. It would cost money but it would bring back money. The man who says there isn't some money to be left in town when from 5,000 to 10,000 assemble has a different viewpoint from mine.

The principal thing needed to put on this celebration is leadership and a strong central committee. Hundreds of citizens stand ready to do their part but somebody has to direct the affair. The American Legion has not been able to get the ball rolling. The conferences in the chamber of commerce haven't resulted in definite action. It's going to take cooperation from the citizenship as a whole, merchants, cowmen, farmers, bankers, professional men, housewives and everybody to stage the kind of a show people like to come to Midland to see.

The old timers themselves should not be left to put on the celebration but should be the reception committee to take care of the visiting old timers. There is just as much need for work and cooperation of

THE WOMAN I STOLE

Starring JACK HOLT with FAY WEAVER
SERIALIZED BY ARRANGEMENT WITH COLUMBIA PICTURES

Jim Bradier, founder of the Alianza Petroleum Corporation in Northern Africa, returns to the oil fields after a long visit to America. He learns from George K. Lentz, general manager of Alianza, that a General Rayon has been trying to wreck the company with his deliberate murder and wrecking of wells and pipe lines. Bradier leaves Teresita, a dancing girl in a cafe in the town who is in love with him, behind and takes a plane to the oil field, where he asks for a horse for a special trip—alone.

CHAPTER THREE
"Your horse is ready, sir," said Deleker.
Bradier swung into the saddle lightly. "You'll have to fight your own battles, boys. You see before you, gentlemen, an ex-oil man," he said, in answer to their queries whether he was going to help them combat General Rayon. Rayon had recently killed one of the Alianza men by tying him to an ant-hill, where the insects gradually killed the victim.
"Ex-oil man—that's a laugh!" exclaimed one of the men.
"He's got oil in his veins, that guy," said another, as Bradier rode off.

The white charger bearing Bradier ran swiftly and easily over the desert sand. Rider and mount finally stopped in front of the ruins of an old Moorish temple—a lone monument on the rolling dunes. Bradier hopped off and began pacing up and down in front of the crumbling archway. He lit one cigarette after another, his eyes roaming over the ruins. Memories that set his blood to racing formed like pictures in his mind. He jumped to his feet as his horse neighed. Over the rolling sands another horse and rider were heading towards them.
A beautiful woman in smart white riding clothes dismounted—almost into the arms of Bradier—her waiting lover! He carried her to the archway, and then sat her down. They embraced. Bradier's strong arms crushed the girl to him in a passionate, fierce fold. Both were too overcome with the fire of their love to say anything. Their lips held together, sensually, ecstatically. This was the reason for Jim Bradier's crossing half the world.

The sweet-scented night fell over the oil fields, giving the ugly, grotesque derricks a shadowed softness, smoothness. Lights glowed in the homes of the field employees; a victrola sang gaily. Jim Bradier entered Stephen Core's home. A Chinese boy took Bradier's pith helmet. Core met him in the hall.
"Hello, Bradier. Sorry I couldn't meet the plane. If you'll give me a minute, I'll go shake up a cocktail." He started away, and then turned to add, "Mrs. Core will be right down." As he passed the stairway, he called, "Vida! Jim Bradier's here." He walked into the dining room, the door closing behind him.

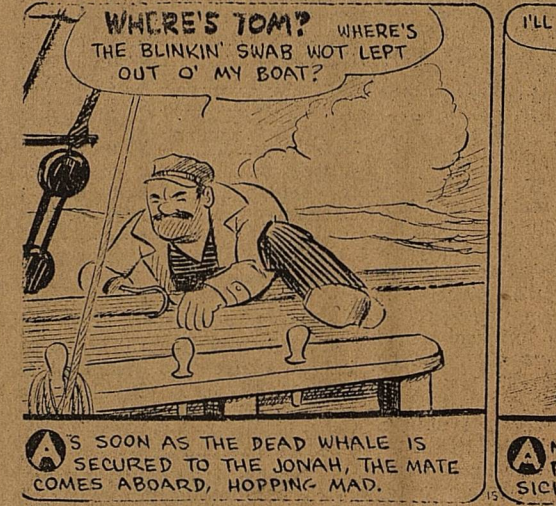

Jim had started to examine some of Core's books when the sound of someone coming down the stairs caused him to turn. Vida Core! It was the woman who had met Jim Bradier by the ruins of the temple. Beautiful as she had been in her riding clothes, the white silk of her dinner gown clinging to her slender seductive body made her a vision now. A luring, tempting vision to any man.

Bradier crossed swiftly, eagerly, to her. The fact that she was another man's wife and that he was a dinner guest in that man's home were not attractive to him. He gathered her in his arms, pulling her ardently to him. His hard lips pressed against her rounded, full ones.
"Ouch!" she grimaced, and then smiled. "Are you afraid I'll run away?"
"Yes. I'll never be sure of you. Nobody could be. When I was away, I used to have sickening fears you might change your mind."
Vida shrugged. "Why should I?" (See WOMAN I STOLE, page 4)

It's all so simple. I don't want to live with Stephen. I do want to live with you. She paused. "Jim, I believe in your heart you think I'm really wicked."

more impressive—more desirable—more. He laughed suddenly. "Vida, they all think I came back for oil. Ugh! I've come to hate the smell of it. I'm through with it—I want perfume—you! I've laid out the rest of our lives like a Cook's Tour, only we won't go where tourists go. We'll go places that aren't even on the map. I've wanted things before and taken them, but now—this—you—let's leave right away—tonight—after dinner."

INDIANS HIT STRIDE TO BEAT WINK OILERS IN 4-3 PERMIAN GAME SUNDAY

By JESS RODGERS

The Midland Indians served warning yesterday that they would no longer be considered anyone's stepping stone in the Permian Basin league when they showed a complete reversal of form and downed the Wink Oilers in a 4-3 thriller that kept the customers on their feet until the final batter was retired in the ninth inning.

While Mayfield was showing visible signs of tiring in the last three innings Brown ended stronger than he started, striking out two men in the ninth. He retired the team by striking out Calloway who went in as a pinch hitter in the last.

The Indians were held hitless through the first five innings and only had three men on base, two on walks and one on the only error made by the Oilers.

The Oilers scored once in the fourth when they put two hits together with a wild pitch by Brown to send Johnson across with the first run of the day. The Indians tied it up in the sixth when Moreno led off with the first local hit of the day. Stevens forced Moreno at second, Cook singled and Stevens was called out at third on a decision over which the umpires disagreed.

The base umpire called Stevens safe but was overruled by the umpire behind the plate and the runner was called out. Collum immediately came through with a terrific crash to right field to score Cook and Collum pulled up at third. The hit was a sure home run for anyone but Collum was playing with a charleyhorse that restricted his running to a minimum speed.

In the seventh after Lybrand and Clingan led off with hits Brown struck out the next two men but Mayfield hit a high fly to Cook in the sun field which Cook dropped and both runners scored.

Midland got one hit in this inning but no runs materialized and the locals came into the eighth still trailing by two runs. To start this inning Moreno tied out to center then the locals started their winning rally. Stevens singled, Cook doubled, Stevens to third, and the bases were loaded when Collum was hit by a pitched ball. Warren struck out to make two down but Howard, hitting for the injured Hill, walked to force in a run. Manager Ellis, who had taken Girdley's place then came up and with call on him one and one hit a line single over second base to send home two runners and win a ball game. Woody was an easy out, pitcher to first but it was too late for the Oilers. In the ninth Brown forced Clingan to hit an easy roller to Moreno for the first out and then struck out Seibold and Calloway.

With the acquisition of the little Mexican Moreno at short, the Indian infield played as a unit yesterday and did not make an error and with Cook, Stevens, and Collum each hitting the ball hard they did not even resemble the same ball

Emblem of Nazis Kept Patrons Away

DETROIT (UP)—Swastikas won't mix with beer—not in a German-Jewish neighborhood.

That's what Ben Kramer found out when he opened his chophouse he hopes to convert into a beer garden soon.

Hundreds of customers came to the opening—came and saw the swastika designs on the wallpaper and left.

"How was I to know the swastikas stand for Germany's Nazis?" Ben lamented. "I thought they were just good luck emblems."

Needless to say, Ben has ordered the emblems destroyed.

Crawford, Cooper Please Yucca Crowd Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper, with a strong supporting cast, please large audiences Sunday and at the Saturday night preview in "Today We Live," showing again today at the Yucca theatre.

Miss Crawford appears in the role of a British ambulance nurse and Cooper as an American flyer.

The picture is replete with thrills from air battles and torpedo boat action.

However, the war merely provides a strong background for a plot which brings out the best in the two popular actors. The story was written by William Faulkner and directed by Howard Hawks of "Scarface" fame.

A struggle of life and love is uppermost, although comedy is introduced by the humorous philosophy of Roscoe Karns.

Qualifying play is to start on the morning of June 1 on the sporty country club course that is difficult enough to offer a true test of golfing skill, yet not too tough for the rank and file of golfing sportsmen. The preliminary test will be over the 18 hole route with the 32 low scorers qualifying for championship play. Every entry, however, will qualify for match play and enough flights of 32 players each will be arranged to care for all entries. Two rounds are to be played daily on June 2 and 3, with the final day of the tourney falling on Sunday, set aside for finals in all flights. The championship match will extend over the 36-hole distance, all others

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich. May 9, 1933. A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future. Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it. Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method---new political and financial machinery---to pull us out the way we are going---forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office. And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can. The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back. Henry Ford
