Report On Enemy Casualties

1500 Japs Killed On Attu Is Growing In

WASHINGTON, June 2 (P)—More than L500 Japanese were killed and four were captured during the first 30 days of fighting on Attu Island, the navy reported today, as operations on the formerly enemy held Island continued in a mopping up phase.

A communique said that from the start of the American invasion of Attu May 11 through midnight of May 30 the enemy casualities were so estimated. A navy spokesman, amplifying, said that the estimate was based on an actual count of bodies and that the total number killed might have been 50 or 100 per cont greater.

It would be impossible, for instance, to estimate the number killed by high explosive naval shells or those buried by their comrades under the snow.

The number of enemy soldiers remaining on Attu could not be estimated therefore, even though the Japanese have reported that there were approximately 3,000 of their force on the island to start with, and also reliable estimates here have ranged around 3,000.

The navy communique said that on May 31st, on Attu Island, mopping up operations by United States army troops against isolated Japanese groups continued. As of midnight May 30th, the Japanese casualities on Attu were estimated as follows: Killed—1,500. Captured—four.

On May 3ist, formations of army Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers and Warhawk fighters bombed and strafed Japanese positions at Kiska. Hits were scored on the runway, north head and Gertrude Cove.

This was the first comprehensive report of enemy casualties given out by American sources. A report on one night's operations which was issued by the navy Tuesday said that 400 of the enemy were slain between dusk and dawn of May 29-30. Another earlier war bulletin disclosed that an entire counter-attacking force had been wiped out in one action at dawn of May 29 but no count was given.

The summary communique today was described as everyther both of these specific but.

The summary communique today was described as covering both of those specific battles and all other operations from the time of the first landing of American forces on Attu on May 11.

LESS DRIVING-MORE SERVICE?

Flores.

In many cases, the effect of wartime conditions on car driving is a considerable reduction in the distance a car

And the strange effect of this is that it can happen that less driving may create a need for more service.

Official sources have said that any car which travels less than 90 miles a month does not get enough "exercise" to keep in good "trim." While this low mileage may not always prevail here, the same kind of logic calls for a recasting of ideas about servicing.

That's why it is a smart move to go into the details of possible special servicing requirements resulting from wartime driving. A good car dealer is always glad to talk over problems concerned with car care and driving habits, and is always glad to give helpful advice.

If the way you use your car now is changed to any extent from peacetime habits, it may have made necessary a new lant on the attention you give it. It pays to know about such possibilities and make sure your car is getting the proper attention whether it results in more service or less.

"Manila Bay is mined and no enemy ships can ever get in under the guns of Corregidor and the other forts guarding the entrance to the bay. Corregidor, itself, of course is impregnable."

Our war strategy, as we worked it out, was for the heavy bombers to attack Formosa and Hainan Island and mess up the enemy transports before they reached Luzon. Admiral Hart's patrol planes would spot the enemy ships, and the subs and destroyers and cruisers would tear into them. If any survived to reach the islands, American forces would mop them up on the beaches and chase them back into the sea. Then the U.S. Fleet would come out and close in behind the Japs in and the Dutch had a strong force of American airplanes and a small but capable navy.

With Ray Cronin and Russell establishments around Manila. We saw P-40's landing and taking off at Nichols Field and talked to some a red-hot airplane with plenty of grain, guns and plenty of speed, but was a little heavy to handle. Being Americans, we agreed that it was undoubtedly the best pursuit ship in the world, certainly better than anything the Japs could hope to have. The defense picture in the Philippines appeared reassuring. A few days later, making his first public appearance in months, President Quezon told students gathered on the campus of the University of the Philippines, Bombs may be falling on campus soon." Some of the students laughed, and Quezon raised his arms over his head and shouted into the microphone, "It can hap-pen, I tell you."

Ship Construction More Than Losses WASHINGTON, June 2. (F)

The navy's submarine arm and the ship-building maritime commission fed the Axis a bitter dos of information about the war on the high seas today.

Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, chief of the commission's gibury, Neb., former commanding gantic construction program, anounced that U. S. merchant ship were on foreign fields, Lieut, William and the construction program, and the construction program p vessels of 1,782,000 deadweight tons went down the ways in May, a new record. This followed war mobili-zation Director James F. Byrnes' report that building is running four times greater than sinking. U. S. submarines have been credited in navy announcements with attacks on 240 Japanese ves-sels of which 169 were listed as sunk, 27 probably sunk, and 44 Vickery also revealed that pro-

Fifth Futile Raid On West Coast Told

PORT ORFORD, Ore., June 2 (A)—The public learned today of the enemy's futile attack on the west coast, a sneak incendiary raid by a lone sirplane more than eight months ago.

Believed launched from a Japanese submarine last Septembe 28, the plane flew over the Oregon coast in early-morning fog so dense a forest service lookout was unable to see the ship although it droned directly by his tower on a mountain near here.

The lookout, Lauren B. Giebner, followed the sound, of the motor as it moved northeastward. He heard a blast and saw a flash. Giebner reported to forest headquarters and watched sharply for the fire. When the fog lifted two hours later, he spotted it in a heavily timbered canyon three

Downtown Stroller

There's nothing sadder than a person trying to read his morning newspaper at the breakfast counter and still trying to be polite to those who will sit down and try to talk. There ought to be separate tables for those who want to read through their breakfast and those who want to talk through their ham and.

Had a chat with Mrs. DAVID ZUBRIN, whose husband is a bom-bardier instructor stationed out at the post. Mrs. ZURBIN was quite excited over a trip she will take soon to her home in Detroit, Mich.

Visiting in town for a few days are Mr. and Mrs. EUGENE McNALLEN of Vancouver, Wash, and former Big Spring residents. GENE McNALLEN and MATT HARRINGTON, long time friends, were enjoying a visit together downtown when we saw them.

Seems the USO is really going to put the big pot in the little one, or something, come Sunday when it observes open house. Mrs. ANNE GIB-SON HOUSER, program director, was talking about the arrangements the other day and is justly proud of the progress the spot has made since its small beginnings.

The wedding of BILLY SAM DARBY and CHRISSIE MOORE in the S. DARBY home Tuesday morning must have been quite a lovely after from what we hear. The young couple will take quite an extended in before returning here to make their home. SONORA MURPHEY has evidence that her vacation wasn't all play. She spent most of her time working on her new home painting and doing lots of jobs. One of her friends suapped her picture as she was painting a kitchen cabinet, and since SONORA didn't think the indoor film would take, she made no protests. It is quite a picture and SONORA and her chums have been laughing over it over since the's been back at work.

HOLLYWOOD — Edward Dmy-tryk, the young director who in "Hitter's Children" gave a film discourse on life under the Nazi swastika, is doing the same job on life under the Son of Heaven.

The picture is called "Behind the Rising Sun," with title and a few incidents borrowed from reporter James R. Young's book. The screenplay concerns boy (Tom Neal) and girl (Margo) plus Tojo's way of life. You can guess where that ends.

I asked Dmytryk if he were showing the Japs as real grade-A villains. His reply:

"This isn't a hate picture. It's an attempt to show the Japs as ney really are—the kind of human beings they are, influenced as they are by the militaristic rese. We're taking this Japanese who goes to Harvard and gets American point of view. Then take him back to Japan where army gets him. We show how, by step, he becomes brutal-i. It isn't a quick process. At first he is horrified, but silent, ovthings he sees done in Then he becomes less horbecomes accustomed to Finally he is comtely changed—becomes the one gun—that plane." And all of this is well and good—for it is all wonderfully true.

Bond Investments Migrant Thwart Inflation

But every penny invested in war bonds and stamps (and kept invested) is a penny that will not stand as a threat of destruction for all of our savings and holdings. Surplus money in this day and time is dangerous if not properly handled. It can become as treacherous as our worst enemy if we allow it to compete on a market increasingly short of consumer goods. That money needs to be put out of sight—used to retire debts or to purchase war bonds. Many people will say: "We may be making more money than ever before, but we don't seem to have a thing left for bonds." This, generally speaking, is an open admission that these are contributing unconsciously to the swelling tide of inflation. Bond investment should by no means be limited to our easy surplus—but should come ot of sacrificial saving.

The easiest way to control the danger of economic collapse is for all of us to hold our buying to the minimum, to do without things, to earn our bond money by saving it. It's patriotic. It's important.

MELBOURNE, June 2 (P) — Since Japan entered the war Allied air forces in the Pacific have destroyed 1,100 enemy aircraft, probably destroyed 382 other planes and damaged 430, Air Min-lister A. S. Drakeford reported last Drakeford said Japanese ship-plug losses were 446 ships of all types aggregating 2,224,600 tons. The losses include two battle-ships, six aircraft carriers, nine heavy cruisers, eight light cruisers, 70 destroyers, 25 submarines and 300 merchant ships

Diplomats in Washington are watching the progress of these bills like hawks. They could have a profound effect on relations between the "Big Four" of the United Nations right now, and even more far-reaching repercussions on postwar planning.

Right now, relations with China can best be described as "touchy." Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has done a herculean job of holding dissident elements in line, and keeping China steadfastly in the United Nations ranks.

It is known, however, that a defeatist block in Chungking has been exerting pressure to make a "reasonable" deal with Japan. Japanese propagandists have been fostering this movement with every available means. It was nearly ten o'clock, according to Penny's watch, when they emerged from the thinning pines and saw ahead the pale glimnot."

"Maybe you were tailing Bill," she weren't so worn out. This suggested Penny indifferently, as if it really didn't matter to her. He snorted. "Maybe — maybe her physically and mentally. And not." now, more than any time in her life before, she needed to be alert. Her movements, when the time came, must be deft and sure. Otherwise - otherwise everything would be lost....

Penny felt suddenly the whole burden of the responsibility which had fallen upon her shoulders. Not only for herself, but for Bill, for Powell, for Cleve, she must succeed. Yes, and for many more, perhaps, whom she had never seen and never would. For her country and for the whole world. "Get a move on." growled Stringer, as her hands slowed under the overpowering weight of this thought.

Gritting her teeth, Penny push-ed the jagged end of the tin of corn she was opening into her She gave a little exclamation

"What's the matter now?" he demanded, exasperated.

"I cut my hand," she told him apologetically. "Nothing serious. But Ill have to get some gause and adhesive tape to bandage it with. It won't take a minute."
"Hell," he said. "All right, but make it snappy."

Penny opened her kit hurriedly, got out the things necessary to bind her self-inflicted injury and, along with them, the little box she'd come across this afternoon while fixing her hurt knee. The latter she slipped surreptitiously into her breeches' pocket praying that in the increasing dimness Bert Stringer wouldn't notice. Then having taken care of her hand, she came back.

Under his increasingly abusive urging and the stress of her own increased tension, she had the meal prepared in no time. "Well," he said, mollified after
