The Town Quack
(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

"Support your government with heart and soul," cried the orator.
And there was deafening applause.
And then the orator went to his office, looked himself in and began figuring ways and means of beating the income tax.
"Nearly all ailments are imaginary," cried the doctor.
Then he went home, and was struck by appendicitis. That night he underwent an operation, and he groaned louder than any other patient in the building.
"Let's print all the news," cried the editor. The next day his wife eloped with a Mexican bull fighter, and the editor made no mention of it.
"I always attend to my own affairs," cried Curb Stone Charlie. A minute later he was hit in the eye, for having told around town that a man had to jump out of a window the night before.
"I will never marry," cried Miss Florence Plat, at the funeral of her sweetheart.
Three months later she married a widower with four children.
"I believe the government should be overturned on account of its existence."

SIMPLE, BUT EFFECTIVE

The foreman of a grand jury in a mid-western city recently started the law enforcement officials of his town by initiating his own investigation into the activities of racketeers and gangsters. Among the things he sought to find out was why the police were not readier to move against criminals for possession of firearms.
"The police chief," he pointed out, "must know 50 racketeers and criminals who go about the city carrying guns, or accompanied by bodyguards who carry guns. Why can't these men be arrested and prosecuted for carrying concealed weapons?"
Why, indeed? That's a question a vast number of citizens would like to have answered. The laws of practically every state provide penalties for carrying concealed weapons.
It is a trifle hard for the ordinary citizen to understand why an alert administration could not use this law to put a very material crimp in the activities of an underworld which habitually goes armed.

FORDS TRIUMPH IN HARD TESTS

Six Ford V-8 cars piloted by Dutch drivers triumphed conclusively over five European and two other American entrants in the fifth annual running of the grueling 5-day International Alpine Trial over 1,165 miles of Swiss, Italian and French mountain roads, according to official reports of the race just concluded here.
Three of the winning Fords driven by a Dutch team captained by Dr. J. J. Sprenger van Eyck captured the coveted Coupe des Alpes, while the three other Fords won the first three places in the individual competition for the Coupe des Glaciers. The first two tied for first place with the best score of any of the dozens of contestants in the five classes competing.
The annual Alpine contest is probably the most severe test of motor car endurance and performance conducted in Europe. It is open only to stock cars as sold to the public. Its route from Merano, vi St. Moritz, Turin and Granoble to Nice, includes the ascent and descent of 12 major passes, with steep winding roads, scores of dangerous "hair-pin" turns and a never-ending changes from a Ford driven by a Baker to a Chevrolet driven by a Skipper?

variety of road surfaces, which test alike the stamina of the cars and the skill of the drivers.
Most difficult of all the passes is the Stelvio, in the Order Alps between Italy and Switzerland. It rises to 9,150 feet above sea level. The highway leading to it is the highest automobile road in the world. In the course of the 11 mile climb from the valley, the drivers were forced to negotiate 52 "hair-pin" bends before reaching the snow-capped top of the mountain.
The Ford cars and other competitors in the principal class were required to make the ascent of this difficult pass at an average of 28 miles an hour. Many were forced to stop along the way to replenish the water in their violently steaming radiators but the Ford cars came up the pass in formation without a halt and continued their journey without adding water.
At the final inspection of the competing cars at the finish in Nice where penalties were imposed for faults in condition, the Ford cars were rased without penalty and the drivers complimented by the judges upon the condition of the cars, both mechanically and in appearance.

Disputes Right of Lenin's Widow to Be Russian "Softy"

MOSCOW (UP)—His recent public demand for better treatment of the children of "liquidated" classes again has drawn attention to Aaron Soliz, one of the most interesting figures in the Bolshevik hierarchy.
It is characteristic of his personality and reputation that his latest move, like those in the past, is in the role of advocate for oppressed individuals. It justifies the sobriquet "Conscience of the Party" often applied to him.
Soliz is a member of the Presidium of the Central Control Commission of the Party, the body which acts on complaints and seeks to maintain the "purity" of the Communist ranks. He also is a judge in the Supreme Court.
One of Old Bolsheviks
His standing and authority, however, are due to his own history, rather than the positions he occupies. As one of the diminishing groups of Old Bolsheviks, whose revolutionary career dates back to the last century, he has a special position. This is strengthened by the fact that he was a collaborator of Lenin from the earliest days of the Bolshevik faction, was coeditor of seven times under different names by the Tsar's government, escaped six times and supported Lenin in the critical days of 1917.
The uniqueness of Soliz's standing is that he has won for himself the privilege of being slightly softened in a hard-boiled revolutionary epoch. Again and again he has

"First should be served real caviar," he said. "This should be followed with a cup of green turtle soup, given added flavor by the addition of some fine sherry wine. Then should come some English sole with white wine sauce. Next, a whole roast partridge, with bread sauce and bread crumbs. Very small and tender stringless beans should be served for the vegetable and a nice green salad with just a suggestion of garlic, then assorted cheeses and a bowl of assorted nuts and fruits."

London's trains, buses and street railways carried a total of 2,236,000,000 passengers last year.

Halloween Books, Articles, Poems In County Library

How to give a Halloween party, the story of the origin of Halloween, stories for the entertainment of youngsters at a Halloween party, suggestions for parents, games to play, decorations to make, what kind of refreshments to serve are some of the problems brought about by Halloween pranks in a large city—these are told in books, magazine articles, pamphlets, etc., at the Midland county library, a list of which the librarian compiled at the request of this paper.

There are several books in the library which deal in whole or in part with this subject. "God Times for All Times" by Lamkin tells of appropriate entertainment for Halloween. Another is Wolcott's "Book of Games and Parties for All Occasions." Suggestions for parties are also given in Cokesbury party book by Depue.

A wealth of information, presented in interesting articles, can be found in the library as follows: "Bertram and the Witch's Cat"—Gilbert in "Child Life"—Oct. 1933. "Carnes for 'Halloween'"—Child Life—Oct. 1933. "Stuck Spooks To Make"—Junior Home—Oct. 1933.

"National Occasions for Merry Making"—American City—Oct. 1933.

One poem on the subject is in the library, "Halloween" by Roberts Burns in his collection of poetry.

Play Review

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following review of "Dangerous Corner" was prepared by Mrs. Rawlins Clark after she read the drama at a meeting of the Play Readers club Wednesday afternoon.

"Dangerous Corner" a three-act play by J. B. Priestly, had a fair run in New York. The author takes the novelistic rather than dramatic trend in presenting a very complicated combination of events which unravel and reveal themselves when a passing comment was made on a cigarette box which was owned by a brother to one of the characters who supposedly had committed suicide.

The keynote of the play is centered around the parable "Let Sleeping Dogs Lie." The conversation reveals that every character was hiding something, or at least has been telling only half of the truth. The climax is about to be reached when the author springs the surprise ending.

The author has presented what would have been revealed had all the characters told all the truth. We agree with the author that one should 'let sleeping dogs lie.'

Shaving Mirror Starts Big Fire

THREE RIVERS, Cal. (UP)—A shaving mirror, and a hot sun got together with the result that a fire was started at the Maxon camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps the other day.

The sun's rays, focused by the mirror, set fire to Charles Myers' hat and bunk and was well started on his tent when other members of the camp extinguished it.

Mrs. O. A. Tisdale and Mr. and Mrs. Swed Anderson were here Saturday from McCamey.

Mr. and Mrs. Luke Long of Colorado are spending the week end with his brother, W. M. Long.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Hightower are the proud parents of a baby girl.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kling attended Christian revival in Midland Monday evening.

Mrs. Jessie Garrison and children and Mrs. Paul King spent the day with Mrs. J. M. King Saturday.

A group of Greenwood B. Y. P. U. workers expects to attend the associational B. Y. P. U. meeting at Stanton this afternoon at 3 p. m.

HELPFUL HEALTH SUGGESTIONS

STRUCTURE OF THE TEETH.
By M. Elizabeth Wilson,
County Health Nurse.

Four structures have to be considered in the dental research.

Enamel: This is the hardest structure in the human body, and consists, chemically, of keratin, inorganic salts, calcium phosphate and water. As this covering is of such hard material it is entirely unlikely that it could contain living matter, but certain investigators have, and are still maintaining that the enamel does contain living matter. Substances may diffuse into and through the enamel from the other side, but this, of course, might occur in the absence of living matter.

Dentine: This layer consists of organic matter, calcium phosphate water and inorganic salts. This is of very porous structure. That the dentine contains living matter is not doubted and the development of historical technique readily give graphic evidence that the tubules are filled with soft organic matter.

Cementum: This is a layer of bone like material that is found on the exterior of the dentine. It is capable of constant construction and destruction, but contains living protoplasm. It is much softer than either dentine or enamel, and contains less organic matter and is better nourished.

Pulp: On the interior of the tooth is a cavity which is filled with a soft mass consisting of blood vessels and nerves. The pulp is a very highly vascular tissue. An exchange of metabolism products between the odontoblasts and the blood vessels of the pulp may occur easily. This insures a fairly efficient exchange in the dentine as will be discussed later.

Fuzzless Peach Is Calif. Perfection

BOISE, Idaho. (UP)—Development of a "fuzzless" peach which may be eaten without the customary irritation to the mouth has made rapid progress in Idaho during the past season, farm agencies reported.

The peach, technically termed as the "Candoka peach," is deep red in color, resembling somewhat an apple. It lacks down and may be ripened on the tree for shipment.

Mugs Are Returned By Church Pastor

ROBINSON, Ill. (UP)—One hundred and twenty mugs, bought by a Robinson minister to be used for serving water at a revival meeting, were returned to the seller because they resembled mugs used in serving beer.

The minister apologized to the objecting revival committee and carried the mugs back to the store where the purchase was made and exchanged them for glasses.

Nutritive value can be saved by cooking potatoes in their skins.

Do you trade your house every January?

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

The golden days of the glib salesman and the tricky trader and the careless buyer of cars, are over and gone. It will be long before we see their like again.

Every family in America knows that buying a car today represents about double the investment it did several years ago. Not that car prices have gone up, but family incomes have gone down. The national income which was $4 billions in 1929 is less than 40 billions in 1933.

This means that everybody is striving to make every outgoing dollar bring back an equal value in quality. And that is right.

No country ever comes to economic trouble where values are kept equal. It is only when a man gives honest labor for the dollar which he receives, and is given dishonest value for the dollar which he spends, that the nation's life becomes unbalanced and broken. This is an old lesson in Bible economics that we ought to have learned.

Buying a car and buying a house are on nearly the same level of importance in the mind of the American family just now. They are both major investments. Both are considered from the point of long-term use and value.

We do not buy houses to trade them for new models every January. When we buy a house we expect to make it a home that will give us long, comfortable and economical use. More than that, we expect that the money price will be so evenly matched with the real value of the house that we may reasonably hope to get back the unused part of our investment should we dispose of it.

Cars are now being considered in exactly the same way. People are not buying the sales talk invented by sellers. They are buying the quality created by manufacturers. And quality is doing the talking.

Our experience is that the real talk about a car comes after the car is bought and is in use. That is the talk we rely on.

Intelligent buying is going on in this country. Many families are making a solid investment in a new car. We know this because of the way people have bought the Ford V-8 in the last few months. It has been the choice of every class of car user, both those who can afford to pay more, and those who must carefully economize.

This car is the logical answer to the careful buyer's search for value.

JIM CANTRILL'S BIG BAD WOLVES RUN WILD FOR 54-6 WIN

IMPROVED MIDLAND TEAM NOT HEAVY ENOUGH TO STOP INVADERS; FIGHT IS REGISTERED, HOWEVER, EVERY DOWN

While the milifluous beauties of the Midland pep squad sang "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolves?" the wild timber pack of Big Jim Cantrill Friday afternoon sent Messrs. E. Stagner, M. C. Lowry, Red Morrison and J. C. Priestner in line-jarring, end-sweeping and aerial-snatching sallies that brought Colorado high school's black jerseys a crushing 54-6 win over the Purple and Gold.

MIDLAND SEES TORTURE CARS

What is probably the most brutal punishment ever devised to test an automobile was witnessed by persons who saw the two Socony-Vacuum "Torture" cars pass through Midland enroute from New York to Los Angeles on a transcontinental "Torture" tour. The two "Torture" cars were piloted through Midland by officials of the Magnolia Petroleum company whose stations and dealers are supplying the Mobilgas, Mobil and Mobilgrease used for the tests. The torture consists in driving the cars day and night, without radiators and without water. The cars are standard sedans and were prepared for the tests merely by removing the radiators and installing temperature indicating instruments. The tortures were devised by Socony-Vacuum and Magnolia engineers as a means of testing the efficiency of Mobilgas and Mobiloil and was first attempted in Death Valley when even the high temperatures of that famous "hot spots" were found not to be great enough to satisfy them.

The drivers eat their meals in the cars while enroute and are replaced by relief drivers while the cars are in motion. To keep the men mentally alert at all times and thus to guard against "man failure" that would ruin the entire expedition, the drivers travel ahead by Socony-Vacuum airplane when they are not driving. As each driver completes his tour of duty he is carried by airplane to the city of which he is to rejoin the expedition. He arrives far enough ahead so that he can get a good night's rest in a hotel bed.

The Magnolia Petroleum company, a Socony-Vacuum company, is sponsoring the "Torture Tour" through the Southwest.

Colorado made 23 first downs, Midland six. Scoring began almost immediately after the first kickoff. Stagner snapped a pass and carried it down to the Midland 10-yard line, and Morrison dashed off tackle for the score. Colorado missed the try for placement.

Midland evidently did not sense the value of passing about this time, when Colorado was opposing Midland's double wing-back offensive with an eight-man line or else the Wolves were giving the Bulldogs little time for clear thinking. At any rate, Midland chose to run plays at the line and sweeps off the ends. Passing was necessary frequently and Colorado soon hits its scoring stride.

Stagner took a 20-yard pass from Morrison and galloped 20 more yards for the second score. Just before the first period ended, he blocked Nobles' punt near the Midland goal line and recovered it in the end zone. Church converted, to make the score for the period 19-0.

Midland then electrified the packed stands when its club staged a well-mixed revue of line plays and sweeps to move to the five-yard line, where G. Jones flipped a pass into the arms of McWilliams in the end zone. Not a man was within yards of the dusty little end, or for that matter, F. H. Lanham, the other end.

Colorado was not slow to crowd on the steam and start a line-flattening drive for another touchdown. The powerful Stagner again took a pass from Morrison and dashed 20 yards to score. Church converted. The half gun barked with the score standing at 26-6.

With time out came a colorful drill of the pep squads and the Midland band.

The Midland club touched off a flare of stubborn holding that twice early in the third period, caused Colorado to lose the ball in striking distance of the Bulldog goal. Dub Stanley, kicking for the first time during the afternoon, got off a regular university calibre punt, the ball spinning out of bounds for a distance of 4 yards. Colorado scored when Stagner was dropped on the Midland 25 and a pass to Lowry placed the ball over the line. Church converted, to make the score 33-6.

Soon afterward, Stagner ran for 12 yards and a score, and Church converted to make the count 40-6. Church grabbed a pass one of his men had slipped out of the hands of a Midland pass receiver and raced over from the Midland 16-yard stripe for the next counter, and Church converted to make the total 47-6. A Midland pass which was intercepted by Jack Cox on the Midland 36 and run back 10 yards made the last touchdown possible. Line play gained eight yards, and Stagner carried the ball on a short end run to the Midland five. Stagner hit left guard for two yards, and Lowry carried the ball over. Church converted to make the final score 54-6.

McWilliams' game at end was sensational. He was easily the outstanding man on the Midland squad. Although at times he was boxed in and shut out of plays, he played with a despairing fury that fanned Colorado backs in the hands several times. He was looked upon by several Colorado players as he usually handles easily, but he was wide awake at every moment and "called" Colorado plays almost every down. He was badly nipped by the heavier Coloradoans but fought every minute. Jack Priestner at center also played an outstanding game. At moments, Gordon Jones, Dub Stanley, Roy Johnson, Johnny Nobles and others looked good, but superior weight of the invaders smothered attempts to pick

"Goodbye Again," a Lusty, High Spiced Comedy Hit, Plays Today, Monday, Ritz

Laughter in every degree, from the snicker and the chuckle to the full-lunged guffaw that shakes the diaphragm and sends vest buttons bouncing down theatre aisles, greeted first National's comedy drama screen version of the big Broadway stage success, "Goodbye Again" last evening at the Ritz Theatre, where the picture had its premiere with Warren William, Joan Blondell and Genevieve Tobin in the principal parts. The picture also shows there today and tomorrow.

"Goodbye Again" is a welcome change from the drab realism of many modern pictures and the audience lustily manifested their appreciation of the new note in entertainment. Refreshingly different in plot, and sailing along saucily under a strong breeze of smart dialogue, the picture is a laugh tonic for young and old alike.

When an author of best sellers finds one of his most popular heroines coming to life suddenly in the person of an old sweetheart of his college days, who has grown into her conventional business-man husband, and is ready to come back to "the only man who ever understood her," what is a poor author to do?

There may be several answers to this question. One is to write a novel. Another is to write a play. A third is to write a screen play. A fourth is to write a radio play. A fifth is to write a comic strip. A sixth is to write a musical. A seventh is to write a story. An eighth is to write a poem. A ninth is to write a short story. A tenth is to write a novel.

Warren William makes a comically pathetic figure of a celebrated author, who is a lion in letters, but a lamb among the ladies. Genevieve Tobin contributes a delightful study of the lovelorn Julia, a survival of mid-Victorian days. Joan Blondell as Anne, the long-suffering secretary and sweetheart of the philandering Bixby, is charming and poignant. Julia's family are vividly typed by Hugh Herbert in the role of the husband, Helen Chandler as sister Elizabeth and Wallace Ford as Elizabeth's fiancé, lawyer Westlake, who is all for settling the scandal out of court.

Michael Curtiz has directed "Goodbye Again" with an eye to every comedy value and implication. The result is a confection of spicily and subtly as anything that has come across the screen this year.

See Seadromes As Jobless Aid

WILMINGTON, Del. (UP)—Ten thousand men will be given work for the next two years in the plans of Edward R. Armstrong materialize. Armstrong, formerly a research engineer with the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, has asked the Federal Government to loan him $30,000,000 for the construction of five floating airbases between the United States and Europe.

The islands, which would be under American control, would provide landing fields for a frequent and safe trans-Atlantic flying service.

The seadrome route is no idle dream, but a scientific project upon which Armstrong has been working for the past 20 years. He has demonstrated the ability of the seadromes to withstand waves and rough seas with a one-ton model. According to his plans, the floating islands would be constructed in the Delaware Bay, off Cape May, N. J., and towed to their anchorage at sea.

Each island would contain a hotel, airplane hangers, a fast motor launch for rescues in the event a plane was forced down at sea, and general repair shops. Present plans call for a distance of 450 miles between the seadromes, or about the same distance as between Washington and Buffalo, N. Y.

Amphibian planes would be used.

Heavy Slump Hits Scenic Swiss Inns

GENEVA. (UP)—The hotel business in Switzerland, its third most important industry after banking and watch-making, is in a critical condition.

Swiss hotel owners have informed their government that the number of foreign visitors is so reduced and taxes and interest charges so excessive that many of them face ruin.

The number of tourists this year has been 45 to 55 per cent less than from 1928 to 1930. Reductions, because of enforced price reductions, have fallen off 65 per cent.

The hotel operators have decided to ask the railroads to reduce their rates 30 per cent to attract foreign visitors. A drive will be made to make 1934 "the year to visit Switzerland."

The conference, in order to make prices of Swiss hotels more attractive to travelers, decided to discipline its members energetically to prevent abuses of "extras" such as wine, tea, coffee, which appear on hotel bills. They have informed the government of their opposition to an increased tax on drinks.

Tourist traffic in Switzerland has been light this year because of America's departure from the gold standard. Americans now find Swiss prices far beyond their reach.

WHAT are the PURCHASING AGENTS DOING?

EVERY big company has one or more men whose entire time is devoted to buying the things which that company needs.

These men are specialists. It is their business to know prices . . . materials . . . sources of supply . . . present and future trends. They are the shrewdest, canniest buyers in the world.

But all of us, in a small way, are purchasing agents. We have to buy a certain number of things, if only to keep alive. And most of us aren't very skillful at it. We waste a lot of money. We miss the good bargains. In fact, we could learn a great deal by watching a professional buyer at his work.

At this time, especially, it may be helpful to know what the big purchasing agents are doing. Are they cutting down? Are they opening up? Do they think this is a good time to buy or a bad time? What do they think about the future?

Well, the answer is that they are all buying as fast as they can buy. And they are buying because they know that prices are going up.

"Pig iron has advanced 13%", the purchasing agent of a $20,000,000 corporation recently said. "Brass is up 42 1/2%. I am paying 41% more for lumber than I did in March, and fiber packing cases have doubled in price. In fact, everything we use in this business is costing us more today, and will in my opinion cost us still more tomorrow. I believe . . . that many commodities will be back to or near 1929 levels by spring."

That's the way the professional purchasing agents feel about it. And they know. They have special sources of information. They are closely in touch with industry. They have studied the workings of the NRA codes.

Prices are going up. And it's a good thing for everyone. For things had come to the point where nothing had any true value. A man's time . . . his product . . . his property . . . all had sunk so low in value that he couldn't even get a decent living.

That couldn't go on. So the Government set up the machinery of the NRA codes in order to make everything worth something again.

This process is now under way. Wages are being raised. Commodities are bringing better prices every day. But it is not yet over. Before fair values . . . living values . . . can be reached, prices will have to go higher than they are now.

Before they do, take a leaf from the purchasing agent's book, and lay in a supply of the things you need. There are many good bargains still to be had. But these stocks are strictly limited. Now is the time to buy.
