RECOVERY ACT

By HELEN WELSHIMER

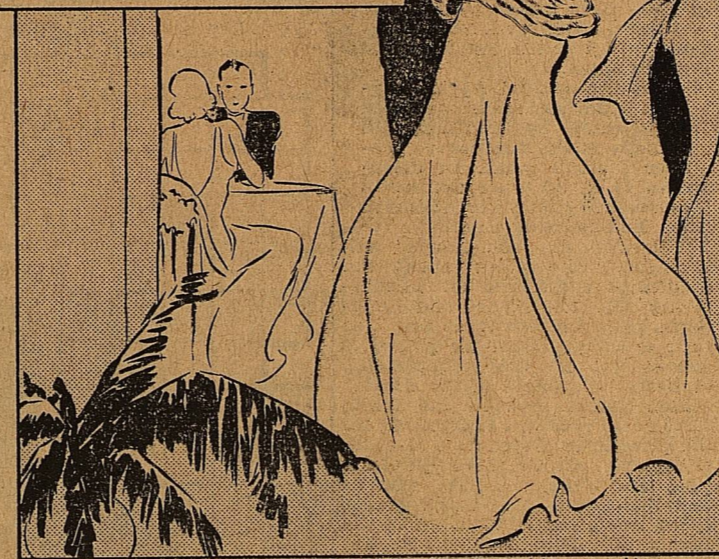

WE were going to heaven—
At least I understood
The path that we selected
Through brambles and a wood

WENT winding up to Eden,
Until you lost the way...
You saw a gipsy dancing,
You heard a piper play.

YOU ran away to find them,
Your laughter drifted back,
You dropped my heart, I picked it up
And put it in a sack.

AND took it home and told the men
I didn't like, before,
That you had run away from me,
And gone to Singapore.

IT'S probable that you have heard
The way their healing salve
Has made me gay and bright again—
At least I hope you have!

Cent a Cup Coffee Sold on Havana Streets

HAVANA. (UP)—One-cent coffee, served by a vendor on the streets here, is one of the handy by-products of the depression.

Most vendors use hygienic paper cups, which they themselves make. The coffee is home-made, and kept in thermos bottles, or a sort of container with a little flame under it. The idea started amongst some unemployed men. It has spread quickly, and there are plenty of them.

A wave of bag-snatching in women's shopping districts of Europe has made coin purses with patented fasteners popular there.

CRANES BRINGING AERIAL CIRCUS TO TOWN FOR TURKEY DAY

MIXES A RUNNING GAME OF GREAT POWER, TOO

The aerial circus of Crane comes to Midland for a 2:30 game with the Bulldog kennel Thanksgiving. Plaudits directed at the Simpson to Shackelford and Simpson to Brannon hearing combination have echoed over the district until everyone will be expecting a veritable fireworks from the invaders.

In the championship game with Wink, for instance, passes to Shackelford placed the ball on the Wink 19-yard line in the first period, and White, Crane's head quarter, loped around his end for a score when the Winkler club drew its secondary back to guard against the Crane's deadly air game.

Later in the game, utilizing a running game interspersed with passing, Crane drew in the Wink secondary and passed over it to Brannon, a 33-yard pass that again scored.

Wink beat the Cranes by two points, simply through better ability to add the extra points.

Midland will hope to confuse the invaders Turkey day with a perfected pass defense, and will seek to be on the alert as it was in the Stanton and Marfa games and in the last half of the Odessa game. Crane supposedly, with its heavier and more experienced squad, will be expected to win, but Midland will attempt such a fight as that conducted two years ago against the powerful Sweetwater club, when the ponies scored only seven points, and those in the last quarter.

ICE TONGS PULLED TOOTH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah. (UP)—Dentists had a big job on their hands when Princess Alice, zoo elephant of the Salt Lake zoo, suffered a toothache. Without benefit of an anesthetic, the animal was relieved of the tooth when four men grasped it with ice tongs. In an effort to save the tooth, which measured four inches in diameter, dentists first drilled into the cavity with a steel drill, the plugged the hole with approximately eight pounds of porcelain.

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By E. C. HANKINS

Without plunging into the maelstrom of possibility guessing about the Thanksgiving game here Thursday afternoon with the powerful grid machine from Crane, we make only one declaration: Midland will have to spring more power than exhibited this year in order to win—that is, if Crane keeps in character portrayed in last week's loss, 14-12.

In the championship game with Wink, several Midland men will make their last appearance with the Purple and Gold, however, and it is well known that players sometimes arise to supreme play when making grid valuations. The fact that anything might happen will draw many to Lackey field, the fact that Crane is powerful enough on paper to wreck Midland's offense and defense will bring out others who simply wish to see a powerful club in action. Anyone who has played for seeing Midland play Class A clubs may see the Turkey day game between the B elevens and lamp plenty of Class A calibre in the invading lineup.

Alas and alackey! Our superintendent gives us a double-barreled fight as he relates how the Cranes play football. We gather the players have horns and barbed wire tails, and that they are a squad of opportunists on every play. They spin, shift, toss the ball like it were a dwarf gourd, hit off tackle or guard like an avalanche and otherwise have a well balanced and smoothly working offense. On defense they charge and tackle and block like robots. They may play too high in the line, but they are so big and heavy they are still difficult to take out of a play. Midland linemen likely will have to change their manner of blocking—blocking high so the big men can't reach over and tag rushing backs.

The club is said to have an unorthodox shift into a short punt formation, and also employs the double wing back style of play. It is not reckoned to be as fast as Midland, taking the clubs as units, and while possibly no more versatile; has so much potential strength and enough seasoned heavy material

AGGIE-LONGHORN SERIES STARTED WAY BACK IN '94

COLLEGE STATION—Two score years ago, lacking one, an athletic competition which will reach its actual climax here Thursday afternoon on historic Kyle field, was started, for it was 39 years ago when "Varsity," now the University of Texas Longhorns, and "College," more familiarly known now as the Texas Aggies, met on the gridiron for the first time.

In undergraduate figuring that was a long time ago, and naturally much has happened athletically since then. Kyle field, the Aggies' now historic athletic home, didn't come into existence until 12 or 13 years after the score of that first game had been written into the records. Several athletic conferences in that section, including the old T.I.A.A. conference, have passed into football's Valhalla since then. The Southwest conference, of which both schools now are members, wasn't organized until 20 years after that first Aggie-Steer tussle, but at that 12 years have passed since the Aggies and Longhorns have met for a game to decide the conference title between them.

But the annual Aggie-Longhorn gridiron feud, supported increasingly by tradition, still remains as the Southwest's premier football game. In deference to the other Southwest conference games are scheduled for Thanksgiving day.

"Shucks," the "old-timers" will tell you, "who cares about the Southwest conference on Thanksgiving day. The Aggies and Longhorns played before there ever was such a thing. When we played it usually was for the championship of Texas and maybe of the South."

Real games between the teams serve as an excellent background for the game to be played here Thanksgiving day. Of the 39 Aggie-Steer tilts, the Longhorns have won 24 and the Cadets 12. Three games ended in ties. Fourteen of the Longhorns' victories came in the first 17 games. Each team has won only one game on the other's home gridiron since 1915.

Records of the day reveal that "at least 300 people were within the ropes that encircled the playing field" for that first Aggie-Longhorn game at Austin which resulted in a 38 to 0 victory for the Steers. The teams didn't meet in 1895, 1896 and 1897, but in 1898 the Aggies were ground under again by the Steers, that time by a 48 to 0 count.

After the Longhorns had won five times in three years, the Aggies broke into both the scoring and victory columns against the Longhorns in 1902 when they won the second of a two-game series by a 12 to 0 count. The first tilt of the series was scoreless. The blight of defeat hung heavily over the Cadets for the next six years. However, they lost seven and tied one of the eight games played. But then came 1909, a year which always will be remembered in Aggie-Longhorn athletic history as one of the Cadets' most glorious football years. In that season they defeated the University twice within a period of 17 days—the Aggies commonly refer to the victories as coming twice in two weeks.

Featuring Captain Louis Hamilton's 90-yard run, the Aggies scored four touchdowns and a 23 to 0 victory on a muddy field at Houston in the first game. Choc Kelly's catch of a 12-yard pass following Mike Bantel's 40-yard run gave them a touchdown and a 5 to 0 victory in the second game, played at Austin. The Longhorns missed three field goal attempts and the Aggies one in the first half of this second game.

Led by "Gristy" Beasley, the Aggies won a 14 to 8 victory in 1910, but their hopes to make it four straight were shattered when a fighting Longhorn eleven won to 0 in 1911. This game probably will rank among the greatest of Longhorns with Iraan following the Owls."

Collins now casts about in the past and, rocking gently in his rocking chair, remembers when:

"We recall two years ago Big Lake, Rankin, Iraan and Ft. Stockton were all tied for the southern half championship at about this time of the season. A district meeting was called and all of the four clubs were tossed out on eligibility counts and the flag was given to Crane, the weakest team in the circuit that year. Stanton had annexed high honors in the northern half and when Crane and Stanton met for the district championship, the score was 102 to 2 in favor of Stanton. Such a thing could have happened again this year and the Iraan Braves might even have won the pennant. Iraan does not have the team they had last year when they met Wink in the district playoff, however."

Back to the present (Bill must have the figgite—possibly remorse from that ad lib ad sundum about the calling off of the Midland-McCamey negotiations):

"Here is the reason Rankin forfeited to Crane. Rankin and Crane scheduled two games with each other for this season and agreed to count the second one as the conference affair with the first only an exhibition tilt. As a result, Bobbie Bachtel was used in the first game which Rankin won 6 to 0. Both clubs knew Bachtel was ineligible, but neither thought it made any difference. Crane won the supposedly conference game 39 to 18. Then the district dads got together and dug up an old rule which set forth that when two clubs met twice in one year, the first game should be counted in the conference standings. Then Rankin could do nothing but forfeit the first game.

"What a mixup! And it always happens in the southern half of district 9. It is all so unbusinesslike and something should be done to remedy the situation."

For once, we hasten to add, if you have yawned over this copy, blame Bill. After all, we merely dished out this copy after some indifferent editing.

hor triumphs. The Aggies were "doped" to win at will, but Arnold Kirkpatrick, Nelson Puett and other Longhorn stars were not to be denied. Following this, Aggie-Longhorn athletic relations were severed because of increasingly turbulent student sentiment.

The year 1915 was marked by the resumption of athletic relations and also by the first Aggie-Steer game to be played at College Station. The Longhorns were overwhelming favorites to win, but the Aggies, in

Barefoot Wonders Route Big Spring

BIG SPRING—Coach Thompson's Pecos Eagles, featuring a barefooted backfield, swamped Cubby Gardner's Junior high Bronchos 41 to 0 at Steer field. Joe Bob Kelton, fleet-footed Eagle quarterback, was just one of Thompson's splendid players. But Kelton drew the applause of the crowd by his swift, speedy and hard driving runs. He tabbed four of his team's touchdowns. In the other six games his team has played Kelton has averaged two touchdowns in each.

The Pecos lads scored early in the first quarter and were leading 21 to 0 at the half. First downs were 12 to 3 favor of Pecos.

Spectators were astonished at the way the visitors could kick the ball without any shoes on and at the smooth attack they flashed. The Big Spring team failed to click and only a few short gains were made through the line by Jack Wilson.

The two teams are playing for the junior championship of West Texas and the Bronchos will journey to Pecos for the second game Wednesday.

He was not dismissed from the hospital until it was time for the team to leave for South Bend.

New Use Is Sought for "Black Sheep" Alcohol

WASHINGTON (UP)—What with the downfall of prohibition and the resulting information appearing on how to regain the lost art of cocktail mixing, there comes to light a certain liquor that nobody wants. This black sheep of the alcohol family is "sulphite liquor" a residue of the paper making industry after wood chips have been cooked under high pressure and subjected to the action of the essential chemicals.

Pennsylvania mills have spent thousands of dollars seeking some use for this waste which amounts to 250,000 gallons a day in an average sized paper mill. Pollution injurious to fish results if the waste is dumped in streams, and construction of huge evaporation tanks have not proved practical. Although the waste can be made into adhesives, tanning material and fuel, these processes have proved too expensive.

A Harrisburg, Pa., paper waste disposal committee says it has great possibilities of being made into fodder or fertilizer, but it will take a couple of clever chemists to do inexpensively enough to be practical.

tration, who has revealed the fact that this croxgamme, as it is called, appeared above the convent door at Lambach where the German dictator went to school from 1897 to 1898.

"It seems certain," says the French correspondent, "that during his infancy, little Adolphe Hitler had his symbol constantly before his eyes. The convent was founded by Benedictine monks and the Swastika formed part of the coat of arms. It is only natural, therefore, that this emblem should have made a lasting impression on the observant Adolphe, so that when it came time for him to choose something that would represent his new form of government, he chose the simple Swastika."

From time immemorial, this use of the croix gamma has been provocative of good luck. The translation "swastika" is Hindu, proceeding from the sacred. Etymologically "su-asti" translates in the French "bien-etre" or "well being" which signifies good fortune or prosperity.

"With these definitions and traditions in mind," continues the Frenchman, "it is a logical conclusion to draw that Hitler felt a certain security and superstition in selecting the Swastika for his troops of Nazi."

History of the Double-Barred Cross on Christmas Seals Dates Back to 300 A. D.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on the Christmas seal drive by the Midland health board for the tuberculosis association.

The history of the double-barred cross, which is now the emblem of the world-wide tuberculosis movement, goes away back to about three hundred years after the time of Christ. In those days Palestine was a part of what was called the Eastern Roman empire. The heads of the Christian church at Jerusalem and Constantinople, who were known as patriarchs, adopted as their emblem a cross with two horizontal bars.

In 1906 the National Tuberculosis association adopted the double-barred cross as the symbol of the campaign against tuberculosis.

In 1913, finding that some people drew the cross one way and some another, the national association set up certain rules so that all tuberculosis crosses would be exactly alike. Accordingly, the standard proportions for making the cross now are: the upright bar and the two horizontal bars are the same width. This width is called a unit. The arms extend 3 units from the vertical standard; the upright below the lower arm is 7 units.

Becomes Trade Mark

In 1920, in order to prevent anyone not connected with a tuberculosis association from using this emblem, the national association registered it at Washington as a trade mark. However tuberculosis sanatoria and other institutions may secure permission to use this design by writing the state tuberculosis association which will secure consent on behalf of the national from the representative member of the board of directors.

Every Christmas seal bears this symbol. This is one way in which the anti-tuberculosis Christmas seals can be told from commercial seals and other seals. Every poster advertising the Christmas seal sale contains this cross. The attractive red celluloid bangle pins used during the seal sale and throughout the year are double-barred crosses. They stand for the great fight against tuberculosis all over the world which has done so much in saving countless lives.

Made Army Insignia

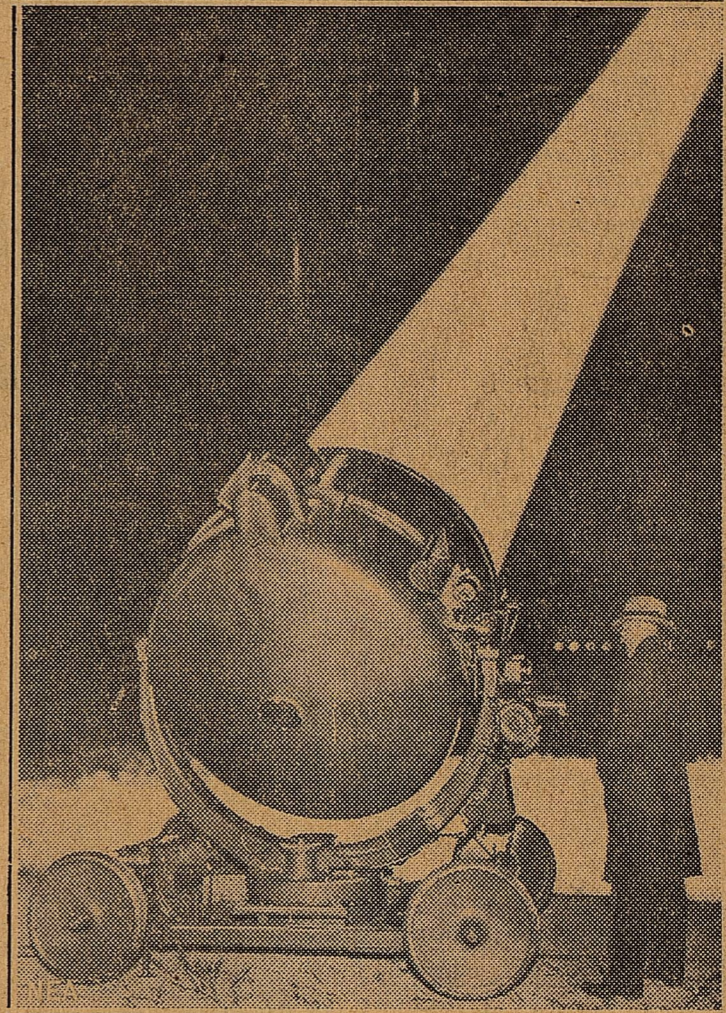

During the world war one of the divisions of the American army which was quartered in that part of France, took the Lorraine Cross as its insignia.

Middies and Cadets Gird for Battle

This Beam Travels 100 Miles

When the U. S. Army throws light on searching problems henceforth it will be with a Sperry 800,000,000 candlepower search light—the world's most powerful. The light, pictured here in operation, has a 60-inch lens and a beam visible for more than 100 miles. The Army has ordered 104 of them.

OLD-TIME RIVALRY TO WAGE BATTLES IN OIL BELT LOOP ON THANKSGIVING

Pecos Eagles Play Rankin Thanksgiving

PECOS.—The Pecos high Eagles, runners-up for the championship of District 9-B, will close their season with a game with Rankin on Thanksgiving day at Pecos. Rankin defeated the champion of the southern half of the district but was ruled out of championship consideration on intelligibility.

The two teams are believed evenly matched. It will be the last appearance for 10 out of 15 Pecos lettermen, including Capt. Bill Tolver, J. H. Stephens, the center; M. A. Durdin, Marvin Cowan, and Camp Cowan, backs; Payne, and Bowie, guards; Ligon, an end, and Anthony, a tackle.

Seminole-Seagraves Game Thanksgiving

SEMINOLE.—The season's schedule for the Seminole high school football team will be completed Thanksgiving when it meets the Seagraves squad there.

After a slow season start, the Seagraves eleven has been climbing in its last few games. Last week the team defeated Lamesa's second string for the second time. Many students and other fans are planning to accompany the team to Seagraves.

A CONFESSION AND A PLEA

I've got a picture showing at the RITZ THEATRE Thursday and Friday, and honestly, folks, I don't know how to tell you how good a picture it is.

The ordinary press terms sound banal and trite when I think of them in connection with this picture.

I see four or five pictures every week and when I get excited about one, it really has to be good. And folks, this one is perfectly swell!

Yet how am I to convince YOU that it is? Frankly, I don't know.

Edward G. Robinson and Kay Francis in the leading roles should convince anyone, and if I were to tell you it's the biggest hit either of them has made... you'd think it was propaganda, and probably say "you'd heard that before."

BUT

If I told you I like to see people come to the theatre when I know they are going to enjoy themselves—

If I tell you you'll like this picture so much you'll want to thank me for urging you to see it—

If I told you it is so big, Hollywood's most famous stars endorse it—would you believe me?

Well, I'm telling you; and if you don't believe me, you are going to cheat yourself of the finest two hours you've spent in a long time.

Two colorful clashes of old-time rivalry—with one of the games decided the district title—will be played on Thanksgiving in the Oil Belt.

The Cisco Lobos and the Abilene Eagles will meet this evening. The district title with the championship at stake. Abilene, leading the loop since the forfeiture of Ranger victories in which an ineligible player was used, can capture the banner by winning or tying in the Turkey day game. The Lobos, in second place, must win the struggle, in which event another game will be necessary.

Ranger's Bulldogs, undefeated in district play, will invade Breckenridge to battle their ancient foes, the Bucaroos.

The other district members will meet strong clubs of other circuits. Erowasong going to Temple and Eastland to Vernon for Thanksgiving conflicts.

In last week's only game Breckenridge defeated Bridgeport, 33 to 0.

MATADORS SET TO TAKE AGS

LUBBOCK.—Prepared for battle and ready to tear into the taunted Kansas Aggies, the Matadors of Texas Technological college are making plans to close a successful season. Fans for miles around, who have been purchasing tickets in response to a campaign to have ten thousand seats filled for the event, are looking forward to witnessing Tech turn back the odds in vanquishing the visitors on the Tech field Thanksgiving afternoon.

"We'll be against the toughest team ever to come to Lubbock," Coach Pete Cawthon explained, "but we'll be ready for them. If they beat us, they'll have to put out a lot."

The players have had no chance to go stale before this game as was the case last Thanksgiving. Interest has been the highest for years.

In the United States, a billion is a thousand million; in Germany and England, it is a million million.

Royal Christmas Cards In England Are Simple

LONDON (UP)—The royal family is all set for Christmas. They have ordered their Christmas greeting cards.

A fine reproduction of a painting by Bernard Gribble of the Henry VII chapel, Westminster Abbey, is the design for the cover of King George's card. Inside is the greeting: "Wishing you a happy Christmas, and a bright New Year."

The Queen has chosen a garden scene. It is simply entitled "An Old English Garden." The Queen's greeting, briefest of all—"Very best wishes for Christmas and the New Year."

The Prince of Wales' card depicts an incident in the life of Sir Walter Raleigh.

The Duke and Duchess of York have chosen a gay picture. It is entitled: "Bringing in the Yule Log." The Princess Royal's card, entitled "Where Nature Casts Her Magic Spell," is a picture of an old-world English garden.

Precise Scales Prevent Stealing in Denver Mint

DENVER, Colo. (UP)—Millions of dollars in gold and silver are kept within the mint here. Yet the public is never startled by such headlines as: "DENVER MINT IS ROBBED FROM INSIDE"

The mint officials do not search the employees. They do not question their arrivals and departures. They do not post sharp-eyed detectives to watch them.

There is a better way—a check made with scales of such perfect balance that they record the smallest fractions of an ounce. The precious metals are weighed with their tongues; herbivorous animals, as the horse and ox, suck that has been freshly landed.

"The great thing Radio can do is to bring Inspired Music into the home"

"It is not necessary to know about music—one can simply feel it, and love it. Listening to a cathedral organ or to any great orchestra—who of us has not felt uplifted and refreshed, as by the cool clean air of the mountains? To my mind, the great thing radio can do is to bring Inspired Music into the home. My comrades of the Philadelphia Orchestra and I welcome this wonderful opportunity."
