HILLIARD DOWNS S.M.U. SATURDAY

BY JESS RODGERS Texas University defeated SMU Saturday in Dallas by a 10-0 score, all points being by the sensational halfback Bohn Hilliard.

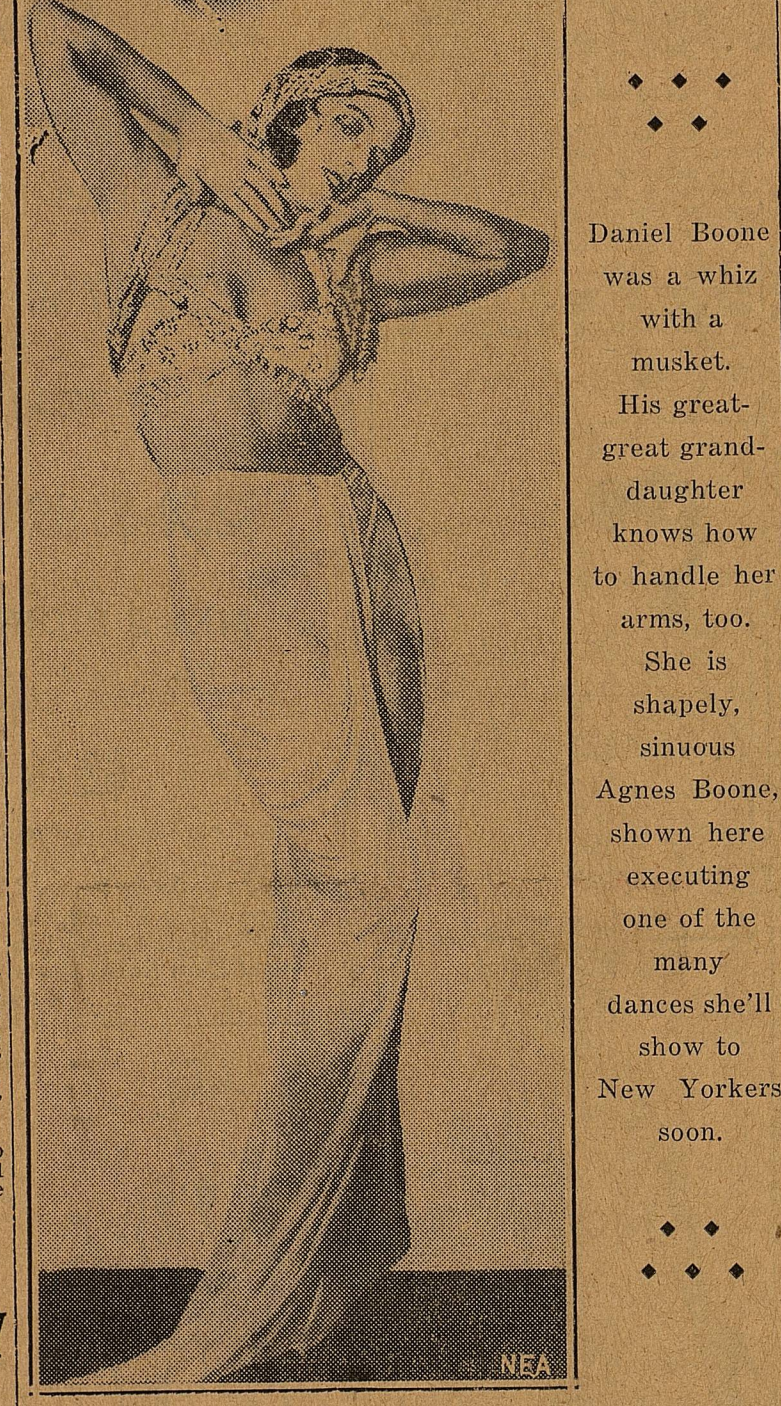

Texas played most of the first quarter in SMU territory after SMU had received a penalty half the distance to the goal line when one of their linemen was evicted from the game for slugging.

SMU made only one serious threat to score and that in the first period when they recovered a Texas fumble on the Texas 23-yard line.

After the kickoff an exchange of punts placed the ball on the SMU three yard line and, when a Pony back threw a long pass from behind his own goal line, Hilliard intercepted the Mustang 35-yard line and raced untouched for a touchdown.

Kerr County Herd Boss, Father of 5 Who Live Here, Tells of Earlier Days

MR. AND MRS. JONES GLENN

Editor's Note: The following story on Jones Glenn, Kerr county herd boss, was written by J. J. Starkey, son of one of the organizers of Kerr county and the publisher of the Kerrville Times. Concerning his contributions to reviving stories of the past, which he publishes in a monthly supplement of his newspaper, he says, "Being the son of an old-time cowman and having listened to many stories of the past, it is a pleasure, and at the same time a bit of hard work, to dig out facts and retell them. The picture of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn, shown above, was taken in 1868. Mrs. Glenn recalls, two years after their marriage. Of the 10 children, Joe, "Goober" Walter, H. S. "Slim" Agnes, (Mrs. W. M. Dietrich), and Rosie (Mrs. Frank Norwood), live at Midland. Two children, Boss and Mattie (Mrs. Joe Deltrich) and dead Ellen (Mrs. W. A. Smith) lives at Douglas, Ariz. Alice, Mrs. Wilbur Wadley) at Quemada, N. M., and Johnnie (Mrs. M. A. Colbee) at San Clemente, Cal. All the boys at one time or another played in western pictures on the west coast.

Several in this area have asked about the old-time editions of the Kerrville paper and Starkey will give subscription rates to any who write him.

By J. J. STARKEY William Jones Glenn, who was the boss in charge of cattle herds for years, is going on the trail for Captain Schreiner, and others, was rated by cowmen, who knew what they were talking about, as one of the most successful trail bosses. It took ability, energy, and control over men to drive those old time herds, up the trail, to the northwestern states and territories, and John Glenn measured up to the requirements in every way. He was in charge of herds for nine years up the long trail. Before starting on his northern trail driving career, he drove smaller herds to New Orleans and to Powderhorn (Indiana) on the Gulf coast and was an important factor in the later driving to Texas Railroad shipping points and also was in charge of cattle ranches belonging to Captain Schreiner.

Jones Glenn was born in Cherokee county, Texas, June 11, 1884, one of a family of ten children, seven boys and three girls. His father, William Glenn Taylor, moved from Cherokee county to Hill county, from Hill to Burnet, from there to Llano, then to old Fort Mason and from there to what afterward became known as the New River ranch on the head of the Perdrie in Gillespie county.

Jones Glenn joined the Confederate army in San Antonio in 1862 at the age of 18. He belonged throughout the war between the states to Col. I. Luckett's regiment, Waterhouse's Brigade, Walker's division. The principal fighting of this division was on the Red river on the line of Louisiana and Arkansas. During the year of 1865 he was mustered out of the army and came to Kerrville where his father then resided. Here he met Rhoda Glenn and they were married January 1, 1866. They resided first with the father. W. T. Glenn's, which was located on the Kerrville block 800 near the present site of the First State bank, later on Turtle creek and then in Kerrville where Rudolph Stehling residence now stands. This was the Jones Glenn home during his trail driving days.

A HOMECOMING

There was something rather "homey" and appealing about the way in which the little town of Meeker, Okla., extended its homecoming greetings to Carl Hubbell, hero of the world series.

Hubbell, it seems, drove in at night, unnoticed, and parked on the main stem by the corner drug store. In a few minutes the folks knew that he was back, and most of the town's 562 inhabitants strolled around to shake his hand and ask him about the world series.

Then, next day, they had a celebration, climaxed by a ball game, in which New York's doughy southpaw took part.

And all of this, somehow, had a delightfully American flavor. The return of the home town hero, the hand-shaking, the celebration, and the ball game—for some reason or other, it's all very good to read about.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I seem to have heard from an old friend. From the general tone of his letter I would think O. L. D. Bauch had come back. That reminds me, I ought to ask Dave or Bill Blevins what has become of Bob. Anyway, the writer of this letter drew some sort of a picture instead of signing a name and I can't place the blame on anybody in particular. I'll have to listen for some guy who makes wise cracks and uses the word "obvious" real often. His ramblings are so pointless that his efforts remind me of my own, so I'll devote most of the column to him today.

Bombshell

Chapter III The set on Stage No. 7 was the old "Red Dust" set, ready for the retake. Cameras and light crews were ready, Lola's stage dressing room on wheels was at one side. The star came upon the set from the studio street, waving an arm at the crew. "Hi, slaves! Who's directing this one?"

"Jim Brogan?" "Jim Brogan? No! When did he come back on the lot?" Her voice suddenly became softer. "Yesterday. Does that give you any heart-throbs, pal?" "Hey, listen, Cupid, now don't start sneaking around this set with your bow and arrows because—" She broke off as a waiter entered with a tray of toast and coffee. "Sandy! You remembered! Let me at it! I'm hungry—that's been the matter with me."

As she ate, the "phone rang. Lola picked it up herself. "Lo. . . Yeah, it's me, Frank. . . What? . . . Who said so? . . . Mr. Hanlon! Oh, he did, did he. . . Well, you let him through right away, do you hear? I don't care—you let him in! I'll yell loud enough to break every camera lens in the place if they try to pull that on me!"

She stopped suddenly, as a well-set-up, he-man, tanned and bronzed, in tweed sports coat and trousers appeared in the doorway and smiled at her. "Brogan!" Lola exclaimed, and jumped to her feet. "They told me you'd come back!"

He took her hand and gazed intimately into her eyes. "Gee, you look swell, Lola." "So do you, I'm sorry about your divorce, Jim." "Don't be. Maybe that's why I'm looking good."

Brogan followed her confidently out of the dressing room, sure he could get her back, but when he saw her go quickly to an elegantly dressed small, dark man whom he knew was the Marquis di Binelli di Pisis, his brow clouded with anger.

"Oh, Hugo, darling," she was saying, hanging on to his arm. "I am so sorry. I don't know how it happened!" "It was very embarrassing!" turned the Marquis. "To be stopped

"Just what I say. Go and tell that glorified barber to take his canetta out of my hair and get off my set—" "He isn't a barber. He speaks French and German and Italian and Spanish and has royal blood in his veins." "I can't stand him! Get him off, Lola. I don't care if he's got a royal flush in his kidneys!" "Don't you talk that way about Hugo!" "Let him off or I'll step on his face! They told me you'd fallen for that pail of spaghetti, but I didn't believe it until I saw him come in here—" The Marquis darted in front of Brogan and demanded: "Were you speaking about me?" "Yes, I'm speaking about you."

Brogan cocked his fist. "Jim, stop it, Hugo!" appealed Lola as her father came beaming in, rubbing his hands. "Well, well, good morning, everybody!" said Pops, expansively. Then he became aware of the angry words being exchanged by his daughter and Marquis and Brogan and rushed over to them as the stage crew drew up to watch the argument, rather loudly as though it were a matter of frequent occurrence.

"Children, children, what is this?" he asked. "Daughter, what—?" "And here's old Colonel Starbottle!" shouted Brogan. "What a morning's work this is going to be!" "James my boy—harumph. I don't understand—" "I thought I kicked him off my set for good last year," said Brogan, pointing at Pops.

"As my daughter's business manager, I've the right—" "Ha! Business manager!" said Brogan. "I demand an apology," said the Marquis, pointing at Pops. "I've forgotten about you," said Brogan, and turned to Pops. "Since when did you drop the buggy whip and take up the reins of finance? You must get all the red ink from the end of your nose."

"Harumph," said Pops. "Wait a minute—" began Lola. "I demand an apology," repeated the Marquis. Space Hanlon appeared on the set as Lola, getting madder and madder, yelled at Brogan: "Who do you think you are, Jim Brogan, talking to my father, that way?" "Who's ahead? What round is it?" asked Space. Lola wheeled sharply.

"You keep out of this!" "You want to go to work," said Brogan, and walked off the set. "I still expect an apology from you," said the Marquis, starting after Brogan but Space took his arm. "Ah, Marquis! You're just the man I want to see. Give me a moment, will you?" He led the Italian off the set, leaving Lola livid with rage.

"You're right, daughter. Brogan had no reason—" "What are you doing here, anyway," said Lola, sharply. "I told you to stay off the set!" She quickly softened. "Everytime you put your moosh into things they get worse!"

Pops took a check book from his pocket. "I only came on a matter of the greatest emergency. If you'll just sign this check, I—" "What for?" Lola froze instantly. "I want to wire this right away. Brother said he'd explain—" "Oh, I get it, Tia Juana again! They've been giving him a sleigh ride on the roulette wheel. Not another nickel! He's been supporting every gambling joint on the board with his millionaire complex and my money."

"But they're liable to hold him. You know the Mexican police—" "Let 'em hold him! I don't care. He's a man and a no good—" She turned back suddenly to her father. "Oh, what the heck. After all, Ma liked him." She signed the check as Space Hanlon and the Marquis returned. Hanlon was saying: "So what do you say? Good idea, eh?" "I don't usually seek out publicity," said the Marquis, "but under the circumstances—" "What's he telling you, Hugo?" "We're getting up a special article for European release," said Space. "All about the Marquis and how he liked Hollywood—his impressions of you and our other stars."

"I've always disagreed with your publicity about Lola," said the Marquis, "but this is an opportunity. The whole American idea of publicity is wrong." (To Be Continued)

Spencer Tracy Film at Yucca Brings Back Colleen Moore, Yesterday's Star

Spencer Tracy and Colleen Moore are the principal protagonists in the new Jesse L. Lasky production under the Fox film banner, "The Power and the Glory."

"The Power and the Glory" reported as Jesse L. Lasky's most important film in a career replete with important films, comes to the Yucca theatre today and is scheduled for a run of two days. It is Lasky's third production as a producer under the Fox banner and marks a high point in the screen achievements of this veteran.

The story of the film cannot be separated from the method in which it is told. Through a new medium evoked by Lasky, the film reveals the important events in the life of a man who rises from the most humble beginnings to a position of great power and influence. It shows his change from a simple young man without any education to a figure of national importance with manifold interests and great wealth. It depicts events which make his life a complicated affair of intrigue, adventure and romance.

The new method of screen storytelling is called "narratage" and it is said to presage a new form of motion picture technique. It takes the story out of its usual chronological order and emphasizes only the incidents that are important to the pattern of a lifetime. Spencer Tracy, in the leading role, has a characterization that has been heralded as the outstanding one of his career. It is said to present him with almost unlimited opportunities for a varied portrayal of personality. Colleen Moore, absent from the screen for three years, makes her return in the leading feminine role opposite Tracy.

The supporting cast, headed by Ralph Morgan and Helen Vinson, includes Clifford Jones, Henry Kolker, Sarah Padden, Billy O'Brien, Cullen Johnston and J. Farrell MacDonald. The script, in which the idea for narratage was first revealed, is from the pen of Preston Sturges, noted playwright, William K. Howard directed.

Child Welfare Board Will Be Organized Here

Organization of a child welfare board for assistance in preventing juvenile delinquency will be completed with the naming of additional members by the commissioners court. The court meets within two weeks, and Miss Helen Hardy, member of the child welfare division of Texas, will return to assist in organization.

A meeting was held in the commissioners court room Thursday afternoon, at which preliminary plans were laid.

The problem of juvenile delinquency is largely due to passive resistance of groups who might assist the child in his formative years, it is generally conceded by sociologists. The organization to be formed here will be concerned with penalizing. Many such organizations are being formed throughout the state.

Miss Dorothy Day issued the call to worship, and scripture readings and songs, roll call, offering, and a poem read by Miss Cleo Tidwell. "If I Knew," terminated by benediction, composed the remainder of the program.

We believe the habit injurious to the health of young women, and that it is a great drawback to those seeking positions, especially as teachers. It is also a fire hazard. The college will, therefore, appreciate the cooperation of parents in discouraging their daughters from smoking. President Hubbard explained that this means the students may smoke in their own

A Policeman and a Bishop

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

On a downtown corner the traffic policeman stepped over to the curb where a Ford V-8 was standing.

"That's the car that makes the boys down at the Police Garage get up early mornings," he said.

"How is that?"

"Well, you see we have two kinds of scout cars and flyers, and the boys hustle down early to get the Fords. If you're not there first you must take out the other make of car."

"But why do they all want the Ford?"

"Safer. Easier to handle. Takes the corners better. A car with Ford springs doesn't lean over or tip on a curve or a quick turn. A police flyer has to be a safe car."

It was pleasant to find a layman placing his finger on this exclusive feature of the Ford car, namely, the Ford transverse springs. They are used in our car for the very purpose he described, to perform their triple function of providing comfort, stability and safety.

The Bishop came down from the Northwest to Michigan and eventually arrived—as every Detroit visitor does—at Dearborn.

"I thought we had pretty nearly all the Ford cars in the world up where I came from," said he, "but I can scarcely see anything else around Detroit."

The Bishop is not the first to say that, and what he observed has a meaning.

People in this Detroit area know cars in a different and more penetrating way than perhaps is possible elsewhere. This is the acknowledged automobile producing center of the world. Nearly ninety per cent of all cars produced in the United States are made within a radius of 100 miles around Detroit.

Hundreds of thousands of workmen moving from shop to shop know the methods used on each make of car, and by word of mouth they spread complete first-hand information of manufacturing methods among the people. Suppliers also know which manufacturers insist on first quality of materials and workmanship. This information also leaks out.

That is, the people hereabouts KNOW THEIR CARS. And they buy nearly twice as many Fords in Wayne County, the central area of automobile manufacture, as any other make. We are naturally a little proud of that fact.

But, then, we are never doubtful of the result when the decision is in the hand of a buyer who knows.

"Sigma Chi," Riot of Love, Life and Laughter, Playing at the Ritz Today

A college story saturated with love, life and laughter; a college story brimming with music, but not a musical; a college story that for the first time in motion picture history does not concern itself with football, baseball, basketball, cross-country or track meet contests—but features, for the first time on the talking screen, an eight-act shell race, enacted by thirty-two youths of brain and brawn, as an smashing climax.

That, in brief, describes "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," Monogram's most recent production, which opened last night at the Ritz theatre, also showing today and Monday.

Mary Carlisle as Vivian and Buster Crabbe who played Bob Novak, managed to extract every ounce of charm and humor out of their roles.

The musical embellishments presented by Ted Rio-Rito and his orchestra, with a complete change of program. Featuring the chief station announcer Russ Davis, Little Dorothy Blue, and take it from us, there's a treat in store for you when you hear this little girl sing several numbers by the famous string band, some sharpshooters and rarely equalled, comedy and novelty acts go to complete a real stage presentation.

Very exceptional pictures are slated for the entire week at the Ritz. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, that glamorous star, Kay Francis will be seen in her latest hit, "Mary Stevens, M. D." The screen's first story of a woman doctor, her secrets, her loves, her confidences bared in a drama packed picture. Ray comprises in her personality that rare mixture of professional efficiency and capability with the softness, sympathy and attractiveness of a real woman in just the right degree to make this one of the most moving and worth while things she has done. Lyle Talbot, Glenda Farrell, and Thelma Todd head the supporting cast. Friday and Saturday comes another Cecil B. De Mille spectacle to make screen history, "This Day and Age." The first great spectacle of modern times. With an army of new faces—new actors! Among them the sons of famous actors! Wallace Reid Jr., Fred Kohler Jr., Neal Hart Jr., Eric von Stroheim Jr., Carlyle Blackwell Jr., Elsie Ferguson II and Bryant Washburn Jr. Senior players are Charles Bickford, Richard Cromwell, and Judith Allen. It's truly the Rebirth of a Nation, startling in sweep dramatic in intensity Skies blaze red, as 5000 torches light the heavens—10,000 glowing faces flame with eagerness—determination—auditing courage—as civilization goes on trial.

Cecil B. De Mille shows us where we're headed in "This Day and Age."

SPORTSMEN MUST SUPPORT FEDERAL RESTORATION PLAN WARNS GAME PREXY

NEW YORK—Unless American sportsmen get behind a Federal waterfowl restoration program, further nationwide restrictions on wildfowl in addition to the recent bag limit clauses are in prospect, according to Colonel Arthur F. Foran, president of the More Game Birds foundation.

"Wild ducks cannot be bred in lawyers' offices or legislative halls, still America has been producing more game laws and hunting regulations and less game than any other country on earth," Foran declares. "Sportsmen should not denigrate themselves into believing that the latest legal restrictions will be the last, or that more wildfowl can be raised by means of restrictive regulations than on their natural breeding grounds. The present and past reductions of bag limits have only served to slow up the decrease of wildfowl. They have not increased the supply one iota. Necessity for enactment of the laws themselves proves that."

"American wildfowlers must shoulder the expense of providing more waterfowl refuges and for restoration of breeding areas to their former productive status. Congress has failed to supply the necessary funds for this essential real conservation work and probably never will."

"Now we have a further warning," W. S. Henderson, acting chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, states. "Unless conditions show an almost inconceivable improvement within the next few months, it is very probable that further restrictions will be necessary in order to preserve an adequate breeding stock. Our sportsmen must cooperate in greatly reducing the annual kill of ducks if they expect to continue the sport of wildfowling."

"A critical period is faced by duck hunters," Colonel Foran warns. "Bag limits have been cut two-thirds within four years. Shooting of three species of ducks, certain species of geese, brant locally and all swans has been banned. Seasons have been cut one third, more and more regulations are going into effect and a clamor is arising from the Canons, McBrides and Booles of conservation for still more. Prohibition can be applied to more than one field and wildfowlers have only themselves to blame if it is eventually applied to their favorite sport."

German Police Uncover Widespread Arson Plot

STETTIN, Germany. (UP)—The police here discovered a widespread arson conspiracy extending all over the province of Pomerania.

Four building contractors and six farmers were charged in order to obtain indemnities from the insurance companies, or to secure building contracts.

The arsonists, it was said, were organized on a commercial basis. The contractors had their "agents" who, for sums varying between three and 75 marks, set fire to any building—with the consent of the owner.

The most astute of these agents, a man named Fechner of the village of Borin, is said to have started 51 fires.

Fechner was arrested along with nine others, equally said to have served as agents to the conspirators.

WEST COAST GRID NOTES

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES. (UP)—Notes from a Pacific Coast football notebook show: Slip Madigan, genial St. Mary's coach, believes in doing the right thing by his boys. When he last took his eleven East to play Fordham he returned via the Grand Canyon to give his boys a good look. This year he will bring his Gaels back via Chicago so the boys may see the sights.

University of California at Los Angeles has discarded a long pass heaved with a prayer for short, bullet-like ones thrown from tricky formations. Oregon State's offense has clicked this fall due in a large measure to the work of Norm (Red) Franklin, triple-threat half.

In the St. Mary's game, seven Trojan backfield stars carried the ball 54 times to gain a total of 227 yards from running plays. In the Northwest they rate Prink Callison, University of Oregon mentor, as the leading coach in that sector.

Howard Jones is reported to be saving a number of baffling passes and intricate plays for the Stanford and Notre Dame contests.

The All-American stock of Homer Griffith, Southern California quarterback, soared during the St. Mary's game which the Trojans won 14 to 7. Following the game, Slip Madigan, St. Mary's coach, said, "Griffith defeated St. Mary's almost single-handedly."

Oregon University has developed a dangerous scoring combination in Mike Mukilak, fullback, and Mark Temple, half.

Santa Clara has received considerable publicity through freak names applied to formations by its coach, Clipper Smith, former Notre Dame guard. Smith calls certain backfield plays, optional passes, elevator passes and one end-around play, "The Butterfly."

Stanford University is considered to have the fastest, and finest backfield material in the West. Once Coach Thy Thornhill finds the right combination, opponents will face rough sledding.

LAKE SHRINKAGE THREATENS LURE

SUPERIOR, Wis. (UP)—Wisconsin will not be entitled to the name of Land of Lakes within 50 or 75 years because of the rapid shrinkage of lake water levels, according to experts.

Property owners and resort operators have begun to take interest in the problem. Thousands of dollars worth of damage has been caused through water shrinkage. Reforestation and the building of dams is seen as the ultimate answer.

The tendency of upper state lakes to shrink away was revealed in a report recently completed by John S. Borden, Douglas County, who showed that 22 of 36 lakes in Douglas County gradually are decreasing in size. As an example, Whitefish Lake, in southern Douglas County, has receded 14 feet since 1891. The lake dropped two inches and a half this September.

In Washburn County, Whitefish Lake, one of the most beautiful in a state which has thousands, has dropped four feet since 1927. This year it shrank 10 inches. Thousands of bass died when spawning beds were exposed, and the shoreline in spots became ugly. Resort owners are considering federal aid in the construction of a dam to prevent further water loss.

The world's largest telescope, now in manufacture, has a 200 inch reflector, which weighs 20 tons. The new telescope will be stationed in California.

Indication that the Stanton high school will have an orchestra, and a possibility that a Stanton town orchestra may be organized, was found Saturday in the announcement of Ned Watson that he had begun twice a week practices there. Spiritualist Announced Death Before Seance

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. (UP)—William Wilson, member of a spiritualist sect, sat down to a seance with his friends.

"The spirit guide has warned me," he said, "that I must go tonight. I will be ready for the call at 8 o'clock."

At 8:02 he collapsed in his chair and died.

FORESEES A NEW TYPE OF ENGINE

CHICAGO (UP)—The days of steam locomotive, with its belching smokestack and hissing cylinders, definitely are numbered, in the opinion of Fred Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

Single unit gas and electric locomotives of various designs gradually will supplant the iron horse on both suburban and long haul service, Sargent believes. The single unit system is more practical, flexible and economical than either steam, or a comprehensive central electrified system.

"Elaborate studies made by Westinghouse and General Electric show that it would cost at least $60,000,000 to electrify the three suburban branches of the Northwestern, with a fixed power plant system," said Sargent.

"I predict that within eight or ten years, possibly sooner, the gas unit, or oil-electric engine will be so far developed that it will take the place of steam on American railroads."

The present method of electrifying railroads with a stationary central plants and either third rail, or trolley power transmission, is not flexible enough to be practical, Sargent contends. The single unit system, however, would permit flexibility of time and service which is necessary for efficient suburban transportation.

PLENTY OF DRAMA

AUSTIN—There is now available to high schools of the state, through the drama service instituted by the University of Texas Bureau of Public School Interests and operated in conjunction with the university extension loan library, approximately 2,000 titles, including full length plays, one acts and books on play production, including works on directing, make-up, costuming, and lighting, according to Morton Brown, director of the drama service.

The material ranges from light farce, comedy, drama, to O'Neill's tragic "Mourning Becomes Electra." While no attempt is made to keep up with latest Broadway successes, a few such plays, including "The Late Christopher Bean," "Another Language," "Autumn Crocus" and others are available. Material for special occasions such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, Washington's Birthday, etc., should be requested well in advance to get the best selection.

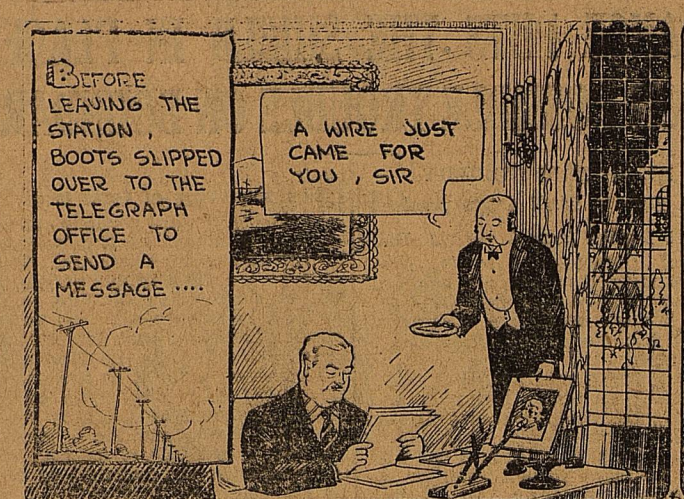

ANGELO FINES DOUBLE

SAN ANGELO—San Angelo police arrested 100 persons during the recent month and cash collections on fines nearly doubled that of some previous months, according to the report of Sam Haynes, chief of police, filed with the city manager. Cash collected from fines for October totaled $409.75.

Drunkness as usual led arrests with 38, overparking was next with 30. Arrests for stop signs were 3, affray 6, assault 5, red lights 2, vagrancy 4, left turns 2, exposing of person 1, theft under $5 4, abusive language 1, transferred to county 7, working out fines 20, autos stolen 2, autos recovered 1.

A reproduction of that old photograph on tin-type framed in one of our antique frames or daguerreotype cases will be a most fitting gift for Christmas. Bring them in at once to Prothro Studio. (Adv.)

SLASHING FIRST HALF DRIVE OF BULLDOGS SUBSIDES IN THE LAST TWO PERIODS; PECOS WINS 20-6

PECOS, Nov. 4.—The Pecos high Eagles advanced a step nearer the district championship Friday afternoon by making a last half rally and downing the Midland Bulldogs, 20-6, at Rotary field.

Midland rushed Pecos off her feet in the first half scoring on a 40-yard pass in the second quarter.

In the third quarter Pecos came back strong. On a sustained drive down field Pecos marched 50 yards for its first score.

Again in the third quarter, Cowan, Pecos quarter, spun through the right side of the Midland line, off tackle, for 15 yards to score. Tolliver added the point. In the fourth quarter Captain Tolliver of Pecos raced 30 yards behind perfect blocking by Wilkins, for the third counter. Davis booted the goal.

This leaves the district title of 9-B to be decided when Pecos and Wink meet at Wink on Nov. 18.

JOHNNY NOBLES SCORES TOUCHDOWN

Johnny Nobles, flashy halfback, scored the lone Midland tally taking a pass from Gordon Jones in the flat zone, shaking off three tackles and skipping 15 yards down the sideline to cross the goal line. Opinion seemed to be divided between Midland fans at the game—as to whether Pecos was overconfident to start the game and Midland played the club off its feet during the first half, or whether the Midland club lost its fight at the beginning of the third period. A more plausible analysis, said veteran fans, was the failure of the right side of the Midland line to continue its hard charging, resulting in its being blocked out of play down after down.

Parents Break Shaveless Vow of Gridsters

SAN JOSE, Cal. (UP).—A team vow not to have either a haircut or a shave until victory perched on Bellarmine Preparatory school's football banners, was blasted by irate parents here.

After learning of the team members' intentions for future facial and cranial decorations, fathers of the squad went into a huddle and issued the ultimatum to their playing sons—no haircuts, no shaves—no food at the family table!

Barbershops in the vicinity of Bellarmine school son reported a rushing business and the team itself is pursuing victory—but without the moral support of hair.

Vermont Ghost Timber Town Now a Skeleton

ARLINGTON, Vt. (UP).—A "ghost town," reminiscent of those left in the wake of gold rushes in the West, is located near here. It is the long abandoned village of Kelly Stand. For half a century it was a thriving community, with 300 inhabitants, all engaged in the lumber business. When in 1890, the lumber supply became exhausted, residents moved to a new site of operations, leaving behind a dozen dwellings and a mill, the skeletons of which still stand.

The rose topped the list in a flower popularity census taken in 259 schools in New York state.

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS

Jim Kelly, who alternately punches out sports and rails away at a lout in the Stanton Reporter, spins a socio-athletic yarn that we hadn't heard. Said he:

A sports writer of a North Texas newspaper got his copy mixed with that of the society editor, and here's what happened:

Bill Smith and Ida Jones were united on the 10-yard line when Todd smashed the Rev. John Jacob at Frederick, Okla., and then Horn galloped across the bridge's mother of this city, who received Winfield's kick behind the goal posts just as the bride, attractively attired in a pigskin from Olney's territory left on a short wedding trip to the Wildcat's den. Captain Dunn performed prominently in civic affairs and is a young man who is destined to be tackled viciously and carefully guarded by his attractive young bride.

It may be difficult to understand how such errors are made, but you haven't worked on the society desk with us. Last week we'd have believed no error of such magnitude could have been made except by a "pie" galley in the composing room, but today (being the eve of a blessed Sabbath rest from society writing) we pass on the tip that a future society writer is graduated into dresses—not pants.

A little re-hash flavored with a dash of the different; Seminole high school (keeping up the tradition of Blacktown) is to play a double-header football game Saturday afternoon with clubs from the Andrews school. . . . Incidentally, Seminole, hidden away on the fringe of one of the finest golf courses in the country and a lot of arid ranchland, has played one of the few 2-0 games of this season, losing to Brownfield by a safety when a punt was blocked on its goal line. Seminole also does another thing to get in the spotlight; players will be hosts to the invaders when refreshments are served following the game. . . . Big Spring will run a football special to Sweetwater for the Nov. 10 game; fare is $1. Leo Hare, Big Spring substitute who showed San Angelo something in swivel-hipped running, punted 10 times for an average of 42 yards in the game. . . . Blacktown and the mighty Scott McCall are now being used as blockers for Sam Baugh, Pollywog captain who last year cluttered up the air with passes that sang the Sweetwater anthem. Strange to relate, Rice institute has the record for having scored the greatest number of points in a single South-west conference game, winning 144-3. Stranger possibly, to relate, SMU was the victim. Another odd note: Rice scored on the kickoff, and SMU came right back to kick a field goal. How different in subsequent meetings!

Tommy Irwin, who once rocked us with a lethal right that must have been gloved with annealed iron, tells us he has a fight coming off at Fort Worth within a few weeks. . . . As soon as I can get in shape. . . . His brother Jack skipped through a semi-final there the other night, but the Fort Worth papers failed to report the bout. So we know nothing about the result. Incidentally, Jack weighed 170 when he left Midland, but Tommy worked him out on the beach at Galveston, in spots where the sand was ankle deep, and Jack began dissolving—eventually to the lightweight class. . . . The needle now points to 135 when he vaults

MY DOG, RED

Dora Beth Reeves, Jr. Hi. Once I had a dog that was named Red. He was colored red, too. He could do many clever tricks. When he saw someone coming he would stand up in front of the door. He didn't want them to come in. When we went in swimming, he would go in, too. He could dog swim. When we were sitting on the bank with our bathing suits on, trying to dry, he could come and shake water on us. He would eat with the cats. He would eat up his share of the food and then wait the kitty's share. He wouldn't get it. He liked cottage cheese very well.

MY DOG

By Mary Ruth Roy My dog's name is Collie. It was a collie dog so we called her that. She has brown and white hair. She has brown eyes, and some white on the end of her tail. She is two years old. She was born in April. My dog can do many tricks. Here are some of them. She can jump a rope, play ball and hide and seek. She would not come in till you left the base. She is a very wise dog. For a bed my dog had a box with cotton in it, and she had a blanket for some cover. If she could not find her cover she would cry for it. For her breakfast she had some kind of cereal and some milk. She thought she had a nice breakfast because I taught her to bark when she had a good breakfast. When we went riding she wanted to go with us. So I told her to come and get on the fender. That's where she always rode. When we went to my grandmother's right after we got Collie she would not get out of the car; but after a while she jumped out and ran after another dog. When night came, she came back and got in the car. One time we went somewhere and we could not find Collie to go with us. So we went without her, as we did not think any danger would come to her. But when we got back we could not find her. We never saw her anymore.

MY DOG

Elwanda May Hays My dog is a Spitz. It is black and has long hair. It is a small dog. Its name is Sandy. He was three months old when I got him. Sandy does tricks and cunning things. He can jump thru my arms. I can throw rods and he will get it for me. He goes everywhere I go. If someone calls him he will look up at my face. If I tell him to go, he will; but if not, he will stay at my side. One morning I could not find my shoes. Sandy was out in the yard. I called him and when he came to me I asked him where my shoes were. He pointed to the door. I went to the door and there they were. He was right. He is a very smart dog. He is a very good dog. He is a very happy dog. He is a very loyal dog. He is a very brave dog. He is a very smart dog. He is a very good dog. He is a very happy dog. He is a very loyal dog. He is a very brave dog.

FRANCE PUTS THE SHIELD IN PLACE FOR POSSIBLE TROUBLE ON BOUNDARY

BY MORRIS GILBERT NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS—The arrest of "la Belle Sophie" Drost—cross roads Mata Hari who tried to sneak a new-type French machine-rifle into Germany in a taxicab—unveils a widespread net of espionage whose nucleus is the Sarre. The plump secret agent—her title "la Belle" is pretty sarcastic, and she is more widely known in her neighborhood as "Fat Sophie"—is by no means the first "cat" captured by the French counter-spy system in that region. In all, it is stated that there have been 400 arrests on accusations involving espionage.

The territory is ripe for spying All along the eastern border of Lorraine as well as Alsace the French are completing a massive line of fortifications. This gives employment to hundreds of laborers and scores of minor executives, divisional engineers, supply clerks, electricians, section bosses, all of whom know more or less about the "secrets" of the fortifications. Dotted throughout the terrain are barracks, munition stores, warehouses, troops garrisons. Just over the border lies the Sarre Basin—the still debatable land. Nobody yet knows whom the Sarre belongs to. The French get the coal from its mines, to be sure, but that may stop next year when the Sarre is voted to the League of Nations program goes through) whether to be French or German or to continue to be governed by a commission of the League.

START CAFE NEAR BARRACKS

Sophie Drost was no sleek pantlerlike Garbo-esque lady of mystery. She and her husband "Jupp" arrived in St. Avold in 1928. There's no "secrets" in the cafe, but hence the bar which they acquired in the public square was a likely place for customers. The "Cafe des Sports" prospered. It prospered too much. A year ago "Jupp" was invited to leave France. St. Avold couldn't shut its eyes to the behavior of the establishments' pretty barmaids. It was bad for the morals of the soldiers.

AT THE LIBRARY

New books of interest to adults: "A Fortune to Share" by Vash Young. "The golden rule in business dressed up in modern garb. The author is convinced that substitution of a helpful and unselfish attitude toward others brings the only success, material and immaterial, that endures. The book's naive simplicity and very popular inspirational style will appeal to the general reader." "Modern Tennis" by Helen Hall Jacobs. For men as well as women for the advanced player as well as the beginner. Modern Tennis is full of valuable information and advice. Miss Jacobs writes as she plays, with enthusiasm, concentration, definition, attack and good sportsmanship. "A Prehistoric Rock Shelter in Val Verde County, Texas" by J. E. Pearce & A. T. Jackson. On the rent "Shifting Sands" by Sara Ware Bassett. "One summer day, out of a dense fog, there appeared at the home of Marie Eldridge, a young and attractive widow of Belmont on Cape Cod, a man with an injured wrist whose power-boat had run aground near her cottage. Before the doctor appeared he handed her for safe keeping a box of jewels. The doctor and his helper brought news of a big jewel robbery. Mystery, humor and a double romance provide entertaining reading." "Mr. Peck & Co." by Alice Hegan Rice (author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"). Pete, after wandering around the world, inherits his ancestral mansion on the banks of the Ohio and moves in. He finds he is neighbor to the city dump and that his house is a rooming house of doubtful reputation. What he did for his tenants, and how he influenced the city to clear away the dump, makes the story. Marie and Jake provide the romance. The other characters are well drawn. "Books of interest to children are: "Beginners Book of Model Aeroplanes" by Carl H. Claudy. A book for boy and girl, man and woman, who want to make models that fly. "North America by Plane and Train" by Alison E. Aitchison and Marguerite Utley. "The Enchanted Isle of Yew" by L. Frank Baum, author of "The Wizard of Oz." GINS 3,568 BALES

STANTON—J. H. Fryar, of Midland, collector of cotton statistics for Howard, Martin, and Midland counties was at Stanton Wednesday following report: There were 3,568 bales of cotton counted round and half bales, ginned in Howard county, from the crop of 1933 prior to October 13, 1933, as compared with 3,666 bales ginned October 18, 1932. Less than 100 bales had been ginned in Martin and Midland counties up to October 18, Fryar said. Sportsmen are using kites that soar and dip like birds to train their dogs to retrieve fallen game.

FRENCH TRACK PLOTTERS

The French counter-spy service functioned smoothly. They let the plotters slip through to Sarrebruck, and then arrested Plestan, and later Sophie. Meanwhile, in some way undivulged, they got the rifle back from the Sarre, bringing evidence against Jupp and another confession by Choppe and Plestan completed the job. Sophie, of course, won't share the fate of Mata Hari. There's nothing so tragic about her case. Next day she caught in peacetime terms of eye-martial don't sentence to be shot at sunrise for such offenses. The capture of "la Belle Sophie" Drost and her unhappy swains sheds a blinding light on the vast importance, militarily speaking, of France's new chain of fortifications extending from the Mediterranean near Nice right around the edge of France to the North Sea. In the last century General Sere de Riviere continued the historic line. "BUILD FOR 'THE FUTURE'" When war broke out in 1914, it was found that Sere de Riviere's works were inadequate. Built in fourteen years between 1872 and 1887, they were already antiquated when the German invasion started. Now the wide job is being done over were. He went under the bed and came out with them. I was mad at him. He looked up at me as if to say, "I was only playing. Please don't be mad at me." The clock and it was time for me to go to school. At last I was ready. When I started to school Sandy wanted to go with me and I made him go back home. At noon when I came home he was not there. I looked everywhere but I could not find him. I cried till time to go back to school. That afternoon when I came out of school he was there at the door.

Legion Dance Heads Armistice Program

ODESSA—A big celebration, which will start at one o'clock on the morning of November 11th, and last all day, is planned here for Armistice day by the East S. Bailey Post No. 430, Inc., of the American Legion. The celebration will be officially opened with the start, at one o'clock in the morning at the legion hall, of a German dance, with music by Buddy Marshall and his dance band. At daybreak, at the close of the dancing, a beautiful display of fireworks will be presented free, to be followed by a free breakfast. The dawn of Armistice day will be heralded by the snooting of the fireworks and a Legion bugler will give the breakfast call to the town. The breakfast will be served at around 5:30 or 6:00 o'clock. The Odessa high school band will make its first town appearance at the breakfast. Under the direction of G. Ward Moody, bandmaster, the new 17-piece band will give a brief concert. A parade will also be staged with Legionnaires, the band, the Broncho football squad, the Odessa high school pep squad, boy scouts and girl scouts participating.

IS JINX TO NW

CHICAGO, (UP).—Northwestern scored one of its greatest football triumphs on Soldier Field, Chicago's big lakefront stadium, but since Dick Hanley has been coaching the Wildcats the huge gray arena has been a jinx to the Evanston school. In 1925, Northwestern, then coached by Glenn Thistlethwaite, beat Michigan, 3-2, in a sea of mud at Soldier Field—the biggest football upset of that season. Since then Northwestern never has won a game in Soldier Field. In 1931, Northwestern played a scoreless tie with Notre Dame in the lakefront stadium, and the same year the Wildcats were beaten by Purdue in a charity game, 7-0, after winning the Big Ten title outright during the regular season. This year, Northwestern was bumped off by Iowa, 7-0, in Soldier Field, and two weeks later they played Stanford a scoreless tie in the same stadium. So in four games at Soldier Field Northwestern has not been able to score a single point, although the Wildcats were able to garner two ties.
