WALKING TO SCHOOL

Several Missouri newspapers recently commented on the fact that two boys living near the town of Boonville walk six miles to school every day, and do all the chores at home in addition; and it's all rather interesting, not because the boys have to walk so far, but because the fact that they do is considered worthy of mention in the newspaper.

A generation ago there would have been no news in such a story. Walk six miles to school? There were thousands and thousands of youngsters in all parts of the United States who did it every day throughout the school year, and thought nothing of it. In many rural districts long hikes like that were the rule and not the exception.

Those, of course, were the days when the little red schoolhouse was a more familiar institution than it is now. No one had heard of consolidated schools then, nor of busses picking up all the children, carrying them off to school and bringing them home again in the evening.

The typical country school was a one-room, one-teacher affair, drawing its pupils from a radius of six or eight miles around; and the children trudged back and forth, through deep snow in winter and through rain, dust, mud or wind in spring and autumn. And no one ever thought that those children were undergoing hardships; on the contrary, the children were considered extremely lucky to have education available at the price of a little extended footwork.

This isolated, one-room school hasn't vanished yet, of course; but it is in the process of vanishing, and the system that is replacing it is vastly better from all standpoints. Children's bodies are not taxed now as they used to be. Their minds are given better training once the school room is reached. Life is easier, pleasanter, more carefully planned.

Meanwhile those two Missouri boys who have to walk so far each day might be comforted, if they were aware of it, by the fact that they are carrying on a brave tradition. What they are doing now, most farm boys had to do a few decades ago.

BOOM FOLLOWS BOOM

When one kind of boom explodes, it occasionally clears the way for another kind of boom to begin.

Evidence of this odd fact is found in conditions in the Mexican districts about Vera Cruz and Tamaulipas, where an oil boom recently came to an end. The result is a boom in agricultural land.

When the oil boom was on nobody was interested in buying land for farming. Excellent soil, fertile and well-drained, went begging, and five pesos an acre was considered a high price. Nobody wanted land unless oil could be got out of it.

Now, however, this agricultural land is coming into its own. Thousands of former oil workers have taken to farming, land prices have gone up, and the death of the boom has proved an excellent thing for the average citizen. A boom—as we north of the Rio Grande know full well, by now—can be more a curse than a blessing.

FEWER FARMS, MORE FORESTS

The annual report of Robert B. Stuart, U. S. forester in the Pacific northwest, contains an idea that is well worth consideration in a land where agriculture has been ailing for so long. For it is Mr. Stuart's idea that the nation needs fewer farms and more forests, and he says:

"More land has been brought under cultivation than can be farmed, if the farming is well done, without creating burdensome agricultural surpluses. Public policies now taking shape to reclothe with forests lands on which agriculture no longer can be practiced successfully, and cut-over lands formerly thought to be destined for agricultural use."

In view of the plight of the farmer and the steady dwindling of our timber supply, here is a proposal that deserves a great deal of thought.

Washington Letter

Capital Little Affected by Depression but Is Kept Conscious of It by Business, Tourist Trade and Congressmen.

WASHINGTON. — The national capital, where national relief measures are thrashed out and where all manner of people have been pouring their pleas and stories of distress, appears to be the nearest normal and most hopeful of America's larger cities in the third year of the depression.

Washington, in fact, looks forward to 1932 with some assurance that it will bring an actual local boom. Already, according to an assertion by Congressman Garber of Oklahoma in a farm relief speech, it is "in the lap of luxurious prosperity as compared with every other section of the country."

There has been some unemployment here, but it isn't very noticeable. It is in considerable part due to the migration of unemployed workers coming here for jobs that they don't usually find.

Business men here bowed thankfully to the old year as it passed out and seized the new one joyfully. For this is the year of the George Washington Bicentennial celebration, which they estimate will bring a trek of 6,000,000 visitors before it is over. They expect about 500,000 convention delegates to attend a record number of 130 conventions—and everyone knows that convention delegates spend good money.

The tourist business here is fairly steady, anyway, and if it didn't show its customary increase last year it didn't fall off greatly, either. The railroads, one is told, brought about 2,000,000 visitors who are estimated to have spent about $30 each while in town.

Commodity prices have come down, so nearly everybody's purchasing power has increased. Commerce and industry have suffered elsewhere, but here they have not felt any serious effects. Commercially, the city feeds off the big federal payroll, the tourist trade, the large amount of private wealth concentrated here and the many persons—such as correspondents and lobbyists—who are here because the government is here.

The federal payroll has increased in the last few years and there employ here who earn nearly $175,000,000 a year. Lately there have been proposals to cut federal salaries from 10 to 20 per cent, supported by such important gents as Senator Borah and Congressman Will Wood of Indiana, but it is extremely doubtful whether any such legislation is going to be passed.

The private payroll is also large and hasn't suffered greatly. Nearly 6000 retail stores have an annual payroll of $44,000,000, which is considerably added to by the fact that so many national organizations are maintaining more or less elaborate headquarters here.

The local boosters have in addition to the slogan "A Steady Federal Payroll," another: "A Place of Personal Wealth," sung to the same sweet music. Social life, the city's beauty and interest in national affairs, draws many millionaires amongst us. A per capita average of $681.85 is spent per year in local retail stores which is $274.12 more than the average for the country. Twenty-four building and loan associations reported an increase in resources from $80,000,000 to more than $86,000,000 during 1931.

But although there may be more public complacency in the capital than elsewhere, it isn't as if the government didn't know what kind of conditions prevail elsewhere. The treasury knows how income and profits have dropped, and the Agriculture department how farm prices are way down. The Labor department keeps track of unemployment and the commerce department worries about business. Congress thanks to its own inquiries, its visits home and thousands of letters from constituents, is fully aware of the fact that conditions here are in no sense typical.

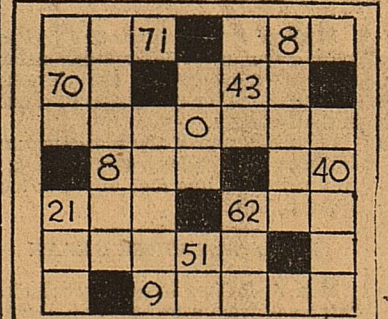

Expert Says Women Give Just Verdicts

COLUMBUS, O. (UP).—The gentle sex, generally believed to have kinder natures than men, are as capable of serving as jurors and rendering just verdicts as are men, Professor E. Burt, Ohio state university, who studies such matters, has decided.

Women have no corner on chicken-heartedness, according to Burt. A picked group might be incapable of judging, but, by and large, women have as much intelligence as men.

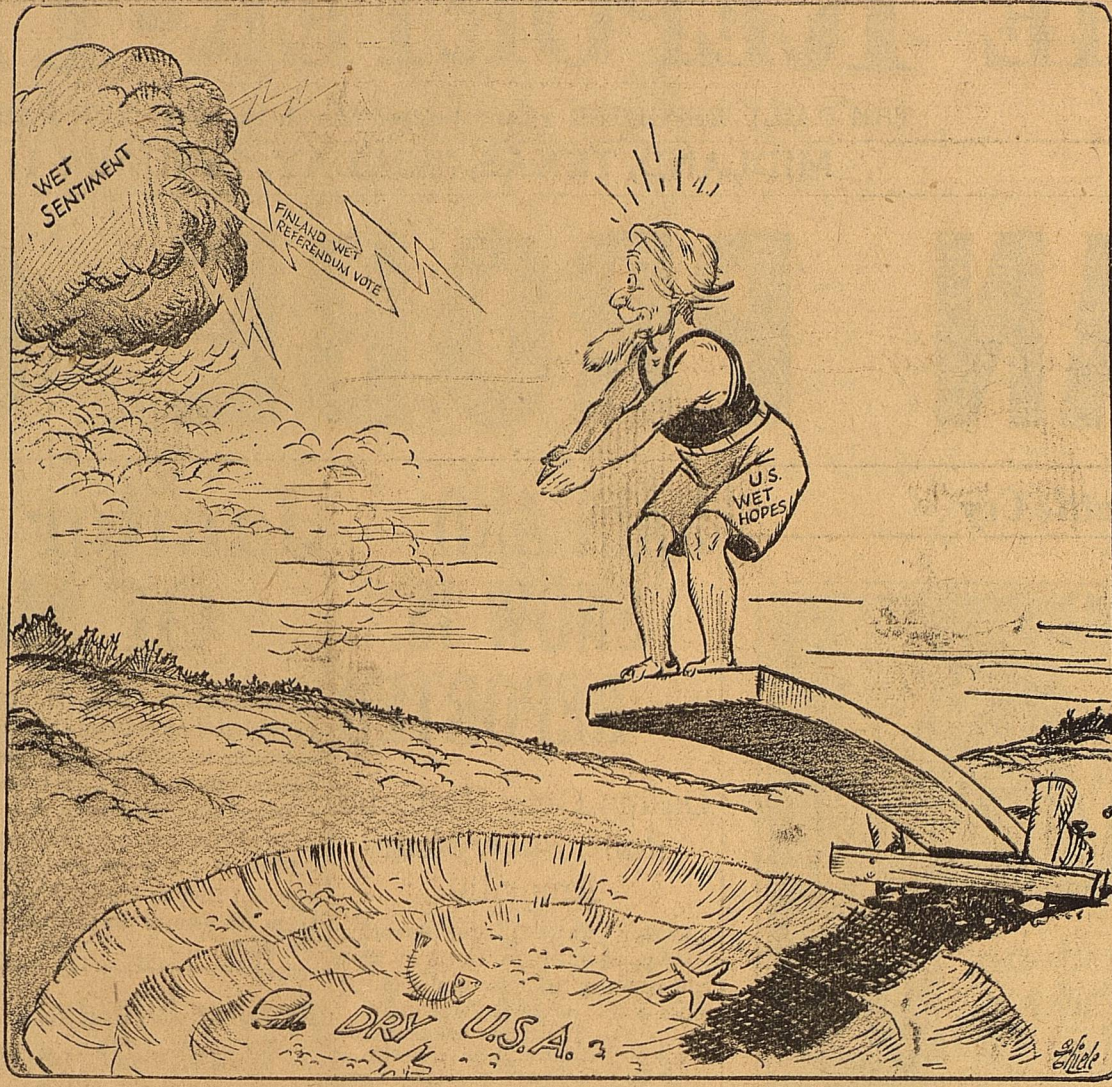

Women judges, though few, are serving with distinction, Burt said.

The Optimist!

Lure of Liquor Profits Is Cause of Deaths Over Fall

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—That irresistible urge to profit from running of booze across the Niagara River from Canada has taken the lives of more than a score of men who have been swept over the falls and dashed to pieces on the jagged rocks below in the last two or three years.

Old Man Winter, with his ice and snow, and the possible freezing over of the falls, soon will put an end to such dangers for a few months.

Rum runners take great risks to get their cargoes safely on American soil. The unusually swift currents lead directly to the crest of Horseshoe falls.

Once a liquor craft is disabled, its occupants are doomed to being swept over the cataract. On rare occasions, however, rum boats become wedged between rocks and the crews are rescued.

Also, the efforts by smugglers to escape arrest by United States border patrols lead them to ply their boats close to the falls where federal craft does not operate.

To the present day, the hulk of a large sub-chaser precariously holding fast to a rock in the upper river, serves as a reminder to residents of a memorable struggle between man and the elements. The sub-chaser's motors failed and it would have been swept over the falls with its crew had it not become wedged between rocks approximately 1000 feet above the precipice. The crew was rescued by a breeches buoy.

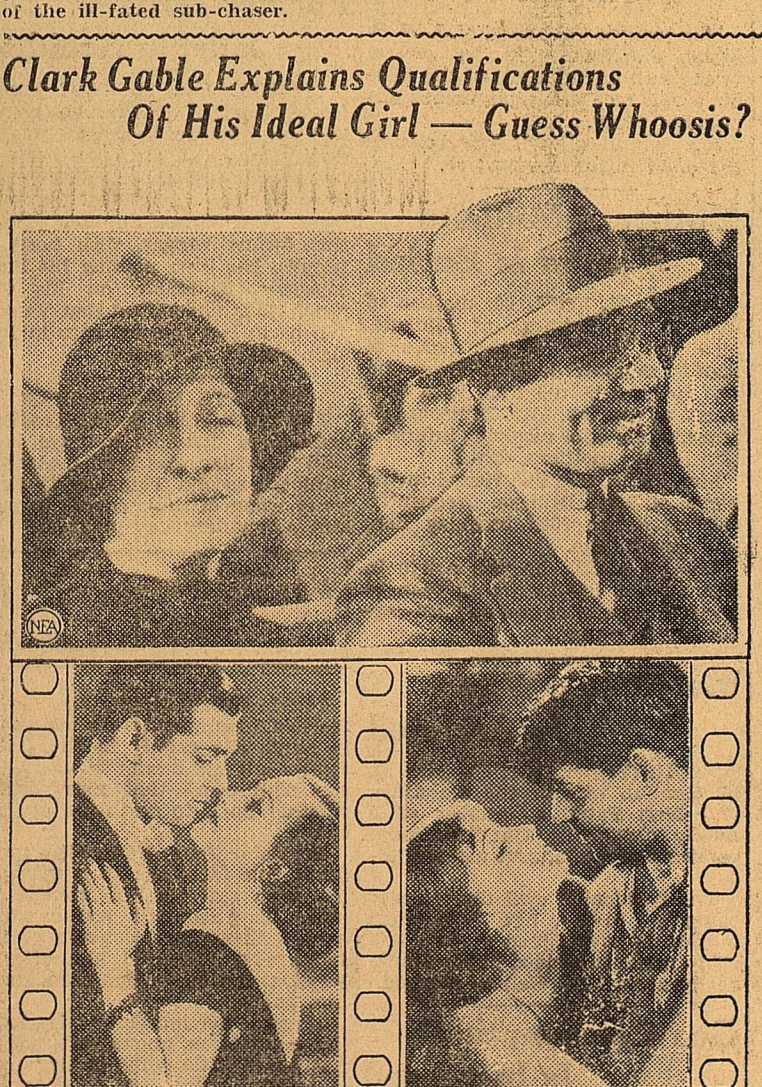

The bed of the upper river is literally paved with booze thrown overboard by smugglers when federal officers have appeared unexpectedly. Many smugglers haul booze across the border by attaching it to the bottom of their boat and letting it drag in the waters.

Detroit hi-jackers have been known to operate here, attack the rum runners, steal loads of booze and set the luckless men adrift in a boat to be carried to their deaths over the falls.

Recently William "Red" Hill, veteran riverman, found the wreckage of a boat in which two Ontario youths were swept over the falls after they had been the victims of hi-jackers.

A few weeks ago border patrolmen trapped two youths, Mike Pzyski, 18, and Louis Mazgala, 21, at the head of Goat island. Pzyski was arrested and Mazgala waded out into the stream and was never seen alive again.

Clark Gable Explains Qualifications Of His Ideal Girl — Guess Whois?

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer HOLLYWOOD.—Get Clark Gable to describe his ideal girl! If there is one thing Clark doesn't like to talk about, it's girls. Since all these stories have been written about him causing all girls' hearts to do nip-ups he has steered clear of any conversation dealing with femininity.

The Town Quack

two of Martin county's most prominent cow men. All the "fuss" about determining the "prize beauty" of the two ranchmen was started by Quack, in his column in the Reporter-Telegram, a few days back. The fact that Quack is unable to decide which of the two ranchmen is the better looking, is no reason that the citizens of Stanton who know Tom and Dickenson, should have their brains muddled up over the affair. To the citizenship's way of thinking, neither one of the ranchmen have the edge over the other on good looks. Both are the most handsome ranchers in West Texas.

Over in Missouri, where mules are prominent, a club has established a ruling whereby every time one of the members mentions the depression, he gets a swift kick. Which means that a few will probably get a kick out of the depression.

I believe it was Doc Pemberton, in a Rotary bulletin, who was author of the quotation, "A fool and his money are soon married."

times, twice to his present wife, because of a mixup. His first wife divorced him in 1928 in California. A year later he married Rita Langham (his present wife), a non-professional, in New York. But it wasn't quite a year, the time required by California law to make a divorce decree final. It was three days less.

He had failed to make the grade in Hollywood, and had decided not to return there. But after finding himself a film luminary, which consisted of, almost permanent address in Hollywood, he and Miss Langham decided to be married again, just to be sure.

Mrs. Gable refuses to enter into her husband's professional life. She refuses to be photographed either with Clark or alone. "Clark," she says, "is the one the public is interested in—not me."

Describing his ideal girl, Clark says: "When I was a high school kid my ideal girl was more or less personified by my stepmother, who had taken care of me since I was five. In those days I dreamed of a slender brunet with an infinite understanding of a man's problems, with a real interest for home-making and with a youthful simplicity and lack of sophistication."

"Later on, after I had spent a couple of years barnstorming with a theatrical troupe, my ideal girl had changed. She still was a brunet but instead of simplicity and domesticity, I wanted worldliness, sophistication, knowledge of people and clever wit. At that time the leading lady of our company, who had traveled all over the world, appeared to be exactly the girl of my dreams.

"A few years later my ideas on girls changed again. I still wanted her to be slender and brunet, but

CANADA FLIES MAIL

MONTREAL, (NEA)—The longest air mail route in Canada penetrates the interior of the Dominion 1800 miles from the last railroad outpost.

From McMurray to Aklavik and Herschel Island at the mouth of the Mackenzie river.

This air mail line now serves regions of Arctic and sub-Arctic regions of the country with a monthly delivery of mail, whereas before mail was rarely distributed more frequently than once a year.

This route is far from a bed of roses. It lays along the path of blustery Arctic winds. It is not lighted, nor are there telegraph wires, train tracks and highways below the speeding planes.

Despite the handicaps encountered by pilots however, the 1800-mile course has been made in 21 hours, with stops at 15 points along the route.

U. S. PILOTS LEAD

NEW YORK.—U. S. air mail pilots outfly those of England, according to a comparison of flying time between air line pilots of both nations. Veteran pilots of the Imperial Airways, Britain's premier air line, which has been operating 12 years, have not more than 6655 hours to their credit.

The nine ranking pilots of the United States have an average of more than 8600 hours in the air.

A book was recently printed in a language that is spoken by only 300 people. It is a version of the Gospels prepared by the British and Foreign Bible society for the use of the Worrors, a tiny tribe of Australian aborigines.

CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL

SAN ANTONIO, (UP)—The new $3,000,000 Catholic high school built by the Brothers of Mary will be dedicated here Jan. 17 by Archbishop Arthur J. Drossaerts.

The capacious educational plant, accommodating 700 students, opened Jan. 4 to replace the old St. Mary's Academy, which dates back to the days when San Antonio was but a frontier post.

The new building's class rooms, library, and laboratories are brightened by 10,000 glass window panes.

Stained glass windows imported from Munich, Germany, adorn the little chapel built in Tudor Gothic style near the residential quarters.

West Texas Shows Buying Activity

SWEETWATER.—West Texas proves to be superior over other sections of the nation in active business. Definite example to prove its place in business affairs is recognized by the fact that W. E. Wade of Sweetwater won over approximately 1,000 other salesmen in the nation-wide contest that was recently conducted by one of the largest packing concerns in America.

Where Two Flyers Died on Desolate Mountain Top

Here is the grim solution to the mysterious disappearance of two women aviators, Mrs. Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, of Indianapolis. En route from St. Louis to New York, their white monoplane encountered fog west of Harrisburg, Pa., and crashed on a desolate mountain top with the result shown here.

Priest's Army of Jobless Arrives in Washington

Wearied from their long trek to the nation's capital, where they hoped Congress would hear their pleas for work, thousands of the invading army of jobless were quartered, as shown above, in vacant buildings. They were led by Father James R. Cox of Pittsburgh.

Judge and Horse Grow Old Together

ARCHER CITY, Tex. (UP).—A companionship that is almost human, between his faithful horse, "Buster Brown," and Judge John Purcell, of Archer City, has existed for 17 years in this community. "If there is a place for animals in the 'spirit world' as there is a heaven for the redeemed souls of men, doubtless 'old Buster Brown' would be there when the roll is called up yonder," the retired attorney says of his faithful horse.

Judge and Horse Grow Old Together

The horse still is known as one of the finest four-gaited saddle horses in the state of Texas. Judge Purcell said that the horse, being an animal of almost human intelligence, learned the different gaits by name and would immediately take the one called by his master. "Since I retired to private life more than 17 years ago, he has carried me faithfully in my ranch work and to and from my home in Archer City to my ranches. During that long time he has been my constant companion and friend without guile, utterly free from hypocrisy, deception or selfishness, too often found in human beings. A perfect understanding developed between horse and rider; I knew him, he knew me. In his way he let his wants be known; I understood and usually gratified them as a reward for his intelligence and faithful performance of duty."

SAFETY IN AIR

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP).—Only 11 fatalities were recorded at San Antonio air fields in 1931 while nearly 500 army planes swept in the skies for a distance exceeding 3,000,000 miles. Most of the flying was done by inexperienced student flyers. Only three of those who died in air accidents were rated pilots according to records here. Featuring the list of fatalities was the mid-air collision of two planes near Brooks field last July. Two flight sergeants, an instructor and a flying cadet were killed.

Five flyers fell into membership in the caterpillar club by landing safely with parachutes.

Texans Kill Germs With Sound Waves

FORT WORTH. (UP).—Harnessing the energy of sound waves and applying it to sterilization of milk, fruit juice and serums, is the scientific contribution two professors of Texas Christian University have made.

Dr. Newton Gaines, of the physics department, and Dr. L. A. Chambers, of the biology department, have collaborated to bring about the new applications of sound. Their results were explained last week to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at New Orleans. Their achievements may revolutionize the milk industry.

In addition to using sound waves to sterilize, the professors have used them to kill frogs, water fleas, tadpoles and rats, and the energy may be harnessed to tear apart the germ cells that produce cancer.

The experimental apparatus looks much like the insides of a radio. It consists of a nickel tube, vibrating in a magnetic field 8,900 times a second. It gives off a musical note two octaves above the range of a piano. The sound waves are concentrated in an inverted funnel pushed into it at the same time milk or other liquids to be sterilized move into the concentration point. In the little funnel, with sound waves tearing at everything in sight, the germs of the milk meet their death. The professors have only to learn now whether the principle can be carried out successfully on a commercial scale.

The sound waves tests have shown kill from 99 to 99.98 per cent of milk bacteria. These results were shown when more than 5,000 slides of milk bacteria were made. Slow motion pictures of the effect of the sound waves on water fleas reveal that the high frequency vibrations literally tear the little insects to pieces.

Dr. Gaines, in going to the University of Texas two years ago to work for his doctor's degree, concentrated his attention on sound energy. After long hours of work, he perfected the sound apparatus that has been found practical in the sterilization of milk.

At about the same time, Dr. Chambers was in Princeton university taking his doctor's degree in biology. Although writing his thesis on snails of the sea, he tinkered with the idea of sterilization of milk with crystal sound sets, a different process from that of Dr. Gaines.

Garner to Keep Old Work Methods

WASHINGTON, D. C. (UP).—The elevation of John N. Garner, of Texas, to the house speakership has meant harder work for his wife, who serves as the democratic Texas congressman's secretary.

With three assistants, Mrs. Garner has typed at top speed since his election in answering letters and telegrams of congratulation.

Outside of being given a much more sumptuous office, the election of her husband to the speakership has not meant much difference to Mrs. Garner. A quiet secretarial suite of her own below the busy office of the speaker is occupied now by Mrs. Garner.

The room was decorated for the territories committee when the West was young, and names of the territories—New Mexico, Nebraska, Minnesota and the rest—are around the room.

"Mr. Garner and I are not going to change our way of living," Mrs. Garner said despite the magnitude of her office.

"We come to work at 7 a. m. To save lunch time I send out for sandwiches and boil my coffee in here. He eats a light lunch in the democratic lunch room—he always drinks milk at lunch. Then we work straight through until 6 o'clock."

Mrs. Garner was all in favor of the speaker giving up the luxurious limousine that could have been his to use and which was used by the late Nicholas Longworth when he was speaker.

"We'll probably take a taxi to the speaker's dinner at the White House, and we may walk home. That's what we did at the Grand dinner there. It's only a stone's throw from our hotel to the White House—and a beautiful walk."

FINED FOR PHONING

FORT WORTH. (UP).—Because he allegedly talked $5.45 worth over long distance to Mrs. Lula Raborn's telephone, a charge of unlawful use of a telephone was lodged against a man here.

The complaint was the first of its kind to be filed here. Mrs. Raborn said the man talked to El Paso from her home without obtaining her permission.

The 42nd legislature enacted a law making it illegal for a person to use a telephone in possession of another, without the owner's permission, and made conviction punishable by a fine from $1 to $100.
