Take off for Stratosphere Levels

SETTLE, FORDNEY AT 12,000 FEET AT 11:40 TODAY

Do Not Expect to Go To Altitude Set By Soviet

AKRON, O., Nov. 20. (UP).—Two aeronauts in a metal gondola attached to a balloon shot upward from the earth today in an attempt to enter the stratospheric regions ten miles or more above.

Lieut. T. G. W. Settle was attempting his second flight and Major Chester Fordney of the United States marines accompanied him. They were aloft from the ground crew at 9:27 o'clock this morning.

Drifting southeastward and rising rapidly, the silken bag was filled with 120,000 cubic feet of hydrogen lifting gas.

It was expected to be near the Atlantic coast before drifting to the earth. The maximum altitude was expected to be reached shortly after noon.

Unfavorable weather delayed the flight last Thursday and it was decided to leave at eleven o'clock last night. The balloonists expected to reach an altitude of 58,000 feet. Little hope was held for bettering the record of 11.8 miles, or 62,304 feet, as the bag is smaller. The men planned to study cosmic rays.

BAG 12,000 FEET JUST BEFORE NOON

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (UP).—Communication with Lieut. Settle was lost at 10:40 but was restored at eleven o'clock this morning. The balloon's position was ten miles south of New Franklin, Ohio.

The altitude was given as 5,000 feet, with the craft ascending at the rate of a meter and a half a second.

At 11:40 o'clock, the altitude was reported to be 12,000 feet over East Liverpool, Ohio.

CUBAN REPORT BEING STUDIED

BALANCING THE PROCESS TOWARD RECOVERY

Frances Perkins tells the New York Merchants' Association that the NRA provides "a good technique for balance" among finance, industry, agriculture, and labor, and that, she adds, is perhaps the most significant fact in the whole recovery program.

This remark, while it says nothing that has not been said before, nevertheless helps to clear up one of the most common reasons for criticism of NRA activity.

Getting a proper balance among the forces mentioned by Miss Perkins simply means fixing things so that each shall get its fair share of whatever degree of prosperity happens to be available, and devising a method whereby one group can throw the whole works out of line by taking a greater profit proportionately than the economic set-up can stand.

Now the getting of such a balance might not necessarily, of itself, restore full prosperity. What it would do would make it certain that such prosperity, when it did return, would be a self-accelerating thing, that it would be distributed evenly, and that it would not, as in the past, create the contradictions that lead to new depressions.

The NRA framework, in other words, is not so much a measure to restore prosperity as a conduit through which returning prosperity can flow more smoothly and rapidly.

It is just as well that we keep that fact in mind. Otherwise we are apt to gaze about us, see that the depression is lingering, and conclude that the NRA is worthless and should be junked.

Restoration of good business, as Miss Perkins points out, depends on the interlocking of a number of factors. The NRA is one of them, the Agricultural Adjustment Act is another, the public works programs is another, the present manipulation of the currency seems to be still another. And Miss Perkins properly warns us: "Restoration will be a comparatively slow process, with possible checks from time to time. No great cooperative effort such as this has ever been carried to a successful conclusion without some setbacks."

We can stand the setbacks, so long as we don't let them persuade us that the NRA is a flop because it isn't doing something it never was designed to do.

BREAKING THE RULES

One thing Maxim Litvinoff has done in his visit to the United States is change our conception of the typical red Russian official.

For one reason or another, most of us got the notion that the Communist was a dour, fanatical, intensely serious chap who wore bushy whiskers, was careless of his attire, frowned portentously and went about always as if the last trumpet had sounded and he found himself among the goats instead of the sheep.

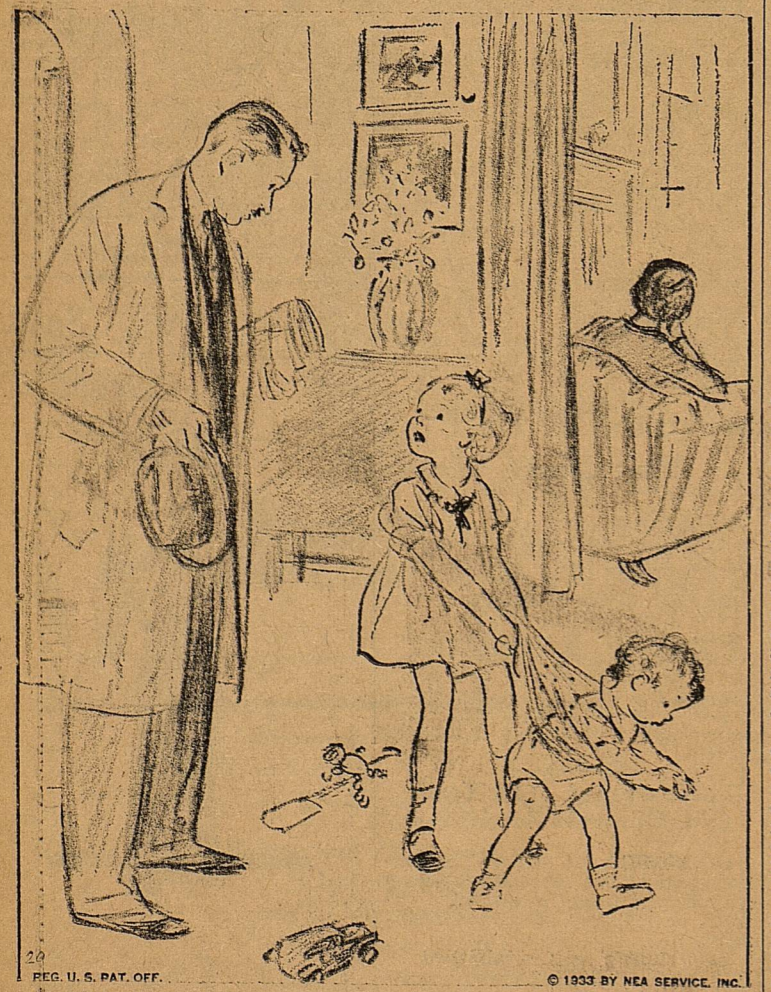

This Litvinoff, however, seems to be something else again. He is not exactly a dandy, but he is careful of his dress. He smiles frequently, evinces a child-like freshness of interest in things, jokes with reporters, beams upon the world at large—and, in fact, wins from feminine newspaper readers the adjective, "cute."

He doesn't, somehow, fill the bill. A Communist diplomat ought not to be getting quite so much fun out of life.

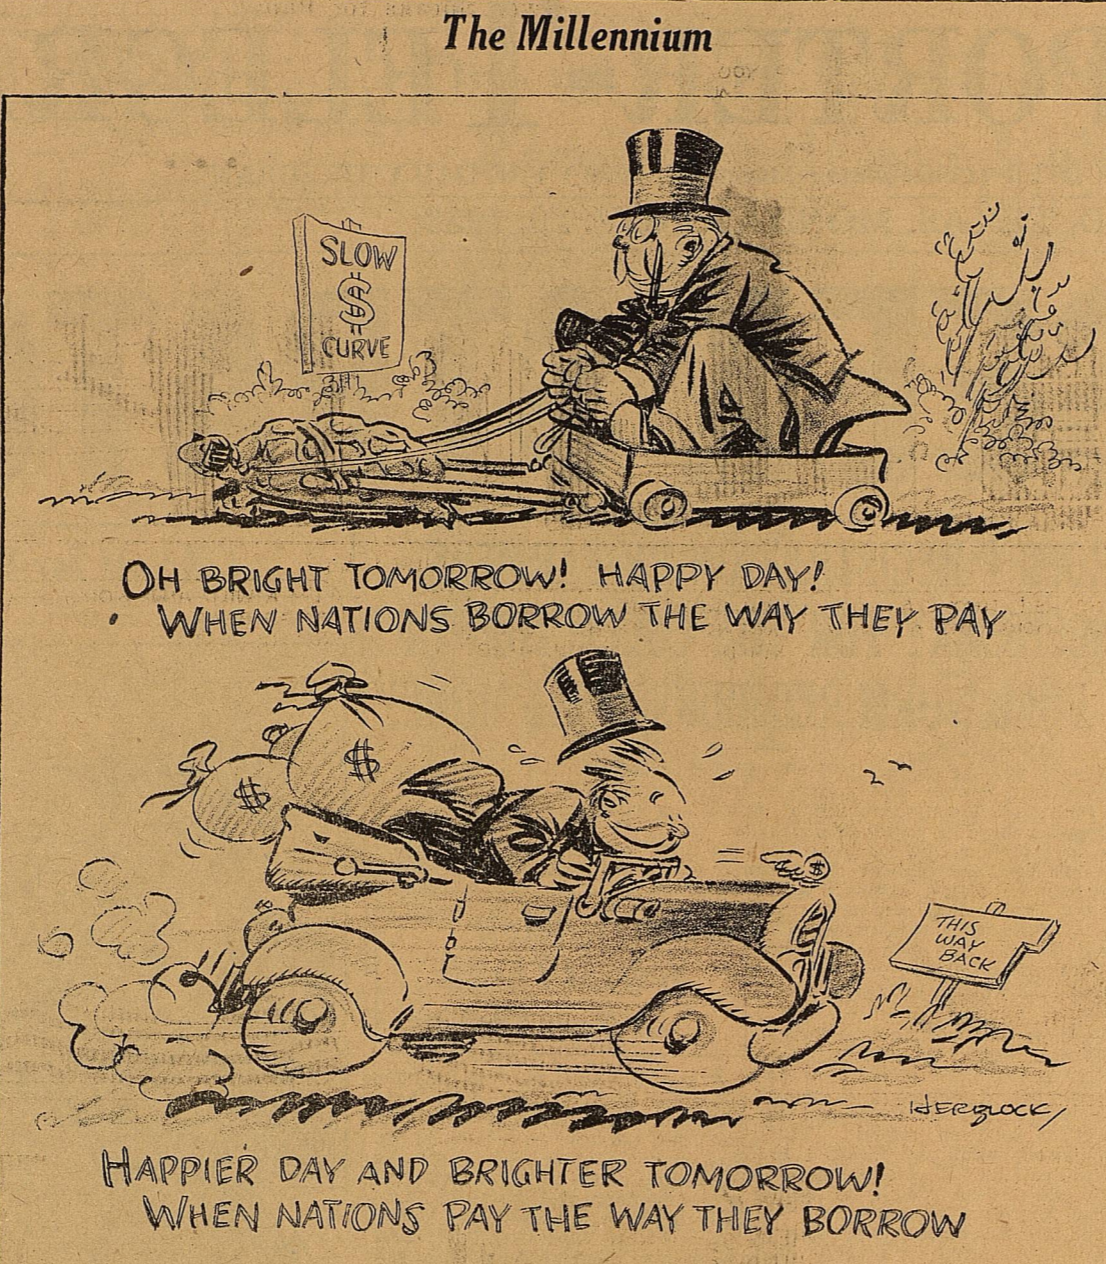

The Royal Railroad Station in Paris, where arriving kings and queens were formerly welcomed, has been transformed into a tea room because the rulers of today prefer to use the larger, public stations. But the same democratic reasons which caused royalty to disapprove of it as a railway station will now prompt a return to it as a tea room.

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS

"Avogadro" Nicholson, whose name really is Maurice S., and to whom The Reporter-Telegram is indebted each Sunday for compiling the football scores published, was reviving some of the ancient stories around wheezy dormitory radiators. Red Oliver, big and fast back who was such a friend of Billy Sunday, the well known divine, went into a game by mistake and scored a 90 yard run for touchdown. Coach Francis Schmidt indicated another red head and Red raced in and took the game over. What did Schmidt do? Yanked him out, and gave him a grinning rake-over.

Freshman Coach Dutch Myers of TCU was playing his frosh against TMC and didn't have but one sno. This fellow was cuckoo from a cranial wallop, and east, north and south were west to him. Dutch had to put a man on the field now, and so he sent in the sub with instruction to keep him 20 yards behind the play. Incidentally, the quarter made the goofy one sit on the ground the rest of the game—and will behind the play. The Wogans from the game without being scored on.

Hal Grady saw the Pampa-Lubbock game over the week end, and said Pampa plays like a college team. Whenever in man makes a mistake he is immediately pulled from the lineup, and there are plenty of good men to take his place. Any line man who fails to carry out his assignment goes directly to the bench. Pampa charged hard and got Lubbock men off their feet on nearly every down.

Hal was telling of an old fellow who teaches school at Oklahoma A. & M. A grid star thought he could get by an examination by a witicism, so he wrote on his blank paper, "God knows; I don't. Merry Christmas." He signed his name in flowing script. When he returned from the Christmas holidays his paper came back marked: "God gets 100%; you get 0. Happy New Year." The frock-coated one signed his name in Gothic lettering.

Jack Hodge says our report in today's hunting story is a bit vague. He said he demonstrated a hunter may shoot from the back of a mule—but only once. Beaten out by a couple of deer toward Hodge and his mule, but Jack didn't know whether the deer were does or bucks—they were too far from him. He jogged the mule up the side of a draw, hoping to get a long shot when they emerged from the brush so he could see their horns, only to find himself in the path of the deer, who had changed course. The mule started dancing, but Jack felled one buck then had to throw away his gun in order to keep company with the now thoroughly frightened mule.

DR. ROMA'S ANSWERS

Q. Will I leave here soon and will I go to the one I have not seen in five years?—Mrs. I. K.

A. I see a change for you and will be between now and the first of the year to the one whom you have not seen in five years. I'd like to see you in person tonight or in the morning.

Q. When will the man I love be able to overcome the difficulties that stand in the way of us being married?—V. C. C.

A. It appears to me that these difficulties will be overcome between now and the first of the year. I see a marriage for you, and your marriage will take place between the third and fifth months of 1934. See me in person.

Q. Do I have any right to be suspicious of my husband?—B. B.

A. As it appears to me your jealous feeling is causing your husband to act as he does. Yours is an unusual situation. I should like to see you in person. There are things you should know which can only be explained privately.

Q. Will I receive a large amount of money soon?—A. W.

A. Indications are that your wishes will be granted and you will not be disappointed. Financial freedom will be yours.

Q. Will my husband ever quit drinking? I have been thinking of leaving him for a while, thinking maybe that would cause him to quit. What would you suggest doing? Birth date Sept. 6, 1908.—E. W.

A. According to your signs and as it appears to me you are in harmonious with your husband. Vibrations are negative from both of you. If a harmonious relationship could be established your husband would not care to drink any more. See me in person.

Q. When will my next child arrive and what will it be?—M. C. B.

A. As it appears to me you will [NOTE: Dr. Rajah Roma may be interviewed at Hotel Scharbauer. For each question sent to The Reporter-Telegram, enclose 25c, and they will be answered through this column.]

Bombs, Guns, Planes Used in Revenge on Gangs in Ritz Film

"Vengeance up-to-date" is the motto of Ralph Forbes, Monogram Pictures star, who used aeroplanes, Mills bombs, machine guns, and other implements of modern warfare in effecting his revenge on a gang of crooks who have been instrumental in sending him to prison in "The Avenger," thrilling Monogram feature coming to the Ritz theatre tomorrow.

"The Avenger" is the intriguing story of the weird vengeance of a young assistant district attorney who has been sentenced to twenty years in prison on circumstantial evidence. His release is effected through the death-bed confession of one of the gang. Knowing who has framed him, but unable to prove it before law, Forbes embarks upon the unusual plan of a terror campaign, which one by one brings about the disappearance of his enemies until only one remains for the startling finale of his plan.

Appearing with Forbes in the thrilling feature are beautiful Adrienne Ames, Paramount star, Arthur Vinton, Claude Gillingwater, Charlotte Merriam, J. Carroll Nash, Burton Churchill, Paul and others. It was directed by Edwin L. Martin from the novel by John Goodwin.

One of Every Five Families in Nation Receives Red Cross Jobless Relief in 1933

AN ARMY of volunteer men and women relief workers almost ten times greater in numbers than the standing army of the United States carried Red Cross relief into the homes of America's jobless during the past eighteen months.

Six hundred and forty-five thousand women joined under the Red Cross flag in sewing garments for the needy, in distribution of bread and flour, and in canning foods for their neighbors in distress because of unemployment. A half million men—bankers, lawyers, doctors, merchants and men in every walk in life—gave of their time as chapter officials and as active relief workers in distribution of goods. Thousands of trucks were lent to carry flour and clothing from railroad loading platforms to warehouses, and then into remote rural sections to be delivered promptly into homes where need was great.

"Only the Red Cross could assemble such an army of volunteer workers," was the tribute paid their service.

The relief was given to one of every five families in the nation.

It went into every hamlet, village, town and city and to all rural districts. The flour and bread came from 85,000,000 bushels of government wheat and the clothing from $44,000,000 of government cotton, voted by Congress to the Red Cross for free distribution. More than five million families were recipients of both types of relief.

The wheat was converted into 10,688,000 barrels of flour, and 223,901 tons of stock feed. The cotton provided approximately 90,000,000 garments—overall, jumpers, dresses, underwear, stockings and sweaters, for men, women and children. Blankets, comforters and sheets also were given.

Distribution of the cotton clothing and the flour cost the Red Cross $735,000 from its treasury.

The last of the flour was shipped by the Red Cross in June, and the last of the clothing was distributed in October.

Children were clothed for school this autumn and their parents were given garments to meet their needs.

This relief task was assumed by the Red Cross in addition to its chartered obligations in disaster relief aid to veterans, health and safety education. Red Cross aid was given in 117 disasters in the United States and her insular possessions during the year. This relief work is made possible through the annual roll call for members carried on by Red Cross chapters each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Martin Co. to Put More Men to Work

STANTON.—In line with President Roosevelt's avowed determination to place 2,000,000 men now on work relief on "regular work at regular wages" by November 15, with another 2,000,000 unemployed to be absorbed as soon as possible, the Stanton agencies of the R. F. C. are pushing plans to supply all the unemployed of Martin county with work.

There are some 327 on the active relief rolls of the county and by the middle of December it is expected there will be 600 of the unemployed at work on various projects in the county.

The prevailing wage scale is 30c an hour on regular work relief projects and 35c per hour on special highway work.

According to Administrator Ray Simpson, it is the creating of more projects that is needed to provide work for the Martin county unemployed. The projects now under way are: road and bridge work east of town; grading and drainage on the Valley View school and mail line four miles east of Valley View; school road south of Lenora. It is hoped and expected that work will soon be in progress on the road leading from town to the cemetery.

The county has been employing a number of men and teams on the Stanton-Lamesa road, and now the county will commence this week to caliche the road. The caliche will come from the farm of I. J. Peters,

World War Film To Show Tuesday

Committeemen from the Veterans of Foreign Wars have been asked by Com. Charles Nolan to complete their checkup and turn in money to him at noon Tuesday for the great picture of the world war, which shows that night at the Yucca theatre.

The picture shows actual scenes of the havoc and unparalleled destruction of the World War, film shots contributing to it being supplied by state departments of the United States, Germany, Belgium, Russia, France and other nations.

Today's picture at the Yucca is "The Invisible Man," an eerie brain-child of the famous English author and political writer, H. G. Wells. The picture is the most original, so far as plot structure is concerned, ever to have been filmed.

Centenarian Says Women Assume Too Many Positions

HOLYOKE, Mass. (UP)—Looking back on 103 years of life, Miss Mary E. Nutting, spry despite her age, observes:

"I can't see why women want to be governors and mayors and get into every kind of business. If they keep on taking over men's jobs, what are the men going to do?"

"Women want to fill the pulpits, sit in the president's chair these days, and a lot of them would rather have a business than keep house. Looks to me as if the woman will try to get all the men's jobs the way things are going now, and I'm wondering what's going to happen."

Santa Claus Will Be Met by Undertakers

COLORADO.—The fact that Santa Claus is to be officially welcomed to Colorado upon his arrival in the city December 2 by the three undertakers located here is not an unusual situation that the grand old fellow is a dead one, states Jim Greene, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

In organizing steering groups for Colorado's carnival here Friday evening and again on Saturday, December 2, date set for arrival of St. Nick by airplane from the Far North, Greene designated the undertakers on committee to direct plans for receiving the distinguished visitor.

The undertakers designated are Bob Hubbard, A. D. Kiker and Burk Crozier. They are already busy formulating details for making Santa's visit a gala affair.

near the airport. Men and teams are at work getting the pit in shape to start hauling caliche at once. All this work will be done by teams and individual man power.

The wage of the worker will be paid by check, instead of a certain portion of the amount being paid by order on the merchant. This method will give to the wage earner his full wage to spend as he chooses.

The sewer project is still in the making, the city officials having complied with all the requests made of them, and the allowance of same to be constructed, is expected any time from the federal authorities.
