THAT PROPOSED "CODE FOR HOUSEWIVES"

Those Iowa women who suggested that a working code be fixed up for housewives, so that the lady of the family could get some sort of a break in the matter of hours and pay, seem to have started something which might give General Johnson and the NRA crowd the toughest problem they have yet had to tackle.

Fixing up a code for the coal industry may seem difficult; ironing out the complexities of the oil trade may look hard; arranging things for steel and auto manufacturers may appear perplexing—but wait until you try to put the housewife's daily round into a formal code, before you say you have tried something tough!

What do these Iowa ladies suggest? A "day" that begins at 7 in the morning and runs until 7:30 p. m., with four hours off in the afternoon, an allowance of $14 a week for housekeeping money, and no work on Sundays; and while that seems fair enough, no one who has ever watched a busy housekeeper in action will suppose that putting it into practice could be easy.

Many a man has said contemptuously that the trouble with wives is that they don't plan their work properly—they don't use "system" in their daily round. He has said this, that is, until some family emergency has forced him to stay home for a day or two and do mother's work himself.

At the end of that time he is invariably more than ready to go back to his own job, and he has no more to say about planning and domestic systems. He has learned that if there is one job on earth that refuses to become cut and dried and formulated it is the housewife's.

How are you going to formulate a code which allows for such every-day mishaps as Junior's getting ashes from the fireplace all over the living room rug, or for the harassing calls of unwelcome house-to-house canvassers who break into the routine and compel "overtime" work, or for the added toil which comes when the neighbor's puppy gets hold of the clothes line and soils a whole string of newly-washed clothes?

These are part and parcel of the housewife's day, and they help to show what a job fixing up a code would be.

The housewife may have it easier today than was the case a generation ago—but she still has a conglomeration of tasks that would have the average man talking to himself inside of 48 hours.

OUR PROBLEM IN CUBA

The government at Washington seems to be doing its best to find the right course in an uncommonly tortuous and complicated maze in connection with the unrest in Cuba. It is facing a situation in which it has a great many chances to displease a great many people, and very few chances to win any applause; and so far it seems to have guided its course with a good deal of tact.

We have a definite responsibility for what happens in Cuba. We gave that nation its independence; we have since kept it more or less under our wing, reserving the right to intervene if self-government breaks down; and the notorious faults of the Machado regime have undeniably produced a situation in which some sort of action on our part is essential.

Nevertheless, the affair is far from simple. To go so far as to land troops at Havana would awaken the customary wave of resentment throughout Latin America, even though it was done for Cuba's own good. To apply pressure without seeming to apply it, and to convince everyone that you are doing it disinterestedly, is not easy. Right at this moment Uncle Sam seems to have been handed a singularly thankless sort of job.

Unemployed workers probably will find on that bridge project between San Francisco and Oakland, Calif., a second Golden Gate.

On Vacation? Well, Yes--But President Manages to Get in 30 Hours' Work a Week

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Writer

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Mr. Roosevelt thus far hasn't announced a working "code" for Presidents of the United States on vacation, but he seems to have come to a silent agreement with himself that three active hours a day are a minimum requirement, and that the average shall be about 30 hours a week.

So the schedule is highly variable, and subject to change without notice. In fact, it varies with current events, the relative humidity, the number of administration officials visiting from Washington, the lightness of the Val Kill swimming pool, or the desire of woodpeckered little "Buzze" Dall for grand pa to read to him about the three bears.

When it's too hot to lie abed late in the morning Mr. Roosevelt calls McDuffy, his valet, rises, has a light breakfast and plunges directly into work. A call is sent to Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre at the headquarters five miles away in Poughkeepsie, and McIntyre and one of the staff photographers are soon speeding to the mansion.

Study Is Work-Worn The central and oldest part of the big Colonial house is of stucco-covered masonry, with a big hallway, a formal study, and music room on the first floor, living quarters on the second floor. The president usually works in the study, and concentration on a stack of letters and telegrams seems to make him oblivious of the heat.

The coolest spot in the big house is the huge, high-ceilinged library, a stone addition that Franklin Roosevelt planned and had built 20 years ago. At one end of this, near a big window that overlooks the distant Hudson, he has another desk, on it a brass six-o'clock clock that strikes bells instead of hours.

Two hours generally are enough for polishing off the day's dictation and instructions to secretaries, and then the president, remembering he is supposed to be enjoying a vacation, proceeds to get outdoors. The house is set back several hundred yards from the Albany Post road and scarcely can be glimpsed through the heavy shrubbery and fine old trees. There are benches and chairs on the lawn; also a slide and swing for small Anna Eleanor and Curtis Roosevelt Dall. Incidentally Anna, who's called "Sistie," has a couple of front teeth missing this summer, has her curls bobbed, and has learned to swim.

Six Horses on Estate A visit to the stables and the saddle room is part of the regular morning routine. In a long row of box stalls are six horses, if you count the Dall children's rotund little Shetland, called "Daily Dump-lin." Ezra Pine, the stableman for fifteen years, and who has taught all the older children to ride, shows them off with a good deal of pride.

"New Deal," the horse recently presented to the President, gets the most attention now, but has not been ridden by his owner. Only twice since his illness has Mr. Roosevelt sat in a saddle, and then only for a few moments.

Other stars of the stables are John Roosevelt's spirited "Patches," and Mrs. Dall's mount, "Natoma," both of them prize winners at many a show. Mrs. Roosevelt rides occasionally, and on her favorite, a sedate bay named "Doty." The other stud resident is "Pal-O'-Mine," a pinto sent to John Roosevelt from a New Mexico ranch last year.

F. R. His Own Driver But though the president is unable to ride horseback over the estate as he once was so fond of doing, he now can drive his own car along six shady miles of private gravelled roads. He recently traded in his dilapidated roadster on a new and specially built convertible sedan that can be operated entirely by the hands. The doors are extra wide to permit easy entrance; there is a power brake applied by a lever near the dash, and a special centrifugal clutch that works automatically.

Gus Genemich, the chief executive's personal bodyguard ever since he was inaugurated governor of New York state, always accompanies him on these drives. So, sometimes, do guests from Washington, and important conferences have been held on lonely hillside roads, the car parked under some leafy bower.

Cultivated areas of the estate will yield only enough fodder for the livestock. Hay has just been cut on one side of the road leading to the house, and on the other side is a field of corn, now about five feet high. In pasture is a herd of cattle, of the mixed strain started by the president's father when he crossed Jerseys, Guernseys and Alderneys. Mr. Roosevelt has promised—or possibly threatened—to stage a hay pitching and milking contest between the newspaper correspondents.

Poses for Sculptor Luncheon usually is something of a ceremony, since visiting notables are entertained there. Mrs. James Roosevelt, snowy-haired alert-minded mother of the president, is the official hostess, because it's her house. The mid-day menu is simple; mostly salads and iced tea. Afterward there's talk, and maybe a local visitor or two. Occasionally the president poses for photographers and holds a press conference. He also must pose for the Russian sculptor, Nison Tregor, who's making the first bust from life since the inauguration.

The pool at the Val Kill cottage has been placed at the convenience of the correspondents and their wives up to 4 o'clock each afternoon, which is swimming time for the president. However, if word gets around that he isn't coming for a dip, the First Lady usually goes there to greet the crowd and to invite everybody to tea.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt is apparently tireless, and doesn't even seem to mind the broiling sun. She has posed uncomplainingly for a half hour at a time for the news photographers and the movie men, painstakingly rehearsing her roles for the news reels and chatting amiably with the whole group meanwhile. She always drives her big blue roadster with the top down, and wears a blue scarf on her hair instead of a hat. Her arms are deeply bronzed to a little above her elbows.

A Swimming Coach! Sometimes the president shows up at the pool unexpectedly, but puts the guests at ease by telling them to go right ahead with their swimming. The other day he coached a woman writer who was trying to learn to swim, and under the assumed sternness of his command she astonished herself by paddling to the opposite side.

As it always has been, evening is home-time for the Roosevelts. Often there's twilight picnic suppers by the Val Kill lagoon, and then a retreat to the big house a mile and a half away through the woods. Cares of state seldom are allowed to disrupt the family gathering. There is talk of the day's doings, sometimes some music and perhaps a game of hearts or rummy. The president usually retires early, though never knowing what the next day may bring.

PLAYOFF SERIES FINDS STRONGEST TEAMS OPPOSING TONIGHT

PAPOOSES LEADING SCORERS; WHILE ICERS MOST SUCCESSFUL ON DEFENSIVE

Opening of the first game of the play-off series this evening will find the strongest two clubs in the league both offensively and defensively pitted against each other. The Paaposes led all clubs in the league in the scoring of runs while the Southern Ice had fewer men to cross its home plate than any other. Offensively the Paaposes were the only team that can boast a 300 club batting average and they bested this by two points while the Ice was second best in the league with an average of .291. A check-up reveals that each club had five men hitting better than 300 with the Paaposes having the league leader in P. Cook, outfielder-pitcher, boasting a .379 and H. Jones of the Ice right behind him with .375.

Defensively the Paaposes inflicted record 12 points higher than the Icers. The Paaposes fielded for a .896 average while the season average for the Ice was .884.

The Paaposes twice defeated the Icers this season, 7-6 and 10-6 while the Icers were returned winners in the other engagement 8-5.

North Ector Test Has Oil Showing

Drilling progressed below 4,075 feet Thursday after an oil showing was logged in Moran Drilling company No. 1 Smith, North Ector county wildcat test, two miles south and slightly east of the nearest production.

The test had a showing of oil reported from 4,013 to 4,025 feet, which some correlate with the upper gas in Stanolind Oil and Gas company (formerly Southern Crude) No. 1 J. M. Cowden estate.

Moran Drilling company No. 1 Smith, in the northwest corner of section 12, block 43, township 1 south T & P railway survey, topped line according to one call, at 3,945 feet.

The first showing of oil in Stanolind No. 1 J. M. Cowden estate, the North Ector discovery producer, was reported from 3,972 to 4,063 feet with an increase from 4,070 to 4,075 feet. The well was bottomed at 4,244 feet.

Rapid drilling progress is being made on both tests on Stanolind acreage. The company's No. 2 E. F. Cowden, in section 26, block 43, of township 2 south, T & P railway survey, about three-quarters of a mile northwest of the No. 1 producer, is drilling at 2,150 feet in salt and anhydrite. No call has been reported to the top of salt.

Stanolind No. 1 E. F. Cowden is a north offset to L. C. Harrison et al. No. 1 Addis, the discovery well in the pool five miles west of Odessa.

In the northern part of Ector county, Stanolind No. 3 J. M. Cowden estate, in section 34, block 43, township 1 north, about a half mile southwest of the No. 2 producer, is drilling at 2,390 in salt topped at 1,785 feet.

Further north Landreth Production company and Llano Oil company No. 1 Holt, in section 20, public school land, a half mile north and midway between two small wells previously.

"Silver Cord" Is Unique Variation

A unique variation of the eternal triangle, picturing the selfish woman who intervenes between her son and his wife with her abnormal maternal love, is the dramatic theme of "The Silver Cord," starring Irene Dunne at the Yucca theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

The dominating Mrs. Phelps is the mother who is substantially the "other woman" because her devotion to her two sons wrecks an engagement and almost mars a marriage. When David Phelps brought his wife Christina to his mother's household, both immediately had to contend with Mrs. Phelps' selfish regard for David. Christina not bearing Mrs. Phelps' overwrought sentiment promptly leaves David, willing to face the future alone with a forthcoming baby, thus bringing on a crisis.

Irene Dunne is forcefully dramatic in her splendid characterization of Christina. Able support is lent by Joel McCrea as David; Eric Linden as the other son; Frances Dee as his fiancée; and Laura Hope Crews, who created the mother role in the original stage production. John Cromwell directed from Jane Muffin's adaptation of Sidney Howard's play.

SWIMMING PARTY

The Light Bearers class of the First Baptist church was entertained Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock with a swimming party at Pagoda pool. Mrs. Dona Dumanag, teacher of the class, Mrs. J. O. Vance and Mrs. Shaffner were chaperones. Refreshments were served to ten members.

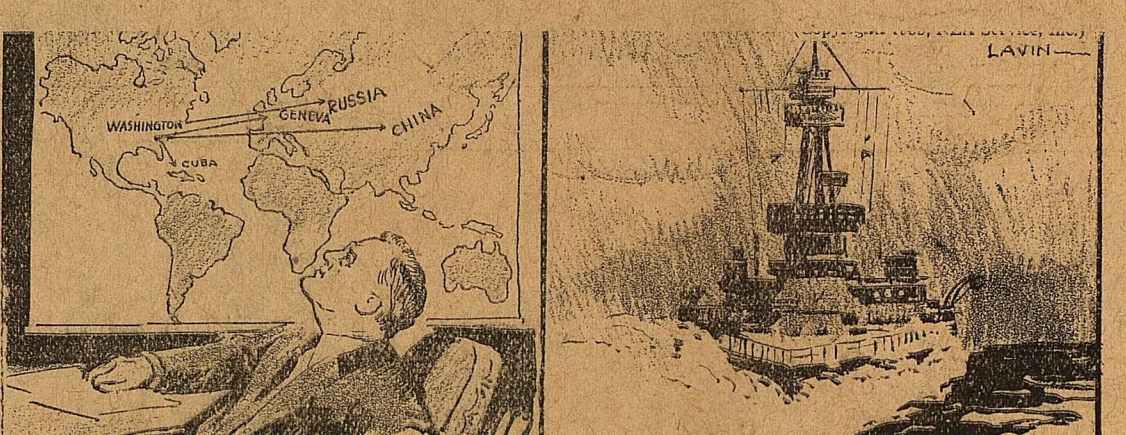

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Cooper were called to Abilene Sunday to the bedside of her brother, who is seriously ill.

The New Deal in Pictures --- No. 13

Text by John M. Gleisner Sketches by Don Lavin

When the Economic Conference met in London, the American delegation, led by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, refused demands to discuss war debts and rejected temporary stabilization of currencies in relation to gold. The president feared stabilization would retard price recovery at home, but was willing to cooperate on permanent measures to stimulate economic action and raise prices internationally.

War talk in Europe had caused the president on May 16 to address 54 nations, warning that world chaos awaited unless they signed non-aggression pacts. Norman Davis, ambassador-at-large, was pressing the ambassador to Geneva, Sumner Welles, sent as ambassador to Cuba, successfully mediated between the Machado government and revolutionaries. Friendly gestures toward Russia indicated recognition of the Soviet government was under consideration. Loans were made to China for purchase of wheat.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

The old time Gospel of Jesus Christ is being preached by Brother Jackson at the tabernacle at the intersection of South Fort Worth and East Kentucky streets.

Up to the close of services Saturday night there had been 22 conversions but praise God, yesterday, the Sabbath was a glorious day for the Lord for 38 souls were taken into the kingdom—one at the 11 a. m. service and 37 at the evening service.

To those who missed the service last night, you missed a feast. After the congregation was dismissed, stall-wart men and women, boys and girls kept coming to the altar, seeking and receiving forgiveness of their sins, until some 26 were converted and gave their lives to God, blessed be the name of the Lord.

The meeting will continue through the week. Everyone regardless of creed or doctrine is cordially invited to come worship God with us. Let your souls and hearts feast upon the manna from on high.

C. M. WILLIS.

Machado Says His Love Is for Cuba

NASSAU, The Bahamas, Aug. 14.—A twin-motored amphibian plane, bearing Gerardo Machado into political exile came down on the waters of Nassau harbor soon after dawn Sunday.

Deep lines of fatigue appeared in the face of the ousted president of Cuba, who, with a group of close friends, fled for his life from Havana Saturday.

Due to darkness his chartered plane alighted at Andros island and the party spent Saturday night in the ship. Natives had brought them cooked food.

"My love is for Cuba," said the former iron-hard ruler at his hotel. "History will show that my work has been good. Cuba is constitutional. If it is the people's will that I go, I obey. There will soon be stability in Cuba."

"I am glad I am with the English people. England understands trouble and my relations with England were always good."

Machado, who fled in such haste he had no baggage, wore a crumpled white suit, and a soft straw hat. The rest of the party wore hard straw hats and white drill.

The Machados party was met by government officials. Directly upon arriving, its members drove to the Royal Victoria hotel, where they called for whiskey and tea.

Police guarded the plane and accompanied Machado and his associates to the hotel, where a special detail of officers was placed around the building. Customs officials seized five revolvers from the party, but said they would be returned when the party left.

Before resting at his hotel, Machado called for a tailor and ordered a new wardrobe.

Only men associates accompanied him, and he said his family was staying at a resort near Havana and he had no fear that they would be molested.

He expressed himself as "highly pleased" at his reception here. His plans appeared indefinite, although he was considering sailing on a liner leaving here Aug. 26.

With Machado were Dr. Octavio Averofo, former secretary of the treasury; Jose Izquierdo, former chief of Havana Central District; Eugenio Molinas, former secretary of agriculture; labor; Manuel Mireno, a personal aide, two pilots and an aviation official.

Mireno planned to return to Havana with the plane.

Rinrichs Writes Of Octopus Fight

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (UP)—Back from a two-year isolation in far away jungle lands and remote sections of the globe, Lincoln Rinrichs is writing a book of his experiences.

Hinrichs, who claims to have been in the jungle for more than 20 years, has written a book around the globe, often has gone into jungle sections, armed only with a penknife and a club. His battle with an octopus along the shore of Tropical Island in the South Seas, was his most thrilling experience.

"I was wading waist deep in the water when the octopus wrapped itself about my right foot," Hinrichs said. "It looked like a losing battle as I gradually moved with the fighting burden toward the shore."

"Finally, I found I could withstand the pull without the use of a pole I carried, so I used it to prod the devilfish. The water became jet black from the inky substance it emitted."

"When I had about decided to try jabbing the arm where it held my leg, I must have touched that spot natives know, for up came a writhing tentacle. It is said a nerve center can be hit by those who know the spot, that will release all tentacles at once. The arm that broke water was eight or nine feet in length."

"Again and again I jabbed at that body. Once more the water broke and the tentacles came up. I jabbed desperately and presently my pole was caught, but my foot was released."

Marx Brothers to Sing in Next One

HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Strolling along Hollywood Boulevard—Clark Gable learned to fly a plane in Dallas. "John Barrymore's first flight was in 1912. The pilot, on a solo flight a few minutes later, was killed." Jean Harlow went to four schools in three states. "Walter Huston has ponies shipped in from Massachusetts."

Leslie Fenton started as understudy to Glenn Hunter. "Dorothea Wieck is a nut for surf bathing."

George Raft put his bodyguard into the "Midnight Club" flicker. "Name is Mark Grey. 'I'm afraid it's true the Marxes are going to sing in their next one. 'Jack Oakie plays on an amateur ball team."

Elizabeth Young calls her dog Minnie because everyone laughs at it. "Haha! ' Maurice Chevalier likes to go for sunrise walks in the hills."

Sylvia Sydney likes ice cream cones with chocolate in the bottom. Director Norman McLeod used to draw those one-line cartoons for the Christy comedies. "William Farnum was Helen Hayes' girlhood idol."

Brooks and the M-G-M bet was, is the only bicycle victim so far recorded. He broke his ankle. "The cheesecloth bill for chorus pictures is terrific. They use it for removing the body make-up."

Louise Glosse—Hale brought a duck to kill snails around her house. Now the duck's quacking keeps her awake.

Jean Parker has just been graduated from high school. "Mae West given John Barrymore's old dressing room. John got a new one. ' Joan Crawford does a "strip teaser" scene in her next opus."

Mae West and Dorothea Wieck live in the same apartment house. "Warner Baxter skips lunches to watch the progress of his new house."

Miniature Junk Shop Found in Man

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland, (UP)—A miniature junk shop has been extracted from the stomach of a man arrested here recently for theft.

When taken into custody he was so ill he was taken to a hospital. "My stomach," the man moaned, "pains me."

A doctor operated. He found: Two broken silver spoons. A safety pin. A wood screw, 1 1/2 inches long. Two sash window fastenings. Five pieces of iron two inches long. Two nails.

An X-ray, taken after the operation showed several other metal objects remaining.

France Gains Five Islands and Reef

PARIS, (UP)—Official possession by France of an archipelago of five islands and a coral reef in the China Sea, 400 miles west of the Philippines, is now a fact and instructions have been given to the French navy and to schoolbook publishers to stamp the islands on maps as French possessions.

This occupation of hitherto unclaimed territory is the first expansion of any colonial empire since the war. Lying halfway between the Philippines and Indo-China at 10 deg. N., 113 deg. E., these islands were anybody's property, but after the United States, China, Japan, Great Britain and Holland failed to do anything about it, the French Government decided in 1930 to take possession.

That the islands would make an ideal seaplane, or submarine, base was advanced by "Illustration" as a deciding factor in the decision. Navy despatch boats did the actual claiming, although two of the islands were found to be inhabited by Chinese.

The despatch boats Astrolabe and Alerite that planted the French flag on Tempest, Loaika, Iiu Aba, Thi-Tu and Twin Islands and Ambone coral reef found inhabitants on only two, Thi-Tu and Twin Islands.

COP IS TALENTED ARTIST

RACINE, Wis. (UP)—Fellow members of the Racine police force are urging Patrolman William Schmidt to take seriously to the art of drawing which he practices as a hobby.

Winner of an art scholarship 20 years ago in Leipzig, Germany, Schmidt spent some time at art school. When he came to the United States, however, he abandoned art and became policeman. Professional artists have appraised his technique as "perfect."

TWO ACCIDENTS CAUSE 2 DEATHS

DALLAS, Aug. 14. (UP)—Miss Ora Crozier, 19, and H. F. Hash, 23, were killed in two accidents early today. Five were injured in the car which overturned, killing Crozier. Hash's automobile was parked on a viaduct and was struck by another machine.

Arliss in an Orgy? Plays a New Role

George Arliss in an orgy? Ridiculous. George Arliss at the bar, drinking with young women. George Arliss gambling—and winning. George Arliss in a free-for-all drunken brawl. No one expects to see such "carrying on" on the screen.

But in his latest Warner Bros. picture, "The Working Man," movie fans will see just that when it comes to the screen of the Ritz theatre tomorrow for a three day run.

It is small wonder that the Viscount Lee of Fareham, titled English soldier and statesman, who is visiting Mr. Arliss on the set, was amazed. It was Mr. Arliss' haste to explain, all a part of the story. Even so Lord Lee's astonishment was still evident as he watched Arliss playing bridge for stakes. Arliss with a champagne glass playing tipsy in front of a group of frankly potted young people and urging them on to have a good time.

It is the first time Mr. Arliss has made such a scene for the screen and never before has the actor been a party to the delinquencies of the younger generation, even in celluloid. Never before has Arliss taken a part in a "high life" scene in a picture.

Nazi Party Makes Strongest Film Bid

BERLIN, (UP)—The Nazi Party is making its strongest film propaganda bid in a moving picture chronicling the career of Horst Wessel, an early victim of the Communist-National Socialist struggle, who since has been elevated to a rank approaching that of a national hero.

At Johannistal, near Berlin, the resources of a large studio are being used to produce the film. Two or three hundred good Nazi sympathizers, for 15 marks a day, have transformed themselves into Communists for purposes of the production.

The high point of the film will be the re-enactment of one of the earliest clashes between the two parties, in which Wessel and a handful of comrades fought an overwhelming number of Communists. The café in which the fighting occurred has been reproduced at the studio.

The Nazi Party has used the films to spread its doctrine. News items regularly show government officials in short speeches to the public. Popular demonstrations always are featured.

Recently there was released a full film entitled "Stormtrooper Brand," also dealing with the party's early struggle in a typical German city.

Rock Writings Aid Scientists

BEND ORE, (UP)—Assistance in tracing the wanderings of Aborigines over western America may be gained by recent discoveries of ancient rock writings on the shores of a prehistoric lake in southern Oregon.

The unusual rock writings, found in an isolated sector of Lake county, were described by Dr. L. S. Cressman, Oregon university ethnologist, as the oldest ever discovered in this state. They are of the type known to students of the subject as petroglyphs.

Originally deeply chiseled on rock cliffs overlooking an ancient lake bed, the writings have been obliterated in places by centuries and centuries of weathering. The petroglyphs were found carved along miles of cliffs and on sheltered slopes.

In one place it was discovered that the rock writings had been traced with paint.

So significant does Dr. Cressman consider the find that he hopes it may be possible to have the region studied further by a field party.

DES CESPEDES BECOMES PRESIDENT OF CUBA

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—Succeeding the deposed Gerardo Machado, Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes was inaugurated Sunday as provisional president of Cuba in an informal assembly.

Shortly after the veteran diplomat took the oath of the office which was vacated when Machado yesterday abdicated and fled into exile, the result of an army revolt, a group of men fired into the residence of Dr. de Cespedes, then sped away in an automobile.

Farms Conditions

county face a similar situation, according to their survey blanks.

Perhaps these reports are exaggerated in some instances. One farmer estimated he would need $1400 on which to subsist. The man with nine children said he could get by on half that amount.

When the word "relief" seems nearer being a reality, there are a few farmers, as would be the case in any group of people, who sense a comparatively easy time with relief living. This, according to officials in charge of the survey, might well come out of their heads to begin with.

The plan of battle is built along this line: The farmer is to exhaust every means of bettering his own condition before outright relief is sought.

For instance, he will seek employment under public works programs, highway construction, seek crop production and feed loans; then attempt to gain cash benefits for cotton acreage he would plough under next year. All this falling short of a living wage, relief funds would be sought.

Uncertainty of passage of the $20,000,000 relief bond issue and possible withdrawal of federal relief funds from Texas make it doubtful if relief funds will stand a serious drain.

by farmers, or urban dwellers. If NRA "clicks" tension will be lessened. Should it not work and relief is made possible, calamity stares the farmer in the face, out of the committee's said.
