CO-ED'S LETTER INVOLVES YOUNG GIDDINGS BANKER

Missing Bank Funds Not Mentioned in Letter

GIDDINGS, Aug. 23 (UP)—A Rice co-ed, in a letter to her parents, revealed that she had eloped with the young missing bank official who was being sought by officers when it was reported that $11,500 had disappeared from the bank's vault.

FARLEY CALLS ON TEXANS TO VOTE FOR BEER ISSUE

Editor's Note: The following is a complete transcription of the radio address delivered by Postmaster General James A. Farley, direct from democratic national headquarters in New York, over a network of Texas radio stations, Tuesday night.

To my friends in Texas: It is indeed a pleasure for me to take this opportunity to speak to the people of Texas about a subject of vital importance, not alone to the people of Texas, but to the welfare of the entire nation, and an integral part of the national recovery drive, to the success of which every energy of our present administration is bent. It is a cause very dear to the heart of President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner and everyone connected with the administration. This is the repeal of the 18th amendment and the legalization of 3.2 per cent beer as quickly as possible under the constitution of the several states.

The congress has taken every possible step to insure a swift consummation of these important moves to eliminate bootlegging and racketeering and to provide a much needed source of revenue for the federal treasury. Your own state, by the action of the legislature in submitting legalization of beer, has given the people of the state an opportunity to bring into its treasury revenues from a new source. To date 22 states have ratified repeal and 37 states have legalized beer in rapid order.

I am particularly happy to be able to talk to the citizens of Texas in advance of the election on next Saturday. I understand that my good friend, the most distinguished citizen of Texas, and one of the most illustrious sons of the honorable John G. Neff, Vice President of the United States is listening to me at his home in Uvalde and I want to say to him, "Hello, Jack, I hope you are enjoying your rest in Texas. You have read with pleasure your letter in which you appeal to your fellow citizens of Texas to vote for repeal. I want also to extend my personal regards to my many friends throughout the great state of Texas. Since I was a boy, when I saw Texas sprawled nearly across the map, I always had admiration for the state and I now have met and been friends with many citizens of the state and my admiration for the state and her people has increased.

Jury Begins Urschel Probe

Tells Inside Story of Bank Crash

Charging that federal officials permitted Detroit banks to remain open when they were insolvent because the officials believed prosperity was just around the corner, Senator James C. Owens of Michigan told his own inside story of the banking collapse, from the White House to the office of Henry Ford, when he appeared before the one-man grand jury in Detroit. Here is the gray-haired, fiery senator with an arsenal of ammunition for his attack on bankers, whom he sharply criticized for the way they had conducted their business and the way they handled the national crisis.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 23. (UP)—The federal grand jury met today to consider cases against Harvey Bailey and the four Shannons in connection with the Urschel kidnaping.

A LEGEND IN THE MAKING

Unlike the illustrious namesake of mythology, the Jason of our day sails in no Argo built of pines from Pelion. This Jason pulled into town the other day on a "side-door Pullman." But, just as definitely as the other Jason, he sought a golden fleece.

He had followed the gleam of its promise across a dozen states. He had dwelt upon it as the rail joints clicked under the wheels of the empty freight car. He thought of it as he tramped along country roads in the blaze of a midsummer sun; had yearned toward it as he rode through nights of rain and sleet on the rear of a motortruck. It had beckoned to him afar on every smoke plume from factory chimney. The golden fleece that our Jason sought was a job.

Lined up with hundreds of other youths for a dole of soup and bread, he must have felt the golden fleece at times to be as unattainable as ever the fabled treasure appeared to the ancient Jason. Hungry and cold and penniless, he faced obstacles that must have seemed as great as any encountered by the Greek hero. He had seen the plowing of the brazen-hoofed, fire-breathing bulls of poverty and idleness. All about him was the army of the unemployed, harvest of the sowing of the dragons' teeth. Surely that Jason of mythology had to strive no more stubbornly toward his goal than did the Jason of 1933.

But the Greek Jason found help. It was through the assistance of Medea that he soothed the dragon and gained the golden fleece. So in the past months our Jason has been the object of much attention. Civic authorities are awakening to the problem he presents. The Federal Government was aroused to action by his plight, and the Civilian Conservation Corps was formed. In city after city civic organizations are seeking to help Jason toward the gaining of his golden fleece. All across the nation, institutions are awake to the gravity of the situation and the threat to a generation.

The first Jason has faded into the mists of antiquity, his tale become a myth. Perhaps in some golden age that lies ahead the plight of the present-day Jason, in the light of happier conditions, will take on the color of legend. Perhaps poets will then sing of Jason's quest through the valley ruled by the fiery dragon "depression." But, for the present, his quest is very real and very important, and the responsibility of every citizen clear and unmistakable. Jason is the son of his country, therefore a brother of every man within its borders—a younger brother who needs practical help and loving guidance. Only as this is realized and acted upon will his story taken on its proper perspective and join that of the other Jason in the realm of mythology.

EDITORIAL NOTES

For many years Belgian flower and vegetable growers have needed Chilean nitrate of soda, while Chileans have desired the ready-made clothing and linens manufactured in Belgium, but, due to difficulties in obtaining funds for payments and of fixing contracts in variable moneys, no satisfactory arrangement for supplying each other's needs could be concluded. Recent signing of a commercial treaty in Brussels does not mean that these differences have been conciliated. They have merely been brushed aside in favor of the simplest of all rates of exchange, the direct exchange of the goods.

In a recent sermon, Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale University said:

Wouldn't it be terrible in this machine age, when we can see the stars and the moon, and an old man can read fine print if we were to miss everything in the spiritual world? Wars were fought before Jesus came, but after he appeared he showed that love is the strongest force, and if you want to disarm your enemy, love him. It is ridiculous for us, knowing this, to go back to hatred and revenge and murder.

Which will strike many as being both an ideal and practical plan for disarmament.

Webster defines eternity as "indefinite duration." I guess that's definition enough, but I read about a colored preacher who painted a much better picture of eternity for his congregation. This clipping was mailed to me.

The colored evangelist was warning to his exhortation. He was holding the penalty of unrepentant sin before the minds of his congregation. Eternity in Hell! He had pictured Hell, plenty. The leaping flames. The stench of brimstone. The tortures of the writhing, condemned souls.

"But now, sistern an' bredern, does yo' know what's Eternity? Kin yo' sinful minds picture ETERNITY? Eternity in HELL? Lemme give yo' a idea what eternity in Hell is. Ovah yondah to de East is de Atlantic ocean. An' ovah yondah to de West is de Pacific ocean. Hit's three thousand miles of dis United States of America, solid land, between dem two oceans. Three thousand miles of land between dem two oceans, what's got so much watah in 'em dat de Mississippi rivah don't mount to no mo' to 'em dan one spit in Hell.

"Hoah comes a lil' jay-bird. Dis jay-bird he stahs on de beach of de Pacific ocean. He pick up jus' ONE lil' drap o' watah in he beak. Den he start back East. He don't fly. He don't run. He don't hop. Dat lil' jay-bird he jus' walk slow-lak an' easy, wit dat drap o' watah in he beak. He walk plumb fum San Francisco to New Yawk. Three thousand miles he walk. When he gits to New Yawk, he drap dat drap o' watah fum de Pacific ocean into de Atlantic ocean.

"Den he walk back dem three thousand miles to San Francisco agin. He don't fly. He don't run. He don't hop. He jus' walk, slow-lak an' easy. When he git to San Francisco he pick up one mo' drap o' watah out'n de Pacific ocean, an' he start back to New Yawk. Drap by drap sistern an' bredern, dat lil' jay-bird finish de job he done start. He don't fly. He don't run. He don't hop. He jus' walk, back an' fo'ih, slow-lak an' easy. He ca'y dat watah fum de West to de East, fum de Pacific to de Atlantic, drap by drap, in he lil' beak. He ca'y hit fum de Pacific ocean, an' he drap hit into de Atlantic ocean.

"Dat lil' jay-bird he empty de hull Pacific ocean inter de Atlantic ocean. Drap by drap he walk three thousand miles an' he empty de ocean so big dat if'n you wuz to empty de hull Mississippi rivah inter it, hit would be jus' lak you or me spittin' in hit. He didn't fly. He didn't run. He didn't hop. He jus' walk, easy-lak, till he empty de Pacific ocean, drap by drap.

"An' when he done finish dat job, bredern an' sistern, HIT AIN'T SUN UP IN HELL, YIT!"

When someone mails me a clipping like this they are saving me a day's work. I pretend to the staff in the office that it would be a breach of etiquette to throw clippings in the waste basket. They take up about all of my space so that I write nothing until the following day.

The editor asked me to please make myself known to Fred Gordon Middleton, so Fred Gordon wouldn't be charging him and Hankins up with being the Quack.

Fish, Fishermen Die in Struggle

NIZZA DI SICILIA, Italy. (UP)—A great tuna fish and Salvatore Santisi, 54, had a tragic battle that ended in a draw; both antagonists died.

Santisi was out in deep waters with his son and two sailors striking for tuna with a harpoon from a sailboat. Steady of eye and arm he spiked a great fish right between the fore fins as he had done countless times before.

This time, however, Santisi forgot to roll his rope before striking and it encircled his foot, only to pull him overboard when the fish darted for the sea bed.

An hour later his companions recovered his body as it came to the surface. On the other extremity of the rope was the great tuna, dead.

Deaf Man Thrilled By Airplane Dive

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—The greatest thrill of his life was recently experienced by 65-year-old George Herrick, when he took his first airplane ride.

At the conclusion of the "air cure" which is often brought about by a sudden change of altitude, Herrick was not sure whether he had been helped as the drone of the motor was still drumming in his ears.

Jolson's New Film Comes to the Ritz

Mummy's song is ended, so far as Al Jolson is concerned. Her memory lingers on, but the grand old mythical lady is dead and will be permitted to rest in peace.

Minus blackface and definitely alienated from Mummy, Sonny Boy, and other of his old standbys, the screen and stage star will make a new bid for character acting honors in his United Artists picture, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," which comes to the Ritz theatre on Friday and Saturday.

Although Jolson isn't a comedian with a Hamlet complex, he says the trend, even for comedians, is toward down-to-earth, believable characters that audiences can understand and sympathize with as well as laugh at.

Jolson's new role, he says, is geared to the times. His character, and practically all the other characters in Ben Hecht's original story, have no money, but they refuse to let depression, politics and other worries of the day, get them down. Jolson will sing, but it won't be about Mummy or Sonny Boy, and he won't face the audience on bended knee even once.

It is twenty years since Jolson started making the world Mummy-conscious. He has seen armies of Mummy singers come and go since he first warbled about the dear old colored lady in a "Whiter Garden" show in New York. And now Jolson, who introduced her and did the most to popularize her on the stage and screen, wants to report her demise and pay respect to her memory.

In his new venture, Jolson will have a love affair with Madge Evans, but lose her to Frank Morgan. Two veteran comedians, Harry Langdon and Chester Conklin, are returning to the screen after a long absence to appear with Jolson.

Pelicans Feast on Chub and Sucker

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UP)—Thousands of great white pelicans are feeding on hordes of dead chub and suckers in Link river and Ewatauna lake here.

The fish are dying from a malady unknown to game officials. Health officials welcomed the pelicans as they are keeping the water from becoming polluted.

Backfield Stars 'Warm Up' for Battle

ODESSA-TEXON GAME IN ECTOR CITADEL THUR.

Announcement that the Odessa ball club will play the crack Texon team at Odessa 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon was made through George Elliott, Odessa manager, this morning.

Those attending may be assured of a fast game, Elliott said in a letter to Jess Rodgers of Midland, the records of the clubs for the season shows that both the clubs have an unusual winning slate.

Late reports establish the game as a revival of West Texas league pitching duels, like those that occurred in the fading days of the league—when Midland and Coleman battled for the league confalon.

Two of the pitchers of that memorable playoff will be arrayed against each other, Lefty Briggs of Midland taking the mound for Odessa and "Flop" Harris, Coleman sensation, working for Texon.

MIDLAND INDIANS GO TO CRANE The Indians of Midland journey Sunday to Crane, and those out of the season here the following Sunday with Iraan, according to announcement of Dr. David M. Ellis, business manager of the club.

All-Comedy Cast Shows at Yucca Satire, farce slapstick, subtlety and every other imaginable phase of comedy are portrayed by twelve masterly comedians in a screen treatment of radio broadcasting with "Professional Sweetheart," RKO-Radio Picture. Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster are in the leading roles of this sprightly comedy-drama with a long record of stage and screen success in serio-comic characterizations. This is at the Yucca Thursday and Friday.

Gregory Raffoi, in "Professional Sweetheart" is Jewish the Wash Cloth King. He showed his mettle as a comedian in "What Price Hollywood" and "Once in a Lifetime." Two other reigning comedy favorites, Zasu Pitts and Lucien Littlefield, are responsible for additional laughs in featured roles as a sob sister and radio announcer respectively.

The remaining seven comedians of "Professional Sweetheart" are Allen Jenkins and Frank McHugh of the stage's "Burllesque," "Excess Daggage," "Front Page" and "Blessed Event," and the screen "Lawyer Man," "42nd Street," "Millie," "Crowd Roars," "Life Begins," now seen in representative roles as press agents, Edgar Kennedy and Franklin Pangborn, formerly together in several two-reelers, as an exasperated radio sponsor and an aesthetic "personality creator." Betty Furness' youthful humor, Sterling Holloway's "dead pan" antics and Frank Darien's bolsterous comedy complete the film's featured performances.

Series Averages Double Header For Ball Club

Plans were modified here today by the Midland Lions club whereby the Lions will play a double header tomorrow night under the lights of the Nocturne park.

Immediately after the game with the Midland Rotarians which will begin at 7:30, the local team will play the Wink Lions, whom they recently beat in a game played in Wink.

Not Even Street Safe from Homers

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP)—It's not the ball players, or clubs, who are to blame when a ball goes out of the park and strikes a person, but the city, Henry Meyer of Buffalo contends in a $5,000 damage suit against the city.

Meyer retains he was struck by a home run ball that went out of the International League stadium here and alleges that the injuries which resulted were due to the "negligence of the City of Buffalo."

The City of Buffalo has taken no steps to see that the condition is corrected and the streets outside the stadium made reasonably safe, Meyer's complaint reads.

Young Christy Fights for Health

SAN FRANCISCO. (UP)—Like his famous father, young Christy Mathewson has set his teeth and embarked upon a battle for health.

When the "Big Six" entrained for Saranac to launch his unsuccessful fight against the "White Plague," he carried with him the inspired, but doomed to disappointment, hopes of the baseball world. Achieving his fame in another field, that of aviation, young Christy began to teach aeronautics at a Chinese government school in Hangchow. After almost a year there, the new "Matty" hopped off one day with his bride of two weeks. Something went wrong. The ship plunged to earth. Mrs. Mathewson was killed. Hope for Christy Junior was abandoned. But, displaying the same courage which won the admiration of thousands for his father, the son of the great hurler fought off death.

possmen who inspected the fort said, his capture from well-armed defenders would be virtually impossible.

Similar Crimes The wave of crime which led to the formation of the posse, began with the multiple of bank filling station and store robberies. So numerous did the holdups become that peace officers of western Texas and eastern New Mexico compared notes.

They found similarity of methods and other evidence indicating the same band was operating continually, dashing from one place to another and thence to hideouts in remote regions.

Many Taken Those taken were Lee Peabworth, alleged leader of the gang which operated the ranch, Ed (peach-mouth) Stanton, wanted on a murder charge; Jack Layman, youthful bandit and alleged slayer, recently released from the New Mexico penitentiary; and Jack Sullivan, police force, and young Gley Hunsucker, wanted for killing an officer at Tulsa, and Frank Wallace, Oklahoma outlaw.

Harve Bolin, chief of police of Fairview, Tex.; J. T. Mosley, sheriff of Swisher county, Texas; Joe Brown, deputy sheriff at Rhame, Tex.; Tom Jones, Lincoln county, New Mexico, deputy; Officer J. Leonard of the Roswell, N. M. police force; and young Bill Meador, deputy in the office of his father, Sheriff Rex Meador of Mountainair, N. M., were the victims on the side of the law.

Some were called in bitter battles with desperadoes—others were shot down in cold blood.

state voting for repeal and legalized beer on next Saturday, but because it is the banner democratic state, I hope to see it roll up the biggest majority for repeal and beer next Saturday as it did in the biggest majority for Roosevelt and Garner last November. Texas will then become the 23rd state to ratify repeal and the 38th state to legalize beer.

The repeal of the 18th amendment will return to Texas and every other state the right to deal with liquor as it sees fit. The good old democratic doctrine of states rights will be restored to the people of Texas, as being put into effect in dealing with the liquor question. Your vote for repeal of national prohibition, as you know, will not disturb in any way your own Texas laws which prohibit the legal sale of liquor in your state.

It is not necessary for me to go into arguments to the people of Texas about the repeal of the prohibition amendment. Racketeering, bootlegging, kidnaping, gangsterism and all of the ugly vices attendant upon them, have thrived during the last decade. The best manhood and womanhood of the fathers and mothers of the country are determined to end these crimes. The present administration, while carrying on its great effort to end economic depression, has suffered, is seeking to stamp out the crimes and evils so prevalent, and repeal of the 18th amendment is necessary to accomplish this purpose. Texas has given a magnificent response to the president's recovery drive and the blue eagle flies around the Lone Star emblem of our beloved state.

All if us in this administration hope that Texas, by an overwhelming vote Saturday will vote for repeal, thus helping, not only in the national recovery drive, but in the determined effort of the administration to stamp out bootlegging, kidnaping and racketeering.

Ladies and gentlemen of Texas, I deeply appreciate this opportunity to speak to you, and have several times visited your state and enjoyed your hospitality and hope to do so again soon. I want to thank you for listening to me and bid you good night to the victory, and my friends in Texas after urging all to go to the polls next Saturday.

16-Year-Old Boy Goes to Antarctic

By NEA Service LOS ANGELES—Charles Wilson, Jr., is the envy of all the youngsters of the west coast. For when the steamer "Pacific Explorer" sails from Boston early next month, Charles will be aboard, bound for a two-year adventure in the South Polar regions with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

It isn't every 16-year-old American youth who can get a taste of adventure like this. And is Charles excited? His mother says he hasn't slept a wink since she said he could go.

Unlike the two young boys who accompanied Admiral Byrd on his first expedition to the South Pole, young Wilson is not a boy scout, and has had no special experience in camping out or outdoor life.

As a matter of fact he has never even seen snow. But even at that the thought of braving sub-zero weather and unknown hardships for two years don't worry him in the least. "It's going to be great fun," he says.

Charles plans to keep a diary of his adventures at the bottom of the world, and may write a book later on. Just what his duties will be with the expedition he doesn't know. "I'll probably be cabin boy," he speculates. The trip will cut short his high school career, but he plans to return to that when he gets back in 1935.

Young Wilson, who was born in Salt Lake City, got the chance to go with Byrd through his father's friend, Guy O. Shirley, personnel and medical officer with the expedition. The youngster, busily preparing these days for the great venture, has promised to bring back to each of his envious friends a real live penguin.

John Hill of Amarillo was here today on business with Midland catmen.

SKULL UNEARTHED ORVIEITO, Spain. (UP)—A huge skull, apparently that of a prehistoric animal, was found in an excavation here. Four teeth still remained in the jaw, each almost 3 inches wide at the base.

One of gold's valuable qualities is its resistance to water; it has been found in perfect condition after being buried or submerged for centuries.
