A PRESIDENT'S TIMELY WORDS OF WISDOM

In President Roosevelt's remarks to the forest army there was a paragraph which ought to be tacked up where every citizen could keep his eyes on it during the next year or so.

That paragraph reads as follows:

"Too much in recent years large numbers of our population have thought of success as an opportunity to gain money with the least possible work. It is time for each and every one of us to cast away self-destroying, nation-destroying efforts to get something for nothing and to appreciate that satisfying rewards and safe rewards come only through honest work."

Here is one of those little observations to which all of us are ready to give lip service, but which are not quite so ready to put into practice in daily life.

The stock market is boiling up toward the rim of the kettle these days, and a good part of its rise can be accounted for solely by the desire to get something for nothing. The man who bought Amalgamated Clothespins at 13 last winter and sold out yesterday at 98 may be a smart fish, but he has enrolled himself among the something-for-nothing boys and any recovery that takes place will come in spite of him and not because of him.

For that man is a symptom of a national disease; a disease that came upon us most virulently during the gay twenties and which has had us flat on our backs for the last four years.

In the old days the country's admiration went to its builders, its doers, its men who got things done and made it possible for their fellows to get things done.

The railroad builders, the steel builders, the auto magnates and their brethren may have been guided by some cloudy ethics now and then and they may have profited unduly occasionally—but at least they gave the country a definite return for their wealth.

A decade ago we started shifting our admiration to the clever lads who put up their booths at the cross-roads and levied toll on passing commerce; the men who made their fortunes by juggling stocks, who got rich not because they produced something we needed but because they got in on the ground floor and let the elevator carry them up.

Unless we can turn our admiration back to the builders instead of the takers, the recovery which is now in progress will do us precious little good.

THE QUALITY OF MERCY

The existence in the ordinary human heart of a soft spot for any living creature which is in a bad jam was never better demonstrated than in the elaborate efforts which were made to rescue that venturesome deer which got itself isolated on a mountain ledge at Watkins Glen, N. Y.

Ordinarily sportsmen head for the woods to shoot deer. They spend lots of money on the attempt, take a great deal of trouble, walk their legs off—and, occasionally, shoot one another by mistake.

But one lone deer, scrambling along a mountainside and getting itself hung up high and dry at the edge of a cliff, can cause men to make arduous and expensive attempts to rescue it—just because it is so utterly helpless.

Running through the woods, that same deer would get shot by the first armed man that came along. Stranded on a mountain it becomes the object of genuine sympathy.

If there is more than the usual amount of telephone chatter in Newton, N. J., these days, it is because company officials have issued orders that a pair of flying squirrels living in a junction box on a pole forty feet above the street shall be permitted to raise their brood undisturbed.

SOCIETY

Students Get Jump on Faculty, Acting as Hosts to Teachers at Early Breakfast and Dance at the Country Club Before Sunrise

A social coup d'etat was staged by the younger set this morning (early this morning) when students who will be held to school restrictions for nine months dating from today were hosts to teachers at a 4 o'clock breakfast and dance at the country club.

Students, facing the problem of readjustment after the summer vacation, shattered with delightful informality those first restraints, and took in hand the re-establishment of the school spirit for which the Midland system has been famous for a succession of years.

Only four teachers of the high school system were not present, these over-sleeping. Genias, purple and gold (school colors) bulldogs (school mascot) and footballs made up a beautiful decorative theme.

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By BORDON K. SHEARER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 AUSTIN (UP)—Influence of Governor Jim Ferguson will be far more potent at the special session of the legislature than it was during the regular session.

Political prestige of the former governor was lifted by the overwhelming victory of the August 26 election of proposals he supported.

There is another reason, too. Members at a regular session of the legislature may legislate about what they choose. At a special session they can take up only what a governor submits.

The result was many conferences with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, or her adviser, "Governor Jim."

Such conferences have already begun. Rep. P. L. Anderson of San Antonio, asked the governor to submit repeal of the Robertson insurance laws.

Rep. A. W. Griffith of Austin, wants truck widths lessened or roads wider to promote safety on the highways.

Rep. Frank Patterson of Fort Worth, believes the Glass-Steagall federal act is going to require some relief for state banks forced into the federal reserve system.

These are samples. Perhaps every one of the 180 members will have some topic they want submitted before the session ends.

The last of more than 40 volumes on state affairs compiled by Moore Lynn, auditor and efficiency expert, is an index.

Lynn completed it and his work for state just before leaving for a federal appointment. The index will help legislators. By reference to it they can find the auditor's report on any department or branch of state activity.

The 40 volumes are a part of four year's work and investigation that followed establishment of the office of state auditor and efficiency expert.

Former-governor Dan Moody called upon the legislators to create such an office. Lynn, its first occupant, was appointed by Moody.

In Lynn's resignation for a federal post under the Roosevelt administration some see another instance of Moody's friends being given a place while friends of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson wait.

Absence of friends of Vice President John Nance Garner among Texans on the new national payroll is also causing comment.

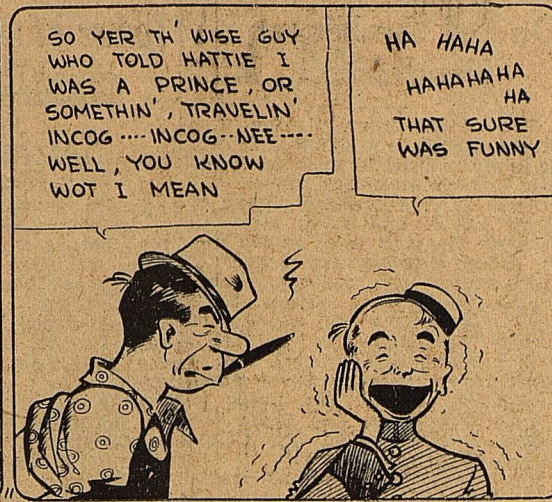

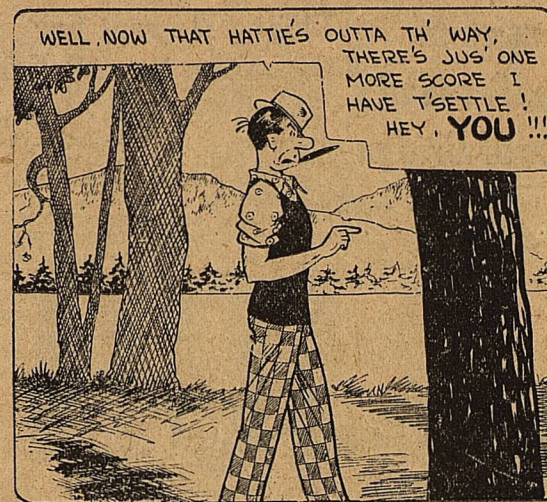

To a place seeker, active in the Garner-for-President movement, the vice president said in substance: "I am not volunteering any recommendation. If my advice is asked, I give it."

Apparently it is not being asked very frequently. Is asked, it is not being followed often.

A state employee received tender of a federal appointment at Washington. He rushed to the newspaper men, announced he did not know whether he would accept and requested it not be mentioned until he decided. Being largely a personal matter, newspaper men acquiesced. Then they discovered him packing up ready to leave for the job without telling them.

Secretary of State W. W. Heath has issued orders that statements to newspapers from his office must not be issued by subordinates. Then the secretary went to New York on a trip.

William Wins Ann

Ann Harding and William Powell playing a double standard in "Double Harness" RKO-Radio Picture of a bride who had to think coming to the Yucca theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

McClintic made his speech on the floor commending Chairman Steagall and the new banking committee for presenting this kind of legislation, and the house of representatives at the conclusion of Mr. McClintic's remarks gave him permission to print as a part of his speech the first hearing that was held on this subject some 12 years ago.

There are always interesting sidelights concerning any important piece of legislation. Jim McClintic had continued introducing this bill year after year realizing that the principal was correct, and hoping that the time would come when there would be a universal demand for such legislation.

Then came November of 1931, and during this month the members of congress were invited to go to Canada for the purpose of studying the sales tax, and here is where Congressman McClintic got his break for on this trip he was assigned to the same stateroom on the train with Chairman Steagall of the committee on banking and currency, and for five days and nights, Mr. McClintic presented every fact and argument he knew in favor of this kind of legislation, and the chairman agreed to do everything within his power to provide a law which would afford this kind of protection in the future, and he more than any other person is entitled to the credit for maneuvering a bill through both branches of congress that was opposed by big bankers in every conceivable manner, as they were opposed to throwing this kind of protection around the banking industry realizing that the statement made by Daniel Drew made during the '60's was true.

One of the Finest Programs at Ritz

One of the finest theatre programs offered to Midland audiences in many months is showing at the Ritz this afternoon and night.

Aside from a brilliant array of stage stars and radio stars in "College Humor," rated as the finest college extravaganza in seasons, there is a well-balanced supplementing program of short subjects, showing a colorful pictorial opening of flowers indigenous to California rock gardens, a news reel, and a musical reel showing three great contributors to the jazz music of the present—Bacon Lee, Duke Ellington and inimitable Cab Calloway, and their orchestras.

Racy repartee, dexterous treatment of the affairs of the man and the maid, delicately cued musical accompaniment, engulging humor and all the elements that make the alumnae sigh that he left college are interwoven about a cast that automatically would insure the success of a picture—the crooning Bing Crosby, Sadistic Richard Arlen, humorously appealing Jack Oakie, irresistible George Burns and Gracie Allen, and a trio of arresting young beauties, Mary Carlisle, Mary Kornman and Lona Andre.

The picture is reviewed by critics as "one you should see if you have to sell the eggs for tomorrow's breakfast in order to buy a ticket."

Tales of Antics of Children Heard at Sessions of Bridge

Bridge sessions, which have a way of keeping under way even when the choicest morsels of gossip are indiscriminately tossed, give pause of late to tales of the antics of children.

Joe Haygood Jr. and Anne Ulmer gave rise to the latest anecdotes that floated about with the cigarette smoke.

Anne telephoned Miss Lydia Watson, whose studio she had been practicing at Sunday school program, and asked if she had not let her little red purse. Told that she had, that she might get it the next day by looking on the piano, Anne insisted that Miss Lydia deliver it to the M. C. Ulmer home.

"But Mr. Ned has the car," Miss Watson informed.

About all we know is that it is able to do her own housework."
