CATTLEMEN FOR DRASTIC CHANGE, HOOVER INFORMS

Separate State for Westex Would Aid, He Says Here

When West Texas cattlemen "get the wolf out of the barrel," they will "carve out a new state for West Texas," said Judge H. E. Hoover of Canadian, known as the "dean of West Texas lawyers."

"We are tired of being attached to the piney woods for revenue only," he said.

Judge Hoover and M. W. McIntyre of Canadian and Paul E. McMeans and J. T. Rasor of Miami, officials of the Northeast Panhandle Feeders association were at Hotel Scharbauer this morning, back from Marfa, where they held a mass meeting of cattlemen similar to those held at Midland, Odessa and Pampa.

Summing up their demands for relief of the cattle industry, they are asking that cattlemen of West Texas mobilize for a battle at the national convention at Albuquerque, N. M., to seek government consideration of the industry's plight.

The movement to get federal legislation to save the industry has resulted in resolutions calling for prohibition of the importation of canned meats for two years; reallocation of the $75,000,000 appropriation to benefit beef cattle growers equally with dairyman; stricter control of marketing; commodity price increases for cattle growers commensurate with similar legislation for cotton, wheat and tobacco growers; inclusion of cattle as a basic industry, and manipulation of the currency to permit the paying of debts with the same dollar value measured by commodity values as existed when the debts were contracted.

A proposed resolution asking Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson to call a special session of the legislature to enact legislation creating a moratorium to hold foreclosure efforts in status quo, is being discussed but has not been acted upon.

These resolutions, already adopted at Canadian and much of the substance of which had been passed by the Panhandle Cattlemen's association and New Mexico cattlemen, were passed at Midland, and J. V. Stokes was elected last week to represent the Midland body Jan. 11 at the New Mexico convention. John M. Gist was named the Odessa delegate.

Cattlemen believe a united fight for the industry by producers will secure legislation that will save the industry from the disaster they say now threatens. The Albuquerque meeting likely will be one of the most important ever held in the United States by cattlemen, leaders in the campaign for government action believe.

"Look at this," said McIntyre, showing an invoice wherein a Midland restaurant had bought beef for 41 cents. "And we have to sell beef on the hoof for 41¢," the cattlemen said. "When the producer gets together in great numbers he can overwhelm the system responsible for that disparity of market price—not until."

Use of Building Donated Council

New supplies of food and feed received for relief work in Midland have been stored in another of the John Scharbauer buildings on East Wall street.

Through the generosity of Scharbauer, this building and another have been used by the relief council without cost, thereby making all funds available for direct relief. Use of the buildings was arranged by Harry L. Haight, who has charge of the buildings. Gratitude to Scharbauer and Haight was expressed officially Friday by welfare officials.

GOVERNOR PLAYED SANTA

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (U.P.)—Judge W. W. Brandon, former governor of Alabama, donned whiskers and uniform here recently to enact Santa Claus for needy children at a party staged by the Y. W. C. A. at University of Alabama.

Scenes from $40,000 Marlin Bank Robbery

One of Texas' biggest bank robberies was staged in this small building in Marlin, Texas, when four bandits scooped up more than $40,000 and kidnaped three employees—the vice president, stenographer and negro porter. The inset shows M. V. Bradshaw, vice president of the First State bank and a brother to Lee Bradshaw of Midland, manager of a local lumber company. The trio was released near Rogers, after being in captivity 12 hours. Rogers is only 50 miles from Marlin.

Five Die in Wreckage of Texas Train

Five men, three of them employees of the Missouri-Pacific Ry., perished in the wreck of the freight train, derailed when the engine struck cattle standing on the track near Calvert Junction, Texas. The other two men were transients who were killed when a refrigerator car was crushed. The engine and eight cars left the track. Wreckage is being cleared above.

STORES TO CLOSE NEW YEARS HERE

Stores in Midland will close New Year's day, which is Monday.

Nearly every establishment was interviewed today by the chamber of commerce, and the vote to close was unanimous. Some will take a complete holiday, while some will use the day for invoicing.

As New Year's is a legal holiday, the banks will also be closed. New Year's day is one of the five consecutive days merchants of Midland set two years ago to observe as a holiday, but a new vote was taken Friday to be certain to get prevailing sentiment and, to the last man seen, store owners favored taking a holiday.

INSULT COST 16 FRANCS

LA ROCHELLE, France. (U.P.)—Gaston Bernard, 44, farmer, was sentenced by the court to pay 16 francs for having called his mayor "a signature machine." Sentence was suspended pending good behavior.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29. (U.P.)—Rex Tuweil, assistant secretary of agriculture, said today the government in the future will control the use of oil land, public or private, in an address to a joint meeting of American economic, statistical and farm economic associations.

PWA AID THREAT GETS RATES DOWN

BY W. WINSTON COPELAND
United Press Staff Correspondent
FORT WORTH (U.P.)—City authorities here are finding a valuable "silent partner" in the PWA in their duel with public service companies for rate reductions.

The fight, an interesting one which has gone on for years, has suddenly developed into apparent advantage for the city council, which is being the PWA, as something of a Damoclean sword over the service companies.

An example of how the council gained its end was revealed in negotiations with the Texas Electric company. The council wanted reduced commercial electrical rates. It demanded the Texas Electric company reduce its rates.

Unless its demand were met, the council said in an ultimatum, the city would apply to the Public Works administration for funds with which to erect a municipal plant.

For several weeks the dueling went on with the council evidently holding the proverbial "screws" and applying them effectively. Whatever the method, the outcome was a victory for the commercial electrical rate for this city.

The domestic rate already is very reasonable, it was pointed out, compared with other cities who have privately owned electric systems.

With that tucked under its belt, the council now has put up its fists at the North Texas Traction company in an effort to force down trolley and bus fares. Trolley fares now are 4 cents and bus fares 10 cents.

The council has instructed City Manager George D. Fairtrace to investigate the cost of a municipal bus system.

At the same time, Fairtrace and other city officials were instructed to confer with A. F. Townsend, receiver for the North Texas Traction company, on reduction of street car and bus fares to a level with those in Dallas where the fare is 7 cents.

Outcome of this fight apparently will be to reduce the fare on several weeks in the future, since it will take sometime to obtain estimates of how much it will cost to institute a municipally owned bus system.

Some observers believe the threat to institute municipally owned buses is but a weapon to use against the company while others insist municipal ownership is the objective end—less rates are reduced.

The money probably can be obtained from the Public Works administration, it is pointed out, and there are some who insist that bus service in a city the size of Fort Worth is more economical than street cars. For example they point to San Antonio which has abolished its street cars in favor of buses.

Sen. Clint Small to Be Speaker at Banquet Here

Senator Clint Small will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the Midland chamber of commerce Jan. 25.

Senator Small, though one of the candidates for governor of Texas, will not, of course, make a political address, but will speak on current problems and civic affairs.

The state senator from Amarillo is generally rated as the best speaker in the Texas senate. He can make his audience laugh or weep, as the mood suits him, Midland men who have heard him in debate say.

Small has always been a staunch friend of Texas and West Texas. He sponsored the land validation bill, worked for the pink boll worm bill and, in all matters affecting his people, is declared to have fought like a Trojan for their rights. He has been particularly aggressive in working for what those familiar with the oil business say is the best interest of the oil industry, the people and the state.

The Amarillo man was invited to make the address at Midland Jan. 25 on suggestion of several Midland men who have heard him and have seen him in action in Austin. It is expected the address of Senator Small and a brief entertainment program, together with election of officers, all of which will take probably from 7 to 9 p. m., will bring out a record annual meeting crowd.

LUCREZIA BORI

RIG BUILDERS TO GET CODE IN JAN.

Rig builders of the Permian basin hope to know what their code is sometime in January. Thus far, no code for this industry has been decided.

John Gossett, rig builder of Midland, wrote Secretary Ickes of the department of the interior, who is oil administrator, for a definition of the rig builders code, and received the following reply from Norman L. Myers, secretary of the petroleum administrative board:

"The secretary of the interior has referred your letter to this board for further consideration and reply.

"The 'new' establishments have been submitted to the administrator of the national recovery act. At this writing the proposed code is still in the process of revision and probably will not reach its final state until some time in January. No definite policy as to the administration of the proposed code has yet been decided upon. We will advise you of further progress in this matter so that you may protect your interests accordingly.

"If we can be of any further service to you in this regard, do not hesitate to call upon us."

Galveston Is 'Dry'; What'll You Have?

GALVESTON (U.P.)—Champagne cocktails, whisky highballs and Hazzard's were reported plentiful in this island city of constitutionally dry Texas, a newspaper survey here revealed.

Since national repeal of prohibition by the Texas Legislature has extended their service to include stronger than the state-approved 3.2 brew. Most of the places openly display an array of foreign-labeled bottles and price cards.

American-made whisky and gin, labeled "tonic," are more popular on display counters.

Champagne cocktails sell for 75 cents each, whisky highballs cost 25 cents and other prices range up to $5 for a concoction which on establishment mixes.

Shields Here in Loan Conference

Leon Shields of Coleman, field representative of the Productive Credit association, was here today with St. Albans, Midland and Martin county farm agent, relative to loan bodies for this area.

For the last few years, Shields has been a director of the West Texas chamber of commerce and is well known throughout that entire area.

Ban German Cabinet From Chairmanship

BERLIN (U.P.)—The German Cabinet has decided that in the future no member can accept the sponsorship, or honorary chairmanship, of a private or semi-public organization.

This decision is due to the requests by innumerable societies and organizations, which became so frequent, as to hinder the actual work of the Cabinet.

In the same decree members of the Cabinet are prohibited from taking part in festivities, or other functions, unless they are arranged for national or political purposes.

SLEEP DIDN'T PAY

HARRISBURG (U.P.)—Clerk M. J. Kincannon of Justice of the Peace George L. Rucker's court admits he is a sound sleeper.

Someone backed a truck up to the rear door of the courthouse and loaded it with distillery equipment taken in raids by officers. Some of the apparatus was removed from the room in which Kincannon slept.

SEABOARD FAST IN CLUTCHES OF A NEW SNOWFALL

New York Point Has 60 Below Zero Temperature

By UNITED PRESS
The coldest winter blasts for 60 years struck the eastern seaboard today as new snowfall accompanied milder temperatures in the middle west.

Poor and destitute were suffering as new all-time cold records east of the Alleghenies were registered.

Columbia Head, N. Y., reported 60 degrees below zero. New Hampshire and Maine points reported 40 below and Connecticut 20 below.

BAROMETERS RISING HERE TODAY

Dreary weather, as reckoned by the world at large, brought smiles to the faces of stockmen, business men and farmers here today, as superficial prospects for moisture were indicated.

Despite leaden skies, however, barometers at the army airdrome station were rising just before noon.

WEST TEXAS: Mostly cloudy tonight and Saturday, probably light rains in east and north portions tonight and in extreme east portion Saturday. Slightly warmer in east portion Saturday.

There was fear nothing would result from the low-hanging clouds except a zero ceiling and poor visibility.

Throughout the 6th corps army area there was light rainfall or showers, fogs and low ceilings. In the immediate Midland area there was no report of rain.

With the blanket of mist came only a bare rise in temperatures. This morning's low being 28, high 44. Thermometers registered 26 at 1 p. m. Precipitation for Thursday was .02, for today .15.

NEW PRODUCTION FOR ETEX FILED

AUSTIN, Dec. 29. (U.P.)—Daily production for East Texas wells was cut to five per cent of what they could produce on hour in the new commission today, effective Sunday morning at 7 o'clock.

Total state production was estimated at 881,996 barrels.

Ill-Luck Followed Costly Diamond Necklace of King

LONDON (U.P.)—A spell of ill-luck has hovered over a beautiful diamond necklace which was presented by King Charles II to the Duchess of Cleveland.

At the death of its then owner, Mrs. Duncan MacPherson eight years ago, the necklace was cut into four sections for distribution among her heirs. Each section was valued at $10,000.

Since that time three sections totally have disappeared. One was snatched from the neck of the owner by a Cairo thief a year ago; another vanished in its jewel case from a ship on the way to the Isle of Wight; and the third recently was stolen in London from its owner Mrs. Livingstone-Leaumont.

Evidence Found of British Cannibalism

LONDON (U.P.)—The cannibal isles have not always been located only in the romantic South Seas.

The little island of Albion now has been added to the list of territories where humans devoured their fellows.

Proof has just been unearthed by a British antiquary that "long pig" was featured on the menu of Britons within the Christian era.

A number of human bones, believed to be those of a 30-year-old woman, which had been split open to obtain the marrow, have just been dug up at Salmonsbury in Gloucestershire. The woman is thought to have lived in the time of the Roman occupation.

In the opinion of experts, this is the first conclusive proof that cannibalism existed in this country at anything approaching historical times. Animal bones found were often split open in the same manner.

"Peace on Earth" Doctrine Confusing To 4 Defendants from Mexican Quarter

Because he was so drunk the details of a fight in which he participated were a part of the general blank surrounding Christmas day, Ysabel Gonzales told a court hearing this morning he would be perfectly willing to pay any fine applicable to his case—but that, on account of his high social and moral standing, he could not conscientiously plead guilty.

The case was just another of those packed-with-human-interest cases that come up for attention in B. C. Girdley's so-called "law east of the Pecos" court.

Gonzales, along with three other saddle-colored hoppers whose lineage points to a vague background south of the Rio Grande, did nothing but indulge their fancy for celebrating Navidad (Christmas) to their own individual liking—they said as much. But the court was compelled to explain that Christmas, whether interpreted in the Gringo's spelling or that of the Sons of Montezuma, carries a significance irrevocably linked with peace on earth, good will to men—not hitting your friends on the head with everything but the fireplace.

This seemingly extraneous philippic gave pause to the confused defendants. Maybe they were trying to remember when they had heard something like that. They asked for a recess, adjourned to a corridor outside the court room and went into a huddle that took into itself an atmosphere of garlic and rapid-fire idioms. An interpreter, standing away from the effluvia of garlic, said they were discussing the case from the beginning, which was something like this:

Upon hearing Thursday, Juan Sancho and Fermin Mejia decided they were willing to jointly face trial by jury, and the case was set for 9 a. m. today. But when the jury was impaneled, George Dunaway, defense counsel, and Fermin was tried and convicted, which led to the continuation of the rest.

From the huddle came a decision Reyes and Mejia would plead guilty. The only thing that retarded execution of the decision was Ysabel's opinion of herself socially and morally, but the court, after another huddle, decided Ysabel had changed his mind again—that he would plead guilty, along with Reyes.

HUNDRED MILLION MAY BE REQUEST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. (U.P.)—Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins indicated today that congress will be asked for "around $100,000,000" to carry on the government's relief activities to July 1.

Hopkins said since the fund of $3,200,000 is virtually depleted it will be up to congress now. Texas will not receive additional relief until it has contributed its share, he said.

TEXAS RELIEF OUTLOOK VIEWED AS BRIGHTER

AUSTIN, Dec. 29. (U.P.)—The Texas relief outlook was brighter today with voluntary efforts of the bankers' association to market the state relief bonds.

They were authorized to call upon the federal government to allot $1,000,000 for additional purchase of beef cattle for canning.

Work of selling the bonds will be started at once.

Repeal Didn't Go as Far as Man Thought

ROCKVILLE, Conn. (U.P.)—Michael Hayostik, 23, became a little confused over all the repeal talk recently.

Accused by a constable of driving his car while he was drunk, the youth readily admitted the charge.

"Sure, I been drinking," he said, "but that's all right. That law has been repealed."

The constable explained the limits of repeal as he led Hayostik to jail.

EMBARRASSING QUESTION

Jim Reed, the former senator from Missouri, seems prepared once more to display his penchant for disagreeing with Democratic presidents. Interviewed at Memphis the other day, Mr. Reed expressed grave doubts about the wisdom of the present monetary policy. "We are heading for trouble," he said. "What is to become of the millions who invested their honest earnings in bonds and notes? It will be well, before people talk of repudiation, that they know the results which will be visited on widows, old men, and every class of people."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Entering the newly initiated English offensive against slums, the Prince of Wales declares that they are not only "a disgrace in these modern times, but rebuilding and rehousing make a stimulus to almost every industry in the country, meaning an all-round greater measure of prosperity." Britain's supersalesman evidently has lost none of his "punch."

It is hoped that the singing of a new world anthem which, set to the first sixteen measures of the "Ode to Joy" of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the League of Nations Association announces is now in readiness, will bring about two varieties of harmony.

No doubt the average Californian, on reading that the hollow aluminum steering wheel heated by the motor's exhaust was invented by a resident of his State, will be inclined to comment that this is one invention of which necessity is not the mother.

"NRA codes are bringing harmony to modern business, and we hope that eventually something along that line may be done for modern music," says Dunbar's Weekly. Perhaps a half-hour year for saxophone players would help.

Purchase by the Federal Government for distribution to the needy of 12,000,000 dozen eggs likewise demonstrates that, in relieving current distress, the helpful hen is doing her part.

The fact that the original manuscript of the "Star-Spangled Banner" is still extant at Baltimore should place it well in the running in any contest to determine the longest-held American musical notes.

The $5 a tree and firewood which a Blackshear (Ga.) man received recently for clearing an overly shaded street do not represent his entire profits on the transaction. He had received $2 a tree for planting them, 62 years ago.

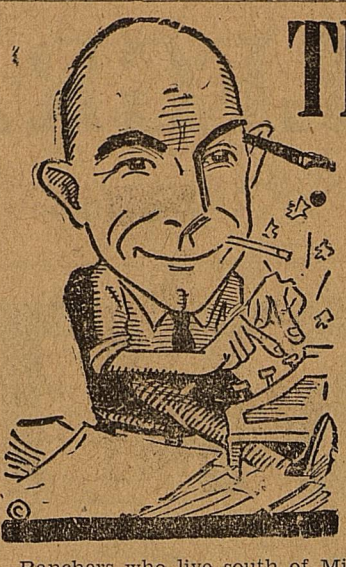

The decision of Secretary Swanson that, despite repeal, the ban on liquor aboard warships, effective since 1862, shall not be lifted, adds support to an old theory that ships are best sailed upon water.

Possibly the new automobile wheel which is said to make back-seat riding easier will do away entirely with the necessity for driving from that position.

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. 21 "Those are the ones we're already tired of."

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

The United Press sent us a story the other day in which the original copy said the secretary of agriculture was "seeking to have been made a basic commodity." Knowing "been" wasn't the right word, our staff members held a consultation and decided it should be "beef." Imagine their surprise next day when other papers came out saving the secretary of agriculture was seeking to have "beef" made a basic commodity.

Anyway, The Reporter-Telegram got there first. I wish some of those people who are always yammering when a wife is first, the hen or the egg, would tell me who supported Atlas while Atlas supported the world on his shoulders.

Maybe it was his wife. Another man, who has had Jim Harrison's experience, says his greatest disappointment is a sneeze that fizzes out like a three year old fire cracker.

Even a half sneeze is a terrible noise in church. Did you ever notice that a shoe squeaks louder in church than anywhere else?

There is a man here in town who came into church in the early days, according to reports, wearing a little bow tie, the kind that used to be on a piece of elastic, already tied. The preacher was praying when the fellow entered the church. About that time the elastic broke and the tie flew off, nearly putting the preacher's eye out.

Mrs. W. I. Pratt Hostess at Tea On Thursday

A holiday tea Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. I. Pratt, 914 West Kansas, honored members of the Belle Bennett circle of the Methodist auxiliary, of which Mrs. Pratt is chairman. Setting for the tea service and for the informal program presented was of Christmas theme. A lighted tree stood in one corner of the room, lending a festive air to the occasion.

The program presented under the leadership of Mrs. J. S. Noland follows: pianologues, Dorothy Lou Speed, solos, Mrs. John Dabbs; solos, Mrs. Johnnie Radliff; readings of her own composition, Mrs. Emma Allen Bailey; piano number and song, Frances Lowe Peters; violin and piano numbers, Ned and Miss Lydia Watson; Miss Mary Bell Pratt played the accompaniment. The tea service was presided over by Mrs. John M. Speed and C. L. Hafer and was served from a table laid in the center of the room, with shades of holly which reflected in a mirror on which they were laid. Red tapers burned in crystal holders tied with fluffy bows of red and silver maizene. Miss Ruth Pratt assisted in the serving.

SOCIETY

Holiday's Most Brilliant Affair Was Held At Hotel Scharbauer on Tuesday Evening

One of the largest and most brilliant Christmas parties of the holiday season was the dance and buffet supper at Hotel Scharbauer on Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Cowden and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Butler as joint hosts. The entire reception suite of the mezzanine floor, effectively decorated in gala Yuletide theme, was reserved for the enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Clyde Cowden wore a red velvet jacket over a figured silk frock made with a train. A gold embroidered frock in black and white was worn by Mrs. R. E. Cowden and a royal blue model with gold sleeves worn by Mrs. Hugh Corrigan, and the black satin worn by Mrs. Sam Cummings. Black models were popular at the affair. Mrs. A. P. Loskamp wore a black frock with red velvet trimmings. Her mother, Mrs. Nelson of Loveloy, Catalina, was gowned in a lovely model. Mrs. J. R. Martin wore a Spanish black lace creation with green accessories. Mrs. Foy Proctor, the white model with gold sleeves worn by Mrs. Hugh Corrigan, and the black satin worn by Mrs. Sam Cummings.

More than a hundred couples were received by the hosts and hostesses at the festively decorated ballroom stage from which John Lockaby and his orchestra played for the dancing which continued into the early morning hours. Punch was served throughout the evening from a private dining room adjacent the ballroom. Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer, who with Mr. Scharbauer led the grand march in stately procession, was exquisitely costumed in gold lame cloth with a graceful train. Her accessories were of silver.

Mrs. Claude Duffey wore a handsome model in one of the new off-shades of blue with a silver metal top, yoke like Mrs. Homer Rowe wore an ultra smart black crepe gown with a front shoulder scarf edged lei-like with monkey fur. Mrs. Jack Dangle of Lovington, N. M., was in black tulle designed on princess lines and trimmed at the neck with winged collar edged with white and graced at the neck line with a large shoulder width front, tailored bow.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lawton of Dallas was gowned in a white satin and ermine gown; Miss Juliette Aycock wore a handsome white model trimmed in fur; Miss Dorris Harrison was attractive in a black velvet gown with a silver metal top; Misses Dorothy and Bennie Sue Ratliff wore light green and red crepe models; Mrs. J. F. Blount looked lovely in a westeria crepe model and Mrs. Hugh West wore a light blue crepe with dropped shoulders.

Pastel shades were worn by Mrs. A. B. Cooksey in blue tulle, Mrs. Marian Gardner of Tyler in pink satin, Mrs. H. T. Johnson in light blue satin. Green shades were worn by Mrs. Carl McAdams in a moss green and lace gown and Mrs. Harvey Sloan in an emerald green trimmed with mink fur. Chrysanthemums at the neck adorned the tomato red dress of Mrs. Hayden Miles, while a shoulder corsage of black and orange made the burnt orange frock of Mrs. Allen Tolbert most attractive. Mrs. Harry Tolbert wore a trained and ruffled model of red tulle and Mrs. Fred Wright chose a blue tulle with rhinestone clips. Rhinestones also decorated the Copenhagen blue worn by Mrs. M. C. Ulmer and the blackberry colored velvet worn by Mrs. Harry Neblett. Mrs. William Bevins wore red crepe with drop shoulders and Mrs. J. Homer Epley red crepe with shoulder capelets. Mrs. De Lo Douglas looked most lovely in an all-white out-fit. She wore a small white hat and a short veil.

Orange crepe was chosen for the occasion by Mrs. W. R. Bowden. Mrs. John Dublin wore blue with tulle sleeves and Mrs. I. E. Daniel heliotrope blue. Blue was also worn by Mrs. Paul Ryan. Her royal blue model was trained and had studded straps. Touches of red adorned the regal white gown of Mrs. John M. Shipley. An attractive wine crepe model was that of Mrs. E. B. Soper. Mrs. Allan Hargrave wore ermine with green accessories and Mrs. Charles Klapproth sky blue. Beaded shoulders made the white gown worn by Mrs. C. A. Mix most attractive. Mrs. Russell C. Bechtel was in a stunning white crepe dress adorned with red flowers and worn with a silver beaded wrap. A beautiful pale blue fitted model was worn by Mrs. W. T. Walsh. The gown was of a lace cloth and was lined in pink tulle. Another pink and blue model was worn by Mrs. E. D. Richardson. The pink crepe gown was trimmed in blue and adorned with a corsage at the waistline. Pink accessories were worn.

A bright flame model was worn by Mrs. Arthur Yeager. The gown was made with a high neck in the front and a low in the back. Long tight sleeves accentuated the model. Mrs. John Adams wore pink angreskin with a silver beaded belt and silver accessories. Mrs. R. E. Kimsey also wore silver accessories with a blue gown adorned with beaded sleeves. Mrs. R. W. Patteson wore a simple semi-evening gown of black, enhanced by gold accessories, while Mrs. Neil Wills wore a black and white creation. A bright yellow model was worn by Mrs. W. E. Wallace with silver accessories. A tight-fitting model of mulberry satin was worn by Mrs. E. H. Shaw with slippers to match. The gown had self colored feathers at the knee, where a short train began. A white satin gown enhanced by a red trimming around the neck, forming a bow below the low-cut back was worn with white slippers by Mrs. J. R. Ashley. A modern creation was the lovely gown worn by Mrs. Gentry Kidd, as well as that of Mrs. Tom Nance. The neck of the black model worn by Mrs. James Price of Fort Worth was outlined by rhinestones. Seen also at the waistline. Mrs. L. G. Lewis was attractive in a purple crepe with green sash and green slippers. Mrs. Harry Wolcott and Mrs. Bill Holmesy of Mexico City both wore beautiful creations of the latest cut. Escorts for the younger set were Messrs. Curtis Driver, Ben Black, Glenn Black, Barron Kidd, Ed Hesley, Wright Cowden, Tom Patterson, Lewis Thomas, Charles Edwards, C. W. Edwards and J. E. Roberts of Odessa.

Guests unable to attend were: Messrs. and Mmes. George Abell, Alden Dannelly, Tom Flood, Leonard Goodman, Clifford Hill, George Klingaman, E. M. Miller, J. H. Phillips, Collin Reith, Earl Ticknor, Joe Youngblood, E. W. Anguish, Charles D. Vertrees, E. E. Payne, Robert L. York, M. S. Nicholson, Dick Nelson, A. W. Thomas, Fred Turner, A. W. ## BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

WHAT I CAN'T GET STRAIGHT IS, IF THE SCOUNDREL WAS BACK HOME, HOW COME I DIDN'T SEE 'IM? I AIN'T MISSED A DAY DOWN TOWN SINCE THE HURRYCANE IN '94

OH, PROBABLY HE WAS DISGUISED; THOSE BIRDS CAN MAKE UP SO THEIR OWN MOTHERS WOULDN'T KNOW 'EM

WELL, I GUESS THAT CLEARS EVERYTHING! I BECAME SUSPICIOUS WHEN I HEARD FROM THE SOUTH AFRICAN AUTHORITIES! YOU SEE, I MADE INVESTIGATIONS AT BOTH ENDS.....

I RECEIVED PROOF BEYOND THE SHADOW OF A DOUBT, THAT OUR REAL UNCLE HAS BEEN DEAD FOR MANY YEARS

YEAH... WELL, HIS "GHOST" WON'T WALK FAR! HE WON'T GET AWAY THIS TIME... DON'T WORRY

OH, UNCLE IRA WASN'T SUCH A BAD SORT, REALLY... BUT, GWEN... OH, WELL!!! LET'S FORGET IT

BOTTLE OR NOTHING

DALLAS (AP)—A glass of milk served over the counter in Dallas restaurants is "taboo." From now on it will be a bottle of milk or nothing, according to Chief Inspector W. E. Roberts, of the city health department.

Roberts' authority is derived from a revised sanitary ordinance recently placed into effect. It prohibits cafe men from pouring glasses of milk out of bottles.

"If operators don't want to get into trouble they had better sell the whole bottle of milk or not sell any at all," Roberts said. "The health of the public must be protected."

Evidence that the health inspector means what he says is shown in the fact that already 17 cases are pending here against cafe men who have violated the sanitary ordinance.

COURT ABOLISHED

GALVESTON (AP)—Galveston's county court at law has gone out of existence after 22 years. The court was closed recently by Judge John W. Campbell, who sat on the bench for the last 12 years, in compliance with a legislative order.

Members of the Thirty-second legislature established the court in 1911. The last legislature decreed its closing. Cases which formerly went to the county court now go to the 10th district court.

Chapter I
Oliver Jordan, president of the Jordan Line Steamships, New York City, looked up from his breakfast as his wife Millicent, in dressing gown and slippers came into the room, excitedly waving a radiogram.

such a way that Packard would put money into the hazardous proposition? He had just begun to glance at his mail when the door of his office burst open and Carlotta Vance, refusing to be detained by the anxious and pursuing Miss Copeland, entered dramatically, exclaiming: "Oliver, duck, how are you? How simply marvelous to see you! I never was so glad to see anyone in my life!"

Millicent called after Paula: "I hope Ernest doesn't ask me how you've been behaving while he was away—coming in at five o'clock in the morning!" Ernest Graves was Paula's fiancé.

"Heaven, what a hole!" she exclaimed, looking about the dingy office which Oliver had kept because it had been good enough for his father. "Is that what I own stock in? I expected to see it all platinum and plush!"

Paula refused a lift, she preferred to walk, and as Jordan climbed into a taxi, the worried lord settled down on his face again.

"The shattered fortunes need mending, darling, I'm as flat as a millpond. Railroads, oil, cotton stocks—all down to next to nothing. No tenant for the Vance Theatre—packed for six months. I'll never go back to the stage. I'll have my double chins in privacy."

"You don't seem wildly excited about this coming marriage of yours," commented her father too low to be overheard by his wife.

"You're not thinking of selling your Jordan stock, are you?" asked Jordan, alarmed. "You wouldn't get what it is worth."

"You found that his secretary, Miss Copeland, had finally located Packard, after phoning all over town, at the Athletic Club, and that he had agreed to call at the Jordan line offices. The question now was: Could he put his needs up to Packard in

Then Jordan put his case before the western financial wizard. If the depression lasted, he would need money to tide him over; he didn't want to disturb any of the other stockholders—it was a close corporation—but he might have to turn over some of his own holdings as security. Packard was at once all business—keen, sharp, aggressive. He wanted figures on the business—balance sheet, assets, list of stockholders—particularly the names of the stockholders. Oh, yes, it would be strictly confidential—just to lay before the board, he'd do what he could. He blew out, all western breeziness and geniality, leaving Jordan with a feeling of uneasiness. Was Packard to be trusted? That list of stockholders, now—why had Packard insisted so strongly upon that? He would pledge only his own holdings.

Jordan pressed his hand over his heart, feeling again the pain that had oppressed him frequently of late, and telephoned to Millicent to invite Dan Packard and his wife to the dinner for the Ferncliffes.

"Oh, Oliver! That noisy brute and that vulgar little blonde to meet the Ferncliffes! Oh, dear, of course if it's business and will help you... My sister, Hattie, just came in. I've got to have an extra man. Do try to think of one, will you? Oh, Hattie says Larry Renault, that screen star, you know, is in town. Perhaps I can get him. He probably knows your old flame, Carlotta Vance."

OHIO WOMAN GOT HER FOX
FAINESVILLE, O. (UP)—Mrs. Joseph Ruzicka, of Cleveland, believes that a fox pelt on the back is worth two in the bush. A sly Renard which invaded the farm of Jack Beverley near here may have been just as shrewd as any of his tribe, but he couldn't avoid Mrs. Ruzicka's aim. The woman shot the animal while hunting.

The wear is less in winter than at any other season of the year.

On the Farm and Range FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS
All Texas has gone ga-ga over the price of football duets for the Greenville-Dallas Tech game at Dallas Saturday. The idea behind all the doted pupils and sagging mouths seems to be the unheard of low price of 50 cents for the final game in the schoolboy championship flag chase.

Colorado high school (citadel of the Big, Bad Wolves) will not have a captain for the 1934 season. Instead, there will be at least seven, elected just before each game. A good idea, and makes men pull together for the honor of contributing enough to get the nod.

On the eve of the great game between the tiny Greenville and the mighty Tech elevens, we pause only long enough to wish the lighter club good luck, but reserve a hunch few others seem to share: that Tech is in before the mighty but injured atoms of Coach Henry Fmka. We will say this, however: no matter whether Greenville wins or not, the club has stamped itself as the greatest midget organization in the history of the Texas interscholastic league, and Coach Fmka is mentioned prominently as the next head coach at Texas university. He's an Austin college man, just like Pete Cawthon of Texas Tech. Midland has a couple of assistant coaches from the same place, Henderson and Lingo. Austin seems to have turned out some heavy men in the last few years.

We did not see the Columbia team when it stopped here briefly, but, from what one of the fellows told us, Coach Lou Little and the corps of sportswriters felt pretty good over the prospect of beating Stanford. Subscribing to the belief the chances would be more even than usual between an eastern and a western team were Paul Gallico of the New York News, who writes short stories as well as sports news.

197 PIECES OF SKIN GRAFTED
