INTENSE COLD FALLS IN EAST

Camera Recalls King Albert as Statesman, Soldier, Flying Enthusiast, Sportsman

These pictures of the late King Albert and his family recall some of the highlights in the life of Belgium's beloved ruler. At upper left you see him in Brussels with the late President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson. At that time, King Albert was being hailed as one of the greatest heroes of the World war . . . He carefully trained his son for succession to the throne, and below are pictured Crown Prince Leopold, who now will become King, and his wife, Princess Astrid of Sweden . . . Next is an unusually fine character study of the dead ruler . . . Always daring and progressive, he was the first crowned head in the world to ride in an airplane, and the lower photo shows him in an open-cockpit craft . . . Fond of all sorts of sports, he was trying his skill at archery when the next picture, at top, was snapped . . . But he particularly enjoyed mountain climbing, the hazardous pastime which finally resulted in his death. As the last two photos prove, no scaling adventure was too difficult or perilous for him to attempt. He's shown below resting on a narrow ledge atop Campanile Basso, a peak in the Italian Alps. And at extreme right you see him on his way up an almost vertical cliff in the same mountains.

TWENTY DIE IN NEW YORK; COLD FAR TO SOUTH

Freezing in Much of Panhandle Tonight Is the Forecast

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. (UP)—Another cold wave descended today on the eastern seaboard which still was crippled by the most paralyzing snowstorm since the celebrated blizzard of 1888. The wave extended as far south as Florida. Twenty were dead in New York as result of the storm. Transportation facilities, completely demoralized yesterday, were slowly returning to normalcy. Work was given to 20,000 jobless men shoveling snow at 50 cents an hour. It was estimated the employment would last for two weeks. Temperatures today were near zero.

Freezing temperatures for much of Texas were forecast by the federal weather bureau at Dallas, the United Press said today. In East Texas, cloudy and rains for the east portion were expected, with colder temperatures in the west and north parts and freezing in the northwest. Partly cloudy and colder was the prediction for Thursday. West Texas was expected to be partly cloudy, with probable snow in the Panhandle, temperatures ranging as low as 18 to 20 degrees in that section. Thursday was expected to be fair, colder in the southeast, with livestock warnings in the Panhandle.

LAREDO STAGES A BIG CELEBRATION

LAREDO (AP)—Laredo is prepared for the 26th annual debut of Washington's birthday anniversary on today, Thursday and Friday. The program of events will include many of the features of past celebrations and a number of new ones. Each year the banner day is ushered in with the firing of a national salute of 21 guns at sunrise, followed by the international greeting at the boundary monument where American officials greet Mexican officials and escort them to a place of honor to witness the delivery of the key of the city by Mayor Albert Martin, to Pochontas and her Indians and then to participate in the annual grand street parade. About a part of the fastest horses in Texas have been entered for the races at Fort McIntosh, according to Chairman A. F. Muller of the racing committee. The race program will be carried out on Feb. 22, 23 and 25, and will comprise from quarter mile to mile events with the total prizes in excess of $100.

The second international olympics this year will have as entries some of the fastest track teams in Texas, including those from Texas university, Texas A. & M. college and a number of other Texas colleges and high schools. C. E. Wade, principal of the Laredo high school, is chairman of the American section of the olympics and Manuel Cavazos chairman of the Mexican athletes from Monterrey and other points in Mexico.

Another important feature will be an international exhibit in a Mexican-Spanish setting. Exhibit booths will be erected around a large patio and in the center Mexican and American performers will entertain with folk dances of Spain and Mexico. The military band from Fort Sam Houston together with drum and bugle corps of the Eighth U. S. engineers, the American legion and the Mexican corps at Nevo Laredo will be on the music program.

Midland to Run Motorcade to Odessa Show

FIFTY CARS IN LINE TO CARRY CITY GREETING

Cars to Leave Early Friday Morning, Join Parade

Midland will operate a motorcade to the Odessa livestock show. The auto caravan from Midland will move from this city at 9:15 Friday morning in order to arrive in Odessa to join in the parade set for 10 a. m. Midland people who go can be home by noon if they wish, or remain over for the Midland high school basketball game with Big Lake at 3 p. m. The Midland chamber of commerce which has charge of the motor caravan will furnish each car in the line with a sticker reading: "Odessa: Midland Says Howdy and Good Luck." R. L. Miller, district manager of the Texas Electric Service company, was appointed by the chamber president as marshal of the day for Midland. He will lead the parade to the neighboring city. Cars will start lining up in the middle of Wall street on the south side of the courthouse at 9 a. m. Friday in order to be ready to move on the dot at 9:15. It is hoped to have 50 cars. The high school will have about a dozen cars in the line, the school superintendent said Wednesday. R. W. Fischer, now a Tyler oil attorney, managed to get through a fifth-grade reader, a third class arithmetic and a Blue Book speller. In 1900 his family moved to Oklahoma with the opening of the Kiowa-Omanche Indian reservation. As an Oklahoma farmer raising "drown-corn," he borrowed law books from Jake Hammond and other Lawton, Okla., lawyers. He was admitted to the bar in 1907. He spent two years in the army during the World war and served later as counsel for a railroad. He moved to

Kerry King's Band Certain to Please Midland Dancers

Kerry King and his band will please Midland dancers at the Washington Birthday ball Thursday night—take the word of a reporter who watched them snap through a rehearsal Tuesday afternoon in the ballroom of the Settles hotel at Big Spring. The 14-piece orchestra, engaged by the Lions club for the special dance engagement, has everything—repertoire, novelty features, plenty of vocalists, floor show numbers and harmony arrangements peculiarly belonging to Kerry King. Eric novelty effects slide with symphonic treatment into spots featuring a violin sextet or well-handled solo parts. The members of the orchestra were gathered from all over the country, and each is a specialist with from two to five instruments. Kerry King played three summers at Sylvian Beach, Houston, one of the best vacation time spots in the South, and recently finished an engagement at the Holt hotel, Heidelberg, Baton Rouge. He is now engaged in making a circuit of the 24 houses booked by the Griffith Amusement company, including the Yucca here, then goes on the A. B. Monard booking circuit for 40 houses. Kerry King's orchestra is possibly the best directed band ever selected to play for a Midland dance. In connection with King's appearance in Midland, the singing of Miss Evelyn Nations, 1933 winner of the Paul Whiteman audition, is certain to attract many to the dance floor. CITY SCHOOLS PRESENT WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY PROGRAMS THURSDAY AT 2

Odessa Students Visit High School

Members of the third year clothing class of Odessa high school, accompanied by their instructor, Mrs. A. R. Dyer, visited the home economics department of Midland high school this morning. The object of their visit was to observe the work in our department, especially to see the evening dresses which are being made and which have been completed in clothing III. Mrs. Dyer said that she had heard many complimentary remarks in regard to the dresses which our students made for the junior-senior banquet. For this reason she wished to give her pupils an opportunity to see these dresses before beginning a similar project. There are one hundred and two students enrolled in the Midland department this year. This is the largest enrollment in several years. Those who visited the department were: Jane Malone, Sylvia Smith, Lillian Woodham, Mariel Henderson, Rubye Westcott, Pauline Cook, Estelle Aldridge, Virginia Davidson, Mrs. W. B. Smith and Mrs. Dyer.

POOR BOY OF WEST VIRGINIA HILLS THROWS WRENCH IN ETEX NRA CODE

KILGORE (AP)—A country boy who was born on a "poor but well-motivated farm" in the mountains of West Virginia almost 50 years ago has thrown a monkey wrench into the enforcement of the NRA petroleum code in Texas. F. W. Fischer, now a Tyler oil attorney, managed to get through a fifth-grade reader, a third class arithmetic and a Blue Book speller. In 1900 his family moved to Oklahoma with the opening of the Kiowa-Omanche Indian reservation. As an Oklahoma farmer raising "drown-corn," he borrowed law books from Jake Hammond and other Lawton, Okla., lawyers. He was admitted to the bar in 1907. He spent two years in the army during the World war and served later as counsel for a railroad. He moved to Wichita Falls, Tex., and in 1931 to Tyler and the oil field. Fischer has become the mouth piece of the independent refiner and producer in East Texas. Comparatively unknown when he moved to this sector, the lawyer took up the cause of refiners and producers charged with producing "hot" oil in August, 1933, when Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes issued rules and regulations governing national oil allocation and sent federal agents into the East Texas field to enforce them. Ickes appointed A. D. Ryan his chief East Texas investigator and Ryan at once called the so-called "hot" oil producers and consumers into general meeting at Tyler. He told them they would have to cease production of a railroad. He moved to

Henry M. Halff, Former Midland Man, Dies at Dallas Home of Heart Attack

JONES INDICTED IN ASA'S DEATH

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (UP)—Henry M. Halff, 59, of Richardson, former official of the West Texas chamber of commerce and a pioneer West Texas ranchman, died here today. His death was attributed to heart trouble. Funeral services will be here Friday. He was the first Midland land owner to introduce irrigation to his vast acreage. Halff and wife came here in 1904. Henry M. Halff moved to Midland with his bride from New York City about 1904, old friends said this afternoon. He located at the old Queen Sabe ranch, southeast of Midland, having inherited that and the big JM ranch in Upton county from his father, a New York capitalist. The JM ranch at one time was rated among the largest ranches of the southwest, extending practically to the Mexican border. S. F. Preston, George Lee, Lewis Beyer, Fred Cagle and many others were employed at the old Queen Sabe and JM ranches. After living here for practically ten years, Halff became imbued with an ambition to develop this section as a farming country. He cut up large tracts of land into farms, added substantial improvements and began populating them with farmers, many of whom still live here. He developed one of the finest herds of registered Herefords in the southwest, his show herd attaining fame throughout the United States. It was about 1914 that he improved the Cloverdale farm, installing irrigation equipment and carrying on an extensive honey deer melon business. Operating these development projects and maintaining a large realty business at Midland, Henry M. Halff spent more funds and did more to advertise the Midland section to the outside world than any other individual ever living here, friends said. Rated at several times a millionaire at one time, he continued his belief in the resources of the country and in an effort to hasten the trend of agricultural development. In 1922 and 1923 the farming industry which he had fostered for almost ten years began to grow, resulting in a steady influx of farmers for several years, the first of them locating for the most part on farms which Halff had improved. The Cloverdale farm, after changing hands once or twice, was sold to the City of Midland for its present vast water supply. Halff moved with his family in 1925 to Mineral Wells, continuing in the registered Hereford cattle business and engaging in real estate ventures there and at Dallas where he moved a few years later. Mrs. Halff, two sons and two daughters survive.

Dr. Chas. Mayo Here En Route to Coast

Dr. Charles Mayo, member of the staff of the famous Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., and Mrs. Mayo were in Midland for a brief time this morning. The surgeon told C. C. Bradley, secretary of an insurance company is here today from Dallas.

WARNS AGAINST STOPPING CWA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (UP)—Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York warned today against "grave dangers" from discontinuance of the Civil Works administration. He made a plea for financial aid from the RFC to cities from "money lenders" in testifying before the house banking and currency committee which was considering a bill to authorize RFC direct loans to cities.

MIDLAND INVITED TO ENTER POULTRY EXHIBITS IN ECTOR COUNTY SHOW

Invitation to enter Midland poultry and rabbits in the Ector County Livestock & Poultry show, which opens at Odessa Thursday and extends over a three-day period, was extended Tuesday by Ector County Farm Agent H. L. Atkins Jr., superintendent of the poultry division of the show. Prizes in the poultry division are $1 for the best male, $1 for the best female and $2 for the best pen (a pen consisting of four females and one male) in each of the following breeds: White leghorn, barred rocks, Rhode island reds, cornish, silver laced wyandottes, buff wyandottes, light brahma, white orpingtons, black minorcas, white rocks and giants (any color). Moreover, there will be offered a $5 prize for each grand champion male, the grand champion female and the grand champion pen. In the rabbit division, $1 will be paid for the best male, $1 for the best female, and $2.50 for the grand champion. Approximately $750 in premiums will be awarded at the three-day show, and more than 100 cattle will be exhibited. Tents will be set up for the convenience of the crowds, and John Gist, show president, promises a carnival, basketball games, and plenty of concessions. Of special interest to Midland cattlemen will be an auction to follow the show. Wide attendance of cattlemen over this area is expected. The show, an annual affair, has never held a program longer than one day before this year.

WE FACE A WARNING 100 YEARS OLD

An excellent text-book for anyone puzzled by the tragic turmoil which sweeps Europe these days might be Carlyle's "French Revolution."

To be sure, Carlyle wrote it something like 100 years ago. But it isn't out of date, even so. For the same lesson which he drew from his study of the French Revolution can be drawn from the confused and bloody mess in Europe today.

The French Revolution had many causes and many effects and it was accompanied by some very horrible happenings; but it illustrated, said Carlyle, one great truth—that a lie cannot endure forever.

It showed, in other words, that if men get their affairs into a hopelessly unsound and unjust tangle, and fail to muster the intelligence and the unselfishness necessary to straighten them out, forces beyond human control eventually will break loose in a kind of explosion, an explosion which destroys good and bad things alike and visits catastrophe upon saint as well as upon sinner.

All of this, somehow, seems to apply with terrible force to the upheaval which today rends Europe.

These riots in France and Austria, these rumors of war and revolution, this massing of troops along boundary lines—they didn't happen just because men suddenly got perverse and irritated over nothing.

They came, just as the French Revolution came, because human affairs had got into a dreadful mess, and because great masses of people became convinced that nothing but violence ever would straighten them out.

The supreme folly of the World war, the almost equal folly of the peace treaties, the stubborn inability of men in high places to see that repression and injustice never can pave the way for anything but trouble—these are the direct and logical causes of the present disasters.

There still is time to avoid the worst consequences. Treaty revisions, removal of the artificial economic barriers which condemn men to starvation in the midst of plenty, liquidation of oppressive dictatorships and a rearrangement along equitable lines of national boundaries, would make possible a peaceable solution to Europe's troubles.

But if the rulers of Europe lack the courage and the vision to apply such measures, one only can remember Carlyle's warning.

A HEALTHY SIGN

It is not only Detroit that has reason to rejoice at Henry Ford's announcement that he has given 20,000 workers a 10 per cent pay increase and that he plans to restore the minimum pay scale of $6 a day as rapidly as possible.

"The best economy industry can practice," says Mr. Ford, "is to raise wages." A whole lot of Americans will agree with that; and there is nothing so persuasive, in such a matter, as the power of example.

The effect of an action like this is apt to spread far beyond the confines of the plant in which it takes place.

Mr. Ford's action well may help to raise the pay scales of many American workers who never saw a Ford factory.

Mobeetie, Capital Of Panhandle Once, Known by 3 Names

MOBETTIE. (P)—Mobeetie, often referred to as "the mother city of the Panhandle," has had three different locations and has been known by as many different names.

After Fort Elliott was established on the banks of Sweetwater creek to protect hunters, ranchers and early settlers against the Indians, the little village of Hidetown was started about two miles away to help accommodate the hide hunters and freighters who came to the fort for protection.

In about 1878 the town was moved to within half a mile of the fort, and the name was changed to Sweetwater, after the creek on which the site was located. It was learned, however, that a town of that name already existed in Nolan county, so the founders gave their village the Cheyenne Indian name for Sweetwater—Mobeetie.

As Mobeetie, the town figured prominently in the early history of the Panhandle, and became even better known in fiction. Many of the famous characters who have contributed to the history of the Southwest visited here and some of them participated in the brawls which were common then to every frontier town.

Wheeler county was organized in 1879, and Mobeetie became the "capital" of the Panhandle. The affairs of 25 counties were conducted from Mobeetie, the seat of government of the only organized county in the region. Famous peace officers came here to help conduct court sessions.

When the Clinton, Oklahoma and Western was built east from Pampa in 1929, it was necessary to miss the old fort site and the pioneer town. So the town was moved again—this time to the new railroad where it der gratefully, and she broke into an outburst of giggling as she pinched the fat seals which Mala unloaded.

Iva spoke to Hunt in Eskimo: "Somebody waits for you." She pointed to a group of villagers assembled around a newcomer, talking volubly. The man pushed his way through them and approached Hunt, who cried joyfully:

"Akkrat." He shook hands with the Eskimo and clasped him on the shoulder. "Good boy, Akkrat!" To which Balk added: "You're a sight for sore eyes, Akie."
