AS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Many of the young people of our community have walked up the altar the past month or so and pledged their vows to each other. We have had many write ups of the beautiful weddings that have occured this summer.

Here is a new set of wedding vows, from the Home Life magazine revised by N.J. Ison:

"Wedding vows are solemn, impressive, terrific; the only trouble is, they're just not specific; Vows should be revised for true-life situations; Why, marriage has more problems than the United Nations. Wouldn't it be better to start married bliss with down-to-earth vows that go something like this: John, will you take this woman for better or worse, will you help her buy shoes to match her new purse? Will you promise to pay taxes, insurance, utlities, far in excess of your capabilities? Will you meet her car your capabilities? Will you meet her car payments on time with no fuss, repair washer, dryer, leaky faucets and such? Will you love Mary in her hair rollers and cream? And patiently rock colicky babies that scream? Will you still be glad she's queen of the house, when she ends your nap with 'John, I saw a mouse!' Do you promise, John, to bring home all your cash, and each Thursday morning, take out all the trash? Will you refrain from hurling even verbal rocks, if Mary puts your lucky golf shirt in the Goodwill box? Do you pledge to remember her birthdays with pleasure and each anniversary, bring home some treasure? Will you love her when she's no longer slender, when her hair has turned gray, will you still love her tender? Will you ignore the wrinkles that will line her smooth face and consider them as flattering as wedding veil lace? Will you promise to rush to her aid without ire, if she's run out of gas or had a flat tire?

Mary, will you love John- even with ugly, beardy stubble, who's filled every closet with wall-to-wall rubble? Do you promise to cool it when he's out with the boys or can't follow instructions to fix Santa's toys? Will you praise him profusely when he does those odd jobs, and when he hurts your feelings, not resort to sad sobs? Will you love him (even when he's an absolute grouch) and promise never to force him to sleep on the couch? Will you guarantee you'll not be thrown for a loss, when you've cooked two hamburgers and he brings home the boss? Will you cheerfully do laundry piled high as a mountain yet look like you've been drinking from youth's sweet fountain? Will you always be tender, loving and sweet, even if John has cold, calloused feet? Will you be quick to encourage and praise, especially when taxes take all of John's raise? Will you take time to hear his long list of woes, even if he talks through all the best TV shows? Will you be glad that he is your lover, on zero-degree nights when he hogs the bed cover? If supper is ready, will you be saint not sinner, when he phones to say "Can't be home for dinner"? From this day on, will you love John without doubt, when his teeth are all false and his hair all falls out?

The class of 1940 is having a reunion Saturday July 12 and invite everyone to come by and visit with them at 3 p.m. at the First State Bank. Refreshments will be served and this will be a great opportunity to visit with members of the class.

This combine had a steering apparatus drop off of it and it veered in front of a wheat truck driven by Willie Porter of Spearman. Willie missed the combine but turned the truck over and lost his load of wheat. He was not injured. The accident occured South of Spearman on the Borger Hiway.

Ben Woodington is pictured above with a Northern Pike that weighted 17 1/2 pounds. Ben cought the Pike on a 6 pound test line. It took 15 minutes to land the big fish. He was fishing in Fling Flon, Canada. Now, these wedding vows tell it like it is, and believe me, beloved, it isn't show biz. Only thing is, second thoughts make one falter, and lots of lovers would be left at the altar. Ain't it the truth. ...

This group of runners entered the 4th of July marrathon at Spearman, Friday. Some 30 plus runners entered. This was the highlight of the 4th of July festivities in Spearman.

Heat Wave Wilts Everything

LUBBOCK -- Crops, animals LEGAL NOTICE and people all wilted in one of The Hansford County Board the longest recorded heat waves of Equalization will meet at 10 in Texas' history. a.m. July 14, 1980 in the But it's no reason for farmers Hansford County Courthouse. and ranchers to reach for the panic button, agree two Texas Tech University professors and a meteorologist at the National Weather Service office in Lubbock.

"The quality of the rangeland going down, but there's is nothing critical yet," Dr. Donald F. Burzlaff, chairman of the Department of Range and Wildlife Management, said Monday as temperatures again soared to the century mark.

Most rangeland "got a rea-sonably good start" this year and matured early, he said. But continued dry weather created low-quality forage. This caused declining weight gains for cattle, down from a normal 11/2 pounds per day to about threequarters of a pound, he said.

If the heat wave were to continue for a couple more weeks. Burzlaff said, cattle would require supplemental feed or would be marketed early. An early break in the heat wave would produce "no noticeable loss" in weight gain, he said

Crops held their own, although cotton is better able to withstand a continued heat wave than either corn or sorghum, said Dr. Dwane G. Miller, chairman of the Department of Plant and Soil Science.

"So far, crops are not hurting too much," he said. Irrigated crops would fare better than dry-land crops during a prolonged dry spell, he said. But "the dry spell is definitely going to have an effect on yields."

DON'T GET RAINED ON!

Corn, with its broad leaf area. would be first to be hurt during a prolonged heat wave, Miller said. Next to be hurt would be sorghum.

Cotton, with its smaller leaf surface now, was in better shape to withstand June's dry spell, he said. "With a prolonged dry spell, cotton's deeper rooting system will help it better survive dry stress than corn or sorghum."

When the mercury zipped past 100 degrees Monday for the eighth straight day, Lubbock tied the record for the second longest heat wave on record. The record was in 1924. when temperature reached 100 degrees 10 days in a row. In 1928, the mercury also reached three figures for eight straight davs. Last month was either the hottest June on record or one of the hottest across the state, said Ken Wigner, special programs meteorologist for agriculture at the National Weather Service. High daily records were recorded throughout West Texas and in North Central Texas. Dallas-Fort Worth recorded the alltime high -- 113 degrees -- two days in a row. Wichita Falls set an-time record of 117 degrees. El Paso had more than 20 days of 100 degree or higher temperatures -- a new record of consecutive 100 degree days. Lubbock missed its all-time record during the heat spell by only one degree -- the record high is 109 degrees. But nearby towns did set new daily records: the temperature peaked at 111 degrees in Matador, Spur and Paducah, Wigner said.

Although many farmers and ranchers claim Texas and a large adjacent area of the Southwest are suffering another cyclical drought, similar to those of the 1930's and 1950's, Wigner is hesitant to call the present dry spell a major drought. The weather service only has data going back 70 years, he said, not a long enough time to indicate whether drought cycles exist.

Reason for the heat wave, Wigner said, was a high pressure system "in all levels of the atmosphere except for the surface." This high pressure forces air toward the surface and the air warms as it descends, he said.

The high pressure settled over Texas because the jet stream shifted to the upper Midwest. "As a result, we can't get any moving systems" such as a cold front or an upper level impulse that could bring rain. Wigner said he does not expect any widespread rain for at least two weeks. This is reflected by the National Weather Service's extended July forecast, which calls for below normal rainfall and higher than normal tempreatures.

Through June Lubbock recorded 7.48 inches of rain for the year, compared to a normal 8.97 inches.

Those looking for relief from University. the hot, dry spell can take should avoid heavy foods and comfort from the fact that, on especially those with high fat the average, the last two weeks contents and substitute lighter of June and the first two weeks of July are the warmest of the foods in their place.
