Freshmen uninjured in bus fire Thurs!

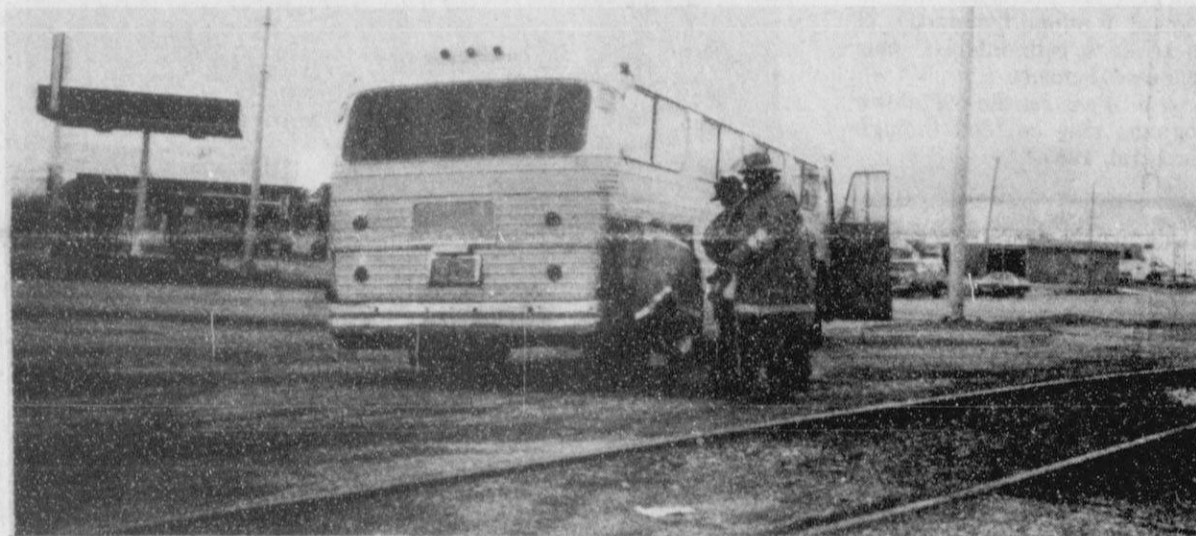

Hottest team in Spearman

The Spearman Freshman won the claim as "Hottest Team in Spearman" when their bus caught on fire at Crazy Corners in Spearman, at 5:00 P.M., Thursday, Jan. 3rd. Both the boys and girls are pictured above waving to the media reminding the press that they are still #1.

Firemen checked the engine on the Freshman bus. Although the bus caught on fire none of the freshmen were injured. Both teams were entered in the Perryton Tournament. We understand that the girls won their game and the boys lost theirs. We do not know how they hitched a ride to Perryton. We are assuming the school sent another bus to complete the trip.

ASCS Says ACR Must Be Eligible Land

Keith Martin, CED reminds farmers who plan to participate in the 1985 acreage reduction programs that cropland taken out of production and devoted to the acreage conservation reserve (ACR) must be eligible land which meets certain requirements.

"To be eligible, the land must have been devoted to row crops or small grains in two of the past three years, except for a summer fallow farm in which case the cropping requirement is for only one of the previous two years," Keith said. Farmers need to be sure that the land has actually been planted within the specified time frame, he said.

When farmers sign up for the acreage reduction programs, they agree to protect their idled cropland from soil and water erosion by planting certain grasses, legumes, small grains or other cover on the land. They are required to maintain these acres through normal control measures for insects, weeds and rodents. The program contract also prohibits harvesting ACR land. Grazing is prohibited during the 5 principal growing months of June 1 to November 1.

Keith said farmers need to use proper stubble management not to prevent problems with stubble mulch cover on acres designated for ACR in 1985. "The 1984 stubble should not be disced, plowed, or burned; otherwise, a cover crop will be required.

As an alternative to planting a cover crop, conservation tillage can be used on ACR land when adequate 1984 crop residue is maintained. For maximum protection, existing stubble should be left undisturbed as long as possible and tillage should be limited to the use of surface tillage equipment. "Adequate residue must be left on the surface to protect the land from wind and water erosion. If excessive erosion takes place, the farmer will be required to use emergency tillage or plant the land to a cover crop."

The ASCS official said land that is being leveled, put into sod waterways or filter strips, or planted to trees, shrubs, or shelter belts during the current year, may be designated as ACR in 1985. Wet, low-lying areas of land are not eligible for the ACR.

WEATHER

The New Year started out white for 1985. Spearman and Gruver residents woke up to find less than 1 inch of snow on the ground.

New Years eve many residents stayed home because of the heavy fog and ice on the highways.

The Cattleman's Restaurant in Spearman reported a large turn out for the New Year's festivities. The local restaurant and private club is one of the most beautiful in the area featuring a fireplace and outstanding New Year's decor.

These two men will precede a January 14 visit from 2 generals out of Washington, D.C.. These 2 generals have been trying to visit the dam site but because of the weather have been unable to do so.

Even though the Corp of Engineers probably will not build the dam they have helped the project in MANY WAYS. Plans are for the state and local people to build and operate the PDWA when the dam is completed.

Wawaka Talk by Mary-Ann Hooper

Here comes another year. My mind is so far gone that I forgot to make a New Year's resolution. I thought that I was middle aged when I turned 35, but since the average that American's live to keeps going up, I guess I wasn't. I really don't mind!

This year, however, 40 is starting me in the face. The girl's at work think I'm elderly. My kids ask if we had a stable or barn for our horses when we rode them to school. It's very depressing for an old lady. It's a good time to share this with you:

You Can Tell You're "Over The Hill" when:

- Everything hurts, and what doesn't hurt, doesn't work.
- Your little black book contains only names ending in M.D.
- You get winded playing chess.
- You join a health club and don't go.
- You're still chasing women/men but can't remember why.
- You look forward to a dull evening.
- You turn out the light for economic rather than romantic reasons.
- You sit in a rocking chair and can't get it going.
- Your knees buckle and your belt won't.
- Dialing long distance wears you out.
- Your back goes out more than you do.
- Your pacemaker makes the garage door go up when you watch a pretty girl/cute guy go by.
- You sink your teeth into a steak and they stay there.

Being an avid reader I was most happy to find out the following information. Beside's reciprocal borrowing you can also have your local library order/borrow a book for you from another library.

Reciprocal Borrowing in Texas Panhandle Libraries

Your library card or personal ID used to borrow books from your own public library may be used to borrow books from almost anywhere in the Texas Panhandle Library System.

When you use another library, take your library card with you—or take other identification if your library does not issue cards. The library will extend to you the same privileges that are extended to its own patrons. All required of you is to conform to the rules of the lending library.

Reciprocal Borrowing is sponsored by the Texas Panhandle Library System, and is made possible by Texas State Library through the Texas Library Systems Act.

Texas Panhandle Library System members are: Amarillo Public Library (Potter County); Borger (Hutchinson County); Pampa; Canyon; Canadian (Hemphill County); Dimmitt (Cass County); Dumas (Moore County); Friona; Hereford (Deaf Smith County); McLean; Panhandle (Carson County); Perryton (Ochiltree County); Shamrock; Spearman (Hansford County); Stratford (Sherman County); Tulia (Swisher County); Wellington (Collingsworth County); and Wheeler.

Visit any or all of these libraries and try the system out. You'll be the winner.

Federal Farm Program Payments Available

When farmers sign up for the 1985 acreage reduction programs, they are eligible to receive 50 percent of the land diversion payments in those programs where land diversion payments are provided, and 50 percent of projected deficiency payments, according to Keith Martin, CED.

"The advance farm program payments provide producers with additional compensation for taking land out of production, in addition to the acreage reduction requirements," Keith said. Deficiency payments are made to program participants when average market prices fall below the established target price for the crop.

A 10 percent acreage reduction requirement is in effect for 1985 feed grains and extra long staple cotton. The wheat and upland cotton programs contain a 20 percent acreage reduction and 10 percent paid land diversion requirement. The rice program calls for a 20 percent acreage reduction and a 15 percent paid land diversion.

Keith said acreage reduction and land diversion programs are necessary to maintain reasonable levels of carryover stocks and strengthen farm prices. "All farmers with an established acreage base are eligible to participate in the voluntary programs."

Land diversion payments have been established at $2.70 per bushel for wheat, 30 cents per pound for upland cotton, and $3.50 per hundredweight for rice. Projected deficiency payments are 47 cents per bushel for corn, 46 cents for sorghum, 44 cents for barley, $1.08 for wheat, $19.80 cents per pound for upland cotton, and $3.80 per hundredweight for rice.

Keith said farmers who accept advance federal farm program payments and later fail to comply with program provisions will be required to refund the amount of the advance with interest, plus liquidated damages.

Applications for the 1985 farm programs may be filed through March 1st, 1985.

Adverse ads: The University of California student newspaper will no longer run ads for Playboy because the staff considers the magazine sexist, an editor said. Other advertisers previously banned by the Daily Californian are the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and Coors Beer. That poses a few questions.

Collectable Clock Tips

Almost any clock could conceivably be of interest to a collector, but not all clocks have general collector appeal. It is not possible to define, for every situation, what makes a particular clock "collectable," but we can at least discuss some general tips that will help you understand what collectors look for in clocks.

Generally, we can say that a good collectable clock should be in good working order with all original parts in good condition, be at least 100 years old (to be considered a true antique) or be so unusual in some way (or so rare) that age is not really a factor.

Of course, we could get much more specific for each different kind or style of clock, but this general rule is sufficient for such a discussion. That said, let's take a look at our rule point by point.

Point one: the clock must be in good working order. Unless you're already an expert in clockworks, NEVER buy a clock that isn't working. Pay no attention to the dealer's claim of how cheaply it can be put in working order. If such were the case, the dealer would have already seen to it. While it is true that most antique clocks can be restored to working order, it is almost never true that is can be done cheaply.

Point two: the clock should have all original parts in good condition. There's practically no way the non-expert can know through a buying room examination, but you'd be surprised how many buyers forget to even ask the dealer. Reputable dealers will be obliged to tell you if restoration has occurred and how the price has been affected (a restored clock should be 5 to 10 percent less expensive than an all-original example in comparable condition).

Point three: age, novelty or rarity. This is the point where the buyer is most vulnerable. Countless reproductions of old clocks are now on the marketplace, some even difficult for dealers to spot. Your best protection against fraud is a reputable dealer and your own knowledge of the field. To learn more about clocks and clock collecting, see The Official Price Guide to Antique Clocks. HAPPY NEW YEAR

We feel sure that for all of your life, on New Year's Day you have made some resolutions. We would like to suggest a few for this year.

Resolve to be happy, to get the most out of each minute, hour or day. All we are ever sure of is this moment, so let us enjoy it thoroughly.

Even if you do not have much money or have good health or have a family, there is still much to gain from life. We always have the flowers, the sunshine, the rain, the birds, a child's smile. We all have some good memories.

Resolve to make a new friend. Reach out a hand to someone. They may be needing you more than you know. Often a younger person is just waiting for another person to care about them and what they are doing with their lives. Many an older person is lonely and yet withdraws into themselves. They need someone to reach out to them since they cannot.

Resolve to learn something new this year: a hobby, an art, a new skill, read a new book, study some subject. Minds have to be used or they stagnate.

Resolve to do all that you can to remain as healthy as possible. Preventive medicine is a great deal better than

Jolly Green Thumb

BY MARY FUREY CRYMES

A trip through any supermarket's produce department will pretty well convince you there are winter vegetables. And, at the checkout, you learn they cost money. Since nutritionists say we need them, proper care and saving freshness is in order. Here's a few tips:

Refrigerate all the veggies you lug home fast. Vitamins in some green and yellow kinds are lost by exposure to light, heat, air and in water. Don't soak or wash vegetables; do this before use. Cut them then, too, and pare if necessary. Everyone has a favorite cooking method, and today, steaming is right up there as it retains freshness and vitamins. If you're a bit conservative, save the water you cook vegetables in and freeze it. Makes good soup, and it adds flavor to stews and casseroles.

Winter greens — like kale, lettuce, spinach, etc. — are exceptions. They should be washed thoroughly before storing. Rinse greens and place in a dish drainer to dry. Wrap leaves in two thicknesses of paper towels. There's a rumor that wrapping a head of lettuce in paper towels; then plunging it in a brown paper sack and refrigerating will keep it from rusting, but this is passed on more as a research project than a tip.

Broccoli is always a good buy and usable in many dishes. Cut stems close to flowerets before storing. Use stems to make a broccoli soup — a great meal starter hot or cold. Simmer broccoli stems in seasoned chicken broth; cool, then puree mixture in a blender. Return it to the pan and add cream, a dash of nutmeg and a bit of grated onion. Serve with croutons.

Storing potatoes can be tricky. You know that if they have greenish spots or areas, they've been picked before they're ripe. If you're in doubt, rub skin with a rough polishing cloth. If skin comes off easily, potatoes will be bitter. Cook them and freeze them cooked, or eat right away. Don't store fruits near potatoes, cabbage or turnips. They exchange gases and this could affect taste. Onions should also be stored in a cool, dry spot. They can be hung in strings from a kitchen rafter, but not too long or they absorb cooking odors and also dry out.

Collectable Cars

Used to be, collecting cars was a hobby enjoyed only by the rich, who were interested in a relative handful and classic models. Today, however, you'll find collectors at all economic levels competing fiercely for a wide variety of antique, classic and milestone cars. And for a very good reason. Collectable cars are considered excellent investments and have risen rapidly in value almost across the board during the last decade or so.

Condition is the most important consideration for the collector. A collectable car in "Excellent" condition will bring twice the price of one judged to be in "Good" condition (as determined by experts using strict guidelines).

Unlike some other collectables, cars are not marked down for restoration. A complete restoration to near original condition, using genuine parts and accessories, can transform a worthless rusted hulk into a $20,000 collector's item. (Never mind that it cost nearly that much in time and materials to restore it!)

Trends in car collecting are hard to predict, tied as they are to passing fads and fancies. There's no accounting for taste, of course, and even the old horse-collar-grille Edsel has its fan club.

Prices are also hard to pin down, since so much depends on condition and market demand of the day. Suffice it to say that one should never buy a collectable car at any price without the opportunity to have it checked out by a trusted mechanic. To get some rough idea of current market prices, see The Official Price Guide to Collector Cars, compiled by Kruse Classic Auction Co. for The House of Collectables, Orlando, Fla.

The three major types of collectable cars, already mentioned, are antique, classic and milestone. Antique cars are those produced prior to 1925. Classics are certain models produced from 1925-1948, so designated by the Classic Car Club of America. Milestones are models built after 1945 and so designated by the members of the Milestone Car Society.

For the addresses of these and other national car collecting organizations, as well as clubs in your area, see your local library.

Thinking Slim

BY JEAN NIDETCH

THE GROUP APPROACH TO WEIGHT CONTROL: WHY NOT TRY IT?

"Join a weight control group? Not me! I'm the independent type!" It's a statement I've heard often. Yet I can't help but wonder if some of these "diet mavericks" might not benefit from the group approach if only they would give it a chance.

Take Helen, for instance. She too thought she could "go it alone" while losing weight. When pressed, however, she admitted she hadn't been too successful at it. Finally she dragged herself out to a meeting — and was hooked! "It wasn't at all how I had imagined," she explained. "Everyone was in the same boat, so I wasn't self-conscious about my looks. There was no scolding, no 'confession', no public weighing. I could sit back and not say a word unless I felt like it. But once things got started, everyone was so supportive I WANTED to join! I wish I had tried this years ago."

There are a lot of advantages to the group support approach to weight control, not the least of which is the very act of formally committing yourself to losing weight. When you are responsible to no one but yourself, it's awfully easy to let yourself off the hook, and postpone your diet until another time. But joining a group is a lot like getting married; it's a public commitment that, given human nature, is a lot more likely to "stick." Then there is the support you get from members themselves. As they share experiences, triumphs, and frustrations, you realize anew that you are not alone in your struggles. And there is the inspiration that comes from example. My friend Helen was at first disconcerted by the presence of a slim, pretty girl in her class. "She doesn't need to lose weight!" Helen protested. "What's she doing here?" Imagine her surprise when she learned that the girl was in the last stage of weight loss — and has started out 50 pounds heavier than Helen was now!

During World War II, the Soviet Union did not declare war on Japan until Aug. 8, 1945, two days after the United States dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

Finally, there is the social aspect of membership in a group. Many members find themselves looking forward to each weekly meeting to renew old acquaintances, arriving early to chat, trade recipes, or just relax. Some remain friends outside of class. One group even began meeting in one another's homes each week for a low calorie meal and evening of socializing. "You can't imagine what a relief it is to look forward to a night out without worrying that it will ruin my diet!" declared one member. But the most compelling reason of all is that the group approach works, as millions of formerly overweight men and women can testify. So if you're a "diet maverick," why not try it and see? You've got nothing to lose but those bulges!

Soft sell in the overdue bill notice department: the firm that's mailing out forget-me-nots to errant billpayers.

Rose growers have been known to disagree about what's the best kind, size, color and style of their favorite flower. Such disagreements pale compared to their hot and heavy discussions of how to protect roses for winter. Wow!

The new rosarian can become bewildered and confused. One way to avoid the crossfire is to talk to your county extension agent, or governmental horticultural source, or university expert. One of them is bound to know, or will offer to find out, as these folks are generally agreeable.

To save your precious roses, do what they recommend. They may tell you to mulch with hay, straw or leaves and let 'em go if winters are mild. Or, they could recommend "burying" the plant. This is age-old, in-the-ground protection for roses in severely cold climates. Dig a shallow trench the length of the plant; dig up roots gently on one side only; lay plant on its side and hold it in place in the trench with a wooden cross brace (2 boards nailed together to form an X). Mound earth over. Victorians protected all plants this way. Roses are also burlap wrapped and covered with earth. Canes have to be pruned first, then straw mounded around the plant. Climbers and bush roses are often wrapped against the elements. Naturally, roses planted in sheltered areas — close to walls around buildings, trees and in protected beds need less winterizing than those out in the open. And you can buy "rose caps," cone-shaped styrofoam protectors that look like rocket nose cones planted in your soil. They're inexpensive and said to be effective.

Whatever, do ask around of experts about protecting your beloved roses and don't get caught in the neighborhood "rose wars."

STRATEGIES

A financial game plan for retirement.

DEVELOPING A PLAN

There is an important way you can help your financial strategy now and at retirement time.

It's with an IRA. Individual Retirement Account from First National Bank in Perryton.

You can help now because it's the biggest tax break ever. Every wage earner can subtract up to $2,000 yearly from your gross annual income with an IRA. Married couples with a non-working spouse may deduct up to $2,250 or when both work up to $4,000.

PROTECT YOUR INVESTMENT

Of course, at the First National Bank in Perryton your IRA is protected up to $100,000 by the FDIC. And, we charge no maintenance fee.

REACH YOUR GOAL

Then an IRA helps you later because your money draws interest at the highest rates available until you start making withdrawals at retirement. It is remarkable how much momentum an IRA can gather as you head towards retirement. If you start before 30 it can accumulate more than a million dollars.

Reed-Walsler Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Walsler

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reed of Spearman would like to announce the engagement and marriage of their daughter, Janet, to Tommy Walsler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Walsler, Sr. of Borger. The couple were married Dec. 31, 1984 at Cattleman's Super Club in Spearman.

After a wedding trip to Red River N.M., the couple will be at home in Borger, where the bride is student at Frank Phillip's College and the groom is employed at Camx in Borger.

A fowl idea: Police in Fort Fairfield, Maine, were bored one day recently. So when a citizen complained about finding a live chicken in his car, officers arrested the bird, booked it at the station and read it its rights. The chicken, identified in the police record as Cee Little of Main Street, faced arraignment on charges of criminal trespass, criminal mischief, public indecency, assault on an officer and littering. The bird was released the next day in the custody of a citizen. Go lay an egg somewhere else!

TSTI will change name

Texas State Technical Institutes (TSTI-Amarillo) Electronic Systems Technology will change its name in March to Computer Electronics Technology. The name change for the 18-21 month Associate degree program reflects a stronger emphasis on training for computer hardware repair and peripherals, as suggested by the program's Industrial Advisory Committee.

Currently enrolled students and those enrolling in Electronic Systems Technology prior to March can continue with curriculum in effect when they enrolled or add courses necessary to complete the Associate degree in Computer Electronics Technology.

For further information: Call Billy Giles, Program Chairman, Computer Electronics Technology, 806-335-2316, ext. 441.

Display of the month

The gray graniteware collection of Deborah Stenulson is the Display of the Month at the Hansford County Library.

Graniteware was the name given all enamelware made from 1870-1930. It was lightweight, easy to clean and use, and came in a multitude of colors that were marbled, speckled and swirled. Although porcelain enamelware is still being produced, graniteware lost its popular appeal when aluminum became the rage in the 1930's.

Deborah has filled three of the library display cases with her colanders, coffee pots, funnels, cake pans, mugs, lunch pails, dishpans, cooking pots, and yes, even bedpans and pots!

Deborah began collecting graniteware only two years ago. She claims she was interested in collecting something unbreakable, useful, and unpretentious—something that had a flavor of history and pioneers to it. She became hooked on graniteware after having seen a few pieces decoratively displayed by Corretta Ralston of Gruver. Deborah has acquired her graniteware in Wisconsin, her homestate, N. Mex., Tx., Okla., Washington, Ark., and Nebraska.

Deborah is the wife of Al Stenulson. They have a son, Aaron Jon and a lop-eared rabbit named Thumper.

First Christian "Live Nativity"

The First Christian Church of Spearman presented a "Live" Nativity Scene on the front lawn of the Church at 29 S. Bernice, in Spearman on December 21, 22, and 23.

The cast for the Friday evening nativity was: Kurt and Lelia Bynum; Don Kunselman; Tom Madison; Albert Graves; Paul Bynum; Joe Bynum; and Dedra Madison.

The Saturday cast was: Allen & Peggy Varnon; Jim Brown; Carl Kunselman; J.L. Brock; Kim Brock; Earl Novak; and Sarah Foster.

Sunday evening's cast consisted of: Christa Urban; Carl Urban; Sonja Winters, Shannon Groves; Kim Jenkins; Joseph Winters; Larry Don Dunn; Justin Ooley; and Sarah Foster.

The cast did such a good job and the weather was so cold. Perhaps the cast in Bethlehem had better weather, and they were able to move too.

"It's just as well Mondale and Ferraro didn't make it to the White House. What woman could stay happy very long knowing she was ONLY second-in-command."

In ancient Rome, peaches sold for the equivalent of $4.50 each.

Champagne has no monopoly on ship launches: during Prohibition, the "President Coolidge" was christened with water from the chief executive's Vermont farm.

Our Heritage of Faith...

A look back into ancient church history shows some favorable testimony for infant baptism by the earliest church fathers. They testified to receiving the tradition of infant baptism from the apostles. The catacombs of Rome bear inscriptions with the names of children, indicating the dates of their deaths at ages ranging from a few months to a few years and stating that they had been baptized. The practice of infant baptism has a long and continuous, though not undisputed history among Christians.

Joan Crosby's TV PARADE

LIFE STYLE CHANGE — Two months before production began on the season of shows for CBS-TV's Airwolf, Jean Bruce Scott didn't like airplanes, much less helicopters.

However, she is a new member of the cast playing Caitlin, called Kate, a helicopter pilot who is a former Highway Patrol Deputy from Texas.

So perky, pretty, pure Celtic Jean decided she should do two things: 1) learn a Texas accent and 2) learn how to operate the controls of a helicopter.

Now she's hooked. There is a faint touch of Texas twang in her speech, thanks to dialogue accent coach Robert Easton.

"I swore I would never get into a helicopter for a shot. Now I'm working on my private pilot's license for fixed wing planes and I have already been up there flying for pleasure.

"I'm the kind who would never look out the window of a plane when I was flying. In New York I was in the Empire State Building and I went to the top and wouldn't look over. A few months ago I was fixing the roof on my guest house — I was putting a new roof on — and I wouldn't go near the edge of the roof." That is now past. Jean doesn't actually do any of the stunt flying in Airwolf, but she has gone up in a helicopter and loves it.

She is set for seven of the first 13 episodes and when asked if there would be any romantic involvement between her character and the one played by Jan-Michael Vincent, she smiled and said

"I can fly it, but my operation of it is a bit choppy and not smooth like experienced pilots yet," she says.

"I feel we will be merely teasing one another all season."

PAST AND PRESENT — Jean played Jessica on Days Of Our Lives for several years. "I got married, went on my honeymoon and never came back," she says "Actually, I was in Hawaii filming Magnum, P.I."

Jean has done several episodes of Magnum, and it was Don Bellasario, who produces that series and also Airwolf, who cast Jean as a helicopter pilot. "I had absolutely no hesitancy about doing a night time series," she smiles. "Besides, I had worked for Don," she adds, thus paying him a compliment.

Because she was so popular on Days Of Our Lives, Jean still gets mail from the show's fans. "I'm so happy that I do still hear from them," she says. "They are wonderful. They have followed my career and written me at Magnum, and also at St. Elsewhere, where I had a recurring role. Some of them have been writing to me for five years and I know all about their families and dogs and they know a lot about me."

The man who prays can hear the prayers of others . . . especially when he prays for those human needs which are common to all men.

But even when he prays for needs that are solely his own, he knows that those who care for him are joining their prayers with his.

And God's answers come back along the party line.

You're never quite sure the message was meant for you. You are tempted sometimes to think it was intended for someone else . . . until you realize that this answer which God has inspired in your heart does fit your prayer.

There are times when it's good for everybody on the party line to pick up the phone at once . . . and speak what they all feel . . . and listen to what they all need to hear.
