

HANSFORD COUNTY'S LEADING NEWSPAPER

Hansford Is Second in Wheat Acres

Hansford County is again the second largest wheat acreage county in Texas.

It is surpassed only by its neighbor to the east, Ochiltree.

The two counties are the only ones in Texas with more than two hundred thousand acres of wheat seeded.

The Hansford County acreage is 215,000. Ochiltree County has 227,000 acres. These figures were released this week by the Texas Employment Commission Farm Labor Bulletin. It was the first wheat report of the year.

State-wide winter wheat seedings for 1965 harvest are estimated at 4,162,000 acres. This is four percent above last year and six percent above the 1959-63 average.

According to the bulletin, based on April 1 conditions production is forecast at 66,592,000 bushels. If this is realized, it will be eight percent above 1964 production of 61,848,000 bushels.

McDonald Is In Regional Track Meet

Spearman compiled 34 points in the district track meet in Amarillo last week and qualified one boy for regional competition.

Ronald McDonald won the district 100-yard dash with a time of 10.1 seconds.

Others who placed in the first four places in the events were: Rennie Berry placed third in the high jump with a leap of 5'2".

The Spearman 440-yard relay place third. The team is McDonald, Mike Morris, Jimmy Ownbey and Ken Shufeldt.

Shufeldt placed fourth in the 440-yard dash.

Spearman's mile relay team failed to place and it was learned after the meet that Jimmy Ownbey was running with a cracked bone in his foot.

Stinnett won the district title with 137 points, Phillips was second with 123, Dalhard had 68, Boys Ranch 65, Shamrock 40, Spearman 34 and Sanford Fritch 21.

PREPARING STATEMENT -- District Attorney Dee Miller of the 47th District Court and James P. Linn, Hansford County Attorney, (right) prepare to make a statement for television after Judge Max Boyer set aside the judgement in the Robert Clements trial and granted a new trial in Columbus, Texas. Linn assisted with the prosecution of the case in 84th District Court and was asked by Miller to assist with the new trial. PLAINSMAN PHOTO

Clements Trial May Be in Summer

The date for the next trial of Robert Earl Clements of Amarillo is still indefinite, but it could be tried this summer.

County Attorney James Linn, one of the prosecutors in the case, said Judge Paul Boethel of the 25th District said earlier he could not hear the case until fall.

However, since Clements' lawyer has indicated his client wants a speedy trial, Linn said the case might be tried this summer. The County Attorney said when a defendant in a criminal case asks for a trial, his case will take precedence over any civil case awaiting trial.

District Judge Max Boyer of the 84th District Court ordered the new trial and a change of venue of the case from his court in Spearman to the 25th District Court in Columbus in a brief court session at 4 p.m. Thursday.

In the session of court Judge Boyer set aside Clements' plea of nolo contendere and the two-year suspended sentence Clements had received in his trial here Tuesday afternoon.

The action by Judge Boyer was a surprise to many people and there were mixed emotions among the people on the streets of Spearman.

A big majority of those discussing the action, felt the defendant had done too much talking after receiving a very light sentence. Others wondered how a judge could change a sentence after it had been ordered.

According to the law a judge has control of all orders issued in his court during the term in which the orders are issued.

There are a few exceptions, but not applied in this case.

Judge Boyer said he was setting aside the judgement and sentence and granting a new trial because it appeared the defendant either did not understand the plea he made in court or made the plea because he feared he would not get a fair trial. Judge Boyer said the defendant's statements to the press were "expressly contrary to the questions and I state here and now that I do not intend for any person to enter a guilty plea before this court if there is the remotest doubt that such person is not making same voluntarily and under no fear or persuasion and free from promises. He went on to say: "His statement shows that he did make same by a fear that 'his chances of getting a fair and impartial trial have been blocked and it is time for a strategic retreat'".

I want no person brought before this court who may be innocent to retreat to the extent that he pleads guilty because he fears that he cannot get a fair trial. This would be an intolerable situation and a denial of the rights that each citizen possesses under the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of Texas.

Clements entered the plea in court Tuesday after Monday and Tuesday morning had been spent hearing pre-trial motions by Clements' lawyer.

Shortly after entering the plea and being sentenced, Clements held a press conference in his motel and told the reporters "I am not guilty," and "I did not plead guilty."

He went on to say that when it was evident that newspaper and television publicity had made it impossible to get a fair trial, so he had made a strategic retreat.

Teens Swing to the Leggy Look

With the leggy look "in" for spring, the teen-ager's fashion focus shifts to her free-wheeling feet.

The leggy look stems naturally from the combined effect of textured stockings, higher hemlines and low-cut shoes, reports Shoe Fashion Service. With the coltish co-ed — in the prime of her "legginess" — this emphasis on legs and feet has put her choice of footwear into the fashion spotlight.

Her brilliantly colored, light-as-air leather pumps, sandals and flats reflect the femininity and delicacy of women's shoe styling, yet have a joie de vivre that is completely her own.

Teen-age fashionables are showing more foot as well as more leg during this spring semester. At class and afterwards, zingy sling-backs and opened-up pumps with low heels are being worn in a wide, wonderful range of leathers — smooth, grained, suede, brushed, patent, waxy and embossed.

Many sport triangular or lattice-work cutouts at the side, the better to show off pretty patterned stockings. With its topline sheared for a shallower silhouette, the classic leather pump makes a dreamy informal date shoe, with or without the addition of graceful buckle or bow.

Strictly casual are T-strap flatties in grained or brushed leather, waxy and glove leather moccasins, and leather monk-strap slippers. Tidy tie-shoes in colorful brushed and grained leathers may also boast ghillie or kiltie themes.

Many a leather "flat" now sits on a slightly higher heel, while pliant leather soles offer trasting cuffs, tabs with gold buckles. On party, prom or "disco" dates, co-eds combine foot ease and elegance with smart leather stripping sandals, slings and pumps. Fashioned from smooth and lustre leathers, sleek suede, mirror-like patents and exciting embossed leathers that duplicate reptile skins, these beauties are set on slim mid and low-heels. The teen-age rage for color gets full play this spring. She can be tickled by pink, popcorn or pistachio — yellow, turquoise or navy — by her new leather shoes. Clear sunny shades, off-beat pastels, neutrals and the "natural leathers" colors are available in a full assortment of styles and leather textures.

Boys Borrow Style Notes From Dad for Spring

Handsome right for spring, little boys' apparel continues to borrow style notes from Dad, plus international fashion ideas.

The classic Eton suit for the very small boy is just one British influence. Now Oxford joins in, as knickers with checked jackets and matching caps become increasingly important for the growing-up boy.

Wedding Anniversary Provides Lucky Number

Wedding anniversaries are special days for everyone, newlyweds remember them and old husbands forget them. For Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Brummett it was a lucky number.

Recently the Brummetts and their Rexall Drug store were entered in a nation-wide contest of 1,800 stores.

The store owners were to select a number, both of the Brummetts decided upon 11, because their wedding anniversary is March 11.

Last week they were notified they had picked the winning number. The prize--- their initial order for their recent one cent sale was free.

The Brummetts almost missed the chance for the prize.

To be eligible, the store had to order as much merchandise for this sale as it did last year. The new owners did not think they could match last year's order, but after working hours on the order, they found they were within $100 of being eligible for the contest.

They decided to go ahead and buy enough to be eligible. They almost lost more than $1,000 by trying to save $100.

Mr. and Mrs. S.P. Welch and Mr. Milo Garrison, parents of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Welch, all of Dewitt, Nebr., arrived Wednesday for an extended visit in the Welch home.

Homemaking Notes

by Linda Webb
Home Demonstration Agent

When you buy a potato for boiling, you want it to behave like a boiling potato should--- that is, keep its shape when cooked. And when you buy a potato for baking, you want it to turn out like a baked potato should---mealy and flaky.

But how can you be sure? Not even all potatoes of the same variety are best for boiling or best for baking.

Researchers have found a way to separate the boilers from the bakers which really works.

They dump the potatoes in a brine solution of one cup salt to eleven cups of water. If the potato floats, it has a low solids content and is best for boiling. If it sinks, it's a baker.

One Oregon firm is already using this sink-or-swim test for sorting potatoes for commercial marketing. It may be used commercially in our area before long, but until then, get your own kettle of salted water and toss in the spuds!

If your family likes biscuits (and who doesn't?), here are a few hints I'll pass along to dress up the biscuits. Substitute 7-Up, or tomato juice (or other juices) for the milk in a sweet-milk biscuit recipe. A subtle new taste will give added zest to this favorite quick bread.

Or, cut in 2 tablespoons parsley flakes along with the shortening in a regular biscuit recipe (2 cups flour). This gives extra appeal, especially when biscuits are used to dress up the top of a meat pie or casserole.

As I promised last week, I have a few pointers in sewing with the new stretch fabrics. Stretch is here to stay, and I must admit, I am all for it---it "gives" with the body, and then returns to its original shape.

Stretch is a comfort factor, not a size factor. Stretch garments may fit more closely, but your regular sized garment (ready-made) or pattern should be purchased.

Before buying a stretch fabric, ask yourself, "Is stretch necessary in this garment for comfort or action?" For example, a shift dress, or a jumper with no waistline and no sleeves doesn't require the added comfort of stretch fabric; a blouse or skirt, slacks or suit of stretch can benefit from the added comfort.

There are 3 types of stretch fabric, and stretch may be vertical, horizontal or diagonal. Read the hang tag on the bolt of fabric to be sure you get what you need.

In selecting a pattern for stretch, choose a simple garment with few seams. Buttonholes should be at a minimum. Study areas where interfacing may be needed, since interfacing will stabilize stretch.

In cutting stretch, place the fabric on a flat surface to "relax" 24 hours before cutting so that any tension or stretch created on the bolt may be released. Secure pattern to fabric with fine sharp pins.

Place pattern pieces on fabric so direction of stretch is right for garment. If fabric extends over edge of cutting surface, support it in some way, perhaps with a chair, to prevent stretching. Cut fabric with sharp shears, using long, even strokes.

In sewing, use a thread that has elasticity, such as "Taslan" Nylon, since it "gives" with the fabric; set machine for medium short stitch---approximately 15 stitches per inch or for short narrow zig-zag stitch. A somewhat loosened tension may be desirable. Check for stitch balance on a scrap of fabric.

If a straight-sew machine and mercerized thread are used, hold the fabric taut (in the stretch position) as it is stitched, so that the thread won't break when the fabric is stretched. Press all seams lightly with a minimum of steam to avoid stretching. Garments shouldn't be lined or underlined, since this will inhibit the stretch. If lining is necessary, a tricot lining with some give should be used.

A tailor's hem is most suitable for stretch, ask for printed material available, in the extension office.

THE LAST NOTE: What this country needs is better other drivers.

Time was when men lost their shirts in the stock market; nowadays it's in the supermarket.

Scott Receives Oak Leaf Clusters

Army Chief Warrant Officer Donald R. Scott, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Preston Scott of Spearman, received the first and second Oak Leaf Clusters to the Air Medal March 31 while serving with the U.S. Army Support Command, Viet Nam.

Scott received the award for meritorious achievement while engaged in aerial support of ground forces of the Republic of Viet Nam. An Oak Leaf Cluster is given for each additional award of the medal after the initial presentation. The support command is an Army organization that advises the armed forces of the Republic of Viet Nam on training, the use of equipment and tactical operations.

The 30 year old officer, a helicopter pilot, entered the Army in February, 1955 and was last stationed at Fort Riley, Kans.

Scott graduated from Perryton High School. His wife and two children reside in Bryan.

Juniors Set New Trend In Fashion

Junior fashions are springing into the new season with plenty of news, plenty of variety, plenty of drama.

All the leading youthfully for junior sizes, and, if anything, the current style trends are even more advanced, more daring when it comes to the young-set wardrobes.

Coats for the junior figure primarily take to skinny lines, with fashion detailing that's often in advance of regular-size styling. Hip-riding belts of leather mark low-waisted looks; Norfolk belts thread in and out; softness develops in scalloped edges, clustered ball buttons.

Straight and true and tailored is the message for spring's double-breasted junior coats. Single or double closings are a matter of individual choice, with ample selection in either style on hand.

Summing up junior suits, the basic style direction is shape in front, ease in back for jackets, plus skirts that go into motion. Juniors, once devotees of the short suit jacket, are going in for more and more fingertip and tunic lengths.

Pleats all around, still in the picture, get competition from skirts with rolled or boxy pleats — just one or two.

A-shapes develop in both coats and suit skirts.

Easy shifts and skimmers lead the junior dress array, followed closely by the feminized shirtdress. Whatever the style, there's softness everywhere — ruffles, flounces, lace, fabrics on the ladylike, lovely side.

Sportswear, a special junior favorite, is young and lively, ranging from softened classics to styles with the ye-ye and mod influences.

Color, throughout junior wardrobes, reflects the brightest and boldest shades of spring — intense apricot, green, peach, lemon, celery, pink ice.

Girls Dress Up For Springtime

Little girls' "big girl" look is no longer a carbon copy of what Mother and big sister wear, but rather an adaptation of current fashion concepts, made especially for active, fun-loving little girls. And indeed, styles for a little girl's spring show so much excitement, so much cute and kicky news that Mother and big sister may well be copying them.

Like the alphabet, little girls' fashions begin with "A" and go on from there in a flurry of pleats, gathers, ruffles, tunics, tiers, capes and a myriad other fashion news-makers.

High-rising Empire lines are just the thing for Easter Sunday and other dressy occasions. Abbreviated jackets top princess line dresses or smocked, high-waisted styles, while wide button-on belts give simple coats the high fashion look of the empire line.

"Natural" waistlines are mostly non-existent in little girls' fashions. High, low or no waist at all is the motto, with the high-rise designs very prominent for dress-up, in drapable fabrics and pretty sheers. Lace, appliques, pleats and scallops create a "little lady" look.

Lowered waistline looks are developed in long-jacket suits and sportswear.

Some dresses, too, take hip-line interest, with bloused or long narrow tops stopped by a belt or tie at the hip and continuing with an A-line, pleated, full or straight skirt.

Costume look gains ground, as dresses take important little jackets to emulate suits. Coat and dress ensembles are elegant in slim or flaring shapes, interpreted in such fabrics as the linen-likes, dotted Swiss and gently textured blends.

Top interest for girls centers on the soft blouson. Other contenders are ruffle-sleeved styles and jaunty nautical overblouses.

Suits trend from the soft and pretty, with pleats, crocheted edging, flaring shapes, to the cute and kicky — pants suits, for example, or divided-skirt suits.

Coats for girls concentrate mostly on shape and simplicity. Some have high-rising fronts, marked with tabs or set-in bands. Others, in a more classic vein, have double-breasted closings, notched lapels, raglan sleeves.

"English bobby" capes inspire fresh-looking little coats, while in still other styles cape backs combine with flat fronts.

Kickiest news comes to the fore in casual and sports wear — for example, low-flounced shifts, culotte dresses edged in ruffles, bouncy top-and-pants duos. Fabrics are fun, too — lots of stretch, madras, ribbed seersucker, boucle cotton knit, linen-like looks, silk-wool blends for dress.

Loyd Carroll left Thursday and is spending the weekend at Seminole visiting his brothers, Oscar and Bryce and families and his mother Mrs. Josie Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Miller were last Sunday and overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mullins of Guymon.
