

This week the man on the street asked the following question: "Do you believe the State of Texas should have an open container law?" Six people were interviewed and their answers are as follows:

'Should Texas have an Open Container Law?'

Everett Vanderburg: Yes, we should not be able to drink in the car.

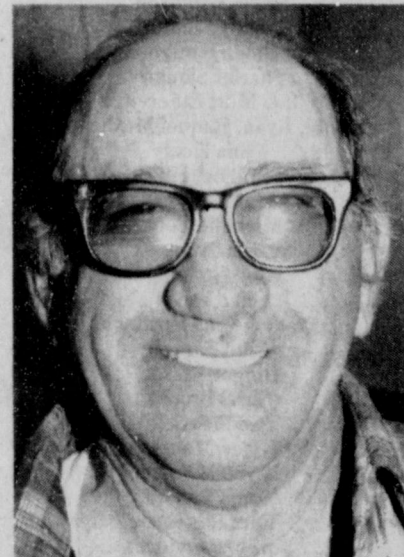

MRS. FRANK MASSAD: Yes, I don't believe it should be open in the car. If open they will be more apt to drink. It would help control many wrecks that happen because of this.

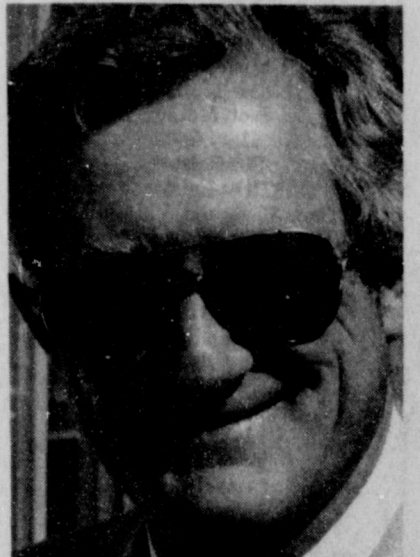

FANIE LAUGHLIN: Yes, Open containers encourage more drinking while driving.

ROSA BLAN: Yes, It would help control drinking while driving.

BILL HOPPER: Yes, Open containers should be barred from cars.

TERRY CURTIS: Probably, there is no excuse for drinking and driving.

"Lyric Theatre"

Alton Ellsworth

For at least 57 years, the Lyric Theater has been part of the memories of anyone living in Spearman. The first theater was known as the "Finley" and was built by T.D. Cox and Tom Finley. On Saturday night, April 20, 1920, the first movie was shown captioned "The Dawn of Tomorrow". The Finley burned and the "Rex" theater was built next to the Hale Drug, which was owned by S.B. & Grace Hale. In 1932, the Hale family bought the theater and it became the "Lyric." When S.B. passed away in 1939, Wright Hale, who was in law school at the University of Texas, came home to help his mother run the theater while S.B., Jr. (Butch) operated the Drug Store and Newspaper.

Alton came to Spearman with his parents, Ethel and the late W.A. Ellsworth, brother Wayne and sister Betty Low when Alton was 5 years old. Alton began his "movie days" when he was about 13 years old, sweeping, cleaning etc. He and his sister worked at the Hale Drug store during his high school years. The theater didn't have a concession stand, so popcorn and drinks were sold at the drug store fountain. The "Spearman Press" newspaper was built on behind the drug store and they printed news and theater advertising.

Alton finished high school in Spearman and joined the U.S. Air Corps late in World War II, serving in the United States, mostly in Nebraska. After the war, he entered business with his father. He married Peggy Gabel on January 12, 1947, in Amarillo. Peggy was born in Amarillo and finished high school there. After spending a couple of years working in a department store in Amarillo, he and Peggy moved back to Spearman.

Peggy has been an integral part of the business since they purchased the Gulf Wholesale & Retail 35 years ago. In March, 1986, they sold this business to Wirt & Linda Davis. During this time, Alton also worked part time at the theater as bookkeeper and sometimes operating the projectors. The present theater was built in 1948, by Wright Hale and his mother Grace. The Ellsworths purchased the Lyric theater and the "Holiday Drive-In" in 1976. The drive-in was sold last year to Jim Ivey.

Alton still operates the theater and Peggy has been trying to get caught up on her housekeeping, especially since they moved into the new home they built a few months ago. However, she still gives him a hand with the bookkeeping.

They have 2 children, Gary of Spearman, has a daughter in Houston and daughter Gayle is married to Archie Smith and they have 2 daughters, Kacey & Kallie. Gayle is also a bookkeeper for the theater.

Alton has been active in civic affairs since starting in business. He is currently on the board of Directors of Hansford County Hospital, and a past member of the City Council. He has been a member of the Chamber of Commerce periodically for 35 years; is a member of the Lions Club, Masons, I.O.O.F. Shrine Club and the Baptist Church.

Alton makes every effort to get the best movies available, and the theater has new equipment, including stereo sound and large screen. To add to the enjoyment of viewing the movie, there is popcorn, soft drinks and candy.

Employees Sara Shufeldt, Pat Ochoa and Patricia Puentes add to the service and are attentive to the needs of the public as well as being efficient in their duties.

After living in Spearman thru his childhood, boyhood, youth, raising his own family here, and now seeing two of his grandchildren grow up in Spearman-Alton sums up the total by saying "The greatest award and honor is being blessed to live and worship in a great town, state and country".

1987 Texas Golden Spread High

The 17th Annual Texas golden Spread High School girls' All-Star games will be held April 3-4, 1987 at the West Texas State University Fieldhouse in Canyon, Texas. Anne Potts of Gruver, will play for the East.

The schedule is as follows: Friday, April 3 - 6:30 p.m. - North vs. South 8:30 p.m. - East vs. West Saturday, April 4 - 6:30p.m. - Consolation Game

8:30 p.m. - Championship game

The girls selected to play in the games are high school seniors who are recognized for their outstanding performance during their high school careers. The games also provide an opportunity for college coaches and others to watch these girls demonstrate their talent against their peers. Many of the girls playing in the games have received college basketball scholarship as a direct result of playing in the games.

For fourteen years the All-Star Games were held in conjunction with the National Women's Invitational Tournament (NWTI), but in 1985 the NCAA ruled that high school and college basketball events could not be combined. That ruling spurred creation of the Texas Golden Spread High School All-Star Games Trust, which is a non-profit organization of Volunteers who desire to promote women's basketball in the Golden Spread area.

Funds donated to the games are used to pay expenses to conduct the games. All proceeds of the games are donated by the Trust to the women's basketball programs of area college and universities.

Letters have been sent to high school counselors in the five-state area inviting all senior students to attend.

Following the mornings activities, the Liberal Chamber of Commerce will host a noon luncheon at LAVTS student lounge for students and personnel visiting the two facilities.

Among The Neighbors

The snow on Tuesday, lovely as it was, caused some unforeseen difficulties in various activities. The mobile unit of the mammography imaging was surrounded by slush and snow and was inconvenient for some to enter. But thanks to the Hansford hospital personnel and the volunteers, access went smoothly. Accolades are due the gracious Kaye McFarlin and Bernard Pacheco for their kind assistance to those having difficulty.

the plane, and there were light rain showers, so they were surprised to find ten inches of snow when they reached home.

Scheduling their return in time to prepare housing for the homecoming of the purple martins, the Elmon Jacobs came in Thursday. They have wintered in Port Arkansas and report a pleasant season, but are glad to be home.

Pat Dear reached home Tuesday evening after braving the snow-covered highways and poor visibility. She had been to spring market and had flown in to Amarillo from Dallas. She was accompanied by an old friend, Mrs. Gene (Beverly) Sparks of Amarillo.

Hershal and Mary Ooley attended the junior basketball tournament in Amarillo on Friday and Saturday. Their granddaughter, Audrey Bulls, plays on the team and has been selected to play with the "Little Dribblers" for the spring season. Since it was spring break, Audrey and sister, Beth came to Spearman with the Ooleys. They also visited their other grand parents, the Roy Bulls, while they were here.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Collard, Jr. attended a Masonic Grand Lodge of New Mexico meeting in Albuquerque over the week-end. They arrived back in Amarillo Tuesday and rather than risk the snow covered highways, they spent the night in Amarillo.

Selena and Meredith Benton, also the Ooley's grandchildren, also visited them during the spring break. They are from Ft. Worth. On Monday night, Mary hosted all four grandchildren with a pizza party at the Pizza Hut. Other guests were their cousins and cousins of their cousins. Ruby McCullough and her grandchildren, Jake and Melinda McCullough and Wesley and Kevin Babbs, all of Gruver, also of Gruver Connie Walker with Courtney and Cameron. From Spearman, Joe and Edith Cage, Laurie Mackie and 3 children, Margi Mitchell and two children, Sheril Mendez and two children, and Grace Davis.

The many friends of the vivacious Vi Whitson are welcoming her home after six months absence. She spent some time in El Paso, Santa Fe, Las Vegas, Nevada, but the greater part of the time she was in Llano, Texas in the home of her son, Craig Davidson. She also was in Albuquerque a great deal in the home of her daughter and family, Ann Nagel. The Nagels brought her home on Saturday.

They were all agreed on one point-it was a fun occasion, even tho it might take a blueprint to identify who is cousin to whom.

Some unexpected fun added to the spring break for Selena and Meredith Benton of Ft. Worth. They are here visiting in the home of their father, the Steve Bentons, and were thrilled to make snowmen and snow balls.

'Should Texas have an Open Container Law?'

This week the man on the street asked the following question to the Citizens of Gruver.

Should the State of Texas have an open container law? Six people were interviewed and their answers were as follows:

DANNY FILE

Yes, It would help eliminate traffic accidents. It would also be an additional tool to control D.W.I.

LISA CAZARES

No, I don't believe it is the government's business who drinks, or where they drink.

KENNY RED

Yes, It would help control accidents. It would also help eliminate some petty criminal mischief as they would not be drinking in their vehicle.

REX CASDORFF

I really don't know. I think it borders on another infringement of our personal individual rights.

CHARLIE CASDORFF

I don't think so. I believe most people are mature enough to know when and where to drink and when they have had enough.

MITCH HOOVER

Yes, I believe they definitely should have one.

Women and Alcohol-Special Problems

While the public is becoming more aware of the disastrous consequences of alcohol abuse, the special dangers it poses to women often are underestimated.

Following is a summary of recent research on women and alcohol:

The physical effects

It's generally known that if a man and woman were measured against on another beer for beer, he undoubtedly would "drink her under the table".

That's because her liver can't break down and metabolize the alcohol as fast since she's probably smaller than her male opponent. And because she has more body fat--and consequently less water per unit volume--than a man, alcohol doesn't diffuse as quickly into the fat cells and remains in the bloodstream longer.

But research indicates that a woman who tries to hold her own when drinking with a man may suffer more consequences than a severe hangover.

Studies have found that women show signs of cirrhosis of the liver by consuming only one-half to one-third as much alcohol as men.

Drinking during pregnancy

Research for many years has indicated that drinking during pregnancy is unsafe to the unborn child.

Heavy alcohol consumption in particular is known to cause Fetal Alcohol Syndrome resulting in newborns with smaller heads, facial irregularities, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects, mental retardation and severe behavioral problems.

But, mounting evidence indicates that even light to moderate alcohol consumption during pregnancy can be hazardous to the fetus.

Research conducted by Emory University on 155 full-time, three-day-old infants found symptoms of Neonatal Withdrawal Syndrome among the 52 newborns whose mothers consumed only two drinks each week during their pregnancies. Those side effects included tension, restlessness, stomach upset and inability to be comforted.

Another study at the University of Washington which measured the weight, length and head size of 450 babies, found the smallest measurements among infants born to women who reported having one to two drinks per day during their pregnancies.

Women and addiction

Alcoholics Anonymous reported in 1970 that approximately one in six members was female. Within 10 years, that figure swelled to one in three.

At first glance those statistics seem to show that more women are becoming alcoholic. (Estimates indicate that as many as one-half of the nation's 14 million alcoholics are women.)

But treatment experts speculate that AA's figures probably are more reflective of two major trends. First, it's becoming more acceptable for women to come out of the closet with their drinking, and second, since half of all women work, they have more difficulty concealing their problem than 15 years ago when many women were housewives.

Research also indicates that, in comparison to male alcoholics, women who drink too much:

--Experience initial problems with alcohol an average of eight years later-age 34 for women versus 26 for men.

--Are at greater risk of developing addictions to other substance in addition to alcohol. Sixty percent of all mood-altering drugs, 71 percent of anti-depressants and 80 percent of amphetamines are prescribed to women.

--More likely to lose family support during the course of their addiction. While women generally stick by alcoholic husbands, only one in 10 husbands stays with an addicted wife.

--At risk of developing more serious physical problems because they usually seek treatment later.

--Are more likely to become depressed and suicidal.

Why some drink

Research indicates that for 20 percent of women alcoholics, problem drinking evolved during a middle-age crisis such as marital instability, other domestic troubles, or menopause.

Studies also find that, compared to male alcoholics, women with severe drinking problems suffer more from low self-esteem, a distorted self-image and feelings of self-contempt.

Women and treatment

While estimates indicate that half of the nation's alcoholics are women, only about one-fourth of patients treated by the CareUnit Network the nation's largest private provider of drug and alcohol abuse treatment, are female.

Research also reveals that women wait longer to seek help and, consequently, are sicker by the time they enter treatment.

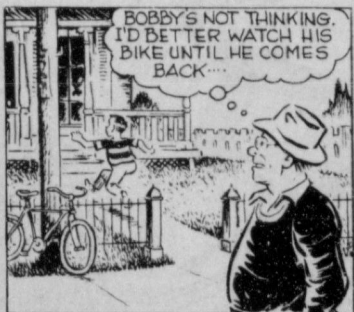

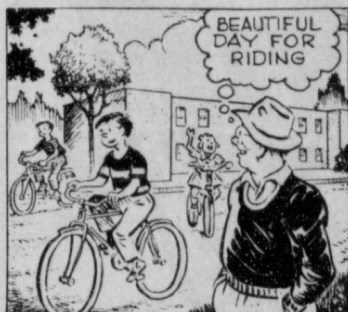

Drug and alcohol abuse experts say the unbalanced representation of women in treatment is due to the fact that while 50 percent of women work, the other half still remain home where it's easier to conceal a drinking problem.

Another major factor is the tremendous stigma attached to the women alcoholic which prevents her--and her family--from admitting she has a problem.

But as indicated by the rising number of female AA members, more women are beginning to seek help for alcoholism. That trend is likely to continue as the public is more educated about the special threats alcohol poses to women.
