Last year Rodger Lewis landed a 5-pound, 6-ounce walleye to win the $1,000 first prize. He beat out Moulex Kims by only nine ounces. Aubry Phelps also gave Lewis a run for the money with his catch of four pounds, 9-ounces.

Other divisions pay $100 each for largest black bass, largest sand bass, largest small mouth bass. Also paying $100 are divisions for largest crappie, largest catfish, and largest carp. Another division also pays $200 for first place in total poundage of bass, with second worth $100 and third $50.

NOLO CONTENDRE

Doc Blakely's

Pokin'
Fun

I am a strong law and order man. I'm accustomed to following orders. Kids, neighbor kids, even the family dog's whine can motivate me to get up out of a comfortable chair to open the door.

Put up a sign that says, "No littering" and I won't throw anything even in a trash can unless it's gift wrapped.

Once I saw an official-looking sign that read, "Stay Off The Grass." I vowed then and there never to smoke.

So why does a speeding ticket bother me? Because now I've got a criminal record unless I can prove I wasn't guilty. The ticket given by a highway patrolman is very cleverly worded. You may plead guilty, not guilty, or Nolo Contendere. Nolo Contendere is Latin for "Forgive me Father for I have sort of sinned."

It's like a roadside confession where the priest wears a gun.

The patrolman approached me with a pad and pencil. I figured he recognized me as a professional speaker and planned to take notes.

He took several before he even gave me a chance to speak. He wrote down my license plate number. In the rearview mirror, I saw his lips move with both numbers.

Then he yelled at me. Something very unprofessional. As I recall, it was "Lower your window."

I pushed the wrong button and raised the radio antennae.

When I finally regained my composure and got the window down, he said, "Driving a little fast weren't you, sir?" Why can't they say something original like, "Gotcha!"

I'm convinced these guys hear so many excuses that they just block out whatever you say in response. "Yes, sir. I'm studying to be a 747 pilot and I was doing 640 miles per hour."

The next question is always the same. "Do you have some kind of an emergency?"

"Yes, sir. Because I was complying with the seat belt laws of the state, I was rushing to get medical attention for gangrene of the lap."

Looking at my driver's license, he asked, "Is this your correct address?" I thought of saying, "No, sir. I currently reside in the Governor's mansion," but didn't want to totally destroy my reputation.

"What is your occupation?" he asked.

"Kamakasi, sir," I replied.

"How would you like to try it on a bicycle?"

"Don't get tense, officer. As we Japanese say, "Nolo Contendere."

Before driving away, I noticed that the ticket had printed in large red letters "NO PERSONAL CHECKS ACCEPTED." They have enough information to track me to Siberia and still they don't trust me. But I obeyed the letter of the law, set the cruise control at 55, and was passed on the right by a guy mowing the right-of-way.

Both of us were flashing our lights at oncoming cars.

ALL Beef Producers: May 10th Determines Your Future

In this year of elections, the last thing you need is someone else talking to you about politics or your responsibility to other beef producers. It's a busy time of the year, and you've got your mind on your operation, not on going to town.

But, on Tuesday, May 10th, if you don't stop for a few minutes, go to your County Extension Office and vote, you'll miss the referendum that decides the fate of the Beef Checkoff Program.

Just a couple of years ago, our industry was being beaten up, and we were backing up . . . taking it. But we got our backs up and did something.

We drew a line in the dust. We began to fight back. And you know what . . . it's working. Many people are eating beef more often, and the newspaper headlines read that beef is coming back.

Now, we're not telling you how to vote. That's your business. But, on Tuesday, May 10th, the National Beef Checkoff Program is going to continue, or it's going to stop dead in its tracks.

It's totally up to you. So take a trip to your County Extension Office and vote.

You'll be glad you did.

Frito Lay shows interest in contracting acreage

Plano, Tex. -- Representatives of Frito-Lay, Inc., the nation's leading snack food company, will meet with area farmers, extension agents and business people on May 17, 18 and 19 to demonstrate their interest in contracting additional acreage for canola and to promote it as an alternative crop for High Plains agriculture. The meetings will take place at three Panhandle farms where contracted canola is currently being grown. Since this initial crop proved very successful, the company is interested in expanding its grower base and acreage for the 1988/89 growing season.

Attendees can view and inspect canola grown under different planting, irrigation and fertilization conditions at each site. Frito-Lay agronomists will explain the basics of their contract program and add farmers to a waiting list for the Fall. Current growers and seed companies also will be on hand.

In essence, Frito-Lay is looking to contract direct with farmers who would plant certified canola seed and then sell the resulting crop direct to Frito-Lay at a fixed market cost.

Frito-Lay will hold "open house" meetings for farmers, extension agents and business people at three fields in the Texas Panhandle to demonstrate their interest in contracting additional canola and to promote it as an alternative crop for High Plains agriculture. Attendees will be able to view and inspect canola growing and learn details of Frito-Lay's contract program. Seed resulting from the canola will be purchased by the company and converted to oil for use in making snack foods.

Each of the three field sites demonstrates canola grown under different conditions. The Baumgardner Farms site is dry-land; the Wieck Farms employs pivot irrigation and the Meyer Farms uses flood irrigation. Planting and fertilization also varied between the three farms.

Tuesday, May 17, 9:30 am, Baumgardner Farms, Wellington, Tx. (3 miles east of Wellington on FM 338), Wednesday, May 18, 9:30 am, Willie Wieck Farms, Etter, Tx., (continue North of the Swift plant one mile on US 287. Follow Frito-Lay signs to farm site), Thursday, May 19, 9:30 am, Donald Meyer Farms, Hereford, Tx. (12 miles North of Hereford on US 385)

According to Lane Burtz, director, oil purchasing for the company, Frito-Lay has contracted with farmers for over 25 years. "We currently contract with about 1,000 growers across the country for the corn and potatoes used in our snack foods," Burtz says. "Since we're looking for commodities that meet our specifications and high quality standards, we've found it easier to deal direct with our growers and they in turn have grown to appreciate the expertise our agronomists and researchers have provided in return."

Frito-Lay contracted with 17 farmers in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico last fall. Contracts were spread among growers in an area bounded roughly by Olton, Clovis, Sunray and Wellington to test the crop's viability under a variety of conditions. Growers were given guidance as to cultural practices to follow, however each farmer adapted his own equipment and land to the crop. The results will provide Frito-Lay agronomists with sufficient data to recommend the most effective production methods for use this Fall.

Canola is planted in early September with harvest roughly two weeks before winter wheat, according to Burtz. The crop requires approximately the same direct costs and equipment as wheat, tolerates dry conditions, and demonstrated its winter hardiness during this past season.

Yields will vary according to farming practices and moisture received. Expected yields may approach 1,400 to 1,800 pounds per acre for dryland and 3,000 pounds per acre for irrigated land.

Frito-Lay will offer flat price contracts in July and August before the crop is planted. The exact price has not been set as the company wants to review this year's harvest results first. Establishing a price before planting is attractive to farmers, according to Burtz. "Flat pricing appeals to a grower who is a good planner and knows his costs," says Burtz. "He can pencil out an expected profit, obtain crop financing, and then go about concentrating on what he does best, growing his crop, and not be concerned about volatile fluctuations in commodity prices nor where to sell the crop when harvest comes."

Canola is a cousin of rapeseed, an oilseed grown widely in the cool climates of Europe, China and India. Canada, also a large producer, embarked on a breeding program in the 1960s to improve the nutritional aspects of the oil. The result was a seed so dramatically different that Canadians coined the new seed "Canola" to avoid confusion with rapeseed.

Canola oil contains only 6% saturated fatty acids, less than half that found in corn oil. The oil is also 94% unsaturated, 62% of which is made up of monounsaturated fatty acids. Recent medical research indicates monounsaturates have a favorable impact on blood cholesterol levels in individuals who have reduced their intake of saturated fatty acids.

Troy Morris of Gruver has been recognized nationally by the American Angus Association for having one registered Angus cow included in the American Angus Association's 1988 Pathfinder Report.

Only 832 of the more than 25,000 members of the American Angus Association are represented in this year's report, according to Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

by Barbara Sherrod, staff writer and Buddy Shores, associate editor

A former editor of The Prairie who is currently a reporter for the Amarillo Globe-News has been linked to the underground newspaper The Rest of The Prairie (TROTP).

Jason Akst, representing TROTP, approached area resident Marge Woodell for the use of her post office box (numbered 19367). Woodell said that she delivered mail to Akst addressed to TROTP.

Woodell told Del Spier, a private investigator for the Amarillo law firm of Whittenburg and Whittenburg and Schachter, during a March 16 interview that "sometime in fall 1987, at a party in Canyon, Jason approached her and asked her if he could use her post office box to receive mail for the underground newspaper, The Rest of The Prairie."

Following the filing of a libel suit by University President Dr. Ed Roach on Feb. 18 against TROTP, Woodell to appear as holder of the post office box. Woodell never appeared to tell of her involvement with TROTP.

Woodell said she left Texas in November of 1987 and is residing in California. Prior to leaving, she said she turned the key to the post office box over to Akst.

Akst was contacted by The Prairie but refused to comment on the matter.

When contacted by Spier, Akst said that Woodell volunteered the box. Akst also said that he "could not recall" having possession of the post office box key.

"As far as the case goes, our company (Globe-News) lawyer has advised us not to discuss it," Akst told the investigator.

Maintaining that Akst was the only one she knew who had any involvement with TROTP, Woodell said she was sure that there were others.

"We have never maintained that there weren't other contributors to TROTP, and I will not under any circumstances reveal the identities of people who contributed," Gary Byrd, co-editor of TROTP, said.

According to Byrd, TROTP is still using Woodell's post office box.

Woodell said that she and Akst were good friends.

Woodell and other sources said that Akst participated in activities which included the displaying of banners and the making and the selling of buttons with a picture of a roach with a red line across it.

There is no evidence to suggest Akst was acting on behalf of the Globe-News.

"This is the first I have heard about this and I have no comment," Garret Von Netzer assistant general manager and executive editor of the Globe-News said.

Paper's policies, actions examined

There is no question that newspaper publishing is a business, but it is also a profession with standards. It is a public service, a public duty to be accurate and objective.

For the citizens of the Panhandle area, this trust is possibly being compromised by their newspaper company -- The Amarillo Globe-News.

The Prairie's investigation into a former editor's involvement in the underground paper, The Rest of The Prairie, while employed with the Globe-News, led to the discovery of a "philosophy" that seems to permeate the Globe-News.

The "philosophy" that seems to have developed is one of biased reporting regarding WT evident by the words and actions of some employees of the Globe-News.

One example involves Jason Akst. Akst is a graduate of WT and began reporting for the Globe-News in the summer of 1987. While attending WT, Akst allegedly helped organize protest rallies against Roach, made and sold "Roach buster" buttons and has now been linked to involvement with The Rest of The Prairie.

Despite the fact that Garret Von Netzer, assistant general manager and executive editor of the Globe-News, was informed of these activities, Akst continues to cover the education beat which includes WT.

And let us not forget the Kari Flugel and David Bloom story entitled "Students Sound Off on WTSU President," in which Flugel and Bloom became involved in the meeting and actually conducted it but failed to report that in their story.

According to The Canyon News, Bloom took the podium and began to take control of the meeting. However, it took a letter to the editor for the Globe-News to acknowledge "the errors of judgment and the accompanying perception of ethical compromise" by their reporters and assign them to different beats.

Another example is the Globe-News' inconsistency in adhering to its own letters-to-the-editor policy. According to Phil Fretz, editorial editor, one criteria is that letters must be original or they will not be considered for publication. However, several letters have been run by the Globe-News after appearing in The Prairie and The Canyon News. All critical of the University.

Another incident involving then Globe-News general manager Jerry Huff was related to The Prairie in an interview with John McKissack, news director of KVII-TV (Channel 7).

On March 1, 1986, during a media luncheon at the Amarillo Club, Huff approached McKissack to discuss problems at WT. According to McKissack, after asking several questions, Huff said, "The problem is Pickens. You know Roach is Pickens' hand-picked boy; he's Boone's boy. Pickens is way off base with Ed Roach.

"Pickens is so well insulated we can't get him, but Roach is Boone's hand-picked boy. We can get Pickens by getting Roach. We're going to get Roach."

McKissack told Huff he did not know Roach and therefore could not comment on the situation at WT.

In retrospect, McKissack told The Prairie, "If they want to run Boone and Mesa out of town, then that is not part of their business. We're not in the business to run people out of town. We look at our role in the media as being a mirror. We need to reflect the activities of the community without affecting and changing the course of the activities. What do you do when your reporter becomes a part of the story? Does he still report it or do you pull him out and assign someone else?"

That's a question Von Netzer has apparently chosen to ignore in regard to Akst. Though Akst has proven himself to be a very capable reporter, the conflict of interest issue must not be overlooked.

Von Netzer seems to whitewash many questions about his paper by touting all the recent changes he has made, including the addition of a reader representative to handle complaints about the papers. Though Von Netzer is hard to pin down, others have hit the issue right on the head.

In a letter by Gib Lewis, Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, Lewis writes, "To me a newspaper has three obligations: the first, to report the news; the second, to report that news accurately; and third, to help build the community in which the paper is circulated. From my view this has not been the case in recent years with the Amarillo Globe-News."

No one expects the Globe-News to deliver "happy news." What we do expect is that the Globe-News deliver fair and factual reporting and to present both sides of an issue.

The readers of newspapers must learn to see through the conventions and excuses behind which their newspapers operate. Myths about journalism abound and unless the readers see through them, they will be manipulated by them.

Beef checkoff approaches

Tuesday is the day to vote for the Beef Checkoff promotion across the nation. Registration and voting will take place at the County Extension Office in Spearman.

Like a fleet Olympic runner, the beef checkoff came out of the blocks full steam on Oct. 1, 1986. That was the date the nation's producers began contributing $1 per head for research, promotion and education about beef.

Now the beef checkoff is entering the stretch run of its 22-month trial period as cattlemen ready for the May 10 vote on whether to approve it permanently.

However, unlike that Olympian whose energy is spent as the finish line comes in sight, the beef checkoff's momentum becomes stronger as the referendum date comes closer. Ongoing programs on national, state and local levels continue to encourage increased beef consumption. All these programs are coming together to improve the profit potential of cattle production.

"Studies reveal that the number of Americans who believe beef fits into their lifestyle increased from 59 percent in January to 64 percent in June," said Linda Latta of Spearman, Texas, chairman of the Hansford County Steering Committee.

"Those who believe beef is an important part of a well-balanced diet increased from 51 percent to 56 percent. These increases show that every dollar checked off by cattlemen in this program is an investment that pays dividends."

In the first year of the program, checkoff dollars collected nationwide totaled about $73 million. About $5 million of this amount came from beef and cattle importers. In Texas, checkoff dollars totaled $12.6 million.

"The checkoff is structured so that all producers invest an equal amount for each animal sold in the program," said Latta. "Importers and all producers participate. The law sets a 5 percent cap on use of checkoff funds for administration so dollars go to their intended purposes of promotion, research and information. And the state council decides how to invest 50 cents of each dollar. This allows our Texas Beef Industry Council to respond to those needs within our state. The remaining 50 cents goes to the Beef Board for national programs."

Major programs on both national and state levels resulting from checkoff dollars include:

--Announcement of a working relationship to promote "heart-healthy" diets between the American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate and the Texas Beef Industry Council.

--Cooperating with health professionals to produce brochures on the nutrition of red meat (distributed to 4.5 million supermarket shoppers), cholesterol and heart disease, and the truth about common misconceptions of beef.

--Getting the word out to the media that beef is back. More than 4,700 positive articles reaching approximately 371 million consumers have recently run in major prestigious publications.

--Providing secondary and elementary school teachers with lesson plans, films, software and multi-media packages for the classroom. Through these tools, educators can instruct millions of students on beef's proper role in the diet.

--Cooperating with Paul Harvey, America's best known radio personality, to promote beef two times per week. His spots run from December 1987 to June 1988.

--Using point of purchase (POP) materials effectively. A recent study of 18,000 supermarkets showed industry POP materials increased fresh beef sales from 3 to 5 percent in a four-week period. In other words, every checkoff dollar invested for POP returned $62 in projected additional beef sales.

--Distributing beef promotion placemats that provide nutrition information. More than 500,000 have been used by Texas restaurants and 200,000 by Texas hospitals.

Airing more than 500 television spots and 1,920 radio spots about beef. For instance, during the Winter Olympics coverage on ABC, beef checkoff dollars sponsored 19 commercials, one Olympic Diary, and one Olympic Moment. Overall, the beef ads have reached 94 million adults between the ages of 25 to 54.

Anyone who has owned or acquired one head of cattle between Oct. 1, 1986, and March 31, 1988, is eligible to vote May 10. One vote per business entity is allowed. For purposes of the referendum, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has defined a business entity as any individual or group of individuals who has a common ownership in cattle, such as a partnership, corporation or family.

Veterans Administration sets up monthly payments

The Veterans Administration has eliminated a "Catch-22" caused by quarterly or semiannual issuance of VA pension checks, Dr. Stephen L. Lemons, Director, Waco VA Regional Office, said today. The solution is to issue checks monthly if a VA pension recipient requests it.

"This doesn't sound like a major problem or a major solution, but for a retired veteran of surviving spouse living on Supplemental Social Security, it can be very important."

Lemons gave the example of a veteran's widow who received $323 per month from Supplemental Social Security and $10 per month from her husband's VA pension. She was told her monthly income could not exceed $360, or her Social Security Insurance and Medicaid benefits would stop.

Because her VA pension was only $10 per month, VA regulations required her pension check to be issued twice a year, in the amount of $60 each time. So twice a year, her monthly income exceeded limits imposed by Social Security, making her ineligible for Medicare. In addition to losing food stamps and Medicaid benefits for a month, she had to reapply the next month to re-establish her eligibility for them, he said.

"The VA regulations were designed to save taxpayers' money by issuing VA pension checks less frequently," Lemons said. "But in those few cases, other federal benefits were denied because the timing of VA payments increased the recipients' monthly incomes, during those months, beyond the standards set by other federal agencies.

VA pension is a benefit paid to veterans because of age or non-service-connected disabilities, Lemons said. Generally, low-income retired veterans age 65 or older are eligible, if they spent 90 days or longer in military service during wartime. The amount of pension is based on income, though changes in marital status or dependency status affect the amount payable. Non-service-connected pension is also payable to surviving dependents upon death of the veteran if they meet the income limitations established by law.

BEEF PROMOTION!

LET'S KEEP IT GOING!

VOTE YES
May 10
at your county extension office

Beef is coming back because beef producers are fighting back!

Today, more consumers are eating more beef and cattle prices and profits are up.

Let's vote to continue The National Beef Promotion Program. It's working! May 10, vote "YES"!

FACT! The program is controlled by producers. Cattlepeople run it. It's not a government program.

FACT! Each state decides how to spend 50 cents of every dollar.

FACT! Beef importers and all producers pay their share—$1 per head. This money is invested in consumer education, promotion, advertising and research.

FACT! Only 5% is allowed for administrative costs. 95% of every dollar is spent on the program itself.
