

Juvenile Case Starts With 'Hooky'

A tearful 14-year-old youth sat in the austere district court room here Thursday morning and listened while a judge who believes in "being sympathetic but firm," pointed out the evils of wrongdoing.

The boy had sold beer to officers. At the table sat his mother and father. They, too, were shaken by the courtroom story unfolding as the lad, a bright child — one of six — sobbed out a confession.

It all had come about when the officers, suspecting the father of bootlegging, in dry Bailey county, had gone to the home to do a bit of checking. The 14-year-old youth greeted them and asked if he could help. They told him they were looking for some beer. He's not here," the boy said, "but I can get the beer for you."

He did and that was his undoing. But if the boy got a stern lecture, you should have heard the one Judge Glen Williams gave the father!

The boy was dismissed, but the father was fined for contributing to the delinquency of a minor — a stiff, $350-plus-costs fine. And the promise to go out of the bootlegging business — pronto and permanently.

The lad who sat in the courtroom Thursday was an exception in one way. He is doing well in school. That's unusual.

"Usually," says Judge Williams, "the juveniles who are brought into my court are doing poorly in school. In fact, it usually starts with boys — and girls, — playing hooky. Usually they start failing and then they begin playing hooky and then go on to theft and break-ins. That's practically the standard procedure. Once in a while, however, we get a lad who is doing all right in school and still gets into trouble, such as the boy who appeared in my court Thursday."

Judge Williams says there is no standard solution procedure. "Every case is different, and every boy or girl has to be dealt with individually. We try to go into every case thoroughly. Sometimes — many times, in fact — it's not the fault of the boys and girls; it's their parents. And sometimes it's the company the youths keep.

"All these things go into consideration in each case. First we send for the parents. We study the home life of the youth and figure out just how much the parents are to blame.

"Then we check with the schools to see what kind of pupil the youth is making. Most of the time he's failing or has recently dropped out of school.

"Then we look even further into the background of the boy or girl. We find out who he's 'running around with' and often that is the key to the whole problem. Frequently he's a young boy — say somewhere between 10 and 14 — but his companions are older boys who have already reached the 'tough' stage. The younger boy idolizes such hoodlums and tries to be like them. And that gets him into trouble.

"As I said, there is no definite pattern that the juvenile offender follows, but the causes frequently fit into the pattern I have just described."

Frequently, the judge says, a stern warning and a good lecture will suffice. Joe Juvenile goes out into the world convinced that crime doesn't pay. Even big boys frequently cry in Judge's office.

"I always point out to these young offenders," says the judge, "that two courses are open to them — they can enjoy the freedoms that are ours as Americans — can go to school, learn a trade or a profession and make something good out of themselves.

JUDGE AND JUVENILE - Many of the juveniles who come before County Judge Glen Williams spill their stories, sometimes tearfully, before the judge in his private office. Frequently a stern lecture turns Joe Juvenile on the right road again and ends what otherwise might be a lifetime of crime. Here's Judge Williams lecturing a 14-year-old, the average age of youths who come before him.

Commission Draws Jury Lists For 1965

Next Tuesday is ground day, and from all advance predictions, the little 'fever' will see its shadow when it emerges for his annual look-around. And that will mean six more weeks of winter, but folks around here can't complain; there's been precious little winter so far.

Bailey county jury commission for district court met Thursday and drew up jury lists for 1965 terms of criminal and civil court.

Altogether, the commissioners drew 60 names for each of four petit jury panels, and 16 for possible grand jury service. Hazel Gilbreath, district court clerk said Friday.

The names of each list are placed in sealed envelopes and are opened only on instructions of District Judge Pat Boone. Although 15 names are listed on the grand jury list, only 12 are used at any given time, it was explained. Petit juries are composed of 12 men, although all 60 on a list are called at a time.

The celebration will be held next September in the new high school cafeteria, due to be completed in August. Six hundred or more are expected for the occasion. Frank Ellis will be president of the club after July 1.

Schools' $.9 Million Building Program Running On Schedule; Brick-Laying Starts At DeShazo

Muleshoe's $.9 million school building program is running ahead of schedule, thanks to an unusually good winter weather which has permitted concrete work to be done without delays, school officials and contractors said Saturday.

The massive building program, a five-unit project, will provide 79,000 square feet of additional floor space to the school's system, including one completely new building and expansion to two others.

Indication of the speed with which the entire program is progressing is shown in the DeShazo project; bricklayers moved in Friday and began the wall-building program.

In fact, foundation work is virtually complete for all structures, Superintendent Neal Dillman said, additions to the high school being the only exception.

However, even at the senior high, old structures have been cleared away and ground has been leveled for the two additions to that plant.

The vocational agriculture building will be located at the extreme south end of the high school campus partially on land recently donated to the school by the city. That project also is making progress.

Junior high school, which is to have additions to both ends of the building, preliminary to converting that school into a full three-year program, has had footings started for both the classroom addition and the junior high gymnasium.

Area-wide, one of the biggest projects is the senior-junior high cafeteria which, when completed, will accommodate 600 persons. The cafeteria is to be built on the north side of the school.

COFFEE ROOM DELUXE - This is another courthouse scene, the "coffee room" which also serves as the boiler room which also serves as the janitors' supply room which also serves as a well, you name it and it serves that purpose also. Inset shows the "kitchen sink," a cold water job which is reached by straddling a couple of pipes. One thing can be said for coffee room - it's always good and warm, around 100 degrees most of the time.

Maple's Fire Truck Is Ready For Action

Bailey County Fire Department Unit 41 is ready to roll! The shiny new unit is parked in a heated building in Maple, its 400-gallon tank filled to the brim. It was delivered Thursday night, and Earl Ladd, chief, and Owen Jones, marshal, were on hand for the formal session. Barney Lock is the team captain; Jake Burnett the lieutenant team captain and Dub Black is secretary-treasurer.

The unit is composed of 12 men; two more are to be added to the volunteer list to bring Unit 41 to full complement.

Members, in addition to the officers, are Joe Sowder, Wayland Altman, Roy H. Luckey, John Shepherd, Gib Dupler, Rayford Masten, Leon Dupler, R. L. (Mutt) Davis, Homer Richardson and Datch Powell.

The new unit was made possible by a lot of people. The volunteer unit here, for example, "built" the fire truck, but people all over the county have kicked in to help provide funds for the $2700 job. Maple Lions club is the Maple sponsor. The fire department here, headed by Ladd, has put in many hours getting the unit into readiness.

Over cups of coffee in the Maple Cafe, Ladd and Owens made talks to the new group of firemen. Ladd told of the functions of such a unit and Jones dealt with a unit and Jones (See MAPLE, Page 5)

Chief Reports 15 Area Blazes

It's been a fairly busy month so far for members of the Bailey County Fire Department.

Until Friday, 15 fires had occurred. "Fortunately," says Earl Ladd, chief, "none of them has been big." Eight of the blazes occurred within the city limits of Muleshoe; seven were outside Muleshoe, but most of the out-of-town blazes occurred near Muleshoe.

Ladd said the fires included such things as cotton berr blazes, a cook stove fire, an over-heated room and a defective hot water heater.

"Damages in all blazes were minor," the chief concluded. Exceptionally dry weather such as this area is experiencing now, increase the possibility of fires, and the chief urged all persons to use extreme caution.

Machine Age Hits Zip Codes; Letter-Readers Coming Next

Postoffice zip codes, those five-digit figures that postal customers are urged to use may become more popular — and more useful. Postmaster Spencer Beavers said Saturday.

So far, the zip code business has not been too good; customers simply haven't bothered to stick the figures on their mailing pieces.

But a new machine which is expected to come into use by next year may make zip code use almost mandatory. Postmaster General Juan A. Gronouski in Washington has informed the Muleshoe postmaster that a big breakthrough has been made on electronic machines which will "read" the zip code addresses on mail.

The smart new machines will be able to read the zip code on the letter; you are mailing to Aunt Minnie in Kalamaua, Iowa, and know instantly which way to send the letter to get it to Aunt Minnie in Kalamaua right off.

The postmaster general said he expects to begin installing these sophisticated new machines in major postoffices starting in about a year. Beavers has been informed.

Later the machines with the (See MACHINE, Page 5)

Bakery, Music Store, Book Store Needed?

(Editor's note: Muleshoe area has been studying its needs, immediate and long range, and a series of public meetings was held last autumn to let John Q. Public air his views of those needs. The findings have been summed up by west Texas Chamber of Commerce and divided into six categories. This article deals with Category 2, Business Development.)

Muleshoe needs a new bakery, a music store, a book store (in this category) and much discussion was held in all but one of the eight sessions. Because of this, a study should be undertaken to determine methods to offset this attitude or to fill this need.

Actually, there were seven sub-divisions under the general heading of additional retail and service outlets.

Fifty-five persons said additional restaurant facilities are needed, especially for conventions and larger community needs.

Then 32 persons suggested a shopping center is needed "with chain store operation" including a grocery, variety and department store.

Motel additions was listed by 15 persons who said that these facilities should be enlarged to include facilities that can handle small conventions.

Several also suggested a need for stores such as Muleshoe does not have. These included a music store and book store (the suggestions were made.) Discussion was not extensive on these items, but the fact that the ideas were offered was considered significant.

Interestingly enough, two persons said a need for the area is a bakery "home-owned and operated."

Still another suggestion (made by seven persons) was for "adequate services on appliances sold in local stores."

Lela has many interests — fifth grade music at George A. Rush Elementary School in Lubbock for six years, prior to coming to Muleshoe. She was a member of A. A. U. W. and Kappa Kappa Iota while she was in Lubbock. She is a member of Muleshoe Classroom Teachers, Texas State Teachers Association, and National Education Association.

Lela has many interests — cooking, crocheting, reading, and sewing, but her husband, Bob Breckenridge, who is Junior High Band Director, and his band activities seem to require a lot of her time.

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE REGULARLY

THE BADGE OF CHRISTIANITY

Bill Felts, Pastor

Calvary Bapt. Church

The badge of Christianity is that which identifies true disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Bible describes the badge of the disciple as being the love that Christians have one toward another. Jesus said in John 13:35, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Many times we are inclined to identify a church building as the badge of Christianity. Christianity may exist wherever it isn't even a church building. Then again, true Christianity does not exist in every church building. Usually, though, a church building will reveal the true character the church, or people, who meet there. It is a fact that a decaying faith usually shows outward signs. One of the outward signs of a faith which has died and is decaying is the erection of huge, wasteful, and extravagant buildings. I am not opposed to buildings. We need them; we must have them. The Calvary Baptist Church meets in a nice and comfortable building. I am saying that the outward evidence of a living faith is not in a building identified with a sign as a church house.

The real badge of Christianity shines in the outward life of the individual believer because in the heart of that believer in Christ is love, divinely given for other true believers. The heart of the natural man (unregenerate) is not filled with love. This is part of character that only comes through the new birth, by repentance, faith, and trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. These who do not wear the badge of love for all believers in Christ, whether they agree on all minor matters or not manifesting the outward sign Jesus said they should.

The Bible says of love, the type which born-again believers are supposed to possess and manifest, 1 Cor. 13:4-7, "Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, it is not easily provoked, thinketh not evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

The new firemen's unit will meet the first and third Mondays in each month in the Maple Co. office in Muleshoe. On Feb. 22 the Maple Lions club will have Ladies' night, and the new fire department will come in for a spot on the program. Since the Lions club was 66 "daddy" of the entire idea.

"Or, on the other hand, they can follow a life of crime and end up in prison. I always tell them that the choice is theirs, and if they don't have the money to go to school, it will be provided. That's part of our great American system. Usually it works. Usually the boy or girl breaks down and confesses. Then he promises to 'go straight' thereafter."

But sometimes it isn't that simple. Judge Williams recalled a "young toughie in the making" who came before his court recently. The boy had started by falling behind in school. Then came hooky-playing. Then the bad companions, older boys who had already run up minor criminal records for themselves. "They had managed to stay out of jail most of the time, and this particular boy considered them very smart. Well, one thing led to another and finally to the stage of sniffing airplanes glue."

"He was picked up and brought into my court. I had the parents hauled in and the boy openly defied them. He told me he couldn't abide by their orders, that they didn't know anything and that he was not clever reading ability will get into all offices — or most offices. Beavers said the machine can read — and sort — letters at the rate of 35,000 letters per hour, which, postoffices admit, is considerably faster than any known human clerk.

The offices to get the address-readers have not been announced, but the postmaster here said they will "have significant effects on the mail in and out of each community, regardless of whether every office has one of the machines or not."

Seems these new machines will speed incoming mail going to the smaller towns, such as Kalamala, Iowa from the major cities and step up the dispatch of mail deposited in smaller communities which must be processed enroute at major mail - massing points.

But don't just sit around and wait for the new machines before you start using zip codes, he urges. They'll speed up mail service even by the present eyeballing system which clerks use. Zip code, he explained, "is important in mail - handling under the system of processing already in use, and the eyeball method will continue to be used even after the brainy machine goes into use in 1966."

The machines, he said, will not eliminate jobs, — merely help meet the mail expansion", he summed up.

The postmaster didn't say so, but the chances are that after the new machines go into general use, those letters which do not have a zip reading probably will be the last letters to get sorted in any given day.

All zip code numbers, incidentally, are available at the post office, and persons were used to check zip numbers, especially to points frequently written.

going to mind them."

The judge said even the parents admitted that the boy, who had reached the ripe old age of 13, was already beyond their control. They told the judge: "He just won't mind and we can't do nothing with him."

The judge began lecturing the boys on the evils of crime. "He just sat there and glared at me, cold, indifferent, And dry-eyed. He continued to insist that his parents had been wrong, and that he had no intention of returning home and living right," the judge said.

"I realized that here was a case that would need a little special treatment, even though it was his first time to be brought into court. I told the officers to take him to jail and let him think the matter over for awhile."

Two days later the judge received word that the boy wanted to see him. He was brought to the judge's chambers. His showed signs of having cried considerably.

"Judge I was wrong," he sobbed. "You were right. My parents were right. I want to go home again and get a bath and get rid of these bed - bugs that have been eating on me in jail."

The judge listened patiently while the boy sobbed out his repentance. "The boy may have been acting. I don't know. I think he was NOT putting on an act. I think he was convinced that he had done wrong and that his parents were right. Two days in our old jail had had a sobering effect on him. He was certainly a different 13 - year - old than the arrogant boy who had been brought before me just two days before."

"I pointed out to him that freedom was his if he chose it. I told him that whether he ended up in court again was strictly up to him. There was freedom for his taking, if he wanted it. But I also told him that if he was ever brought before me again it would be Gatesville the next time. (Gatesville is the location of the state correction institution for juveniles.)"

"I haven't heard more from him. We are still keeping tab on him. He still reports periodically. He's going straight. I hope he continues to go straight. I believe he will."

The formula for dealing with second offenders is not mild. They usually end up in Gatesville. Recently four boys were hauled into the Judge William's court, charged with breaking and - entering. "Two of the boys were first offenders, and I let them off with promises to reform after I had given them a stern lecture. But the other two had been in my court before. They went to Gatesville; they had not lived up to their promises."

But, for the most part, youths brought before the judge are made to realize "the thin ice on which they are walking, and they promise to reform," he sums up.

Just to help them with their going - straight process, the judge has a panel of Muleshoe men — five of them — who go over each case that the judge considers a serious enough to warrant such close inspection.

"Not only do these men study the cases and make recommendations, but they also are available for counseling and help for the boys and girls who go wrong. They have been a great help in solving our delinquency problems here."

Incidentally Bailey County has an unusually good record in the matter of juveniles. "My 1964 report will show that we announced.

District Attorney Jack Young said Saturday that "several" criminal cases are due for trial at the February session, but added that "we haven't completed drawing up the schedule for that court."

"Several criminal cases probably will come up for trial in February and March which have been pending for some time which have been postponed from time to time for various reasons," Young summed up.

In addition to criminal cases, a number of civil cases also are due to be tried at the mid-winter term. The first term of civil district court for the new year was held in January, but all cases were either settled out of court or were passed for later hearing.

THIS PIPELINE WAS BUILT BY THE ROMANS AND SERVED FOR 2,000 YEARS

This photo, from the Smithsonian Institute in Washington D. C., shows a section of the original aqueduct that served the water needs of the conquered city of Cologne, Germany. It was constructed in 80 A.D. by the engineers of Fabius Sabinus Titus, Emperor of Rome. The aqueduct extended 56 miles underground between Cologne, and Eiffel and served as the main artery for the Cologne water supply until the late 1920's.

THIS PIPELINE IS EVEN MORE DEPENDABLE!!

Because of modern materials and manufacturing techniques, Gifford-Hill-Western's LOCK-SEAL provides an even more dependable underground pipeline. The close tolerance design makes the pipe more suitable, and joint flexibility eliminates the effects of expansion and contraction due to soil conditions and temperatures. By combining a superior product with modern day design and installation know-how, you have an underground irrigation system that serves dependably year after year... generation after generation. LOCK-SEAL is the product; Gifford-Hill-Western is the Company... GIFFORD-HILL-WESTERN depend on them!

The old vocational agriculture building, which formerly occupied a portion of the land to be covered by the new cafeteria, has been cleared away, and the foundation removed. Ground has been leveled and the cafeteria structure staked out. A modern corridor will connect the cafeteria with the present building with a patio area between the buildings to provide outside light for portions of the old structure joining the cafeteria.

One of the first big gatherings in the new cafeteria is set for September when the Muleshoe Lions Club will hold its 25th anniversary celebration with leaders in Lions from throughout the southwest expected for the event.

DeShazo Elementary school work is one of the biggest of all programs in the expansion project. When completed, the new DeShazo plant will replace all the present buildings except the gymnasium and the cafeteria. The gymnasium, incidentally, will be encompassed by the new plant, and a covered walk - way will join the present cafeteria to the building.

Dillman explained that the DeShazo building, while modern in every respect, will not follow the pattern of Richland Hills building. "Due to present structures which have to be used until the new building is completed, the design of DeShazo is considerably different from Richland Hills," he said. "We believe, however, that it will be one of the finest and most modern elementary plants in West Texas when it is completed."

Contractor for all the building program is Panhandle Engineering and Construction Company, Amarillo. Total cost is $853,800. "This figures only $10.81 per square foot, and in these days of high building for what we are spending," Dillman summed up.

By projects, costs are as follows: DeShazo Elementary School, $342,400. Junior high classroom section, $111,250. Senior - Junior high cafeteria, $131,745. Junior

An improved traffic pattern in the business area with more off - street parking facilities was offered by eight persons, and six asked that a study be made to develop job opportunities for youth in the community.

A business - education day sponsorship through the local high school was suggested, and a retail council was offered as a means of "creating better understanding between local retailers" and to maintain a program of close cooperation with other communities in trade areas.

A periodic clerks' sale schools was offered as a need, and one person suggested that banks remain open one day each week from 4 until 5 o'clock.
