Plant Home Grown Trees!

You know that you should plant trees, but perhaps you do not realize the importance of planting home grown trees; by that we mean trees grown on the Plains. Such are the trees for sale by the Llano Estacado Nursery, of Lockney. Let us sell you some Plains grown trees.
H. C. GRIE, Agent for Lynn County, Texas. Let me figure with you now.

Mr. T. C. Leedy of Big Springs, formerly of Prosper, Texas, has bought, four lots, 1/2 block, in west Tahoka, for $100 and has had it plowed and fenced, and he has some of the lumber on the ground for his house, which will be 28x32 four rooms.

Go to Taylor's for patent medicines and pure drugs.

PATRIOTIC TEA DRINKING.

The China and Japan Products Are Ousted by the British in Ceylon.

"Careful and intelligent efforts of the British government to have its people consume the tea grown on one of its possessions have had a remarkable effect," said William Sidney Welling, who represents a large tea firm with headquarters at London, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. "The people have taken to the idea of using British products, and the tea growing industry as a result in Ceylon is beginning to pick up. Ceylon was the last of the three eastern countries to engage in the industry. China started, then Japan followed, and for a few years these two countries had a monopoly of the business, even in the united kingdom.

"At the last moment the inhabitants of Ceylon began to grow tea on a small scale, but the business flourished so that acreage devoted to the raising of this staple increased enormously. And the beauty of the whole matter was the fact that the Ceylonians managed their export trade so well that 92 per cent. of their product was sold in the British possessions, ousting the tea of China and Japan.

"During the last ten years the amount of Indian tea consumed by the people of England alone has increased more than 70 per cent. Considering the fact that Japan and China had a firm hold on the tea market when the Ceylonese started out, this is quite a feat. It shows that the British people are willing to support a different hue and may be thousands of miles apart."

We sell only the purest drugs at Taylor's.

One street in west Tahoka will soon be very well defined on one side. Beginning at W. E. Porterfield, our hotel and wagon yard man's pasture fence on the north, the first 1/2 block and house belong to S. N. McDaniel, county and district clerk; second is the 1/2 block and house of W. R. Hampton & Son, general merchants; after crossing the street are the lots of the Methodists; next is the 1/2 block and house of L. E. King, of Brownwood, Texas; another street and then the 1/2 block on which T. C. Leedy will build; and last the 1/2 block that C. E. Brown, real estate agent, is going to build on.

Tahoka is only a small town, but our merchants got in over 1400 pounds of candy in one week.

Charley Brown, our hustling estate man has part of the lumber on the ground for a new house in west Tahoka, 14x32 two rooms and a porch.

A full line of close marked outting to select from at Wells & Welchers.

Mr. S. R. Bivins, of Schleicher county, has bought the northwest section of Mr. John Bauldrige, seven miles southeast of town, for $1,000. Mr. Bivins will move out here as soon as possible.

Mr. B. B. Wise, bought a section of land and the crop on it, about nine miles northeast of town, for $1,200 from Henry Addison.

Mr. McGonagill inspected 54 head of cattle for McCarty of Gail last Tuesday. These cattle will be shipped from latan. Mr. McCarty has, we believe, topped the market at $14 for fat stuff. Mr. McCarty will likely be back here in a couple of weeks. Quite a number of local buyers are out now and Mr. McGonagill tell us that he knows of several outsiders who expect to be here next week.

The merchant uttered a sharp exclamation and sank back in his chair. A telegram fell from his shaking hand. His eyes were dilated, his face white, and beads of perspiration stood on his brow. The men in the outer office whispered among themselves, relates an exchange.

"Touch of heart disease?" asked one. "No; the old man can't take up a note," said another. "I've heard rumors of that kind. We fellows will have to be looking for another place."

"Get to work—he's coming to again." The merchant wiped his brow, fetched a despairing sigh, picked up the paper from the floor, frowned and stamped his foot, as if to summon all his resolution, placed the telegram on his desk, and forced himself to read the bitter message. This was it:

"Dearest James: Please send the waist for my grosgrain suit at once. You will remember the one, as it has revers on the front and chain-stitched biases on the back. It is in the lower trunk in the cupboard beside the back room, under your winter overcoat. If not there, it must be in the sealed box on the third shelf in the front room cupboard. If you don't find it there, it must be somewhere else. The trunk keys are in the second wardrobe drawer, unless they were put in the chiffonier; and I think the keys are in a vase on one of the mantels. Pack the waist so as not to wrinkle it; and, oh! James, please do not swear! Your loving wife!"

Mr. M. B. Walters, has bought 360 acres of E. D. Skinner 15 miles southeast of Tahoka, for $600 and will make it his home. Thus Lynn county grows

The potato is pear shaped 9 inches long, 23 inches in circumference and weighs 8 pounds. Just think of if you down-east-ers, one sweet potato worth 12 cents at wholesale.

Well of course, why do you pay such high prices, when you can go to Conway's and get things so much cheaper.

"THE MANDARIN'S DAUGHTER"

Physically she was much refreshed by the long slumber. There was no trace of the illness which her mother had feared might follow the excitement through which the girl had passed. She arose and donned the unfamiliar garments of her sex and went to meet the father, who waited in no little impatience to hear her story.

She told it simply, and with little emotion, though the narrative was almost too exciting for her mother to bear, and made the ex-Prefect's heart leap more than once.

"My child, are you not happy to be with us once more?" asked her mother when Sho Mai concluded.

"I am not happy, mother," said Sho Mai, "and I shall never be again; but have accomplished that for which I made this visit to the world. I have seen it and learned its lesson. In one year it has taught me all that the profoundest philosopher could learn in a hundred years. Ambition and fear and hope and love—I have known them all and the end of them all, which is disappointment. The whole world is in that word, and those who learn its meaning strive nor hope nor fear nor love anymore have solved the riddle, and may rest from their labors. This is the philosophy of the unhappy; the fortunate may have one of their own, but I shall not need to know it."

She laughed bitterly at her trite summary of the world's lesson, and then burying her head in her hands, she wept.

Her parents exchanged glances but offered no consolation, feeling that time must do that. From the street came a sound of a loud voice rising above the ordinary noises of the city.

"What is this outcry?" asked the mother.

"It is the hour of noon," said Wong Che Foo, "and according to the custom the heralds of the Emperor are announcing the result of the great competition. Listen and we shall hear the names."

CURE FOR BLINDNESS

VIOLET RAYS SAID TO RESTORE SIGHT.

Interesting Experiments with Electric Current in New Form—How the Treatment Is Applied.

New York.—A series of interesting experiments with the violet ray as a cure for blindness has disclosed that electricity in this weird and strangely beautiful form has possibilities before undreamed of. Heretofore it has been used chiefly to destroy bacilli and malignant, diseased tissue, but this new experiment applied it to the optic nerves of a woman who had been pronounced incurably blind by the specialists in one of the eye and ear hospitals of this city. As a result of the treatment the patient, Mrs. Charlotte Walker, is able to read the headlines on a newspaper, see the hands on a watch and pursue the ordinary vocations of life.

The fact that the nerves responded to the treatment proves that they were not entirely atrophied, as supposed by the physicians that administered treatment in the hospitals.

Whether the sight can be entirely restored will depend, according to the experimenter, Dr. S. S. Yallan, on the patient's general condition and the cause of the trouble. If there be deep-seated organic disease, affecting the entire system, the cure may not be perfected and the improvement is likely to be only temporary.

The electricity may be generated by a static machine or by a coil, the static machine being used by Dr. Yallan. Mrs. Walker sits beside it on an insulated platform. The electrode is a glass vacuum tube with an expanded bulb at the end and an insulated handle, or one having two bulbs, this being used on both eyes simultaneously. The physician applies the bulb to the temples, to the eyeballs, to the back of each ear and over the spine and back in order to reach the cervical nerves that control the eyes.

While the treatment is in progress the glass bulb is more beautiful than any flower, the ray changing from violet to deep purple. At the same time the patient experiences a tingling sensation more or less intense, according to the strength of the current.

"The patient was brought to me for the experiment with the violet ray by a physician in the hospital in which she had been pronounced incurable," said Dr. Yallan. "She was about 30 years old, had been blind two years and could not or would not give any history of her case that could be of any aid in treating her. There was evidence that the nerves of the eye were entirely atrophied. The woman also has rheumatic pains, which complicated her case and showed the general system was not in a healthy condition.

"After taking the violet ray treatment for a month she announced to me joyfully: 'Oh, I am going to get my sight back again! I am seeing fine! I can see people on the street. I can take care of the lamps.' Soon she was doing considerable housework, being able to see her way about the house."

Mrs. Doak is improving today.

Mrs. Conway gave a conversation party to her young friends Thursday evening. This is the first time Mrs. Conway has entertained in her pretty new home.

Three or four drummers, says Comfort, had engaged in a warm discussion over the bane of the drummer's existence on the road, the "drummer's tax"—not so bad as it used to be, however, when small towns all over the country levied tribute on every traveling man who visited them.

"By Jove," said a man from a New York silk firm, "you ought to try it over on the other side. What they do here isn't to be spoken of in comparison. Here it is merely a small local matter. Over there it is national. At least it is for any of us who come from foreign countries. In Denmark, for instance, there is an annual tax of $42.88 if a man represents one house and half that for each other house represented. In Norway you have to have a trade-pass good for 30 days, costing $26.80. France is easier and you don't have anything but a business passport, which costs no more than you want to pay. In Holland you have to have an industrial tax receipt, which costs six dollars. In Sweden the price is the same as in Norway, $26.80, and if you try to get out of it you will catch a fine of from the price of the trade pass up to $184, and they are strict about it, too.

H. C. Crie & Co. the neat, artistic job printers, turned out some letter heads for the Tahoka Lake Ranch, and Mr. Jack Alley, the genial proprietor, expressed himself as well pleased with the work. This is their second Lynn county Ranch job, as they printed a large order of envelopes and letter heads for S. F. Singleton & Son, some time ago. There are several other ranchmen in Lynn county who use printed stationary, and there are others who would also use it if they only realized the distinction that a neat letter head gives one, and it is a good way to advertise your county. It should be the aim of every good citizen to give their community all the publicity possible, especially the Plains. Publicity of this kind encourages an influx of good citizens, and with an increased population come schools, churches, towns, railroads, and markets.

"THE MANDARIN'S DAUGHTER."

The voice drew nearer. Suddenly Sho Mai sprang to her feet, and rushing to the window struck it open with a blow that nearly shattered it. One moment she stood there; then, throwing back her head, while her eyes shone like diamonds, she exclaimed: "Do you hear that name? Li Khi; he lives! We shall meet again!"

There was a commotion at the door, which was suddenly flung open, and a young man entered breathless and unannounced. It was Li Khi.

"Sho Mai," he cried, "I fall at your feet. My love and admiration for you go hand in hand. The honor is deserved."

"What honor is deserved? The honor of your love? I will strive all my life to make it so."

"Did you not hear the heralds? They were shouting—"

"I heard only one great voice which cried: 'He lives! he lives!'"

"But they announced a certain Wong Tien Pow," said Li Khi, smiling, "as the victor, the Chuen Yuen. It was the sound of your name—or the name you chose to bear—which hastened my steps hither. I had just learned of your father's presence in the city."

"I did not note what the heralds said," returned Sho Mai, "except that your name was called for the second honor, the Pon Yuen."

"Is it possible?" exclaimed the young man, in amazement; "and I heard only your name. I did not listen for the rest.

SHO MAI CROWNED BY THE EMPRESS.

But let us take it as a good omen that each should be the first to tell the other of the honors won."

This conversation, despite the presence of the ex-Prefect and Mme. Wong, was spoken with clasped hands and interspersed with lover's greetings, to the great amazement of the beholders, and at this point the ex-Prefect demanded an explanation. It was not hard to give since he had heard Sho Mai's story. In the presence of the honors both had won he could not be severe and, indeed, he had so sympathized with his daughter in her sorrow for her lover that he shared her joy in his return. It really looked as if Sho Mai would have to learn the philosophy of the fortunate, despite her denial of its usefulness.

The ex-Prefect was called from the pleasure of bestowing a paternal blessing by a thought of the difficulty which lay before him in making his daughter's peace with the Emperor. That a woman should enter the great competition was bad enough, but that she should win it was almost unpardonable. Nevertheless, the ex-Prefect bestirred himself, and having some influence at court he smoothed the difficulty.

The imposing ceremonies of conferring the degree followed quickly, and the crown of the Chuen Yuen was placed on
