Banker Criticises Conduct of American People

By JOS. T. TALBERT, Vice President of National City Bank, New York

initial cost of automobiles to American users amounts to not less than $250,000,000 a year. The upkeep and other necessary expenditures, as well as incidentals, which would not otherwise be incurred, amount to at least as much more. This vast sum is equivalent in actual economic waste each year to more than the value of property destroyed in the San Francisco fire perhaps to twice as much. This sum, as large as it is, does not include the whole economic loss growing out of this single item of indulgence. The thousands of young and able-bodied men employed in manufacturing machines and in running and caring for cars are all withdrawn from productive usefulness; they become consumers of our diminishing surplus products and constitute an added burden to the producers. The economic influence of this withdrawal from the producing and addition to the consuming class, is bound to be manifested in a tendency to higher prices. Its effect already must be considerable, and is comparable only to the maintenance of an enormous standing army.

Thousands upon thousands of our people, frenzied by desire for pleasure and crazed by passion to spend, have mortgaged their homes, pledged their life insurance policies, withdrawn their hard-earned savings from banks to buy automobiles; and have thereby converted their modest assets into expanding and devouring liabilities. The spectacle is astounding. A

They are making sacrifices and enduring hardships and privations.

Usually they are men of very limited means, these hardy pioneers who hew out a home in the almost impenetrable wild and make fertile farms in the most unfavorable sections for agriculture. Year after year the newspapers are filled with graphic accounts of disastrous forest fires in the northern and western states of the Union. The flames, sweeping over vast areas, take their toll from the human race, and the millions of dollars' worth of timber that is destroyed robs this and future generations of a priceless gift. The power to save this lies in human hands. We protect our city homes, factories and other buildings from fire and riots; why can't we protect our brother, the builder for civilization?

Why can't the governor of an afflicted state issue a call to arms? The effect would be magical, the cost slight. How thankful we would all feel, how grateful humanity would be for the work and the heroism of our boys in khaki if they were called to the front to fight an enemy of such magnitude!

Roosters and Dogs Nuisance in Cities

By WM. H. BIED Cincinnati

The neighborhood in which I live would be a very quiet and desirable one were it not for the fact that about 75 per cent. of the people have chicken coops planted on the rear of their lots and about the same percentage own dogs.

Those who are too poor to own one dog manage to own two.

With the yelping of the dogs in the fore part of the night and the roosters letting loose with their clarion notes at dawn, one can imagine what a poor chance a light sleeper has to get the necessary rest to equip him for the following day's work.

A great many of the dog owners are not paying taxes either, if the truth were known.

Many Benefits Derived From Boxing

By MYER HALPER

I believe that boxing is in a large sense responsible for the fact that the young men of America and Great Britain are superior to the young men of Mexico or Spain. If two young Americans or Englishmen have a quarrel, it is quickly settled by a fair fist fight. But let two Mexicans (although not all are so) get into quarrel and knives are likely to flash and inside of five or ten minutes one or probably both of them are hustled off to the hospital. In Mexico there are hardly ever any prize fights.

Many of our prominent citizens are firm advocates of all athletic games and exercises and boxing is certainly as healthful a sport as football, cricket, basketball and many other of our most popular sports. And by contrasting the number of fatalities on both sides boxing is seen not to be a bit more dangerous.

To be a good boxer one must be clean physically and to be clean physically one cannot be unclean morally.

There is nothing like our old-fashioned fair fist fights to test a youth's mettle or prepare him for the greater tests to come later on in life.

DRESSY AND DAINTY.

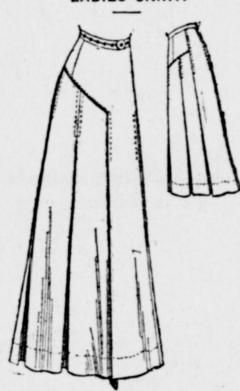

lowed.-The dress illustrated in the accompanying picture is one of the newer styles of the fall season. It is marked by the use of the fashionable banded-in skirt and the waist has the small yoke which is now considered essential. The neck is cut out ever so little and the outline marked by a band of trimming. Around the edge of the yoke the material is slightly gathered before being attached. As the sleeves are of the peasant order there is no seam at the shoulder, and they are cut in one piece with the back and front of the waist. The pattern (5093) is cut in sizes 14, 16 and 18 years. To make the dress in the 16-year size will require 3% yards of material 44 inches wide, with 34 yard of contrasting material 27 inches wide to trim, as illustrated.

For every-day uses-school, home, church and the like-a dress such as pictured will be found excellent. The waist is made with a small yoke, below which there is a cross-tucked vest. On each side of this the material is arranged with a deep tuck at the shoulder and stitched edge where the sides seam at the shoulder and are cut in one with the front and back of the Up in the wilderness, away from the waist. RINEHART ILLIDITRATIONS BY RAYWALTERS

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst nu-merous difficulties the servants deserted. merous difficulties the servants deserted.

As Miss Innes locked up for the night, she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. She passed a terrible night, which was filled with unseemly noises. In the morning Miss Innes found a strange link cuff button in a clothes hamper. Gertrude and Halsey arrived with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot. A strange man ened by a revolver shot. A strange man was found shot to death, in the hall. It proved to be the body of Arnold Armstrong, whose banker father owned the country house. Miss Innes found Hallack sey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared. The link cuff button mysteriously disappeared. De-tective Jamieson and the coroner arrived. Gertrude revealed that she was engaged Gertrude revealed that she was engaged to Jack Bailey, with whom she had talked in the billiard room a few moments before the murder. Jamieson told Miss Innes that she was hiding evidence from him. He imprisoned an intruder in an empty room. The prisoner escaped down a laundry chute. It developed that the intruder was probably a woman. Gertrude was suspected, for the intruder left a print of a bare foot. Gertrude returned home with her right ankle sprained. A negro found the other half of what proved to be Jack Bailey's cuff button. Halsey suddenly reappeared. He said he and Bailey had left because they had received a telegram. Gertrude said that she had given Bailey an unloaded revolver, fearing to give him Halsey's loaded weapon. Cashier Bailey of Paul Armstrong's bank, defunct, was arrested, charged with embezzlement.

"In cash?"

"In cash."

"But the man who did it-he would be known?"

"Yes, I tell you both, as sure as I stand here, I believe that Paul Armstrong looted his own bank. I believe he has a million at least, as the result, and that he will never come back. I'm worse than a pauper now. I can't ask Louise to share nothing a year with me, and when I think of this disgrace for her, I'm crazy."

The most ordinary events of life seemed pregnant with possiblities that day, and when Halsey was called to the telephone, I ceased all pretense at eating. When he came back from the telephone his face showed that something had occurred. He waited however, until Thomas left the dining room; then he told us. "Paul Armstrong is dead," he announced gravely. "He died this morning in California. Whatever he did, he is beyond the law now." Gertrude turned pale.

"And the only man who could have cleared Jack can never do it!" she said despairingly.

"Also," I replied coldly, "Mr. Armstrong is for ever beyond the power of defending himself. When your Jack comes to me, with some $200,000 in his hands, which is about what you have lost, I shall believe him innocent."

CHAPTER XI.

Halsey Makes a Capture.

It was about half-past eight when we left the dining room, and still engrossed with one subject, the failure of the bank and its attendant evils, Halsey and I went out into the grounds for a stroll. Gertrude followed us shortly. "The light was thickening," to appropriate Shakespeare's description of twilight, and once again the tree-toads and the crickets were making night throb with their tiny life. It was almost oppressively lonely, in spite of its beauty, and I felt a sickening pang of homesickness for my city at nightfor the clatter of horses' feet on cemented paving, for the lights, the voices, the sound of children playing. The country after dark oppresses me. The stars, quite eclipsed in the city by the electric lights, here become insistent, assertive. Whether I want to or not, I find myself looking for the few I know by name, and feeling ridiculously new and small by contrast -always an unpleasant sensation. After Gertrude joined us, we avoided any further mention of the murder. To Halsey, as to me, there was ever present, I am sure, the thought of our conversation of the night before. As we strolled back and forth along the drive, Mr. Jamieson emerged from the shadow of the trees.

to include Gertrude in his bow. Gertrude had never been even ordinarily courteous to him, and she nodded coldly. Halsey, however, was more cordial, although we were all constrained together, leaving the detective to walk with me. As soon as they were out of earshot, he turned to me.

"Do you know, Miss Innes," he said, "the deeper I go into this thing, ing his clouds of tobacco smoke quietly, and Mrs. Watson was looking the more strange it seems to me. One Mystery for Another.

The most commonplace incident takes on a new appearance if the attendant circumstances are unusual. There was no reason on earth why "Good evening," he said, managing I would make my own investigations, & Mrs. Watson should not have carried and Mr. Jamieson should learn only a blanket down the east wing staircase, if she so desired. But to take We went back to the house, and a blanket down at 11 o'clock at night, Gertrude, who was more like herself with every precaution as to noise, and, since her talk with Halsey, sat down when discovered, to fling it at Halsey enough. He and Gertrude went on at the mahogany desk in the living and bolt-Halsey's word, and a good room to write a letter. Halsey prowl- one-into the grounds-this made the Halsey was examining the cut on his forehead in a small mirror on the wall. It was not much of an injury, but it had bled freely, and his appearance was rather terrifying.

"Thomas ill?" he said, over his shoulder. "Why, I thought I saw Thomas out there as you made that cyclonic break out of the door and over the porch."

I could see that under pretense of examining his injury he was watching her through the mirror.

"Is this one of the servants' blankets, Mrs. Watson?" I asked, holding up its luxurious folds to the light.

"Everything else is locked away." she replied. Which was true enough. no doubt. I had rented the house without bed furnishings.

"If Thomas is ill," Halsey said, "some member of the family ought to go down to see him. You needn't bother, Mrs. Watson. I will take the

She drew herself up quickly, as if in protest, but she found nothing to say. She stood smoothing the folds of her dead black dress, her face as white as chalk above it. Then she seemed to make up her mind.

"Very well, Mr. Innes," she said. Perhaps you would better go. I have done all I could."

And then she turned and went up the circular staircase, moving slowly and with a certain dignity. Below, the three of us stared at one another across the intervening white blanket.

"Upon my word," Halsey broke out, "this place is a walking nightmare. I have the feeling that we three outsiders who have paid our money for the privilege of staying in this spookfactory, are living on the very top of things. We're on the lid, so to speak. Now and then we get a sight of the things inside, but we are not a part of them."

"Do you suppose," Gertrude asked doubtfully, "that she really meant that blanket for Thomas?"

"Thomas was standing beside that magnolia tree," Halsey replied, "when I ran after Mrs. Watson. It's down to this, Aunt Ray. Rosie's basket and Mrs. Watson's blanket can only mean one thing: There is somebody hiding or being hidden in the lodge. It wouldn't surprise me if we hold the key to the whole situation now. Anyhow, I'm going to the lodge to investigate."

Gertrude wanted to go, too, but she looked so shaken that I insisted she should not. I sent for Liddy to help her to bed, and then Halsey and I started for the lodge. The grass was heavy with dew, and, man-like, Halsey chose the shortest way across the lawn. Half way, however, he stopped. "We'd better go by the drive," he said. "This isn't a lawn; it's a field. Where's the gardener these days?"

"There isn't any," I said meekly. We have been thankful enough, so far, to have our meals prepared and served and the beds aired. The gardener who belongs here is working at the club."

"Remind me to-morrow to send out a man from town," he said. "I know the very fellow."

I record this scrap of conversation, just as I have tried to put down anything and everything that had a bearing on what followed, because the gardener Halsey sent the next day played an important part in the events of the next few weeks-events that culminated as you know, by stirring the country profoundly. At that time, however, I was busy trying to keep my skirts dry, and paid little or no attention to what seemed then a most trivial remark. At the lodge everything was quiet. There was a light in the sitting room downstairs, and a faint gleam, as if from a shaded lamp, in one of the upper rooms. Halsey stopped and examined the lodge with calculating

"I don't know, Aunt Ray," he said dubiously; "this is hardly a woman's affair. If there's a scrap of any kind. you hike for the timber." Which was Halsey's solicitous care for me, put into vernacular.

"I'll stay right here," I said, and crossing the small veranda, now shaded and fragrant with honeysuckle, I hammered the knocker on the door. Thomas opened the door himself-

"I brought the blanket, Thomas," I said; "I am sorry you are so ill." The old man stood staring at me and then at the blanket. His confusion under other circumstances would have been ludicrous. "What! Not ill?" Halsey said from the step. "Thomas, I'm afraid you've been malingering."

Thomas seemed to have been debating something with himself. Now he stepped out on the porch and closed the door gently behind him.

O'Brien was up in Vermont last summer and went to dinner with a friend who had some political aspirations. Mrs. Blank laughed. "'So as to be the best-dressed woman present, of course,' she said."

Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

A superintendent of public schools in a Southern state says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach.

"Some time ago I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum. I was so pleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal; the whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely. "I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us. "I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but in a more marked degree in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing." Ever rend the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human Tahoka, Texas

CLEVER FIRST BASE PLAYER

Jake Daubert of Brooklyn Nationals, One of Season's "Finds," Tells of Early Start.

BY JAKE DAUBERT,

You ask how I got my start. The fact is I started and slipped back so often that it is hard to tell how. I know that at first I didn't want to start at all. I loved baseball, and played ever since I can remember. I was on the "first nine" in my home town when I was 15 years old. But the idea of getting into the big leagues did not come to me for a long time. I was in the little Williams Valley league down in Southern Pennsylvania, and was hitting pretty well, but my arm was bad. I was a third Flowing on with joy or sorrow baseman then and never had played much except as a pitcher, and sometimes a catcher or the outfield. I got an offer to go out again when our league went up, but wanted to stay at home. I finished up the season there and saw I could hold my own with them, except that my arm was so bad I wanted to quit I couldn't heave them across from third base, and besides I didn't know much about playing the game, or how the manager and told him either I would go home or go to first base. He asked me if I could play first and I handed thrower belonged there rather than at third. He must have liked my nerve, for he gave me a chance and I made good and hit well. Then Cleveland got me and I thought I was started, but somehow they could not see me. I thought I was doing fairly well, but they chased me to Toledo, recalled me, chased me again and finally I got discouraged and couldn't hit and everything broke wrong, and I was sent to the Southern league. I didn't like the way Cleveland had treated me and I wanted to show that bunch I could play the game. I work-

I began correcting faults and working harder to get along and pretty soon Brooklyn grabbed me. That time I was ready and knew I was ready. I had the confidence and I knew that I could hold my own.

TIGERS' CUBAN TRIP STOPPED

President Navin Puts Emphatic Veto on Proposed Tour and No Detroit Player Will Go.

There will be no Cuban trip for the Tigers after the league season closes, President Navin has put his foot down on such a trip, and no members of the Detroit team will be permitted to play ball in Havana and other places. Any player disobeying this order will be fined $500. But this threat may not make any change in the players' plans. One of the party said that nearly all the regular men have made preparations to play ball on the island. Appetizing Celery.

That celery is a well-known nerve tonic is demonstrated in the patent medicines found on our market that contain celery. It is also a valuable food and often rather expensive, as so many housewives discard the coarse green stalks and all the green leaves. Every sound bit of celery is valuable, the outside stalks contain all the nerve stimulants in an even greater proportion than do the tender white ones in the center of the bunch. The coarser parts are good stewed and served in a white sauce, which at the same time builds up wasted tissue and supplies nerve power. When one has a little celery, but not enough for a dish, try cooking it with cabbage. It will be found that the cabbage partakes of the flavor of the celery.

The leaves and coarse stalks may be used in vegetable soups for flavor. A few celery leaves and coarse stalks added to stewed onions give the latter a most agreeable flavor, and make onions acceptable to many people who dislike them cooked alone. In combination with vegetables, fruits, fish and meats, celery has a valuable place. As a flavoring for a cream soup it is a general favorite.

Here is a way of serving celery which is not common: Parboil (celery cut in three-inch pieces) until soft. cheese, take from the fire and pour Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in over the macaroni. Put the yolks of a fritter batter and fry in deep fat.

Boston Reporter, Unlike Most Newspaper Men, Was Unfamiliar With the Scriptures.

The "cub" reporter is the greenest reporter on the staff of a newspaper. When anything particularly stupid happens on the paper, he is the first to be accused, and he is usually rightly accused. The only salvation for him is to improve, which he does in nine cases out of a dozen. The Boston Journal told recently of an amusing "break" of a wholly innocent nature which a certain cub made. If it shows anything, it shows that a thorough training in the Bible is useful in other walks of life than the ministry.

The reporter had been sent to a suburb to report a sermon. He arrived late, near the close of the service, and took a seat near the door. When the last hymn was over, he asked his neighbor, an elderly gentle-

How is it, then, that the equine race, represented in America by kinds of fossils considerably more numerous than in Europe, came for a time to vanish from this country to reappear thousands of centuries later with the Spanish conquest? For but a ceutry after Cortez there were already in existence herds of wild horses in the regions of the mata and the prairies of the far west.

By some this temporary extinction of the American horse has been attributed to the increasing cold and the encroachments of the glacial hemisphere.
