TDA's Family Land Heritage Honors Campbell Family

by Marisue Potts

Five generations of the Campbell clan were recognized by the Century Family Land Heritage Program in Austin on January 15. The first family in Motley County to be so honored, the Hal Vance Campbells, attended the program and reception in the Lyndon B. Johnson Library Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture, the festivities saluted eighty-five families whose farms or ranches had a history of continuous and uninterrupted productivity in the same family for a century or more. Since its inception in 1974 over 2,600 families have participated in the program.

Rick Perry, the savvy and smooth-talking Commissioner of Agriculture, gave a rousing speech before introducing the headline speaker, Ben F. Green, author of many humorous books on the unique aspects of rural living and horses, in particular.

The nine members of the family who journeyed to the state capital for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Hal Vance Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Wes Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Campbell, and Mr. Ken Campbell and children, Jason and Anna. Also joining the group was Motley County Historical Commission chairman Marisue Potts.

Several years of extensive research by Betty Campbell and son Wes Campbell, sifting through microfilm and delving through volumes of field notes, tax, probate, and abstract records of Motley and Crosby Counties, produced the required documentation for 160 acres of Survey 26, Abstract 859, filed on by patriarch Henry H. Campbell. Down to the present, five generations of this family have been involved in ranching activities with this particular tract of land.

Campbell's original homestead, a rock-lined dugout near the site of the Old Lyman post office and stage stop, was described in field notes on record in Crosby County and the General Land Office. Tax records in Crosby County revealed that in 1887 H.H. Campbell paid a whopping tax of $3.93 while his wife L.B. (Lizzie Bundy) Campbell topped that with $7.50.

A native of North Carolina, Henry Harrison Campbell arrived in Texas with his family in 1854. Following his service in the Confederate Army, he worked as a cattle drover. In 1879, with four other investors, he founded the Matador Ranch at Ballard Springs.

Campbell's wife, Elizabeth Bundy, joined him at the ranch in 1880. Refusing to live underground in a dugout, she insisted on camping in a tent until lumber could be hauled in for a two-room house.

She served as hostess and nurse at the ranch, and later was postmistress at Matador.

Under Campbell's watchful eye, during its first three years, the Matador Ranch holdings grew to include 40,000 head of cattle on 100,000 acres of land, with an additional 1.5 million acres of free range rights. In 1882 the ranch was bought by a Scottish Syndicate, the Matador Land and Cattle Co., Ltd. of Dundee. Campbell continued his association with the ranch, serving as ranch superintendent until 1890.

Henry H. Campbell led efforts to create Motley County in 1891. After serving two terms as County Judge, he retired to concentrate on his ranch interests on Dutchman Creek. He died in Matador on May 23, 1911.

His son, Harry H. Campbell, born on May 15, 1881, at the ranch headquarters at Ballard Springs. Described by early buffalo hunter Frank Collinson, as the first male white child born in the territory, Harry grew up to carry on the traditions instilled by his father. He served as president of the First State Bank for twenty-two years and was author of The Early History of Motley County.

Before her death in 1909, he and his first wife, Belle McClure had one daughter, Erin (now Mrs. Erin Shearer of Alpine). Children by his second wife, Ollie Ann Hand, were Harold, Lynnman Bundy, and Hal Vance. A portion of the land inherited from grandfather to grandson, Hal Vance, includes Survey 26, the land singled out for recognition by the Department of Agriculture.

As a youngster Vance divided his time between the ranch and Matador where he attended school during the winter months. After a stint in the navy he returned home with his bride Betty Jean (Sweepston) and together they herded sheep, raised cotton, farmed, and ranched in the vicinity of Cedar Hill where they raised their children Ken Vance, Cheryle Jean, and Bob Wes.

In 1971 Hal Vance and Betty moved to the edge of the caprock just inside Motley County on the Matador-Floydada highway. Their ranch style home, a dream long awaited, overlooks the site of Old Lyman post office and stage stop where the now familiar photo of Henry H. Campbell standing in front of his original dugout was made by photographer Erwin E. Smith.

Now the fifth generation of Campbell children work and play around the corrals and under the ancient walnut tree, planted so many years ago by a man who would have been pleased to think his roots had extended so far and lasted so long.

Roaring Springs City Council Members Hear Plans For Bridge Reconstruction

The Roaring Springs City Council met Friday, January 22 at 7:30 a.m. to hear Marty Smith, Texas Highways & Transportation of Childress District explain the THD plan to begin construction and rebuild the Dutchman Creek Bridge, north of Roaring Springs on Highway 70. Plans are to begin in April.

Smith explained that due to the danger of construction equipment operation during that time (possibly one year), they would like to request the closure of the 3rd Street entrance off Hwy. 70 into Roaring Springs.

This was tabled until further discussion.

Council passed a Resolution from SPAG in support of Lubbock being selected for a Department of Defense Accounting Center. Lubbock is one of 20 sites selected and the only one in Texas. Meeting adjourned.

Plans For The Year Top Agenda For Museum

The Motley County Museum will kick off its year with a meeting on Saturday, January 30 at 2 p.m. in the lobby. Discussion will revolve around the coming year's goals for the museum and the Motley County Historical Commission.

Everyone with an interest in historical preservation is invited to attend the meeting, but trustees and County Historical Commission members are particularly urged to attend to help prioritize projects.

Discussion is expected to center around the creation of an outside sign, hanging of the plaques, status of the third plaque, the grand opening, hours, volunteers, the possibility of a Green Thumb worker, the repair of a donated case, specific exhibits including the veterans, a soda fountain, and the rotating family room. Of special interest is a frontier town hand-crafted by Joyce Archer and Lorene Lancaster which will be made into a diorama.

A short report will be given concerning completed historical commission activities for 1992.

Study clubs and school classes are currently scheduling times to visit the museum and docents will be needed to show them about.

Desperately needed are old fashioned toys or ideas for play things pertaining to children. The older generation has a chance to share and show today's video/television generation what they once did for fun. A room just for children is planned by the Eternas Study Club but they do need help and ideas. Stick horses, kick the can, sling shots, whirlygigs, corn shuck or rag dolls, and Tonka trucks are just a few ideas that have been presented. Senior citizens, contact Judy Cooper or Wilda Dixon with your ideas!

Pete Laney Elected House Speaker

Pete Laney

Speaker of the House of Representatives from Dist. 85

State Representative James E. (Pete) Laney, D-Hale Center, was elected unanimously January 12 as the 68th Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives.

Laney, 49, represents District 85 which includes Dickens County. He has pledged to pass a school finance plan in the House within the next 30 days - "a plan with bipartisan support that will meet the requirements of the courts and the needs of our educational system."

He said taxes should not be raised and lawmakers must agree on a budget that stays within current revenues.

The new speaker pledged to earn the trust, respect and support of Texans for the work done by the Texas House of Representatives.

"It is a sad fact that many people have lost faith in government at all levels and for many reasons," Laney said. "We ourselves are the only ones that can change that - by the way we conduct ourselves and by the quality of legislation we pass."

Laney said he will set standards for himself and for the Speaker's Office that go beyond what is required by law.

"I am requiring my top staff members to pledge not to represent anyone before the legislature for a period of time after their employment ends. And I make that same pledge for myself," Laney said.

He endorsed numerous changes in House rules recommended by the House Select Committee on Rules to increase efficiency and accountability in the legislative process.

Laney also recommended additional reforms: requiring the Calendars Committee to conduct its business publicly; requiring every bill referred to the Calendars to be acted upon within a certain time period; and establishing a 12-hour layout requirement for bill substitutes to give members time to read major revisions to bills before voting on them.

Improving the quality of the cotton grown on the High Plains is an ongoing process according to Myrl D. Mitchell. Mitchell, a Lenora, Texas cotton producer-ginner, serves as Chairman of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers' (PCG) Plains Cotton Improvement Committee (PCIC).

The PCIC oversees a key part of this process through the administration of the decade old Plains Cotton Improvement Program (PCIP), a one of a kind cotton breeding effort voluntarily funded by cotton farmers on the High Plains of Texas. Funds for the program have been collected through a ten cent per bale check-off since 1983.

Hands-on research is being conducted by Dr. John Gannaway, a cotton breeder at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock. Funding for Gannaway's research was renewed by the PCIC at a meeting January 21 with the approval of $144,000 for 1993-1994. Since its start in 1983 the PCIP has already released 114 breeding lines to commercial cotton breeders for their use in developing improved varieties specifically suited to the High Plains.

The goal of the program is to improve the lint quality, yield potential, insect and disease resistance of the cotton grown on the High Plains. Major improvements have already been made with length and strength.

The first of these improved commercial varieties are now becoming available for general use. At this time there are three commercial varieties available that trace their development back to the PCIP, an additional 6 or 7 varieties are expected to be ready for release in the next year or two.

"Producers across the High Plains take a lot of pride in the accomplishments of the Plains Cotton Improvement Program," notes Mitchell. "The solid support this program continues to enjoy guarantees we will continue to break new ground and make this area the place to get top quality cotton in the years to come."

In addition to the work Dr. Gannaway does around Lubbock, he also maintains a second plant nursery facility near Manzanillo, Mexico. By utilizing the two facilities he is able to speed up the development process by squeezing two crops into a single year. By doing so he can significantly reduce the development time of the new breeding lines.

The January meeting of the Directors

Jim Watson Named Top Manager At Bechtel Petroleum

NOTE: Jim Watson is the son of Mrs. Dora Watson and the late Alfred Watson of Matador. He is a graduate of Matador High School. He is now a resident of Bakersfield, CA. This article is from The Bakersfield Californian, Wednesday, January 13th edition.

Jim Watson, vice president and general manager for Bechtel Petroleum Operations Inc., has been named one of three top facility managers in 1992 for the U.S. Department of Energy. Watson heads Bechtel's contractor operations for the Energy Department's Elk Hills field.

In a ceremony recently at Elk Hills, Watson received one of three Outstanding Contractor Manager awards for 1992 presented by DOE. The award is made to contractor managers demonstrating the highest levels of excellence in management and technical expertise.

The Energy Department's Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy, James G. Randolph, presented the award on behalf of Energy Secretary James D. Watkins, U.S. Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Bakersfield, was among those at the ceremony.

Bechtel Petroleum has been the unit operator for the Elk Hills field since 1985. Watson has served as Bechtel Petroleum's general manager since August 1989. In 1992, the Elk Hills field produced its 1 billionth barrel of crude oil, a milestone only 12 other American oil fields have attained.

Sales of oil natural gas and liquid gas products from the field last year produced revenue for the federal government totaling $415 million.

In addition to production and sales achievements, Watson was selected on the basis of his leadership in enhancing attention to safety and environmental protection. The Bechtel work force has achieved nearly 1 million consecutive hours without a lost workday caused by an accident.

Within the last few months, the site has begun a van pool program using compressed natural gas vans, one of the first such programs started at DOE facilities.

"As the senior Bechtel Petroleum manager at Elk Hills, Jim Watson has demonstrated outstanding leadership," Randolph said. "His application of Total Quality Management principles has resulted in a highly qualified and strongly motivated team of employees. We are extremely pleased at the department to recognize his outstanding contributions."

Watson also has demonstrated a strong sense of corporate citizenship, volunteering his time as a board member of several organizations in Kern County, including the Taft Rotary Club, where he is president-elect, and the Westside Energy Services Training and Education Center, where he serves as chairman. He is also on the board of the Bakersfield College Foundation and the local United Way.

Watson is also chairman of the Committee on Government Attitudes, Council on Competitiveness for the Kern County Board of Trade and is a member of the American Petroleum Institute's Pacific Coast Area Advisory Committee.

ASCS News

by Billy Wayne Denison
County Executive Director

A new policy on spousal signatures went into effect on August 1, 1992. The policy will allow a husband or wife to sign on behalf of the other for most farm programs in which either has an interest. This new policy will apply to all producers unless a written objection is submitted to the county ASCS office.

Recent election results for the Motley County Committee are as follows:

- Seab R. Washington, Chairperson from Flomot;
- William C. Lockett, Vice Chairperson from Matador;
- Lucretia E. Campbell, Member from Matador;
- James Timmons, First Alternate from Northfield;
- Glen Calvert, Second Alternate from Flomot.

The County Committee system is unique in that no other Federal agencies provide for such local control. Local farmers serving their neighbors has been an effective way of delivering farm program law for over 50 years now.

Time is running out for filing under Phase II or Phase III Disaster. February 12, 1993 is the last day to make application. Many of you still have fields that you haven't been able to harvest yet, and may not be able to get production data back in time to determine if you're eligible. Go ahead and make application as there will not be an extension. Hopefully, things will dry out and we can get back into the field for the last time on this year's crop. Abandoned crops will get appraised or assigned yields.

As of one week ago, 145 LDP (pop) payments have been made on 92 crop cotton. This represents 2,642,050 or approximately 5,283 bales. Also, 43 loans with 1,000,495 lbs., or approximately 2,000 bales, have been made.

Eligibility for participation in ASCS programs is open to all applicants as established under law without regard to age, color, disability, marital status, national origin, race, religion, or sex.
