Roaring Springs Yellowjackets Win Vernon Game 20-6

VERNON — Roaring Springs broke a tie with a 14-point production effort in the final period here Friday night to take a 20-6 win over host Vernon North Side in an eight-man football duel.

Roaring Springs took the lead with a 10-yard pass play from quarterback Johnny Thacker to end Harold Parks in the first quarter.

But the hosts tied it up before the first half ended, as quarterback Ronnie Wilson passed to end Roy Sively in a touchdown play which went 70 yards.

The Roaring Springs Yellowjackets were set upon the win, however, and used a nine yard run by halfback Dan Brandon and a five-yard scamper by fullback P. Owens for fourth-quarter touchdowns. Owens was successful in a two-point try to make it 20-6 before the final whistle.

Owens accounted for 126 of the 288 yards in rushing for the Jackets, which added 85 yards via air to their offense. Vernon North Side had 193 rushing and 91 passing.

Northfield Pioneer Rites Held Sunday

A VENERABLE PIONEER of West Texas is dead. B. F. Simpson, 95, died late Friday in Childress General Hospital. He was believed to be the oldest man in Motley County. He came to the Northfield community in 1896, filed on 160 acres of land and built Testimony of the reverence held for the pioneer, was the graded community building at Northfield Sunday afternoon, as friends paid their final tribute. Interment was in the Northfield Cemetery under the direction of Newberry Funeral Home of Childress. Ministers Alvie Johnson and Claude Woods, both of Turkey, officiated in the Memorial service, held at 4 p.m.

Ouchless Bandage Triumph of Science
New to the language of our times is the word "ouchless." Behind this rather effective new expression which may one day work its way into the dictionary there lies an amazing story of scientific research and accomplishment.
Fresh in the memory of every person over 25 is the familiar and painful sensation which frequently resulted from the removal of a bandage. Along with the adhesive would come tiny hairs, and often enough of the scab to re-open the wound. Then, the whole process had to be repeated.
To combat this pain and trauma, scientists in the research laboratories of the Kendall Company worked for years. Today's ouchless Curad and Telfa bandages are the result.

New Idea: Plastic On Wounds
The major breakthrough came when they discovered that plastic immediately next to the wound, a completely fresh concept in the treatment of open wounds.
The reason for the decision, plastic would not adhere to the cut or to the scab.
A plastic called "mylar" was finally selected because it was sterilizable — an important consideration. The next step was to find a way to capitalize on the plastic's natural resistance to adhesion without sealing off air from the wound and without restricting nature's flow of exudates.

To do this, researchers finally hit upon exactly the right number of perforations per square inch in the mylar plastic.
Next, they backed it up with a cotton filter for absorption, and, in turn, backed up the cotton with another perforated plastic cover which held the bandage to the wound and protected both. Then, the whole bandage was sterilized and sealed in a sterile wrapper.

The nation's doctors and hospitals then had to be convinced that the new concept of placing plastic next to an open wound would be safe and beneficial. Much research was done in hospitals and, finally, the doctors placed their approval on the new product when they saw it come off, time after time, without re-opening wounds.

The first major change in bandages in generations was a reality by 1956. Within a decade, the same basic concept has carried over in many other procedures for protection of wounds of all kinds.

Mercurial For Burn Treatment
From the small finger-size Curad bandage to very large dressings, doctors and the public now have available many convenient sizes.
Largest of these now common on drug store shelves is one which is self-adhering — the Telfa adhesive pad. It can be quickly applied with only one hand — often an important consideration.
Even the mylar plastic is used in sheet-form, without any backing, in the treatment of wounds caused by massive burns. It has proved an effective and mercurial aid in burn treatment.

Today virtually every hospital in the United States, and every drug store in the nation, stocks bandages developed on this principal.
Millions of the new bandages are used every day in the protection of wounded men, women and children — and the scientists, who had set out to create a better bandage are happy that they have, in the process, produced an "ouchless" one as well.

AUSTIN, Tex. — Far-flung operations of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have been placed under new administrative leadership.

Commissioners have named J. R. (Bob) Singleton as executive director. He replaces J. Weldon Watson who resigned last June.

Singleton had been serving as director of Region IV with headquarters in La Porte.

He picked Robert G. Mauer, Region V director at Rockport, as his chief deputy.

In his first press conference, Singleton said he is considering recommending a change in the Commission's controversial policy on shell dredging.

He did not disclose exactly what he has in mind but said any such proposal would be in the field of broad policy. His own close observation of dredging operations, he added, have convinced him that the Commission's 1963 and 1964 orders permitting shell dredging up to 300 feet of live reefs under close department supervision result in "extremely insignificant" oyster kill.

This issue has been heatedly debated between dredgers on one hand and fishermen and conservationists on the other since the old 1,500-foot-minimum-distance-from-reef policy was abolished.

A statewide tour of department facilities, particularly the parks, is planned by Singleton in order to familiarize himself first-hand with problems and needs.

Singleton declined to express his views on "closed door" meetings of the three-member P-W Commission. However, he did say "The commission sets policy... my duty is to implement and carry out that policy."

AG RULES — Not only may a county cut its tax rate when the reason for the tax disappears, but, according to Attorney General Waggoner Carr, it must. He pointed to the law which prohibits the use of tax funds for any purpose other than for which it was levied.

Carr also held that while a city may prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages at any time, it may not prescribe a lesser penalty for such an offense than is provided by state law. A district court has exclusive jurisdiction over all suits on behalf of the state and county for the collection of penalties on delinquent personal property taxes, although the county court may have the power to share jurisdiction in a suit against property for the actual taxes, Carr ruled.

BIG BEND AIRPORT PLANNED — Federal money will be available for building an airport adjacent to Big Bend National Park for commercial and general aviation, confirms Charles Murphy, Texas, Aeronautics Commission director.

Daniel Beard, National Park Service Southwest regional director, said $450,000 is expected to be provided by the U. S. government.

Money will go to land acquisition, planning and designing and actual construction. T.A.C. will supervise the work, including awarding of contracts, Murphy said. State will have to pay the cost of constructing terminal facilities and auto parking accommodations, as well as airport operation.

Texas funds are not now available and will require legislative appropriation or transfer from other source. Arizona's share of the Grand Canyon airport constructed under similar terms was about $160,000.

STUDY RESULTS — Attorney General Carr reports that a two-month study of Texas Highway Department records reveals no indication of evidence of price fixing among asphalt producers sales to the state.

Carr's staff made the study at the request of DeWitt C. Greer, state highway engineer. Request followed the filing of lawsuits in other states alleging antitrust violations by asphalt producers.

PROGRAM HAS BOOST — Texas' marketing program got a big boost when John C. White, Commissioner of Agriculture, received more than $45,000 in donated equipment to be used as traveling showcases.

These contributions from farm commodity groups, individuals and industry signaled a "new era in Texas agriculture, marketing and education," White said.

Gifts included two large trucks, two power generators, two mobile trailers, exhibit material and operational funds.

Matador took the ball deep in their own territory and marched to the one yard line. Crowell's linemen protected their goal for two plays before hard driving back Joey Meador went over the goal line to put Matador on the score board. Try for extra points failed.

After the second half kickoff, Matador lost the ball on downs, and Crowell seized the opportunity to make the final score of the game with 8:31 left in the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter Crowell took the ball deep into Matador's territory, ran out of downs and tried a field goal, which failed. Matador took the ball and marched toward the Crowell goal line on a long drive that was terminated by being forced to punt. Crowell fumbled on the first play and David Garrison recovered. Matador again lost the ball to Crowell though the visiting team failed to score the rest of the game.
