TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Despite rampant inflation in all directions, the cost of sin has not gotten out of reach of the average person.

Carried away by the flood of years was the farm home windcharger; only a few remain in remote areas as a symbol of man's constant struggle to improve his environment for himself and family. The windcharger passed with the arrival of REA for the farm home. It was expensive to buy and also to maintain but it filled a brief gap between the coal oil lamp and efficient electrical power. Its efficiency was always questionable as compared with today's standards, but it brought light to many windows that had previously been dark. The number of large batteries required for the equipment was always a problem. They were designed to store electricity when the wind was not blowing and the windmill that generated electricity was not in operation. The wind that generated the power is gone and the light they created is gone and the machine that created the light merely creates a shadow in the backyard of a few farm homes.

Work is the endgame that helps contain a wagonload of ambition that may be transported far enough to be delivered as achievement.

I reiterate with emphasis that I have done a few intelligent things in my life, but the ledger of memory shows that they have all been accidents.

One of the miracles of our age is the creation and distribution of electrical power. Threads of cold wires extend for hundreds of miles through the night, across fields, prairies, valleys and rivers to reach our homes. The heat generated in the giant plants brings light at the touch of a switch, heats an oven to cook bread, warms a baby's bottle or brings warmth to a home. It is a silent slave always at instant command; the servant to attend a thousand duties without complaint. Electricity is so dependable that we accept it as the beating of the human heart; an organ of progress that has contributed more than its share in making America great.

BLIZZARD SLAPS SPRING IN FACE

FLOWERS were blooming, birds were singing and the grass was greening, and then came Saturday (April 7). A sudden blizzard hit during the afternoon and dropped the mercury about 30 degrees by midnight.

Heavy mist changed to rain and later to sleet and snow. By Sunday night the temperature had dropped to about 27 degrees.

Most of the fruit has been killed according to some reports. In some places, however, blooming lilac bushes are still in bloom. About one half-inch of snow had covered the ground by Sunday morning, with much of it melting as it fell, because of the warmed earth.

To the north and west conditions were more severe. In Colorado and northeastern New Mexico cattlemen were in a crisis following the last winter storm. The new storm increased their problems with thousands of head of cattle freezing and starving.

Government planes and helicopters were brought into use to deliver feed to cattle that could not be reached otherwise.

The storm passed almost as quickly as it arrived and warm sunshine yesterday had caused the mercury to reach the 60's.

STUDIES ABOUT THE BIBLE

The final division of the New Testament consists of one book - Revelation. It was penned by John the apostle. Revelation is usually described as a book of prophecy. Verses one and two, of Chapter One introduce the book as, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show to His bond-servants, the things which must shortly take place; and He sent and signified it by His angel to His bond-servant John; who bore witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, even to all that he saw."

Christ appears in the first chapter and is the central theme throughout the entire book. Christ is symbolized as the lamb that was slain, the bright and morning star, and a conqueror who is the final victor.

The book of Revelation records many warnings to God's people and all mankind. "But I have this against you, that you have left your first love. Remember therefore from where you have fallen, and repent and do the deeds you did at first; or else I am coming to you, and will remove your lampstand out of its place - unless you repent..." (Rev. 2:4-5). Also, "I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book." (Rev. 22:18-19).

In like manner this book pronounces many of God's blessings. "Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life." (Rev. 2:10). Note this one, "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the Paradise of God." (Rev. 2:7). There are many more.

Is this generation looking to the true and living God as its shepherd, or is each individual becoming a god himself?

Lance's Toro

Have you had someone say something to you and then later think of a reply you wished you had made to them? Those witty remarks, compliments, student opinions and thank yous have a habit of escaping me when I need them most. And if I do manage to get my vocal chords to working, the words come out all wrong.

Teachers of Speech and English teach their students to commit to words; they have a huge responsibility to communication and with people like me, I'm sure they wonder if its not a lost cause! I think I'll be quiet and won't say a word, then a poem such as this one convinces me this is not a fool-proof remedy for my problem. This was written by Claude Coleman of Southern Illinois University.

"KEEP TALKING"

ALL problems are not merely verbal.

The philosophers tell me in uncounted thousands of words . . .

BUT

I tried making love with my mouth taped shut.

And I lost my love.

I tried making friends with my mouth taped shut.

And I lost my friend.

I tried making war with my mouth taped shut.

But no one was angry and the shooting stopped.

I went about the street with my mouth taped shut.

And they took me to the nuthouse, where I am today.

Wondering . . . If all problems are not merely verbal!

Maybe someday I'll be able to say the right thing!

If your six year old saw something like this, would he know how to phone for help?

It's too important a question to leave to chance. That's why we're running this ad. If there are any six- or seven-year-olds around your house, teach them how to report emergencies. Tell them to dial "0", give their name and tell our operator where they are and what's wrong. With older children, train them to dial emergency numbers direct, since that's the fastest way to call for help. But don't stop there. Copy down the emergency numbers listed on the inside front cover or first page of your telephone directory. Add your family doctor's number. And the number of the nearest hospital. Next, tack up the list near your phone. Then get your kids to memorize it, in case it gets lost. By the time they're through memorizing those numbers, they're going to have every grownup in the house knowing them, too. Which is also why we're running this ad.

Jameson Rites In Las Cruces

Funeral services for Elmer E. Jameson, 75, former resident of Matador, were held at 3:00 p.m. Monday, April 2, in Graham's Mortuary Chapel at Las Cruces, New Mexico, with Dr. Lloyd Hughes of St. Paul's Methodist Church officiating. Burial was in Masonic Cemetery at Las Cruces.

Mr. Jameson was born May 13, 1897 near Crowell in Foard County, Texas, and came to Motley County in 1912 with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Jameson and other members of the family. He was married to Miss Rebecca Williams, March 13, 1923, at Matador. They made Matador their home most of the time until moving to Carlsbad, New Mexico in 1942.

They lived in Carlsbad until moving to Las Cruces about two months ago in order to be nearer their two sons. They were living in Mesilla Park, which is a part of Las Cruces. Mr. Jameson was a longtime member of the Methodist Church.

Mr. Jameson was killed instantly Saturday afternoon, when a train struck him as he was walking his dog on the railroad tracks south of Mesilla Park, about 12:15 p.m. Eye-witnesses said a northbound

Santa Fe Railroad train applied its brakes and blew its warning whistles in advance of striking the victim. Investigating officers from the Dona Ana County Sheriff's office said the man, who wore a hearing aid, apparently did not hear the whistle and was struck by the train. Police said the engine struck Mr. Jameson on the top of the head. He was then dragged underneath the engine.

He is survived by his wife, Rebecca; two sons, Elmer E. Jr., and Thomas E., both of Las Cruces; a brother, Frank Jameson of Tulsa, Okla.; four sisters, Ona Jameson, Roberta Jameson and Mrs. Ethel Ratcliff of Matador; and Mrs. Mabel Pate of Lake Arthur, N.M., and six grandchildren.

Help us help her...

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources
Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

Fantastic as it may sound, food today is still a bargain. Put the situation in its proper perspective and you realize this is true. While we complain about the high cost of food, most of the world population's major concern is finding enough food to just stay alive.

While we complain that beef steak and hamburger and bacon and broilers "are out of sight financially", two-thirds of the world's peoples are happy if they can find a piece of bread or any scrap of meat to help them survive from one day to the next.

Because of the production efficiencies of agricultural producers, food in this country is in abundant supply and is of top quality. We are the only nation in the world that can produce enough for ourselves and have leftovers for the rest of the world.

This has not come about by accident. It is the quiet revolution that has been going on all around us without fanfare or notice by consumers. Ample food production is this nation's greatest blessing. Agricultural producers have constantly been increasing production. This is one of the major reasons food is still one of the best bargains in our economy today.

Consider these facts as they relate to farm prices before blaming the farmer for high costs of food:

Farm prices for food are up only six percent from 20 years ago.

The farmer gets only 40 cents out of each dollar spent on food; the rest goes for transportation, processing, packaging and marketing.

During the last quarter of 1972, the average American family spent only 15.8 percent of his income after taxes for food. Even with increases in early 1973, the level is about 16 percent. Compare this with 23 percent 20 years ago.

Farm production costs have more than doubled in the past 20 years; hired help is up two and half times higher than 20 years ago while farm machinery has more than doubled.

Average wage rates per hour of non-farm production workers are more than two and a half times higher than 20 years ago. In 1950, non-farm production workers averaged $1.33 per hour; in 1972 they averaged 3.65 per hour; in 1973 it was up to $3.78 per hour.

While retail food prices went up 33 percent from 1965 through 1972, per capita income was increasing 62 percent.

SINCE 1950 if prices received by farmers for cattle had risen at the same rate as first class postage, cattle would now bring $72 per hundred pounds. Had cattle prices risen at the same rate as hospital care costs, cattle would now bring $179.69 per hundred pounds.

Although farm prices have shown some increases in recent months, agricultural income is still below the rest of the economy. Parity—that figure used to show how agriculture is faring with the rest of the economy—is about 80 percent, still 20 percent under the rest of the economy.

The prices the cattlemen get today for their livestock are only slightly higher than they were receiving 20 years ago.

Only six commodities are currently above parity; all others are at price levels below that ratio.

alligator skins within the borders of the state. In short order, a maker of men's shoes went to court with the following objection:

"This law is unconstitutional. True, the state does have the power to protect consumers. But here they are not trying to protect consumers. They are trying to protect alligators. That is beyond the scope of legislative authority."

However, a court ruled that the measure was indeed within the "police power" of the state.

Alligator vs. Shoemaker

With ecology in mind, a state legislature banned the sale of

"Protection of animals," said the court, "is necessary not only for their natural beauty and for biological study but (also) for the key role they play in the maintenance of the life cycle."

Not long afterward, a shoe dealer tried another line of attack on the same law.

"It hurts our chances of making a living," said the dealer. "It destroys our property rights without due process of law."

But again the court upheld the legislation. The court said the shoe dealer simply had no "property right" to begin with in the wildlife of a foreign country.

These cases illustrate the legal issues that have arisen out of efforts to preserve "endangered species." As a rule, courts have looked with favor upon such efforts.

Nevertheless, if the state may act on behalf of animals, it may also act on behalf of hunters. In another case, lawmakers decided to introduce a special breed of deer into remote sections of the state—for the benefit of sportsmen.

It Has Been a Taxing Time Through History

From Childress Index -

If you think April 15 is a taxing time for you, consider the ancient Egyptian. He had to pay up whether he made it or not. In 2,000 B.C. there was a fixed harvest tax in Egypt, and it didn't matter if the year was good or bad for crops.

Poll taxes and property taxes also go back to the dawn of history, report The World Book Encyclopedia researchers, and taxes on inheritances and sales go back to the days of the Roman Empire. A sales tax in that day, though, was probably on a slave.

Some of the most unusual forms of taxation found in the study were levied in England during the 1600s when, in addition to a historic land tax, there were excise taxes on houses, hackney coaches, hawkers, burials, births, marriages and bachelors, and stamp duties and a window tax - some of which are still in force today.

But the income tax, as we know it, is a fairly modern phenomenon. This tax came into vogue in England in 1799 and can be blamed on William Pitt, the younger, whose tax act levied a 10 percent charge on everyone, rich and poor.

In the United States, there was no income tax before the Civil War. Until then, customs duties were virtually the only source of federal revenues, World Book researchers note.

But on Aug. 5, 1861, the first U.S. income tax was enacted. In addition, excise taxes came into being and an inheritance tax was introduced. Excise taxes covered a long list of commodities, including alcoholic beverages and tobacco.

In 1862 the first income tax revenues were collected, and 10 years later the act was allowed to expire. However, the grace period was short. In 1894 a second income tax law was enacted, but was declared unconstitutional the following year.

The 1895 court ruling notwithstanding, the government pursued the income tax. To effect an income tax, the 16th amendment to the Constitution was proposed. It was ratified in 1913, paving the way for you to surround yourself with check stubs, receipts, pads and chewed No. 2 pencils.
