Barbara's Bylines

One evening a couple of weeks ago I was out mowing and looked up in the sky and there was a beautiful yellow kite flying high above the houses and trees. It made me think it was spring, but i's really fall. Have you noticed some of the wild flowers have decided to bloom one more time. I have seen yellow daisys, broomwood and even saw purple flowers blooming along the roadside.

The plants as well as people really seem to be enjoying the cooler weather. Speaking of cooler weather, it brings to mind an article one of my classmates sent

Their father, Mr. Howard Martin expressed his concern for all teenagers who drive too fast on our roads and hoped this might encourage safety. There were no injuries and the boys were able to go on to school. Both boys were wearing their seat belts.

Social Security Tips

by Mary Jane Shanes

BABY BOOMERS SWELL DISABILITY ROLLS

Baby boomers - that groundswell of spo the population born during the postwar period (1946-1964) - whose numbers have stressed public facilities from schools to housing - are expected to swell Social Security's disability rolls too. Their pres-ence is expected to be reflected in a sig-nificant increase in disability applica-tions in coming years, Social Security

The oldest of the boomers are now over 45, the age group where disability is: most likely to occur. Thus, the number of persons expected to become disabled should increase as the portion of disability - age population increases. The number of disability awards is projected to increase from 4.08 per 100,000 persons for a total of 471,165, to 4.76 per 100,000 for a total of 666,250 by 2005.

paid to people who are unable to work because of a physical or mental impairment which has lasted or is expected to last one year or to result in death. More than 4.3 million persons are currently receiving Social Security disability benefits and another 1.3 million are receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability payments, which are also administered by the Social Security Administration. Administration

And, like the baby boomers, Social Security's disability program has also come of age. For example, today people can get accurate estimates of any benefits they might be due. With this information, they can plan ahead, adding anticipated savings, investments, private insurance, company pension, and other sources of income to come up with a good idea of what their income might be if the become disabled Individuals can pow request an disabled. Another indication that Social security's disability program has come of age is the extent to which beneficiaries can work while receiving disability payments. In fact, for more and more people, the disability program becomes a branch to the workplace rather than the end of the road. To help those beneficiaries who want work but are afraid of losing necessary benefit income and health care protection, a number of special provisions are now a part of the law. The provisions called "Work Incentives", permit cash benefits to continue until the beneficiary is working on a regular basis, medicare or medicaid to continue until they can af-ford other health insurance, and help with work expenses caused by their disability.

An additional important element of Social Security's disability program is Social Security disability benefits are that benefits increase annually to reflect the cost of living once a person starts receiving them. For example, benefits have because of a physical or mental impairincreased 20 percent over the past five years for those now on the rolls. However, there is a rule that prevents individuals from receiving more in combined public disability benefits (Social Security and worker's compensation among others) than he or she made while working.

Disability benefits provide a safety pet for people to use in planning financial net for people to use in planning financial security for themselves and their fami-lies. But like any other safety net, it works best when individuals know it's there as something they can count on.

For more information on this important protection, individuals should call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. and ask for a copy of the leafler. # Preparing For Winter

Summer heat is finally fading, but it's One place you don't want covered with not too early to think about staying warm this winter. West Texas Utilities Company suggests a yearly checkup to get you ready for the chilly months ahead. Just a few home repairs can keep you comfortable all winter and keep your home at peak energy efficiency. The best time for your home checkup is right now - every month you delay, your energy costs will be unnecessarily higher. Here are the basic steps for a do-it-yourself home energy inspection:

— Check the caulking around doors, windows, and other parts of the house, Letting air leak through small cracks and holes in a home's exterior is a major reason for heat loss in winter. Don't think those tiny cracks and holes are no big deal. If you added together the area of all these small openings on a typical older home, you'd have a hole at least five feet by five feet.

— Check weather-stripping along — Check weather-stripping along sides and bottoms of doors. A 1/16-inch wide crack around a door is the same as a 4x4-inch hole, as far as your heating is concerned. Make sure storm windows and storm doors still fit tight, too. Replace cracked or broken window panes.

Inspect your attic. Heat rising through the ceiling into the attic is a major source of heat loss. If your attic insulation measures six inches or less, you probably need to add more. Talk to an insulation contractor to learn the type and amount you need. Look for leaks in the roof. Wet insulation is less effective and the mois-ture can damage your home's structure.

WTU Offers Advice On

 Check the duct insulation to see that all tears and separations are taped and the insulation is securely wrapped around the ducts. Ducts that aren't properly sealed and insulated leak as much as 20 percent of heated and cooled air into our attic. This means you're paying to eat and cool your attic as well as your home, and wasting energy and dollars.

— Check floors over unheated areas, such as crawl spaces, garages or basements. These areas can be major sources of heat loss in an otherwise well-insu-lated house. If you already have insula-tion in these areas, make sure the support rods or wire mesh is secure. Be sure and add insulation where needed.

Whether you do the work yourself or whether you do the work yourself or hire a contractor, you're conserving en-ergy. By following the above guidelines, you help WTU achieve its main goals: to help reduce the drain on fossil fuels in short supply, and to help you keep your monthly energy bill as low as possible.

A. Many of the major credit card companies are offering attractive deals, such as lower interest rates, cash back on purchases and frequent flier miles, to attract new customers. The best way to determine which card will reap the most benefits is to contact the issuing bank directly. They can provide you with the information you need to make your decision over the telephone, or they can mail it to you with the application. You may also consult your local newspaper, since many of them publish a listing of the lowest credit card rates offered by Texas banks.

If you want to replace your old credit card with the new one, I suggest you notify the company to let them know that you are closing your ac-count.
