POTASSIUM THE MINERAL READILY AVAILABLE IN FOOD
Potassium is a mineral readily available in foods you eat daily. To be considered a good source of potassium, a food should contain at least 200 milligrams per serving. Major dietary sources of potassium include fruits and vegetables, milk and yogurt, meat and whole grains. The mineral potassium functions along with sodium and chloride, as an electrolyte which helps maintain water and fluid balance in the cells. Potassium happens to be the electrolyte found in highest concentrations within body cells, while sodium and chloride are found outside the cells. The kidney regulates the level of electrolytes by excreting any surplus.

Potassium functions in assisting in muscle contraction, sending nerve impulses and releasing energy from protein, fat and carbohydrate during metabolism. There is considerable evidence that dietary potassium may help lower blood pressure and protect against strokes. Potassium requirements could be increased to 3,500 milligrams per day. Also potassium's beneficial effect on hypertension has been suggested; that a diet high in potassium and low in sodium can help lower blood pressure in people with hypertension.

This link may help explain why there is a higher incidence of high blood pressure and related complications - such as stroke and end-stage renal disease - among blacks, who tend to have a much lower potassium intake than whites. People eating a diet consisting of a variety of foods are not at risk of developing a potassium deficiency. Large losses of potassium can occur through prolonged vomiting, chronic diarrhea and long-term laxative or diuretic use. Symptoms of potassium deficiency include weakness, lethargy, loss of appetite, nausea and abnormal heart rhythm.

COST SHARED LONG TERM CONTRACTS

THE GREAT PLAINS CONSERVATION PROGRAM
The Great Plains Conservation Program (GPCP) is a long term agreement between landowners and the USDA for a period of 3 to 10 years. The USDA provides landowners from 50-75% cost share for the implementation of approved practices. There are a large number of cost shared practices available to landowners. Some of the more common cost shared practices available to landowners. Some of the more common cost shared practices under GPCP are as follows: Construction of terraces and waterways, wind stripcropping, pasture planting, range seeding, brush management, permanent fence construction, livestock water storage facility, well, and ponds. In 1993 the Great Plains Program cost shared the construction of 68,456.8 cy. of Basin Terraces, 1,341.7 cy. Diversion Terrace, 32,026 ft. of Standard Terraces, 6,910 ft. Parallel Terraces, 4.2 ac. of Waterway Shaping, 4.9 ac. of Critical Area Treatment, and 614 ac. of Pasture Planting. Motley Counties Great Plains Program currently consists of 26 contracts on 19,896 acres. The Matador SCS field office developed 6 new contracts on a total of 5072 acres for the following producers: Charles Gwinn on 150 acres, Charles Gwinn on 226 acres, Ken Hurley on 441 acres, Jones, Murphy, & Price on 800 acres. Other producers with GPCP contracts include: Barbara Armstrong, John Barton, Lucretia Campbell, Darrell Cruse, Donnie Cruse, Davis Farm Supply Inc., Babe Jones Inc., Gary Lancaster, Carter Luckett, Hal Martin, Gladys McDonald, A.J. Perkins, Charlie Renfro, Garland Rattan, Pat Sheridan, Leona Terry, Joe Thacker, Craig Turner, and Johnny Turner. The Great Plains Program is an excellent means of getting conservation practices required under the Farm Bill (FSA) completed. Landowners interested in the GPCP and would like more information should contact the Matador SCS office.

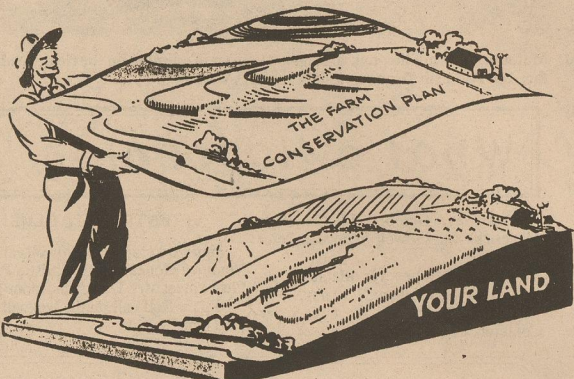

ACP-LONG TERM AGREEMENT PROGRAM

The Agriculture Conservation Programs Long Term Agreement (LTA) contracts are also agreements between producers and the USDA for a period of 3 to 5 years in which the Department of Agriculture provides from 50-75% cost share for the implementation of approved practices. In 1993 the Matador SCS Field Office developed one new LTA contract for Francis Ranch on 3229 acres. The 1993 LTA program in Motley County consists of 10 contracts on 5,945.6 acres for the following producers: Joe Cagle, Bundy Hal Campbell, Donnie Cruse, Ray Cruse, Francis Ranch, Jan Hamilton & Cheri Karr, Horner Partnership, James Renfro, Onieta Neblett, and Joyce Williams. Cost shared practices completed under Long Term Agreement contracts during 1993 are as follows: 33,078 ft. standard terrace construction, 7,545.4 cy. basin terraces, 1,361.5 cy. diversion terrace construction, and 89 ac. of pasture planting.

SWCD DIRECTORS ELECTION

4-H BANQUET

Each year the Upper Pease SWCD holds its annual director election immediately following the annual 4-H awards banquet which the SWCD sponsors. The SWCD has been sponsoring the awards banquet for many years as a part of its community development activities and as a part of their effort to promote conservation of natural resources, especially with the youth in the district. The SWCD supports the 4-H program. The election process held by the district is set by state law and says that to hold the position of director you must be actively involved in agriculture, own land in the zone you serve, and live within the district. To be an eligible voter you must be at least 18 years of age, own land in the district, and live in the district. The most recent election was held October 9, 1993 where Gale Stafford was elected to serve as director from zone 5.

COMMENDATION

Motley County producers are applying some of the best conservation systems in the region. Local producers are very familiar with the conservation provisions of the farm bill and have done an excellent job of implementing those provisions. There is also excellent conservation work being performed on our native rangelands. Local producers (both farmers and ranchers) are doing an excellent job of protecting the environment, conserving our natural resources, and producing food and fiber with production agriculture. THE UPPER PEASE SWCD AND THE MATADOR FIELD OFFICE OF THE SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE COMMEND OUR LOCAL PRODUCERS FOR THIS EXCELLENT WORK.

CONSERVATION COMPLIANCE

The conservation compliance provisions of the Food Security Act were legislated in order to reduce soil erosion on highly erodible croplands throughout the United States. Soil erosion caused by wind and water erosion not only results in a loss of cropland productivity but also damages our water quality. Various farming operations such as conservation cropping systems, contour farming, wind stripcropping, terrace construction, and filter strips can help to control wind and water erosion and protect our natural resources. In Motley County there are 527 highly erodible tracts on 92,857 acres which have had a conservation plan developed. The counties producers have continued to make great progress toward the implementation of Farm Bill conservation measures on their land. For 1993 the Matador SCS field office reported that 73 tracts on over 13,000 acres have fully applied their conservation plans. 70% or 369 highly erodible tracts have now fully applied their conservation plans. The Matador SCS office also assisted producers with revisions of their conservation plans. Plan revisions are made at the producers request or as a result of change in operator. 149 plans and 241 tracts on over 54,000 acres were revised during 1993. As the December 31, 1994 deadline for complete application of conservation plans draws nearer the Upper Pease SWCD and SCS encourage all producers to work closely with us to achieve our goal of compliance on all farms.

POSTER CONTEST

The Upper Pease SWCD annually sponsors the conservation poster contest for grades 2-6. The poster contest is designed to promote conservation of the natural resources and to make local youth aware of the need to protect these natural resources. By beginning at an early age, hopefully, this will carry forward as a way of life and protect our environment while still allowing us to use and produce our natural resources. This years poster contest had over 100 entries.

TERRACE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE

Terraces are constructed to control excessive erosion and increase crop yields through improved water conservation on many farms in Motley County. In 1993, 25 parallel and standard terrace systems for a total of 291,186 feet were installed. Basin terraces, larger and spaced farther apart on flat slopes were installed on 20 farms, 120,204 feet being completed. Underground outlets are used to discharge runoff through conduit or pipe safely. Two outlet systems were installed in 1993. Proper designs for terraces include adequate height and well maintained end blocks. End blocks are positioned so as to aid in water conservation as well as provide for the safe discharge of excess runoff. An estimated 20 terrace systems were repaired including replacement of end blocks in 1993. Diversion terraces are used where excessive outside water needs to be carried safely to a suitable outlet or waterway. 24,468 feet of diversion terrace and 3 grass-ed waterways were completed in 1993.
