Matador City Council Meets

The Matador City Council met Thursday, August 12.

* David Todd of Hibbs, Oller & Todd, Inc., environmental and civil engineering of Abilene, presented the survey map and a new bill to discuss at this time. Todd also stated his company has had a 10 year plus business relationship and they are willing to work out any problems to continue the good relationship with the City. The Council voted to cut the $7,000 bill in half and pay the engineer company

$3,500. Todd agreed.

Todd explained they are waiting on the State to approve survey and request to build the 1.7 acre pond to come up to the required amount of ponds for the volume of wastewater produced by the City of Matador.

* A request for a stop sign at the corner of Hackberry and Scotch was discussed. This passed.

"When you run your own business, you watch every dime. With an electric cooperative providing my service, it's the lights that keep burning, not my money."

Ever since I can remember, I always wanted to own my own cabinet making business. Starting any business is a challenge, but for me, the timing was perfect. It's been 18 years now, and I haven't regretted it once.

I set up shop in an area served by the electric cooperative. I was amazed at the way the cooperative representative worked with me on how to best meet my electricity needs—I thought that kind of service went out years ago. And now, one of the biggest advantages is the competitive edge I've gained: electric cooperative rates are the best around.

Most important of all, my electric service has been reliable—which is pretty important when you make your living with a power saw."

An Alaskan Adventure

by Mary Meason

This is the second part of the story of Mary Meason's adventure to Alaska.

Duck was going to fly close to the mountains and we flew into a huge volcano crater that was filled with a glacier. As we flew out of the crater, Duck flew real low over the ice. We took pictures of it and we could see every crevasse and the beautiful blue of the ice. I would love to have a dress the color of that beautiful blue, but I don't believe that color blue could ever be captured in any man made material. In all our round about flying just sightseeing we got to Homer a little over an hour before Patti arrived.

At Homer there is a long spit that extends out into the water and at the end of it there is a resort hotel and a restaurant. Other places of business are located on one side of the spit and people were camping on the beach on the other side.

We ate at the restaurant out on the deck and waited an hour or more to get our food. But did a lot of visiting and the scenery was spectacular and the food was delicious, after we finally got it.

Just across a narrow neck of Cook inlet just across from Homer is a little town called Seldovia and the only way to get there is by plane or boat. It is a little halibut fishing town and every house and every building is weathered gray. There is a boardwalk where the people can walk across to watch fishermen cleaning their catch. We made a tour of the little town and to the old church with its blue onion dome. Nearly all the Russian Orthodox churches I saw had the blue domes.

As we flew back to Kenai we saw a moose grazing in a meadow and Duck flew low so I could see my second moose in the wild.

We got home long before Patti did and had to wait for the tide to go out before we could get back on the beach. I was getting worried about Patti, but she arrived home safely.

Patti and I visited the Eklutna village which dates back to 1650 and is the oldest continually inhabited Athabascan Indian site in the vicinity.

In the village is the Eklutna Heritage House, where there are historical displays portraying the lifestyle and native art. In the village is St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Church and Spirit houses. The church was built in 1830 and reconstructed in 1970.

A hand hewn log chapel was built in memory of Mike Alex, the last Athabascan Chief. Their is a new church, Russian Orthodox, built by Mike Alex, his sons and others.

In the Indian Cemetery at the Village there are many Spirit houses. These little houses are placed over the graves forty days after death. Each family has a certain color or colors with which the Spirit house is painted. Chief Mike Alex also has a marble stone at his grave. Each spirit house has a Greek Orthodox Cross somewhere on it or around it. The use of Spirit Houses is a custom which comes from the melding of the Athabascan and Russian Orthodox beliefs and practices.

I believe that the most spectacular thing that I saw was the Portage Glacier which is located fifty miles southeast of Anchorage, in the Chugach National Forest and Chugach mountains. A visitors center is located there that has many exhibits describing the glacier and its effect on the landscape.

Years ago the natives used this glacier as a passage for a way to cross the mountains, thus the name Portage Glacier. There is a glacier pool at the foot of the glacier that has been formed by the melting glacier. There are a number of icebergs that have broken off of the glacier and when this happens the glacier is said to have calved. I asked how big one iceberg was and the guide said it was nearly a story high and the bottom of it was 200 feet under the water. There is a ferry type boat named the MV Ptarmigan, that makes an hour long tour to the face of the glacier, a Forest Interpreter was on board and pointed out the many things of interest. We saw an overhanging glacier, an ice cave and she even pointed out a bear that was near the water. We also learned that glaciation has been a force, there for one million years and the ice is 1/2 mile deep. On the way to Portage we saw many mountain sheep clinging to the side of sheer rock walls. They looked like statues standing there.

Duck, Patti and I drove into Anchorage one day for them to attend to business and for me to see my very favorite cousin whom I haven't seen for many years. And then the real fun started. It was time for the commercial fishing to start. Duck flew to Kenai and Patti and I drove in the pick-up. It was a beautiful trip. We drove down to Anchorage then up to Kenai. It was a long drive but it was very interesting and so pretty. The coming and going at the fishing site depends on the tide because when the tide was in we couldn't get out or in to the cabin, and many times we would have to wait for the tide to go out so we could get back on the beach.

This proved to be a very interesting experience for me. The fishing cabin was on stilts and stands high off the beach. There are steep steps leading up to the house and before I arrived Duck had the boys to put up a banister. I found an easier way to get up those steps - I went up them like a dog - on all fours. Everyone tried to get a picture of me going up those steps and if one shows up later the guilty person will forever be on my black list!

Duck fishes with six long nets that are set far out into the water and I could hardly wait to see those nets full of salmon, but unfortunately I had to leave before the big run came in. Fishing season starts when the salmon come out of the ocean and go up the rivers to spawn and die. As the fish come in there is controlled escapement whereby every river will get its share of fish.

When I heard of how many fish had been caught below Duck's fishing territory I just knew there would be no fish left for him. They were being caught by the thousands! He would catch a fish in his nets but only a few at a time before the run came in.

Fishing season runs from the last of June to the middle of August. Duck is allowed to fish two days a week, but if there is an excessive run then he is allowed to fish all week. Those excessive runs don't occur often. When not fishing everyone is busy mending nets and working on other equipment.

Duck is finishing his fishing this week, and will be home again. I'm anxious to call him and find out how many fish he caught.

We spent from July 1 until July 14 at the fishing site. A fishing site is a place of primitive living but I enjoyed every minute of it. There was no running water, no electricity and no inside conveniences. Light was furnished by a Coleman lantern, water was carried in from a nearby 7-11 store in big water coolers. The cook stove was a butane stove with an oven that didn't work. The cabin is one big room with one corner partitioned off to make a bedroom that contains a double bed. That is where Patti's dog and I slept. The rest of the cabin contained the kitchen, storage shelves, working counters, eating area and six bunk beds. I slept in a down sleeping bag every night and slept like a baby while the sun was still shining.

There had been a big storm last winter and rocks the size of baseballs and some larger ones and many smaller were washed up onto the upper part of the beach. These rocks were over ankle deep and there was no way I could negotiate those rocks without help. This posed a little problem. The outhouse was so far from the cabin that I had to have an escort to get me over the rock bed. Now that outhouse was really a work of art! The boys had made the frame work out of timber then covered it with blue plastic sheeting. There was no door but it faced a high bluff so no door was needed. But there was a danger to this arrangement. While inside this masterpiece rocks and sand would come rolling down that bluff and into the little building. Sometimes those rocks would hit our feet and that hurt! Rob called those rocks "ankle knockers". Rocks would have to be kicked aside to get in and out of that outdoor convenience. Patti and Duck apologized for the primitive conditions. I told them I was nearly eight years old before I knew there was such a thing as electric lights, running water and a bathroom. Baths were not an everyday happening.

We went to the town of Kenai to a laundromat to take a shower. For a quarter we could have a towel, wash cloth and soap, and we could get a wonderful shower.

The king salmon is a beautiful fish and they weigh up to 80 pounds. One day the boys got a 45 pound king salmon out of a net. They took a picture of me with the fish and wanted me to tell everyone that I caught it.

While there was no fishing going on we made many interesting sightseeing trips and visiting points of interest and museums. The Alaskan mountain range is just across Cook an inlet from Duck's fishing sight. I have never seen such beautiful mountains anywhere else I have been. The three prettiest ones were covered with snow. Mt. Redoubt is considered an active volcano as spurting clouds of smoke can be seen at times and I saw it while there. The other two mountains are Mt. Iliamna and Mt. Spurr. Iliamna has already blown its top sometime in the past. Finally, it was time for me to leave this beautiful and interesting state.

Duck flew me into Anchorage to catch my plane for Seattle. My niece and her husband met me at Sea Tac Airport and I visited with them for 16 days. The time flew by so fast.

I've already written about everything of interest that I've seen and done in Washington, but there is one thing I want to tell about.

The road to Mt. St. Helens, which erupted several years ago has been extended to a high point so one can look down into the crater. We spent one day going to St. Helens but when we got there it was so cloudy and foggy that we couldn't even see the mountain much less the crater. But there were many interesting exhibits at the visitor centers and the drive was beautiful. The wind from the volcano reached the unbelievable velocity of 600 miles per hour. For many miles around huge trees and many, many smaller trees were felled just like toothpicks. It's hard to comprehend the force of a volcano. Many logs have been hauled out to use as lumber but others were burned to cinders and crumbled at the touch of a hand.

Veteran Extension Director To Lead Rolling Plains Agricultural Program

Vernon -- A veteran educator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has been named that agency's new District Director for agricultural programs in the 25-county Rolling Plains District.

M. Scott Durham, who has more than 14 years with the Extension Service, the last three as Director of its East District headquarters at Overton, will assume the post here September 1. His appointment was announced by Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, State Extension Service Director. Durham will replace Ed Garnett, who retired last year after more than 30 years with the agency.

Durham, 38, is a native of Fort Worth.

He holds a BS Degree in Animal Science and a Master of Agriculture Degree, both from Texas A&M University.

He joined the Extension Service in 1979 as a County Extension Agent in Lee County, serving there for two years. He then served six years in Bandera County as County Extension Agent and agriculture program leader. Durham then served Comal County for three years as agriculture program leader and trainer agent. He was named District Director for the East District in 1990.

Durham and his wife, Debbie, have two daughters and a son: Casey, 11; Laura, 9, and Mike, 7.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is an arm of the Texas A&M

University System. County Extension Agents are professional educators who live and work with people in a designated county and form the basic unit of the agency. District Extension Directors supervise agents and administer programs. Direct educational support is provided to agents by Extension Specialists, educators with a particular subject matter background.

Counties comprising the Rolling Plains District, effective September 1, are: Archer, Baylor, Childress, Clay, Cottle, Dickens, Foard, Hall, Hardeman, Haskell, Jack, Kent, Knox, Montague, Motley, Palo Pinto, Parker, Stephens, Stone-wall, Throckmorton, Wichita, Willbarger, Wise and Young.

WTU Introduces New Home Construction Program

West Texas Utilities Company has introduced a new home construction program called Good Cents. The program is designed to provide greater energy efficiency and promote environmental conservation.

Under the plan, homes that are built to meet specific standards will qualify for rebates while providing greater savings on utility bills.

Over 300 utilities participate in the Good Cents program. Together they serve 25 million residential customers in 30 states. More than 600,000 Good Cents homes have been built in all parts of the country.

WTU Residential Marketing Manager Gary Throckmorton commented, "Another advantage to buying or building a Good Cents home, besides the low operating costs, is the special financing that is available. Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association) has approved a 'Stretch Lending Ratio' of 2% for homes that are certified by WTU. This means that buyers can qualify for a more expensive home."

The program calls for the installation of high efficiency heating, cooling and water heating equipment, high levels of insulation throughout the home and measures to control air infiltration. WTU consultants can assist with proper sizing of all equipment for the greatest energy savings and provide the home builder with additional tips to ensure that the desired home comfort levels are met. The consultant will also inspect the home at various intervals during construction and certify it upon completion.

The homeowner can expect to save 20 to 30 percent in operating costs compared to a standard home. Homes that use less energy save natural resources needed to produce electricity, which benefits the environment.

Anyone planning to build or buy a new home is encouraged to call your local WTU office to find out how Good Cents can benefit you. It just makes good sense to build "Good Cents".

Arbor Day Foundation Offers Free Trees

Ten free Colorado blue spruce trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during August 1993.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"Colorado blue spruces were selected for this campaign because of their many uses in the home landscape," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said. "They lend beauty to their surroundings with their silver blue-green color and compact conical shape. They can be used as individual ornamentals, an energy-saving windbreak, a privacy screen, or as living Christmas trees."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's news magazine, Arbor Day, which includes regular features about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to TEN BLUE SPRUCES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by August 31, 1993.

Letter to the Editor

During our recent visit to Matador we came by the Tribune office but found it closed for vacation. We regret not seeing you but we hope you all enjoyed your week.

Matador was our home for years, so we enjoyed lovely Roaring Springs, driving near our farm and the area of Bar-H Ranch where we were raised, and attended prayer services on Wednesday night at the First Baptist Church, etc.

Spending some time one afternoon with our Aunt, Pearl Rattan, and as many friends as possible on a two-day stay brought back many memories from the warm welcome town of Matador.

It's always nice to go back to your home town again to just do the things your heart desires. I am back out that way about every year or so, but Dorothy had not been back in 14 years. It is with regret that we did not see some of you there but we will be back for another adventure and hope to see you then.

A tough kid made the life of a small boy miserable at school. One day the big bully set out to hurt the little fellow. He was frightened. But just then he saw his big brother, a karate expert. Running behind him, he yelled, "Now come on!"
 The boy, the bully, the big brother - what a picture! There never has been such a bully as the devil. And there never has been such a Strong One as the Lord Jesus who's not ashamed to call those who believe on Him His brothers.
 When the devil attacks you, don't panic. Get behind your big Brother. Trust Him to whip him. The Bible says, "The battle is the Lord's."
