TRAIL DUST

Thundering hoofs at sunrise and golden dust rising from a sloping trail like enchanted vapor through a narrow vent from an old dew-jeweled urn, were certain harbingers of a change in the weather. The work horses would push their noses into the heavy, sweet air and race from the pasture to the corals, manes and tails matted in the sky as they reached the broad, sandy creek-bed. Their tempestuous feet are quieted now and grass grows in the old trail; only the hills and the sunrise packed in a tight caisson of silence, remain unchanged. The barefoot youth who loved the frolicking horses had wandered away with a trace of the echo in his heart, as one who presses a flower between the pages of a book to keep as a talisman of happiness.

Envy is a small worm which causes many otherwise sound apples to be classified with the culls.

Cowboys say the hotter the branding iron the less pain to the bawling calf, but the danger of burning through requires skill in handling. The irons of love that brand the hearts of men are heated over slow, cruel fires and the work is often done with blundering hands.

Death has called the hand of the tall gambler who smoked his cigarettes until it seemed they would scorch his purple lips. His voice was always rich and clear as red wine bubbling in a glass, but his eyes were dead and cold like the glassy stare from buttons sewed below the ears on a fur wrap. He looked like a poet except that his clothes were too perfect; they were as faultless as his card playing. Whispered stories of his past contended that he had been educated for the ministry, but he had looked behind the curtains of the theatre instead, and there met and loved a beautiful woman. She had married another man to spite him, they said, and he had squandered his life to spite himself.

It was only in the later years after threads of silver appeared in his thick black hair, that he poured forgetfulness from the cup, and then in the silence of his friendless world. He seemed too invincible to leave the community of the living with no more ceremony than a few flowers, a solemn word or two and a pile of spotted clay bearing the polished marks of a swinging pick. Perhaps his companions are wondering if he still holds aces.

She had never been a happy bride. Her adoration was too great for the handsome, careless man she had married and the smoke of tears clung to her small face even as she laughed. I have always believed a very lovely flower shed its petals on the floor of her heart the night we poured him out of an automatic elevator with the aid of two apartment porters. After he was in bed I left her looking at his swollen face and crying softly as a little girl with the pieces of a broken doll.

More sunlight finds its way through the windows of a hovel on the mountain than in the palace in the valley.

Fate ties strange knots in the ends of ropes to which we cling during the stirrup-charge of youth and often a tired hand is opened to reveal a few strands of faded jute instead of the plaited silk grasped when the drums were beating. The tow-haired boy who used to set an alarm for three o'clock on winter mornings, throw a ragged overcoat over his shoulders and wrap his feet in gunny-sacks to fight the chill of a fireless room, as he wrote frail, never-to-be-read lines, is lost somewhere in the deep swamps beside the river of adversity. His foolish, childish prayers cling to an echo in the wind sloshing in the flumes of night.

White Blanket Over West Texas Trails Rain; More Wind

West Texans looked at the calendar after they were greeted with a heavy, wet snow Sunday morning, in order to determine the season. During the night considerable rainfall visited the Panhandle section to be followed by the snow after the wind changed to the north. According to the U. S. standard rain gauge maintained by J. H. Sample, a total of 90 inch of moisture was recorded. While the snow, following the rain, melted rapidly, it was estimated that a possible six inch fall visited this section. The ground remained white until well into morning Monday. Farmers and stockmen declared the moisture will be of great value to wheat, early crops and ranges.

Texas Fire Loss Is Cut In Half Shown By Two Year Survey

AUSTIN, April 7.—Texas' total fire loss has decreased over 50 per cent during the last two years, Marvin Hall, Fire Insurance Commissioner, announced today.

"Figures compiled from the reports of over 500 Texas fire marshals show that the high fire loss trend of 1931 and 1932 has taken a steep swing downward in recent years," Hall said. "The total loss for these two depression years was $32,638,537. The total loss for the years 1935 and 1936 was $13,732,587—still too high an amount, but encouraging nevertheless."

According to the fire marshals' reports to the Texas Fire Insurance Department, 79 per cent of the 6,514 fires in 1932 occurred in dwellings, with a loss ratio of 55 per cent. In 1935, 68 per cent of the fires occurred in dwellings, and in 1936 the number decreased to 2,897, or 62½ per cent of the total number of fires. The loss ratio has decreased 20 per cent in five years.

"While it is true that the total premiums on dwellings for the years 1932, 1935 and 1936 were approximately 47 per cent of the total State premiums, yet the number of dwelling fires and the amount of dwelling losses each of those years is indicative of the fact that too many fires have been and are occurring in the home. The amount of losses on dwelling house fires for the year on which we have the latest figures, 1936, was $1,627,479," Hall said.

"Our reports prove conclusively" Hall explained, "that the large number of dwelling fires occurring each year are a direct result of the economic conditions of the time. Too many fires are started in lean years as 'profit' fires, and the number of fires of unknown, suspicious and incendiary origin seem always to decrease when times get better."

Hall stated that only through investigation by the proper authorities and by active fire prevention measures to eliminate careless fires could losses in dwelling houses be further reduced.

"The Fire Insurance Department is proud of the splendid work Texas' fire marshals, fire chiefs, and cooperating citizens have done in cutting the number of incendiary fires in fourth, the number of vacant house fires in sixth and the total number of yearly fires almost in half," Hall said.

Cowboy Musicians Will Have Sister Band Next Year

ABILENE, April 5.—A Cow-girl Band will compete with the famous Cowboy Band next fall at Hardin-Simmons university school officials announced this week. The same opportunity for travel, musical education and a share of the spotlight according to the Cowboy musicians will be offered feminine tuba tooters.

Director Marion B. McClure of the university Cowboys will supervise organization and training of the girls. Special uniforms will be provided and band trips similar to the boys' globe-trotting will be booked.

"Although the Cowboy Band is approximately 275,000 miles ahead of its proposed sister organization, the girls can provide plenty of competition for the boys in short order," McClure predicts.

Both advanced and new students will be eligible for the band when it takes form next fall.

Playgrounds Cause Delinquency Drop

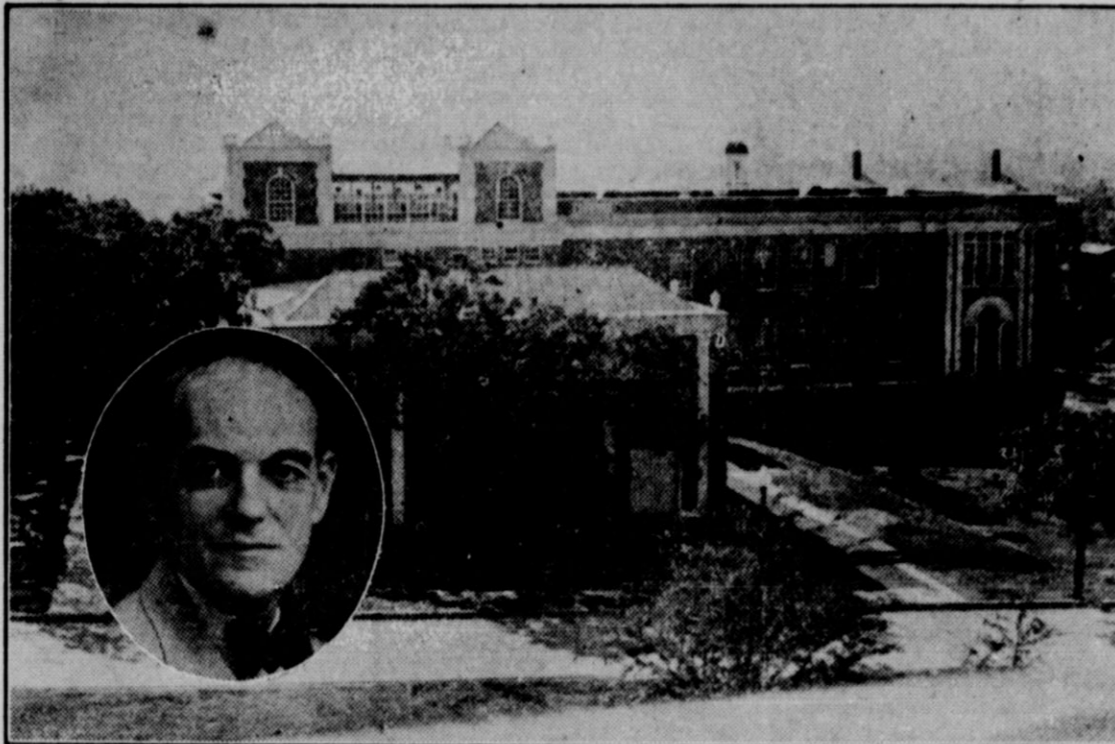

SAN ANTONIO, April 6.—A decrease of from nine to seventy-five per cent in juvenile delinquency has followed the maintenance of WPA recreational centers in Texas cities, it has been reported by municipal authorities to Walter S. Knox, state supervisor of WPA recreation projects.

Probation officers and other civic officials supervising juvenile activities in a number of Texas cities declare that depredations of young gangs on street lights, playground equipment, and other public property practically disappear in areas which are served by recreation leaders. For more than a year thousands of youngsters have organized under the guidance of WPA playground supervisors to participate in athletic events, musical groups, dramatic clubs, handicraft classes and in other useful and beneficial leisure time activities.

Conoco Co. Has New Deep Producer

PONCA CITY, Okla., April 6.—Promise of a new oil pool in Louisiana was seen today with announcement by Continental Oil Company that its Ophe Hebert Well No. 1, Vermillion Parish, is producing 50 barrels of high gravity oil and 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas, after having been drilled to 12,216 feet and then plugged back to 7,675 feet.

The Hebert Well, second deepest ever drilled in the United States and the deepest on the Gulf Coast, encountered a high pressure sand with good saturation from 11,198 to 12,216 feet. This sand was never tested due to mechanical difficulties and the small size of the hole at that depth. A sand at 11,795 feet showed considerable gas and 3,650 pounds pressure, but was cemented off to enable testing of other sands further up in the hole. After plugging, the 5 and 7-inch casing was perforated with 28 holes from 7,666 to 7,675 feet, from which sand the 50 barrel daily production was obtained.

Oil men here are of the opinion that the Hebert Well forecasts the deepest commercial production yet found in the United States. The only well ever drilled deeper was the McElroy No. 103, in West Texas, which was abandoned at 12,786 feet.

40-MILE HIGHWAY IS REALLY GOLD-STUDED —$12,000 PER MILE!

Talk about gold-studded stuff, Colorado has a 40-mile highway that's actually peppered with the precious yellow metal—$12,000 worth per mile!

Carveth Wells will tell all about this "road of gold" in the Continental Oil Company broadcast, "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells", which may be heard at 6:30 Saturday over radio station WFAA, Dallas. The travel program will be devoted to the Pike's Peak region of Colorado. Going back to the days of '59 when thousands of people from all sections of the country set out for Colorado in their Pike's-peak-or-Bust covered wagons, the popular explorer-reporter will show how the finding of gold led to the discovery of much greater wealth—colorful scenery and a health-giving climate. "The Pike's Peak region is like an enormous scenic exposition", he says, "and an excellent system of scenic highways has been constructed solely for the purpose of enabling motorists to enjoy it."

Featured on the program will be Wells' picturesque description of America's most famous mountain. "No matter how you reach the top of Pike's Peak, get there somehow," he advises, "for the experience of being 14,110 feet above the sea is something you'll never forget."

Trench Silo Boon To Local Farmers

The great value of the trench silo as a superior method of storing feed has been adequately demonstrated to Motley County farmers during the present winter. Thirty-five silos were filled and much of the ensilage has already been fed with complete satisfaction, according to Frank A. Buckley, county agent. Accounts of several outstanding cases have been printed in this paper, and many more of equal merit could be written, Buckley states.

W. M. Graham and Curtis Graham, who have two trench silos on their farm near Four Corners, are elated over their experience. Forty-six whiteface calves, produced on their own ranch, are thriving wonderfully on ensilage and cottonseed meal. They have purchased a cutter and plan to put up a much larger quantity of silage this fall.

W. L. McWilliams of Whiteflat is feeding a pen of cattle from his large silo which was filled two years ago with uncut cane. Will A. Campbell of Roaring Springs has opened his silo which was cut full of "sweet" maize as a public demonstration last fall. He is feeding the ensilage to work stock, milk cows, and beef calves, and regrets that he did not put up a larger supply. J. F. Anderson of Roaring Springs is maintaining a large herd of cows and calves, from his two hundred ton silo. He plans to greatly increase his tonnage this fall.

If a bountiful feed crop is produced this season, a large percentage of it will doubtless be stored by means of the trench silo.

ON TOUR OR IN TRAFFIC BE MERRY WITH YOUR ENGINE OIL-PLATED

You can laugh off your old doubts about warm-weather engine oiling, because Oil-Plating is so terribly hard to rub off, scrape off or burn off. Here's one form of lubrication which is not a mere shifting temporary oil-film. For in addition to the normal moving type of film, vastly strengthened, Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a stationary Oil-Plating.

The explanation is that patented Germ Processing makes this oil really plant itself on bearings, shafts, and upright surfaces too, such as cylinder walls. Not even the good old Law of Gravity can make Oil-Plating drain down. It's always up there all the while your car is parked, or showing its heels in the open. None of that much-mentioned starting risk for you... No anxious eye on the heat indicator... Lots longer between drinks of oil, in your old or new car, with its engine lastingly Oil-Plated by Conoco Germ Processed Oil. Continental Oil Company

"THERE IS GLORY ENOUGH FOR ANY MAN TO LIVE AND DIE A TEXAN."

RESETTLEMENT CASE RECORDS

The Resettlement Administration, with its broad-gauged program designed specifically to rehabilitate and restore the confidence and integrity of the low income farm worker, is using the far-famed "cow, sow and hen" idea, as a basis for the long-time program of farm rejuvenation. This idea is the fundamental basis of a soundly planned program that makes the farm family self-sustaining and largely independent of the price fluctuation of commodities.

The "cow, sow and hen" plan is being put into practice on thousands of farms in the Panhandle-Plains of Texas, eastern New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, etc., where this federal agency has had to step in and offer a substantial loan service to farmers whipped by dust and wind and drought. That this help is appreciated is evidenced by the many stories of rehabilitation told by county supervisors, and by the farmers themselves, who pay tribute to the faithful work of Resettlement advisers. The cooperation between farmers and Resettlement workers will pay its dividends now and in the years to come in a higher type of agriculture everywhere.

To the farm and home management specialists of the Resettlement Administration is due the credit for the rehabilitation of many of these farmers who saw their future blasted by the scourge of drought. Their work is to guide and advise the farmer in the best type of crops to be raised, the best manner in which to handle his soil in order to maintain its maximum fertility, and advise on all farm problems. The home management specialist helps the women to solve the problem of the home, helps her to plan a garden, aids her in canning food that ordinarily might go to waste for winter consumption and in many other ways does her bits by giving advice that makes the farm home a happier and more wholesome place to live.

In addition to these aids, the county supervisor studies the needs of his clients and recommends them for loans or grants with which to carry on a program. The home management supervisor surveys the needs within the home and suggests loans or grants to enable the mother to build a happier and a more substantial home life for her family.

The successfulness of the program is not based on hearsay evidence; it is tabulated in the records and reports of the county and home management supervisors. The records are cold statistical reports, but when broken down they show how great has been the service.

Business for the most part in lauding this program because business knows the value of a prosperous agriculture. Thus it seems that the work of this agency will continue for a long time, for its earnest workers have placed the feet of thousands of families on the sure road to economic independence by giving them a broader vision of the future, by giving them help at a time when they were lost, and by working with them until they were financially able to stand on their own efforts.

Abilene "Mecca" For Musicians, Senior Classes

ABILENE, April 6.—Hardin-Simmons university became the "mecca" of west Texas high school students this month as vocalists, band boys and seniors converge on the Cowboy campus for annual contests and festivities.

Nearly forty bands are entered in the annual "battle of batons" set for April 9 and 10. Twenty trophies and the world's largest band cup await the winners. Already in the past is the annual voice and choral contests sponsored by the fine arts department of the university. Judge of the April 3rd contests was the famous John H. Patrick, basso of the Chicago Civic Opera Co.

Climax of the month's programs for young people is the annual Senior Day festivities set this year for April 24. Invitations are out to nearly 5,000. Food committees are making preparations to feed barbecue and "trimmings" to at least 3,500. Special entertainment will be provided. Registration figures for the month will be well in excess of 5,000 young visitors, reception committees promise.

Judge Atwell To Be Commencement Speaker This Year

ABILENE, April 5.—Judge William H. Atwell of Dallas will be commencement speaker for Hardin-Simmons university's forty-fifth annual graduation program, Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president, announced this week.

The June 1 exercises will follow but two days the baccalaureate sermon by Dr. R. C. Campbell, secretary of the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

First Baptist and University Baptist churches will be scenes of the annual programs for Hardin-Simmons seniors.

The federal judge and Dr. Campbell are both well-known to Abileneans. Judge Atwell is the donor each year of the medal that goes to the author of the best essay on "The Light that Never Fails". Hardin-Simmons graduating class will be approximately 20 per cent larger this year than last.

Abilene Legion To Open De Luxe Club House June First

Recreation spots where West Texas boys and girls can run and play, where their mamas and papas can go for a swim and a dance and where the younger set can meet in their run-down flivvers or their swanky sport models—that's the example set by Abilene's American Legion.

And it's all a part of the building boom now sweeping the West Texas country where, not so many years ago, savage Injuns once sought relaxation in the non-too-savory sport of taking pot shots at our ancestors.

"The harder people work, the more they need relaxation," opined N. C. Beam, local manager for the West Texas Utilities Company who paused from his multitudinous duties long enough to discuss the Legion's Building project in Abilene.

"Now, take those boys there," he continued, "they don't have much money to work with but they've managed to dig up the dinero for a 50 by 130 foot club house—all because they work hard and they want to have a little fun in their spare time.

"And they're not doing any slouchy job, either. Modern as any high-powered club house in the country. Why, they've already installed 90 feet of lumiline lights in four different colors across the ceiling of that building. And they're dicker for an attic comfort cooling system so they can sit and read, write, or do their jiggling, this summer with all the comfort of a seaside resort. They've even figured out a way to finance a complete electric kitchen for their banquets and conventions. Those boys sure have got something on the ball!"

The Abilene Legion has a 5-acre plot on the main highway east of the city. Located on the site is a children's playground, a natatorium, a caretaker's cottage and the new club house—50 by 130 feet in size. The entire grounds is lighted by flood lamps.

The club house, constructed of native stone, includes a dance floor 35 by 81 feet which can be converted into a theatre with a stage at the north end; lounge rooms for men and women; banquet kitchen; lodge room and office. A patio, 12 by 88 feet is on the east side facing an artificial lake and the swimming pool. A cove lighting system, with center ceiling construction of lumiline changeable lamps in four colors (red, green, yellow and blue), extends the length of the building.

Ruck Sibley, chairman of the building committee and former post commander, said completion and gala opening of the club house on June 1 will culminate a drive begun 11 years ago by the Legion for a recreation park which might be opened to the public. Income from the swimming pool and dance facilities will be used to promote Parramore Post's "community service, child welfare and public safety" program.

The Post plans a three-day dedication program about June 1. A nationally famous orchestra will be secured for the event, Sibley said.

956,000 TEXANS
BENEFIT FROM SECURITY LAW

SAN ANTONIO, April 6.—More than 956,000 people in Texas are benefiting directly under the Social Security Act, with eight of the act's ten provisions now in operation in this State, according to a statement issued today by Oscar M. Powell, regional director of the Social Security Board. Among these beneficiaries are approximately 670,000 who are estimated to be employed in jobs covered by the State unemployment compensation law and 120,000 who are being aided under an approved old-age assistance plan. Records show that $36,586 wage earners have applied for accounts under the old-age benefits program. Practically all these are also covered under the State's unemployment compensation law.

Powell explained that only one part of the act—the old-age benefits program which went into operation January 1—could become effective without State action. In the other nine programs the States must take the initiative. Texas, it was pointed out, has set up approved plans for seven of these services, covering: unemployment compensation; aid to the needy aged; maternal and child-health services; services for crippled children; child-welfare services; vocational rehabilitation; and public-health services. The programs in which it is not yet participating are: aid to the needy blind and aid to dependent children in their own homes.

Through the old-age benefits program workers in commerce and industry are now beginning to build up credits toward regular monthly incomes which will give them something to live on after they retire.

Under the State's unemployment compensation law, enacted on October 27, 1936, eligible workers who become involuntarily unemployed will be entitled to regular payments of 50 per cent of their full-time weekly wages, with a maximum of $15 per week and a minimum of $5 or three-fourths of weekly wages, whichever is less. Ordinarily, benefits may last as long as 15 weeks during a year depending upon the worker's past employment. The State is already collecting funds under this law, which stipulates that unemployment compensation payments will begin in January 1938.

Powell stated that under the State-Federal old-age assistance program approximately 120,000 of make your linen closet something to be really proud of. Paint the inside walls and shelves a color that harmonizes well with the nearest wall color... we'll take a deep blue, just for example. The wall directly back of the shelves, however, we'll paper with some odds and ends of paper left from the bedroom walls, a dainty blue and white. Then the snowy linen—bound in separate heaps with blue linen bands. It'll take only four hours for the shades to dry and it's "ready!"... off with the old, and on with the new.

But don't stop with the linen closet. Your clothes closets are crying for a little attention, too. Give them a good going over with paint and brush and cover old boxes with cheap cotton or chintz or wallpaper for storage containers—paint the old shoe rack to match the rest, and then stand back and admire your efforts.

The modern home calls for more colorful living... every room demands good color treatment... every nook and cranny needs attention, from big wall surfaces and big rooms to little corners and cupboards that your guests may not see but which are before the eyes of your family every single day.

Before you start storing things away in your closets why not take a look at those closets themselves. What is your reaction? Do they look pretty dingy and dusty and overcrowded... just plain messy, in other words?

Why not get after them this very day. Take everything out... scrub the boards and shelves just as clean as you can get them... and then paint and really do things. You can be made to the State by June 30. The plan approved for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, provides for a Federal grant of $190,590. Under the 1936 approved plan for services for crippled children, $49,999.92 had been paid to Texas by June 30, 1936. The 1937 plan, as approved, includes a Federal grant of $152,730.62. A Federal grant of $27,349.74 was paid to Texas for child-welfare services under the 1936 plan. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, a Federal grant of $90,758.43 was provided in the Texas plan approved.

the State's needy aged during March received cash allowances from funds provided in part by Texas, and in part by the Federal Government. It is estimated that in March it paid out from combined Federal and State funds a total of $1,800,000 for old-age assistance. In January, the average individual payment to the aged was $14.98. These estimates are based on reports to the Social Security Board since this plan went into operation.

The Texas old-age assistance plan under the act became effective in July, 1936. All told, it has received Federal grants of $7,180,950 for old-age assistance. Texas passed a State law for old-age assistance in 1935, but this did not become effective until the present plan went into operation. It has had a State law for aid to dependent children (mothers' aid) since 1917, but had not made any specific provision for aid to the blind.

In addition to participating in these programs for which the Social Security Board is the Federal administrative agency, Texas is also cooperating in social security programs directed by other Federal agencies.

The three maternal and child-welfare programs, administered by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, provide for the extension of such services, particularly in rural areas. Texas had an approved plan for maternal and child-health services for 1936, and Federal payments totaling $42,001.66

The purpose of vocational rehabilitation is to provide re-education for workers crippled in industry. At the end of the last fiscal year, 2009 such persons were receiving training under the Texas program, for which the State has received Federal grants of $90,054. The Federal administrative agency for this part of the act is the Office of Education of the Department of the Interior.

Under the public-health provisions of the act, which are administered by the United States Public Health Service, Texas has received Federal grants for the purpose of expanding and strengthening its State and local public-health services. Up to January 31, 1937, these grants totaled $317,812.45.

The Social Security Board has maintained a policy of decentralization in order to bring the act as close as possible to the participating States and to the people.

In line with this policy it has established twelve regional offices. That for Region Ten, which comprises the State of Louisiana, Texas, and New Mexico, is in the Maverick Building, North Presa and East Houston Streets, San Antonio. The regional offices serve as field headquarters of the Board's three operating Bureaus, which administer Federal old-age benefits, unemployment compensation, and public assistance. The Board has also opened field offices in connection with the administration of old-age benefits in a number of cities, including Austin, Dallas, Houston, and San Antonio. The State-Federal programs are administered by the following agencies, all of which have headquarters in Austin.

Unemployment Compensation—Unemployment Compensation Commission. Old-Age Assistance—Old-Age Assistance Commission. Maternal and Child-Health Services—State Department of Health Division of Maternal and Child Health. Services for Crippled Children—State Department of Education. Crippled Children's Division. Child-Welfare Services—State Board of Control Division of Child Welfare. Vocational Rehabilitation—State Supervisor of Vocational Rehabilitation. Public-Health Services—State Department of Health tion before the coming of the white man. The water mark of the Indian is always stamped into the paper that records the history of the pale face.

The City Hall is but a stone's throw from here. One sees two tablets affixed to its outer walls near the entrance. One of them commemorates the fact that in 1819 the 'Savannah' sailed down the river—the first steamship to cross the Atlantic Ocean. The other tablet tells us that the 'John Randolph' was the first iron vessel in American waters.

Savannah's Pride-Forty Years Ago...

Near Madison Square one sees a large red hostelry of distinguished mien—the old De Sota Hotel. Its walls and deep, commodious verandas have sheltered the finest transients of the past who made this handsome southern city their temporary home in their travels. It was the only first-class hotel in its day—forty years ago—even yet, although superseded by newer and more modernly equipped hotels, it still remains an old aristocrat among hosteleries. One sees in its halls old conservative people who found shelter under its elegant and hospitable roof years ago when they were young. These people refuse to desert their old friend—the De Sota Hotel.

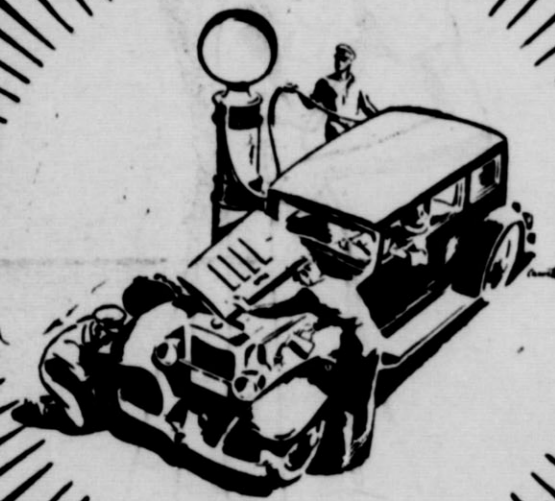

Old Residences...

Time nor space will permit me to go into exhaustive detail and tell you about all the many interesting old homes here in Savannah. I can only give a mere sketch here. The Davenport home a perfect example of Georgian architecture, was built in 1800, The Owens or Thomas house, the 'Pink House' so called on account of its pink stucco, the Mackay or Hunt house, with its fine architectural features was at one time the home of the famous miniature painter—Edward Green Malbone. The Low home in Abercorn street sheltered very distinguished guests in its day—Thackeray in 1853 and Robt. E. Lee in 1870. The Green Home was formerly the headquarters of General Sherman during his occupancy of Savannah. The Telfair home was designed by Jay, a great and famous architect of his day, in 1820. This house stands on the site of a building formerly occupied by the provincial governors of Georgia. This place has been enlarged and is now an Art Gallery. Some of its rooms with its carved marble fireplaces, its paintings, furniture etc., are still intact for the most part.

Pan American Fair Traces Mexico's Mails Back Through Centuries to Indian Runners

PAN AMERICA, Dallas, Texas, March 29.—From the days when Aztec runners carried hieroglyphs of tribal chiefs to Montezuma and emperors before him, through the centuries down to today's super-efficient postal system of Mexico, the means of communications below the Rio Grande will be shown in an exhibit planned as part of the Mexican participation in the Pan American Exposition at Dallas.
Postmaster General Alfonso Gomez Morentin of Mexico has not committed his government definitely to the idea. In a recent visit with Director General Frank L. McNeny of Pan America, however, he described the plan he has for portraying an interesting story: how the mail has gone through between Mexico City and points outlying from the capital since the days when it was Tzucchtlan.
Long before European governments first thought of systemized postal service, the Incas and Aztecs had a runner system of carrying their cochineal-dyed writings on silkgum and maguey fibers about official business of empires that flourished before the Golden Age of Greece.
In Montezuma's reign, communications had developed to the stage that, when Cortez landed his conquistadores at Vera Cruz the news was transmitted in less than twenty-four hours to the emperor at the capital, 200 miles away.
The mails from Spain and how they were carried, how mail was speeded up when the horse was introduced as a new and faster beast of burden and development from the very start of the Mexican national government are on record as part of a treasure collection in the postoffice department at Mexico City.

ANTIMONY ONE RAW MATERIAL NOT NATIVE TO TEXAS, YET SUPPLIES U. S.
LAREDO, Tex. (Special)—Texas, sometimes chided by her own economists for alleged prodigality in exportations of native raw materials and too few processing and manufacturing industries, nevertheless boasts one unique distinction in the latter field—the United States' only antimony smeltery.
The big plant here of the Texas Mining and Smelting Co., established in 1930 and doubled in capacity in 1935, not only has put Texas on the antimony map, but has given the nation an industry theretofore missing and one that is a vital contribution to national defense, says a report of the All-

South Development Council. Started during the depression, it has given substantial employment steadily since its inception, without taking away any employment elsewhere in the nation.
Antimony, a silver-white crystalline element used as a stiffener and hardener for lead alloys having many industrial, chemical and military uses, is not a Texas raw material, and in fact antimony-bearing ores are not found in commercially important quantities anywhere in the United States.
Yet the Laredo enterprise has been responsible for a radical and desirable change in the import situation in both ore and metal, the report says. Although China has long dominated the world market, the Texas smeltery has looked to Mexico, and to a lesser degree Bolivia, for its ore. The result is that whereas China furnished 75 per cent of the United States requirements in the period 1913-30, in 1931-35 that figure dropped to 40 per cent, while imports from Mexico increased from 8 to 51 per cent, nearly all in ore, processed at Laredo.
From the standpoint of national defense, this shift in antimony supply is regarded as particularly important, improving the accessibility of both ore and metal from Pan-America instead of from across the Pacific, and making practical the utilization of certain small domestic stores of ore, principally in Idaho. The Laredo smelter, since 1931, has produced as much metal, lacking only 11 per cent, as has been imported during that time.

Storage battery plates, bearing metals, and type metals are the three biggest uses for antimony per cent of the total, respectively. Its uses in ammunition and for cable coverings are vitally important, though not so large at present.
As oil contributes to the industrialization of the southwest with expanding of refinery operations, and sulphur finds more consumption "at home" in agriculture and in the growing heavy chemicals industries of Texas and Louisiana, so may Texas antimony find increasing uses in industries here, notably in the fast-growing auto storage battery industry.
