The Freedoms Foundation issues awards also in other fields. The teachers award is based on work, leadership, inspiration and example, among other qualifications. Of the 444 awards made to teachers in May, only nine were to Texans.

J. L. Woodruff presided in the absence of Commander D. P. Keith, and during a discussion of the polio program locally, prevention rather than cure, was stressed. Howard Traweek presented the matter and enlisted the aid of the Legion and Auxiliary in promoting the project.

Tilson's "tricks" drew two curtain calls, whereas others on the program received only applause. He was one of four of the performers interviewed by Larry Grove, reporter for the Dallas Morning News, and featured in an article in Tuesday's issue.

A self-taught prestidigitator, the 65-year-old Matador farmer stages a highly entertaining amateur show, and has entertained in "just about every school auditorium in West Texas."

Two Injured as Cars Overtaken

Two men were injured about 7:45 p. m. Monday when a jeep pulling an automobile overturned 13 miles north of Matador on State Highway 70. Both vehicles overturned.

Leonard Culberth of Quanah, at the wheel of the towed automobile, and M. C. Powell, 21, of Spur, were brought to Stanley Hospital here in an Eudy-Seale ambulance. Culberth was treated for severe laceration of his left hand, bruises and shock. Powell was treated for minor bruises and slight lacerations.

State Highway Patrolmen F. E. Johnson and W. A. Richardson, stationed at Paducah, investigated the accident, said the vehicles headed north apparently because of too much slack in a tow line, causing them to overturn. Patrolman Johnson said the automobile was badly damaged in the freak Labor Day accident.

Guests of the club were Lion and Mrs. Elbert Reeves of Matador. In a business meeting with the directors before the program Lion Reeves discussed details concerning the purchase of a rural fire fighting truck through the Motley County Civil Defense setup.

SHOWERS ACCOMPANY ELECTRICAL STORM

A narrow strip of Motley County was one of the few places in the United States where any rain was reported Sunday as abnormal heat tortured the nation. A band of thunder showers signifying north of here about 11 a. m. Sunday morning advanced steadily accompanied by terrific lightning. Electrical power was interrupted several times and the TV Signal Tower was put out of commission. A number of bolts are reported to have hit in town but no serious damage resulted.

Showers accompanied the steady advances of lightning that continued for approximately two hours. A total of 40-inch was registered at the city wells by Water Superintendent Sonny Jackson.

An area south of Turkey is reported to have received three inches. The showers were east of the Flomot community but some sections reported in the neighborhood of two inches. Roaring Springs received only a light sprinkle and the amount received in the south part of town was less than registered at the city wells.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Whitworth, Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Harry Willett and Mrs. Marvin Brotherton were Lubbock visitors Monday.

Polio Shots Needed. It was brought to the attention of the group that many school children are not taking polio shots, and an educational program is being worked out in cooperation with the schools to emphasize the importance of child immunity.

Pina Sturdivant Sees Bogola's Traffic As Certain Escape from Fatal Boredom

 Pina Sturdivant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sturdivant of Matador, in Bogota, where she is teaching under a fellowship, has written the following interesting letter to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Whitworth.

 Bogota, Colombia
 July 30, 1959

Well, here I am, in the land of sunshine and siestas, only a part of the time it is cloudy and hot, and I haven't had time for siestas yet. Really, it is very much like a large American City, except for traffic and a few variations and sundry sights that would be extremely odd back home. Traffic is one of the most fascinating things about Bogota. There are very few stop lights, and no one pays any attention to them. Driving a car or walking across a street is nothing more, or less, than a game, a grand gamble with life and limb, which Colombians play with wonderful finesse and abandon. When a pedestrian starts across the street, the coming cars speed up just to see him run. Drivers weave in and out of lanes, seeing how narrow a space they can squeeze into, and how small a margin they can leave the other cars. Everyone passes cheerfully into this happy game, and if I die in Bogota, it won't be from boredom!

Some of the strange sights revert back to pioneer days: horse-drawn wagons with wooden wheels wobble along beside shiny new cars. Black-shawled men tug reluctant, heavily-laden burros along the street—on the sidewalk, whichever happens to strike their fancy. Street vendors line the sidewalks, and each tries to proclaim his wares in a louder voice than the next. Cows graze loose on the highways and in the suburbs; every morning there are two or three in the front lawn, peacefully minding their own business.

Another national institution in Bogota is the bus lines. The bus lines firmly believe that all people are equal, and have a right to pursue lice, liberty, and peace. No person is denied passage as long as he can pay for it, whether his burden be pigs, chickens, dogs, snakes, or fresh bread. The drivers have unshakable faith in the strength of their engines and in the capacity of their buses. Whereas an American bus driver might feel well satisfied with 40 passengers, a self-respecting Colombian driver would carry less than 60; maybe he can't get them all completely in the bus, but after all, there are all sorts of places to hang on.

Cold in Bogota
 It is very cold in Bogota and rains at the most indiscriminate time. One must wear his coat indoors as well as outside, because there is no such thing as heaters in houses.

There are five teaching fellows on the same sort of fellowship that I got. They are: Sylvia Brant from Kansas, Nancy Sturdivant from Illinois, Bob Blair from New Hampshire, Ed Potter from New York and myself. Since I am the only Southerner—and a Texan to boot—and the smallest of the bunch, I catch a bit of teasing. However I've found a perfect way to shut them up. One of last year's teaching fellows had organized a square dance group, and although he has gone back to the States, we still square from 10 to 1:30 every Saturday morning. At this time I am the only one of the new teaching fellows who has danced more than two sets without having to stop and rest. (The altitude bothers them), and I haven't missed a set yet. Luckily, the altitude doesn't affect me at all; so I just tell them that I may be the tiniest, but I'm still the toughest. They are all nice kids, and we have a lot of fun.

Nancy and I live in the same apartment, and we have inherited a pet from one of the girls who lived here before us. His name is Juan and he lives nearby. Juan wants to go to the U.S. to college, and loves to practice his English. Almost every afternoon since we have been here, Juan has taken us some place or another, such as the military exhibit and the National Museum. He has shown us which buses "are good for us" and which ones aren't. He is also harder to get rid of than a grasshopper.

 Another jewel in my treasure of acquaintances is Margola, the maid. Margola speaks only in Spanish, of course, so we don't always understand each other perfectly. She knows what is good for American girls—anyway, she firmly believes she knows. Take for instance, a glass of water to drink. Margola firmly assured me that water is only for washing hands. If you want something to drink, it must be coffee, milk, or whiskey. No water—it isn't good for the stomach. I had to hide out a glass in the bathroom to get water to drink. Another thing is popcorn—it is for dinner only. One does not, under any circumstance, pop it for a snack. Eggs are something else that are not good for the stomach, not very often, but I can see her point there—they cost 45 cents apiece!

Fleas in Bed

I am on Margola's probation list. She isn't sure whether or not to accept me, because she found fleas in my bed when changing sheets. "Senorita Pina," she screamed, "Hay Pulgas!" Sure enough, there were some nice, fat little fleas. Margola was horrified. This is a very clean house, she told me. Trancha, the other lady, and Nancy don't have fleas. Brandy (the dog) doesn't have fleas either. Brandy is a very clean dog? Just me—I am very thankful to those few stray fleas, which I probably got on the bus coming home from classes. Up till then, the hot water heater had been turned on only once a day—in the morning—and if one wanted a bath, he bathed then, or else. The water was never more than luke-warm. With my fleas, I had a bargaining position! I told Margola that if she would have the water hot when I got home at night so I could bathe, I wouldn't get any more fleas on my sheets. The water has been hot—really hot, not just lukewarm—every night since.

Washing facilities are very near at hand. Just outside the back door is a concrete stand with a wash tub and a faucet of cold water. The rub-board is propped nearby, and the teakettle is just inside the door, on the stove. The clothes line is brilliantly stretched under and to the lee of two occupied birdcages, and low enough that Brandy can play with the clothes. (Maybe that is why Margola spreads her clothes on the grass to dry.) There is no such thing as a laundry—unless you send them out to be washed; so everyone wears wool. It's warmer anyway.

Bogota is noted as being the only city in the world where people can—and will steal the doorhandles off of a taxi as they get out. I didn't really believe that story until I rode in a couple of taxis—minus a doorhandle.

One thing is certain in Bogota—there is never a dull moment. It is an adventure just to ride the bus downtown or to walk a few blocks.

I'm not much at writing letters—things are very interesting when they happen, but rather dull when written down. Sorry it took so long to get a letter off. I've really appreciated the notes you have written me. There is no greater boost to morale than a letter in the mailbox!

Bye for now,
 Pina Sturdivant

Letters to the Editor

Benjamin, Texas
 September 1, 1959

Dear Editor:

We received a copy of your Aug. 27 paper and have enjoyed it, as Ed's father was an old timer there. He was known as "Loco Bill" Nolan and was killed while working for the Matadors in 1893, in July before Ed was born in September.

We saw Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cooper and had a nice talk with them. He knew Mr. Nolan. We want you to send us your paper. Be sure and begin with this week's issue as we want to hear about the reunion at Roaring Springs. You surely have a good paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nolan

SOMEONE HAS POISONED YOUR DOG

The following letter, from Roaring Springs, was received a few weeks ago, with a request for an estimate as to the cost of publishing, under advertising rates. The Tribune feels that the message is not advertising; a part of the letter reads as follows: "perhaps it will make people stop and think before they lay out this deadly poison that will kill both dogs and children... it was only a dog this time but it caused heartache... it would have been a great sorrow if it had been a child..."

 Roaring Springs, Texas
 August 13, 1959

"He was just a little hound pup. But someone loved him... his cute funny ways, even his naughty pranks, such as tearing up the newspaper... he brought joy to someone."

"There is a sailor boy far from home and I must write and tell him his dog is dead."

"When I told him good-bye, the last words he said were, 'Mom, take care of my dog for me until I come home.'"

"I promised, with all the faith in the world, that I would do so. Two and a half hours later I arrived home to find his dog dying."

"My younger son is weeping bitterly for the little white pup that is gone. I am sitting here trying to compose a letter... wondering how to break the news gently to a sailor boy, that his dog is dead... trying to find the courage to say, 'Someone poisoned your dog.'"

LIBRARY LAPSE

by Ida Fair
 GREEN MANSIONS by W. H. Hudson is the story of a young man, known by his friends as "Mr. Abel," who left his native country because of a political dispute. He fled to the Osinoco and Amazon regions where, in Brazil, after a long and trying struggle, he proved worthy of living with the Indians.

One day when wandering through the forest, he thought he saw someone dressed in white flitting among the trees. When he related this to the village chief he was told this was a devil woman, and never to go back to that part of the forest.

Mr. Abel, though, had a curious nature, so he went there again. This time the "spirit" played tag with him, but he never could see her. He went again and again, until finally one day an accident led him to see her. A snake bit him so she took him to her forest home to heal him. Although she was illusive, he finally learned her name, Rima, about her mysterious background, and grew to love her.

To find out about their romance, the Indians reaction, the journey, and the sad, sudden ending, be sure to read Green Mansions. It contains 261 pages and can be found in the MHS library.

She has also taught two years at the University of Texas. Mrs. Oden says that she likes teaching because of her contact with young people.

A Final Demonstration Climaxing Ford's 3 Years and 3 Million Miles of Research and Development on the New Ford Falcon ...

EXPERIENCE RUN, U.S.A.

A fleet of Falcons is going to undergo a final exhausting test... over every single mile of numbered U.S. Federal Highway... along a cross-country route that will include the ups and downs of two major mountain ranges, the challenges of every type of roadway and highway, rain, snow and hail.

TODAY... 10 P.M. THE NEW-SIZE FORD STARTS ON ITS WAY TO YOU!

The Falcon, the New-Size Ford, already is the most thoroughly tested and proven new car in history. Today this new Ford Falcon starts EXPERIENCE RUN, U.S.A., over every mile of numbered U.S. highway.

This is not a test run in the ordinary sense of the word. For in its 3 years of development and over 3 million miles of proving, the Falcon has already passed and repassed every kind of test that could be devised.

It's been dust-tested, heat-tested, and endurance-tested on the test track at Kingman, Arizona. Wind-tested and rain-tested in the 500 mph wind tunnel at the University of Maryland. Shock-tested, curve-tested, brake-tested, noise-tested, paint-tested, stability-tested, service-tested... everything-tested on Ford's own proving grounds. The Falcon has already proved to engineers that it takes anything they can dish out.

Now, Experience Run, U.S.A. will show you what the Falcon can do over your kind of roads.

How many miles to the gallon? Records will be kept of every drop of gas used. Better gas mileage? The Falcon will average up to 30 miles per gallon!

On October 8, the New-size Ford will be at your Ford Dealer's... for you to experience. See your Ford Dealer today for more information on the Ford Falcon.

then hit paydirt with a run around right end. Dink Wilson scored the extra points on a keeper to push the score to 26-0.

The Owls took the kickoff, ran one play, and saw the quarter end. Early in the final quarter the Matadors intercepting a pass and losing the ball and fumble. The Owls couldn't move, punted to the Matadors 28, and started losing ground. The Matadors, running with a freshmen backfield, moved to the Owl 40 before losing the ball on downs.

Owls Make First Down

The Owls then made their first first down of the game on a 28 yard jaunt by James Roy Brown. The run was a display of broken field running, winding up on the 32. One play later Ros Bearden intercepted an Owl aerial and returned it 55 yards to the Owl 27 before being tackled from behind. The Owls held the Matadors on downs and picked up a first down in two plays. Then Dixon snagged a pass and returned it to the 15. With time running out the freshman backfield, with the first team line, began to move.

Kenny Barton gained six yards to the 9, and Mike Barton picked up a first down on the two. From there, on the game's final play, quarter back Gary Lancaster sneaked over. Fullback Loyd Martin scored the extra points, and the final score stood 34-0.
