RAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

There is a certain sadness in the eyes of musicians as they watch the dancers, like lone souls straining against a wind that holds them from eternal rest. The violinist caresses his instrument softly with his cheek and the bow attuned to the soul, pleads with the fates, and draw the strange designs of life.

Something is wrong with the roads. I have found the reason. More people are riding the night than the passenger trains.

For the burial grounds of the West Texas city the other day I was driving fifty miles an hour when a horn sounded behind and I pulled aside—to a hearse pass.

Nature becomes a mad artist when the mild frosts fall and the drunken genius of a jealous lover, mixes the canvas and the heart. While above, hangs the uncertain hand of the giant, ready to tear the fragile paper from its moorings and in swirling, twist it into a misty roll that falls beneath the soft of cold, heavy feet.

The years fall in their efforts to heal the scar left by a school teacher whom I trusted and adored, when he scolded me for wanting my time in trying to right him. He was, perhaps, right.

What he saw in store for me that he could have spared me that stretched night and the burned lamp with childish tears in the daylight first struck the newspaper tucked to the walls of my lean-to bed room. Life is too crisp at sixteen to be bent and twisted and tied in a knot.

I have walked on many deep carpets and they weave a certain spell of luxury about the soul, but all have been as soggy and unclean rags when compared to scampering barefooted over low-drenched grass at sunrise on a June morning.

No spot this side of the blood-drenched hills drained by the river, is so charged with loneliness as the streets of a strange town when the Neon lights flash and cut wanton holes in the sacred robe of night. The trackless desert, the jagged skyline of mountains and the silent cone of lone have nature close, but for those who journey alone, the city street is the burned stable of fields after the wind ceased to smoulder and the wind has whipped the dry ashes away.

From each day that passes, a few grains of salt crystallize and slip into the cup of life as we surrender one by one, the frayed and stained ornaments that once glittered as the truth. For years I believed those who looked straight forward as they spoke, until I found that the deceiver often sees wide, clean eyes as a screen, and, washed down with the billiard ball of facts, I learned that a firm hand-shake does not always seal a friendship, nor can a promise be greater than he who makes it.

Grand Jury Reports; Five Indictments

THE STATE OF TEXAS, COUNTY OF MOTLEY. In the District Court of Motley County, Texas, November Term, A. D. 1934.

To Honorable Kenneth Bain, Judge of Said Court: We, your Grand Jury wish to report that we have been in session for two days during the present term of this court and we have investigated all law violations brought to our attention and those within our knowledge and we have returned five felony indictments.

We want to thank Your Honor, the County and District Attorney, the Sheriff, his bailiffs and Deputies, the District Clerk, and all other officers of the county for their assistance to us during our deliberations.

SURVEY TURKEY TO CLARENDON ROAD FINISHED

E. W. Marrs, former Resident Engineer of the State Highway Department for Motley county, who has recently completed a preliminary survey of the proposed extension of Highway 18 from Turkey to Clarendon, declared in an address at the Motley County Chamber of Commerce banquet held here Tuesday that, although the project will prove expensive, it will cost less than first estimated, providing the designation is granted.

Mr. Marrs said that the principal expense would be involved in the rough country between Turkey and Red River and the 2100 feet of bridging required, the 23 miles of road north of the river to Clarendon requiring only the average highway expense. The proposed road would extend from Del Rio Texas to Perryton and provide a direct outlet from the south to the north Panhandle.

Mobeetie to Take Part in Centennial

MOBEETIE, Texas, Nov. 5.—The history of old Mobeetie and Wheeler county is being recalled in connection with plans for celebration of Texas' Centennial of independence in 1936 and the movement for the reconstruction of old Fort Elliot as a historical shrine.

The tearing down of Fort Elliot in 1900 destroyed one of the last of the series of posts constructed for the protection of settlers against Indians. Established in 1876, it was situated two miles west of old Mobeetie on Sweetwater Creek, and only a marker now designates the spot.

The town of Mobeetie dates back into history farther than the fort itself, for in 1875 when the wagons loaded with lumber and other materials came down from Dodge City, Kan., they stopped at a settlement called Hidetown, a supply point for buffalo hunters, which grew and finally was renamed Mobeetie, the Indian name for sweet water. Between 400 and 500 soldiers were stationed at the fort during the few years it was maintained as a military establishment, and settlers moved in from other locations to seek their protection. Billy Dixon, the scout of whom it is said "he shot and killed an Indian a mile away," visited the fort as did many other men prominent in Texas history.

Of the early-day west ruled its outskirts, while the culture of the section centered in the town itself. Among the earlier residents were Gov. J. N. Browning, C. G. Grigsby, Temple Houston (son of Sam Houston), J. D. Miles and Judge Willis. J. J. Long who died in 1925, came to the county in 1825, came to the county in 1825 and later drove the mail here from Dodge City. It was Long who purchased the Fort Elliott flagpole, which today stands on Mobeetie's main street, when the fort was torn down.

Several old-time houses and the jail built in 1886 still are standing, although construction in those early days consisted mainly of adobe, rock and pickets, covered with hues, and the last but not in the county was killed one-fourth of a mile west of the old town in 1874.

Flomot News

Mrs. Arden Cloyd, who has been on the sick list for some time is much improved at this writing.

We are sorry to have Ruel Skinner on the sick list this week. T. W. Hunt and family of Amarillo, visitor in the home of his parents here Sunday.

A. J. Hudson left Saturday for Colorado Springs, Colo., where he will make an extended visit.

Orval Webb has purchased the Conoco Service Station here from Morris Gates and has taken charge of the business. Orval says to come by to see him when in Flomot.

Tom Bynum and family left Saturday for a visit with friends and relatives in Colorado.

Morris Gates and Raymond Ross have gone on a trip through California and other points west.

Total attendance of the Flomot Sunday Schools last Sunday was 193.

The total enrollment of the Flomot public school for the first two months was 227 and the average daily attendance was 183. This month we are running a bit light on attendance due to cotton picking.

On Tuesday of last week the Flomot junior boys defeated the Whitehat boys 13 to 0 in a hard fought football game on Flomot's grounds. Both teams showed an increased knowledge of the game over the last time they met and there are a number of these Junior boys who will one day star on larger teams.

Jack Wilson of Ardmore, Okla., was in Flomot this week transacting business.

A good many of our people attended the American Legion banquet in Matador Saturday night. A good time was reported by all. Several legionnaires from here also attended the Armistice day program in Spur Sunday afternoon.

MOVIE CHATTER

Well, Well, Well, they say all good things must end; and some of them end before we are really ready for them. But then when they are over, they are just gone and something else must be substituted; this is a philosophy of life that will apply to a great many things that we as mortals lead up to in this great mystifying existence of ours. What I am leading up to is this: The gentleman who has been writing this column for the last year and a half is leaving for permanent residence in Tipton, Oklahoma, to manage a newly acquired theatre there. I hate to go folks, this is my home and no town can take its place. L. H. Dirickson and wife will manage Rogue No. 2 in my place in the future. Well, 'old reservoir,' I hate to leave you.

Coming Friday and Saturday we have another good western picture. This time it's a new star, Lane Chandler, in his latest picture entitled "Cheyenne Cy-

Senior Report

The Baptist church is having a special service Sunday night for the members of the Senior class, their parents, and the faculty. It is hoped that everyone will be there. Forrest Faulkner came back to school last Tuesday at 1:30 smiling from ear to ear; just think, a Senior getting to school so late! But this is the reason: because he made the highest average in the Senior class last six weeks he was an honor guest at the Lions luncheon last week. Forrest said the chicken luncheon certainly was delicious. Attention was called to the Balfour Honor last week. That means the Seniors are beginning to think about who will get the high honor. Who will be the lucky boy and girl? The six Seniors who ordered rings this fall are beginning to develop a long face because their rings have not come yet.

Junior News

The Juniors have been good and it seems they have no news, but that really would be news if so.

Sophomore News

The Sophomore class gave the assembly program last Friday, Nov. 9. Songs were sung by several of the class standing in a formation of an "M." A harmonica duet was given by Furman Vinson and Joe B. Meador and Modena Graves gave a tap dance. Mr. Stanford gave a talk and Furman Vinson a reading, both of which were on the "Value of Good Speech." The Sophs also gave a play along the same line of the talks. The title was "She Got the Job." The scene is the office of an executive and the present day. The characters were: the boss, Mr. Allen; Carl King; his secretary, Marjorie Moore; office boy, Joe B. Meador and applicants, Modena Graves, Joeda Berryman, Clayton Titus, and Ruth Irwin.

General News

A new addition has been added to the Balfour plaques. The names of each boy and each girl out of the Senior class who receives the Balfour honor are put on separate plates. The Balfour honor is given for Loyalty, Achievement and Scholarship. This honor has been given to one boy and one girl out of each Senior class for the past eight years. The boy clone. This should be a very good western. Then, Sunday and Monday we offer you W. C. Fields of "You're Telling Me" in his very latest picture "Old Fashioned Way," co-starring Baby LeRoy. This is a comedy from away back yonder folks, one that you can laugh at from beginning to end. Don't miss it.

I have just finished about a two hour chat with Mr. Faylauer, the Hollywood actor who writes the Matador Tribune column, "Hollywood," under the name of Marshall Fisk. I hope by the time this comes to press the whole town has met him, and likes him, as well as I do, and I am sure that those who do meet him will feel this way.

and girl who received the honor and whose names were put on the plaques for last year are Hope Clements and Fred C. Bourland. The Sophomores gave the assembly program Friday. It was very cute and enjoyed by everyone. The visitors were: Winnie Fred Estes, Lena Mae Davis and Sibyl Seaff.

A football game has not been scheduled for this coming Friday. It is planned that the boys shall rest and get in good condition so if we have to meet the Spur Bulldogs again that our boys may be the victors. If Floydada ties or beats Spur Friday, Matador will then be the champions of the South half of District 4 and will play Memphis for district honors. If Spur is winner in the Friday game, the Matadors and the Bulldogs will meet Nov. 23 to play off the tie, the winner of this match will play Memphis.

The Matadors will either play Memphis for first honor in the district or Wellington for third place. Hence we are assured of at least two more attractive games.

The assembly programs given on Fridays at 9:45 are very interesting. The High School will be glad to have many more visitors, at these assemblies. The Spanish club will have the program Friday.

Hollywood

When a lady sighs for her departed lover, say in Timbuctoo or Kalamazoo, it is just at the expense of her mental anguish, but when she happens to be a movie star in Hollywood and sighs before the mike and the camera, well, the expense entailed assumes gigantic proportions, and no mental anguish, at least not on the part of the lady involved. We will say the scene represents an attic chamber of a poor young girl, her lover has just left her, gone to sea to be absent, these many moons. It is at this point that his inamorata heaves a sigh, for a love that passeth all understanding, to hear her tell it. Now to photograph this scene and record her great sigh involves a lot of expense. We will not mention all of them. First there is the cost of the set, and its furnishings, the salary of the set designer, the builders, the set dresser. Then the cost of lighting the set. The salaries of the 'juicers' (electricians) stationed above the set and those below, including of course, that of the head electrician who consults with the head camera man regarding the proper lighting. And then the salaries of the head camera man's assistants and when it comes to reproducing the sigh itself, a 'boom' man is employed to regulate the mike near the star's face and yet out of camera range. Then there is the sound mixer, in a near-by booth or outside the stage in a wagon, who regulates the volume of sound, etc. Then there is the cost of all this sound equipment involved. Then comes the director and a good one can command thousands a week, and his assistants. Then there is the script girl's salary, the stand-in's, the hairdresser, the wardrobe mistress, the make-up man, the maid, etc. All these are of the earth earthly and do not work just for their health or for the love of their job. We must not omit the unit manager, the producer-supervisor, and above all not the star's salary, perhaps $100,000 per picture.

At last everything is in readiness, the lights have been properly set, to light up the stand-in's face and hair, the camera sweeping, boom man blows his whistle, a signal to the watch man to close the outer doors and turn on the red lights. Now the quiet becomes suddenly painful, you can hear the blood pounding in your temples. The director nods, the assistant yells, "Turn 'em over," the mixer signals the sound man, motor starts, cameras turn over, a buzzer sounds, mixer thus signals "Speed," slate boy says "Dash, Scene 89 take one." Director says "action camera."

The star counts about 'five' to herself, then she starts to sigh, a long heart rending sigh, that is supposed to speak volumes for the "love that passeth all understanding" when she has sighed all she can sigh, and can sigh no more, and has started to worry about what she can do next, the director or comes to aid and shouts "Cut, Ok for me, how about you," turning to his sound man, "O. K. for sound." "All right" says the director turning to his script girl, "print that." The outer doors are now opened, people suddenly come to life once more and move and talk, the star goes to her portable dressing room nearby, accompanied by her maid who carries a tall glass with rattling cubes of ice floating about on the surface of an amber sea, as soon as the star is seated the hairdresser removes her beautiful blonde wig and puts it on a wooden head form on the dressing table.

Everybody now stops talking, and moving but if he must move, he does so on his tip-toes, as if he were walking on eggs. The typewriter of the script girl stops clicking, the stage janitor stops men have adjusted their camera to get the proper angle and focus, the sound men have already set the mike in its proper place, near the face but out of the camera. Finally the head camera man turns to the director and says: "We are ready if you are, Mr. Dash."

The "stand-in" now leaves her place under the hot lights and withdraws into the comparative shadows nearby. The star who has watched these operations for some time, gets rid of her cigarette, and walks upon the set followed by her maid, the hairdresser, the wardrobe mistress and perhaps also the make-up man. In the absence of a make-up man, her colored maid opens her make-up case and holds it before the star who in the mirror powders some more, paints her lips with a tiny brush. In the meantime the wardrobe mistress sees a loose ruffle. She quickly gets down on her knees and starts to sew it on more securely, all this time the hairdresser hovers about the star with comb and curling iron in hand, not to mention an atomizer. She discovers a hair out of place, another hanging over the star's ear, she snips it off with her scissors, pats her hair here, now there, finally she sprays all the hair with her atomizer containing liquid vaseline—this give the hair more life and to make it photograph better. At last the star is all ready to sigh. The last particle of powder has been applied, the lips properly made up, the hair properly dressed, her gown attended to, and now the director demands "Quiet, everybody quiet," reverberates through the stage.

sweeping, boom man blows his whistle, a signal to the watch man to close the outer doors and turn on the red lights. Now the quiet becomes suddenly painful, you can hear the blood pounding in your temples. The director nods, the assistant yells, "Turn 'em over," the mixer signals the sound man, motor starts, cameras turn over, a buzzer sounds, mixer thus signals "Speed," slate boy says "Dash, Scene 89 take one." Director says "action camera."

The star counts about 'five' to herself, then she starts to sigh, a long heart rending sigh, that is supposed to speak volumes for the "love that passeth all understanding" when she has sighed all she can sigh, and can sigh no more, and has started to worry about what she can do next, the director or comes to aid and shouts "Cut, Ok for me, how about you," turning to his sound man, "O. K. for sound." "All right" says the director turning to his script girl, "print that." The outer doors are now opened, people suddenly come to life once more and move and talk, the star goes to her portable dressing room nearby, accompanied by her maid who carries a tall glass with rattling cubes of ice floating about on the surface of an amber sea, as soon as the star is seated the hairdresser removes her beautiful blonde wig and puts it on a wooden head form on the dressing table.

The New Farmall 2 Tractor Is Ready Now

McCormick-Deering

HERE we are with the New McCormick-Deering Farmall 20 Tractor. This model has practically the same physical dimensions as the regular Farmall—but it has a good 10 per cent more power, 4 forward speeds, enclosed steering gears, and enclosed steering brakes.

The advantages of the additional power and extra speeds which make the Farmall 20 more flexible are appreciated when it comes to pulling 2 plow bottoms and the heavier tillage tools in tough going, operating 4-row cultivators, 2-row Farmall corn pickers, 2-row potato diggers, and all drawbar, belt, and power take-off jobs. Farmall 20 speeds are 2 1/2, 3, 3 1/2, and 4 1/2 miles per hour.

You will admire the Farmall 20 when you see it at work. It has all the features that have made the regular Farmall famous. Ask us about it now.

Every Day of the Year

There are only a few days each year that the temperature is low enough for the proper refrigeration of foods. Although foods may not spoil during cold Fall weather, the temperature is not low enough to prevent the growth of bacteria, the real danger of poor refrigeration.

The electrical refrigerator's economy and dependability of operation has been proven. The saving on foods alone makes the investment of your money amply repay you.

To protect your family's health, proper refrigeration is a necessity every day of the year. The cost is no greater than obsolete methods of refrigeration.

Low incentive rates make it possible for you to secure the maximum of benefit at the minimum of expense. Buy safe—buy dependable electrical refrigeration.

STOCKMEN TO RECEIVE EMERGENCY FEED LOANS

Stockmen in drouth areas who cannot obtain credit from other sources will continue to be eligible for emergency feed loans for their foundation herds this winter provided they keep their credit in good standing and show their intention of repaying the loans.

W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration said here today (Nov. 12).

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Offices," Governor Myers said, "have made loans in the primary drouth areas without requiring chattel mortgages in order to make funds available quickly to save hundreds of thousands of cattle and other stock; but they have done so with every expectation that the money will be repaid."

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Division of the Farm Credit Administration has dealt leniently with such borrowers; but each loan case has been carefully inspected. Farmers have shown their good faith by cooperating and not attempting to get loans where they were not needed, but of course we cannot expect credit will continue to be available unless borrowers keep the loans in good standing and show their intention of paying the debts."

"The Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Offices are the only source of these unsecured emergency feed loans. They are disbursed from a part of the drouth appropriation approved June 19, 1934 and are not made through any of the permanent credit institutions under the Farm Credit Administration."

"Up to November 1," Governor Myers continued, "over 191,000 farmers and stockmen obtained these initial emergency loans to feed their stock and about 134,000 supplemental advances have been made, for a total of $21,500,000, out of the allocation of $96,785,000 for such purposes. On an average about $1,250,000 a week is being loaned to feed cattle and other stock, and during the winter additional credit will be available as needed if the borrowers keep their credit good and show their intention of paying their debts."

All of the emergency feed loans are being advanced in monthly allowances based on the amount required for each head of stock to be fed. The allowances may not exceed $3.00 per head for farm cattle, $1.50 for range cattle, $4.00 for farm workstock, $2.00 for saddle and pack horses, 50 cents for sheep and 35 cents for goats.

MAGNOLIA NOW WAIVES THEIR CRUDE OIL

DALLAS, Nov. 12.—Fred M. Lege, Jr., Vice-president and Director of sales promotion of the Magnolia Petroleum Company, announced today that after long experiment and tests Socony-Vacuum and Magnolia have developed a new method of making motor oils by washing crude petroleum. The new process is very much like the method a woman uses to take stains out of fabrics. Instead of stains, crude petroleum contains sulphur, gums, sludges, tars that must be refined out to produce lubricating oil.

"Two cleaning fluids, or solvents," Mr. Lege explained, "are used in this new method. One is a substance called chrysalis solution. The other is propane, a liquid many degrees below zero. Propane is a gas that under compression turns to an icy liquid.

"Pour these two substances into crude petroleum and the result is very like settling the dirt to the bottom of a glass of water. The chrysalis solution dissolves and settles the impurities in the petroleum. The propane absorbs the lubricating particles of the oil.

"The clear mixture is propane-oil which is drawn off. When this warms up to room temperature, the propane bubbles off in the form of gas, leaving a motor oil much superior to any other oil," Mr. Lege added.

WEEKLY COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

The report released today by the Division of Cotton Marketing at Austin, giving the quality of cotton produced in Texas shows that there is no great change in the Extra White grades from the report issued last week. Strict Middling Extra White and better grades amount to about one-third of the cotton classed this week, and about 7 per cent is Middling Extra White. Less than 2 per cent is graded as below Middling in the Extra White Standard.

Strict Middling and better grades in the White Standard amount to slightly less than one-fourth of the cotton classed this week, and Middling White amounts to 8.9 per cent. Grades below Middling are less than 3 per cent of the cotton ginned this week. This indicates that over 50 per cent of the cotton was classed as Strict Middling and better in the White and Extra White standards.

Spotted grades amount to slightly less than one-fourth of the cotton classed. The largest percentage of Strict Low Middling and Low Middling White grades was from the Flatwoods of Texas; while the largest percentage of Strict Middling White was from the High Plains of Texas.

The staple lengths reported this week indicate that cotton shorter than 3/8 inch was little less than one-third; while 3/8 inch cotton was a little over one-half of the cotton classed. 15-16 inch cotton is estimated as 10.3 per cent. One inch cotton is reported as 1.5 per cent, and those lengths longer than one inch amount to 3.6 per cent.

The total tenderable cotton this week is reported as 67.9; while the cotton ginned to date is reported to be 86.4 per cent tenderable.

RAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

You were no tears in the man's eyes, no pleading in his voice as he spoke from behind a curtain where rays of the light will not find its way. He only smiled and looked at those red, gutted trees. Quickly I gave him a nod, yet so little when the gold was splashing gold on the silver clouds that sped like wanted ships across limitless sky. I gave him only a money and gold and there is maddest color in the sunsets. I knew in my heart that he look through other eyes to the stars swing low and bright the sun is gone on winter wings. Perhaps he has been to keep the memory of a moon on a silent snow-cloaked world as a condemned man remembers his mother's Death this side of the have missed the enjoyment of general motion picture matinees trying to recover from an amusement resulting after attempting to make a three-pointed and finding myself in my lady's lap. It there were one woman in the audience without the aid of an usher I would try to share the seat with him. And when the light finally comes adjusted, there are usually vacant seats in every direction.

Just occurred to me the other day that my wife has never carried for a certain aunt of mine once pulled me out of my long-barrel when I only thought of red feet were visible above water.

The yellowed leaves turn brown and I am a small boy with my father's arms beside the curb. The pale light filters through the wick glistens on the oilcloth over the dinner table and the rope-bottom squeaks under our weight. My father reads from a book, a simple story of birds going south, away from the old nests and the family—and some will not return from the depths of my heart the tears well up and I try to my eyes to seal them from my cheek. I could not explain why—I shall never be able to explain.

Only this I know, that from the depths of life comes a basic, much of which brings me to the soul, yet at such hours there are strains of music which have no fixed ending or ending. They come from the stillness of a moist night, on the wings of a well word or from the booming of waves breaking on a deserted beach. Tears may come when we are young but when we are old, the dryness of an unstart when the shadows fall from the way.

When I think of war, I remember a mother screaming. A mother always coach and away with the various heights to face the bitterest of there was no splendor in that music that could away the terror of that war.

The red and blistered the greying mother did not see her son and the thin film of blue-veined hand reaching to touch his cheek when she holds to the rail above the abyss of the world. When the train had moved to leave an uncharitably silent by something more plain than the mother turned away from her husband, saying "I could not come back."

I could not forget her when I learned that she was among the first, was the cold mud of France.
