

Trail Dust

Music has always had strange powers over me. When a boy used to stand barely inside the "front room" door of a wealthy neighbor who owned a player piano, shifting uneasily from one large bare foot to the other, listening. Somehow, I always felt that music was a prophecy—some day I would return from strange climes to this group and they would play music again and each would understand. "He has been to the strange lands, and tasted of the high adventure of which the music speaks." Ten years later, with the echo of a strange sea ringing in my ears, I used to slip into apenny arcade, insert the little nozzles in my ears, drop the penny in the slot, enjoying several minutes perfect homesickness and wretchedness of heart. The same tunes. A player piano.

Being unable to play any instrument, and usually the attraction for rocketing remarks when a "foursome" tried "Sweet Adeline" and asked me to sing, I have always felt shut out from the world of music. Still, I have known somehow (perhaps animal instinct) to pick good music—good musicians. The most remembering are evenings at Hollywood Bowl. The silence of a California night, the stars overhead. Cigarettes glowing in the sable darkness. . . . and music such as the world alone can offer. I like to hear a good fiddler play "Over the Waves."

If the News reads more like an almanac than usual this week, please make as much allowance as possible. The editor, the automobile editor, the financial editor, the sports editor, the general manager, the business manager, the general supervisor of the mechanical department and the office boy which combines the one-man management of the News has just finished round nine with the doctor handing the bejeweled beut to 'Old Man Flu.'

The cause of the fire is unknown.

Gallup, N. M., Nov. 24.—Indian trackers were organized Thursday to aid posses in a search for a young goatherd of San Mateo, who has been lost for three days in the Zuni Mountain country along the Continental Divide, sixty miles southeast of here.

The herder, a youth named Burroughs, disappeared last Tuesday. Sheriff Roberts and Under-Sheriff Carmichael left Thursday to lead the search.

As last Wednesday night was the coldest experienced this fall in the San Mateo country, it was feared he might have perished.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

This church is small in numbers. We hope it won't be small in faith and service. We have a small town. Size is not important; what we are is important. Where we are is of small concern; what we do, the service we render to others counts with God. Moses in the sagebrush and the sand, herding sheep heard God's voice. "Pull off your shoes, you're on holy ground." He found "holy ground" in such an unholy and unpromising place. This minister wants to be helpful to the whole community. If you want to get married or buried call him. If you are sick and need him, he will do what he can. If you want an opportunity to train and self-expression this church provides that opportunity in an open forum prayer, praise, song, talk service every Sunday 7 p. m. It is for everybody whether members of this church. Welcome. BEN WEST, Minister.

NO SINK!

Outlandish Properties for Marx Brothers' "Horse Feathers" Includes Everything Else.

Everything but the kitchen sink!

That's what goes into the making of any picture in which the mad but merry Four Marx Brothers are starred.

Among the many strange ingredients that the property, wardrobe and studio purchasing departments had to furnish for the filming of "Horse Feathers," their latest picture, which comes to the Texan Theatre Friday and Saturday were these:

Cheese cloth, razor blades, gasoline, bees' wax, wild animals, horse hide, lemon juice, nitric acid, cotton, soda pop, carbons, college professors, ice, dogs, automobiles, a skeleton, co-eds, footballs, tin, rags, old bottles, snaps and snails, and sugar and spice, and Groucho, Harpo, Chico, and Zeppo.

"That's all anyone knows about the plot," Groucho explained.

QUIET TURKEY DAY SPENT BY HOOVERS

Washington, Nov. 24.—Undisturbed by an attempted demonstration outside the White House, President and Mrs. Hoover spent a quiet Thanksgiving, observing the holiday as millions of other Americans, with church and a turkey dinner.

Mr. Hoover arose at his usual early hour, despite the holiday, for a round of medicine ball, and after breakfast went into the Lincoln study for a little work.

The President and first lady attended the Thanksgiving Day service at the Founders' Methodist Episcopal Church on Sixteenth Street.

After the service, Mr. Hoover went back to his study for a little recreational reading before a light lunch.

During the afternoon he took a nap, oblivious to the crowds outside watching the arrest of the march leaders.

A few close friends from official life were invited to the White House for the Thanksgiving dinner in the evening.

BANDIT SEIZED AFTER HOLDUP AND KIDNAPING

Amarillo, Texas, Nov. 24.—After staging two robberies and kidnaping one of his victims here Wednesday night, an armed negro bandit identified as Bert Hamilton, 26, McAlester, Ok., was captured by police in a desperate struggle.

Hamilton is in the city jail, facing a charge of robbery with firearms.

Adrian Herrin, service station attendant and the first victim was handed a note.

"Give me your money and no fooling or it is too bad for you. Money is all I want—not your life, but I don't care. I am hungry."

Herrin identified Hamilton, who later forced J. C. Dunn, garageman, to drive him away in a storage car after Dunn had been robbed.

Police in a scout car encountered Dunn and his captor. In a struggle after lives of two officers and the garageman had been threatened Hamilton was disarmed.

THEY PULL A LOT OF COTTON

The Banner has heard of champion cotton pullers from time to time, but we believe that the pulling ability of two Falls territory youths beats any that we have heard about. On November ninth, Denzel, (age 21) and Harrold (age 19) Jackson pulled 2010 and 1824 pounds respectively. They were in the cotton patch ten hours and forty-five minutes. The particular patch in which they were pulling belonged to their father, Mr. J. A. Jackson, who resides three miles southwest of town, and was making a bale to the acre. But even if they were pulling in exceptionally good cotton, they have, as far as we know, made a record for this section.—The Falls Banner.

PERSHING THINKS EUROPE SAFE FROM WAR CLOUDS

New York, Nov. 24.—Returning on the liner Manhattan after six months abroad, supervising the work of the battle monuments commission, Gen. John J. Pershing expressed the opinion that war in Europe is unlikely.

"I think war in Europe is unlikely," he said in reply to a question, and declined to elaborate on the statement.

He said the work of the battle monuments commission is now completed except for two caretakers' lodges. The commission has built three large memorials—at Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne—and eight cemeteries each with its chapel, have been completed. In these cemeteries 35,000 graves have been marked with marble crosses.

General Pershing said he had been writing some additional memoirs, treating chiefly with his life before the war.

General Pershing was met at quarantine by his sister, May Pershing, and Col. Kenyon A. Joyce of the general staff corps. He said he would stay in New York several days and then go to Washington.

The people elected the Republicans made a grand show of things from a governmental standpoint and at the election the Democratic ticket was a complete administration in the form of an overwhelming Democratic majority. For a President, without the aid of the representatives the people could do nothing, accomplish nothing for the masses—the people—what was accomplished during the administration of the party was to be expected. The trouble with the country is they give too much thought for a party leader to occupy the seat of honor in the White House, but little thought for all of those whom they send there to help make the laws of the land. This party construction business is strictly a personal matter, it is not filled with helpful ideas, it is a party game, a game which is played by the millions of men. This part of the game is played at home, quietly, without going and show. It is the secret and hidden part of the party program, the work, the action, which secures no glory, no applause, no money or recognition. If the Democrats plan the economic condition of America back on a firm footing it will be because the people have decided to make up, take a hand in the matter, and send to Washington those representatives who are possessed of two essentials, in real government—common sense and honesty. Should an individual business man attempt to run his business with a rowed crooks and grafters he would be laughed to scorn, but the very ones who would boycott his business, saying he was not worthy their respect and patronage, will turn right around and vote for timber to go to the National capital and help to look after the interests of their constituents back home. There has been too much talk and not enough

When it comes to killing... the big papers they certainly are entitled to the majority of the press. They were also given the kind of protection that anything else had that among the things upon which they play is that of the Government. The world has been given the line of just for the past three or four years, but time for nothing has been given toward reducing the armaments of the nations. The truth of the matter is that nations are like individuals—each is afraid the other will be given an advantage if all are not armed to the teeth all the time. There is nothing that can induce a successful holding of the sword into peaceful hands. So long as people of all nations believe their only safety lies in the having of guns and cannon there can be no possible way of persuading them to bring their standing armies down to the minimum, and their nerves to the point of pygmy. Force to try and crowd right and justice can only mean armament to the teeth, and with each nation of the world afraid of the other, with such a lack of confidence against each other, the people of the earth, all this stuff seen in the papers and magazines about the armaments and nerves will be cut down to nothing, and the tax payers saved millions of dollars annually because of this big expense reduced, is nothing more or less than something to fill the columns of the papers. But the biggest stink of the season times has occurred in the past few days because Uncle Sam has notified that she must pay her share. The value of the currencies of these nations fell off in the latter part of last year when this news was given them, and a general falling off in the price of all farm commodities, was had in America. Why Europe thinks America should give them the money they borrowed when they were threatened with German slavery is more than the average thinking person can digest. Had it not been necessary to have taken millions upon millions of dollars from America and placed it in Europe at that time the present depression would not now be running at large over the land, and this country would be enjoying her usual prosperity. But Europe thinks the United States—good, old generous United States—should give them a clean slate, with all of the entries wiped "paid in full," and until the next time of stress comes along when they will once again squeal for help, we, money and more American men, everything should run along as though American had never been called upon to make any sacrifices at all in order to keep them from wearing a ball and chain and speaking the Teutonic language and worshipping at the shrine of "Me and Got."

Americans are getting plenty tired of playing Santa Claus to the world and letting their families go in want. They think that what they got out of the recent war is depression, hunger and taxes, and on top of all that they are favored with the chronic tune "You Should Not Make Us Pay," sung by the full chorus of Europe morning, noon and night. It is rather galling, and the whole mess has a tendency, strong as garlic, to make the people of this country think now more than ever before, that it should be "America for Americans." When a private citizen borrows money, he pays it just debt and interest, and a hearty respect to his fellow citizens. But this European borrow money, whole sale scale does not pay. Europe should pay, and ought to be paid so. They should pay for the sake of these nations fell off in the latter part of last year when this news was given them, and a general falling

THE COST OF COTTON

The reason there is so much confusion about the true cost of growing cotton is that it varies with the yield per acre and with the factors taken into consideration. The larger the yield the smaller the cost, usually; and, when management is figured in as an item, the cost, of course, rises.

The mystery of why cotton continues to be grown when it costs 10c a pound to raise it and brings but 5c on the market is largely mathematical. The real reason that it does not cost 10c a pound in cash. If it did, crop reduction would be automatic.

The secret is that about half of the cost raising cotton—or a little more than half in Texas where fertilizer is not used—is a labor item. The farmer and his family supply that labor. Down to the point where the price of cotton is not less than half the cost of production, cotton will continue to be raised. What happens is that the farmer is betting his labor against a prospect of a good price.

Beyond that, the farmer bets the labor of his children and, all too often, of his wife as well. The tenant family is reckoned as so many "hands" and a child of 9 or 10 is a "hand." No tenant farmer ever states his cost in terms of his worth as a manager. He thinks of himself as a man hired to himself for no particular wage and that is what he gets out of running his farm—a no particular wage. To end a year in debt is normal. To have a cash surplus is so amazing in years like the present that the temptation to "celebrate" is almost irresistible. When the surplus is gone the family status reverts to that of chronic debt. Slave labor made cotton a slave crop; credit keeps it so.—Dallas News.

TRAP FOR FLOYD IS SET

Earlsboro, Ok., Nov. 24.—State operatives hastened to spread a trap here Thursday for Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, elusive Oklahoma desperado, after receiving advices he had visited the home of his slain lieutenant, George Birdwell.

Recalling that Birdwell defied the law two years ago to pay his respects at the bier of his dead father, officers looked to sentiment to bait their trap as revenge came that Floyd intended to view the body of Birdwell at a funeral home here.

Birdwell, described by officers as more dangerous than Floyd, was slain Wednesday as he robbed the bank of the tiny negro village of Boley. His negro companion, Charles Glass of Earlsboro, was slain, and his white aid, C. Patterson of Kiowa, wanted in several counties, was gravely wounded.

D. J. Turner, white-haired negro president of the bank, was shot fatally by Birdwell after sounding an alarm. Birdwell in turn was shot down by H. C. McCormick, assistant cashier, and negro vigilantes did the rest. Governor Murray Thursday conveyed his congratulations to McCormick "for keeping your head in the face of danger," and his condolences to the family of Turner.

Belief that Birdwell may have undertaken the Boley robbery in an effort to divert attention from Floyd was expressed when it was learned that Floyd's wife was removed mysteriously from a Tulsa hospital Wednesday night. Mrs. Floyd, mother of a 6-year-old son, Jackie, was operated on recently for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hodges were Paducah visitors Sunday.

What Has Happened?

Are we becoming? Is it possible? It can't be true? Yes, it must be, for this is the way we have grown. Why all the shouting and noise? Of course, it all means that school work has been resumed after five weeks of vacation. And if we are any judge of boys and girls, we will say they are all glad to be back. "Ready, set, and go!" "Now we earnestly hope that they may continue with their good work without any other interruption."

School Staff Organized

These names that appear in the beginning of these columns were selected to represent their respective classes and organizations in the columns of this paper and in the membership of the staff. We are happy to have an opportunity to present our school activities to parents and the general public and through this medium we hope to keep them well informed concerning our school and their school.

We want our columns to be interesting, entertaining and instructive. With these things in mind, we propose to give it to you. As an educational medium, we think these columns should offer a means for the propagation of outstanding work done by students, alumni and faculty. It should encourage journalistic writing and should be an outlet for those people with outstanding writing talent.

We want these columns to serve as a running record for school history; to promote a spirit of unity; to build school loyalty; to stimulate morale; and to develop character. If it instills a deep interest in school ideals and purposes, we will know that our time and efforts have been well spent.

Senior Signals

The Seniors are happy to have the privilege of presenting their class officers: President, Juanita Thacker; Vice President, G. B. Thacker; Secretary, Treasurer, Wyleta Smith; Sergeant-at-Arms, I. T. Williams; Sponsor, Miss Beulah Medlen.

The Seniors ordered their class rings last Monday and everyone is anxiously awaiting those new beauties. While they are waiting, let us tell you of a little advance information we got while listening through the key hole. The Seniors will present their annual class play some time before the Christmas holidays. They said it was to be the best one ever presented on the high school stage. Let's hope everyone will be on hand so we can verify that statement.

Junior High Lights

The Juniors first class meeting for this year was called Tuesday morning, November 22, for the election of officers and a class sponsor. Mr. Grinson presided over the meeting; Miss Green was elected class sponsor, and the following officers were chosen: President, Zenobia Haney; Vice-President, Dale King; Secretary and Treasurer, Clara Hill; Reporter, Adelle Smith.

The class selected pink and orchid for their colors; American Beauty Rose for their flower; and "Not at the top, but climbing" for their motto.

We hope to make our class the best Junior class in the history of the school. We are glad to be back in school and to help up the old school spirit after five weeks of "paid vacation."

Miss Norma Newberry is a new member of our class, from Panhandle, and we all welcome her as a fellow student.

The election of officers seems to be pretty good news, so we won't pour water on the fire. On November 22 Lorain Hutson was elected President; Zella Bridges, Vice-President; Leon Love, Secretary and Treasurer; Ann Hughes, Reporter; Thurman Watson, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Miss Green as our sponsor.

We are very, very sorry to lose two of our best students during our vacation. Ellen Parker and Clyde (Buddy) Smith. We know that they will again make another bunch of new friends and that they will continue to be the good sports, the good students and the good fellows that we know them to be.

The Yellow Jackets

The Senior leader hall boys have organized the Yellow Jackets. Seventeen boys are being a stringer and if the housing is any indication, there's quite a lot of interest in this club. We understand that it is to be strictly a letterman association.

These same Yellow Jackets started their workouts Monday and the old hen that hatched out this ugly duckling told me that every one had better get set, because we have a leader hall team in the membership. They're good duck (some are feathered) and we've got the best coach in the country.

WIFE DIES TWO DAYS AFTER HER HUSBAND

Shreveport, La., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Richard M. Douglas, whose husband, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church at Minden, died here Monday, also passed away Wednesday afternoon. Both were victims of pneumonia.

Mrs. Douglas, who was formerly Miss Doris Renzgerhoff, daughter of the late Louisiana State Fair secretary, Louis K. Renzgerhoff, was stricken at the same time as her husband, while they were en route from Washington to Shreveport, by automobile. They developed pneumonia, and to have resulted from exposure when their car broke down near the Arkansas line.

SOCIAL PRECEDENTS NOT TO INFLUENCE GARNER

Washington, Nov. 24.—The Vice President-elect — Speaker John S. Garner—says he is going to break social precedents right and left in the capital during the next four years. Speaker and Mrs. Garner have agreed to decline all social invitations, except the official events at the White House, where, as Vice President, his presence is required. They started putting their agreement into effect Thursday. They declined more than a score of invitations of friends to eat Thanksgiving turkey and instead had a quiet dinner at their home.

During the last session Congress, Mr. and Mrs. Garner attended but one formal dinner given for the speaker by President at the White House. They went to two informal dinners, both at the homes of long friends, and attended a meeting of the Texas Society. In declining the invitation Speaker Garner told his friends: "If I should go to one, I would have to go to all. Mrs. Garner and I have made it a fact not to accept any social invitations; we prefer carrying on the practice of early to bed and to rise we began years ago."

MELLOWED 80 MILLION YEARS

While the Brontosaurus brows in OKLAHOMA

Millions of years ago—even before the ancient Brontosaurus lived—Nature formed the Cambro-Ordovician oil pool in Oklahoma. Today this oldest of Mid-continent crudes is piped to the great Sinclair refineries where it is refined, blended, de-waxed, freed from petroleum jelly and made into Sinclair Opaline—a product resulting from 80 million years of filtering and mellowing. Try a crankcaseful of Sinclair Opaline—note how it stands up in the heat of fast driving. Note especially at draining time how little oil has been used up—positive, visible proof of protection for the last mile as well as the first!
