

Trail Dust

Last week a friend expressed himself in believing that Roaring Springs would become a "Ghost City." It may be true. Roaring Springs, Matador, Spur, or Meah, in fact any town in Texas, may become a "Ghost City." Towns are like people; they do not remain unchanged, they either go up or down. They do not stand still.

What Roaring Springs, or any town in this country will be twenty years from now depends on what the people, the business men in particular, do today. The "Ghost Cities" of this country twenty years from today will be those unfortunate communities in which its people have lost faith and ceased efforts in making it an attractive place in which to live and transact business. Plans are needed now, they have been needed in the past and they will be needed in the future. The ones that survive the future will be the towns that do more for the people they serve.

No place in West Texas has a more advantageous location than a town than has Roaring Springs. No community has so fertile farming land surrounding it than does Roaring Springs. Nor does any community have better people or more successful farmers. So if Roaring Springs becomes a "Ghost City," then another town will take the trade and social patronage that belongs here.

But one man can not make a town a thriving town, though one man can do much, he takes nothing short of the combined efforts of every business man, every property owner, every resident. No, Roaring Springs will not become a "Ghost City." It has too many advantages to be overlooked by those who are looking for opportunity. Railway and Highway lines, good water and above all an abundance of surrounding territory that will always support a town that deserves support.

The danger of prairie fire is greater now and will continue throughout the winter than many years. The greater amount of prairie grass in the season will make a constant hazard to ranches and farms. Caution should be exercised particularly by hunters and campers. This grass is a valuable asset to the stock raising industry and its loss would be a hardship on the owners.

HANDLE COMPRESS OCCUPIES THEIR NEW OFFICE

The Panhandle Compress Company constructed a small office on their property west of the depot last week.

W. Bennett, Jr., local manager for the company, moved his office into the new building last week.

STATE RUNS MAGNETIC NAIL PICKER OVER THE HIGHWAY

The State Highway department last week covered the highway through Roaring Springs to the County line South with one of the department's nail picking machines.

The remarkable device picks all nails, wire, staples, tin and other metal objects from the highway. The metal clings to the magnetic drag until the current is broken when it falls upon a special canvas spread beneath. The objects are then discarded where they will no longer be a menace to automobile tires.

GABRIEL DRY GOODS COMPANY BEGINS SALE FRIDAY

A sale of unusual proportions begins at the G. Gabriel Dry Goods Co. tomorrow which will offer many savings to the people of this and adjoining counties. This sale, staged for the purpose of reorganization, affects the entire stock of merchandise. Mr. Gabriel, in a statement yesterday, said: "Our customers deserve the advantages we are able to offer in this sale. Although we have always sold merchandise on a small margin of profit, we have never before completely disregarded cost and profit to the extent we have in this instance. We are glad to be able to offer such values to the customers who have been so faithful in their patronage."

A unique feature of the sale is the suit of Curlee clothes that will be sold for one dollar on Saturday morning, November the 26th.

MECHANIC OFFERS TO TRADE WORK FOR FARM PRODUCTS

W. E. Bowen, automobile mechanic, located at the Thacker Service Station, has a display advertisement appearing in this issue of the News in which he offers to repair an automobile or do any kind of mechanical work and accept as his compensation, any kind of farm products.

In stating his offer, Mr. Bowen said: "I realize many people have mechanical work which needs to be done, but hesitate because of the scarcity of money. I have a farm and I can use turkeys, chickens, hogs, calves, eggs, in fact anything a farmer has to sell, and I would just as soon receive my pay that way as in money."

MAIL MESSENGER SERVICE FOR BIDS UNTIL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

MANY ARE EXPECTED HERE NEXT SATURDAY TRADES DAY

A great amount of interest is being created by Roaring Springs Trades Day programs and a large crowd is expected here Saturday.

LEGION APPEALS TO BUSINESS MEN IN BEHALF OF VETS

Defending the World War Veterans against the National Economy League's fight to influence the coming session of Congress to curtail the payment to war veterans by some 450 millions of dollars, M. S. Patton, Adjutant Fleming Post 337, said recently: "We wonder if the business men of this community have given thought to the amount of money that is brought into this community each month as a result of the sums paid World War veterans?"

Adjutant Patton further pointed out that the total cost per capita of the United States is only 20 cents per month, for both the disability and compensation payments to the veterans. Also this cost comes largely from the Federal income taxes paid by 42,000 persons whose net incomes are more than six billions of dollars per year. Adding further, "as a matter of fact, it is proven that a city of ten thousand receives approximately $60,000 per year." "Then there is another side to the story. Many of these veterans have no other means of support other than the sums paid them by the Government. In event it is taken away from them they will become wards of the city and county."

MUST SERVE TERM IN PLACE HE RULED

Austin, Nov. 16.—A three-year sentence given N. L. Speer, former sheriff of Walker County and former warden of the penitentiary, on a charge of theft, was affirmed on Wednesday by the Court of Criminal Appeals. The trial was held in the Travis County District Court and grew out of evidence uncovered by the Senate Fee Investigating Committee.

The indictment charged Speer with the theft of $1,000, which had been paid him through an error of the Comptroller's Department in settlement of his fee account. Speer had presented an account for $1,626.95, a warrant was issued for $2,626.95 and Speer was charged with having cashed it.

OLD ISSUE OF FIRST PAPER PUBLISHED HERE HAS INTERESTING COPY

Crisp and yellow from the years that have passed since its ink became dry, a copy of the Roaring Springs Echo, Vol. 3, Number 13, dated March 3, 1916, Roaring Springs' first newspaper is owned by Mrs. Sibie Dodson.

On page one of the sixteen-year old newspaper inside a black border, is a short sketch of the life and character of T. D. Dodson, who owned the paper jointly with a Mr. Douglass. In the week preceding this issue of the Echo, Mr. Dodson had crossed line 30, or in the world beyond the fourth estate, had passed forever out of reach of copy and proof.

The Roaring Springs Echo carried many news items in its issue of March 3, 1916, that bring back memories of personalities long forgotten, also many whom we know today. Chronicled in its musty pages are deaths and births, tragedy and mirth.

In one news story a horse thief is apprehended by the local deputy who summons Sheriff Russell to take his prisoner to the county bastille. In an editorial Editor Douglass suggests that the highways be improved before the country buys more battle-ships.

The Roaring Springs Echo was later destroyed by fire near the present site of the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Co.

"The habit of criticism grows upon us because criticism is the easiest thing in the world. It does not take a thimbleful of brains to find fault, and the biggest numbskull in the world can find fault with the greatest man in the world. We flatter ourselves that criticism is a sign of superior intelligence. It is not. It is usually a sign of bad manners, of lack of self-restraint, and of an entire ignorance of psychology.—Dr. Frank Crane.

ROARING SPRINGS SCHOOL RESUMES WORK MONDAY

The Roaring Springs School, which has been dismissed for several weeks, resumed work on last Monday morning.

The school had been dismissed to allow children to aid in gathering the cotton crop and also because of lack of funds.

Results of an appeal made by the school board to the tax payers has made it possible for the school to begin again, although much due and delinquent tax still remains unpaid.

Fable of Leroy's Nifty Exhibit

By GEORGE ADE

ONCE there was a jovial Night named Leroy Gadable and when he sold Paikua in a Wheelbarrow full of Jack in the meeting between the Weekly Effort's sporting when it said that the Best of the community were with the respected young Townsman. He was to the half-poor city known as Paikua what the pale-faced Prince is to the British Isles, viz., the Double Darnation of the Southern Section. He was the blue-eyed son of Dewing, the chief King-Tailer and Lord Nonesome Bucks.

In addition to having a Social Status so elevated that he was Miles and Miles above the common or sport-shirt variety of Slicker who clogged up the Post Rooms, he had earned the unspoken regard of the Hard Element because he was a Demon on Second Base and had hung up a Moody Record in Half Back.

Sometimes you find a Lad who has Money, Looks, Horse-Power, Polite Manners, Head, Gumption, and open-faced Democracy, all mixed together to make him King of the World. Leroy was lucky, amiable, accommodating and masterly. No one in Paikua felt like kidding him about the spots and the Walking Stick. The Boy who can knock off Blocks has a Right to wear anything that suits his idle Fancy. One who is curly-headed and has the Elbows with which to overturn an Ox can do no Wrong, or, if he does, he can get away with it.

Long before he escaped to the larger Opportunities of the Big Burg, every Tease around the Place was ready to be overpowered by his Brute Strength, but he played so Favorites. The Latest Model. Word came that he was thriving in his new Environment and finally arrived the Cards telling that Beatrice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Wetherby was the Lucky Girl, with the Ceremony at the Church and a Reception at the Home of the Bride's Parents.

There was Grape hanging from many a Chandelier after the said Tidings had been circulated. Everyone hoped for the Best but just knew that she wasn't good enough for Leroy. He had the Makings of a swell Husband and it would be Tough Luck if he drew a Blank. Some of those that had been grown in Paikua certainly seemed good enough, even for a Gadable, and so there was a general, not to say aching, Curiosity to get a Peek at the Goddess who was so much superior to the home-grown Article.

When Leroy brought his 1922 Model Bride out to Paikua so as to get her used to his Relatives, it was not known to Beatrice that she was about to be put under the Microscope and given the Acid Test. If she had been wise to the Situation, she would have known that in order to make good she would have to be a peerless Combination of Cleopatra, the Venus de Milo, Queen Marie of Rumania, Elsie Janis and Mary Roberts Rinehart. She had to have Everything and, even then, maybe she couldn't put it over and make the Grade.

They saw her first at a Reception given by Pa and Ma Gadable in the Ancestral Palace with the Cupola on top of it. She was sparebuilt, with the general Lines of a Racer. She seemed laid out for Speed rather than Endurance. She had the usual number of Eyes and her Bobbing undoubtedly had been done in a Beauty Shop located at the Gem Tonsorial Parlors and her up-and-down Frock was figured with Gold so that even the most hard-bodded Critics would not discover many flaws in the Tint Ensemble.

In the Old Days. Nevertheless, practically every Female Member of the Smart Set of Paikua said, after getting a Flash at Beatrice, "Well, I'll declare!"

Some thing they agreed that they must be right. Mrs. Paikua seemed to value the Comments when she said that Mrs. Gadable had a certain doll-like Beauty and a kind of self-assurance which gave the impression of Power but her Face somehow seemed lacking in Character, possibly because she had a Weak Mouth.

Unhappily Chit's Wife told Chit that she would try to get along with Ade's Wife and would even return Chit's and exchange Dress Patterns, but she never could trust to the utmost a Woman who had such a Weak Mouth.

All Old Stuff. When Elizabeth was told that Mary Queen of Scots had been dup-enanted at the Tower, she said: "It is no bad that I had to have her Head cut off but I knew she would start something, sooner or later. She was a Woman who could not be depended upon. She had a Weak Mouth."

It may be explained that a Weak Mouth is the kind possessed by any Person who is shy on Popularity with the Party of the Second Part.

Beatrice might have overcome the awful handicap if she had known that she was in Dutch and that the Cards had been stacked against her. She thought she would be the real Wow in the Home Town but because Leroy was Ace High. She seemed to think it was her Cue to push over the simple Villagers and let them understand that she didn't think she was any dumber than they were, even if it was a high-class Pippa from the Avenue while they were a lot of well-to-do Hicks. The more she gurgled, the more she pumped up the Program.

She said she loved Paikua because it was such a quiet old Place with such a simple Background and so many devil Characters. This, to the Residents of a Municipality which was black in the Face from trying to be busy and bustling and modern and up-to-date. Nothing that Beatrice said about Paikua could have been used in a Folder issued by the Chamber of Commerce.

She seemed to regard Paikua as a Page out of "The Old Homestead" or "Way Down East," while the Residents flattered themselves that London, Paris and New York City didn't have much of an Edge on them, coming right down to it.

It wasn't because she smoked Cork Tips or was willing to fly at anything which came out of a Shaker. All of the local Janies under the age of 60 were trying to be True Sports of the Country Club Variety.

Where she crabb'd Herself was in being surprised to learn that the tutored Yokels already knew about the Devices of Satan and didn't have to take lessons. She took particular Pains to show the Country Yaps an Improper Dance Step which they had completely worn out about Two Months previously.

She was a Nice Girl and her Heart was in the Right Place but after she had patronized the Small Towners for Three Days, registering Surprise whenever it became evident that they knew something besides Hay-Stacks and Pumpkins, one of the Men who had liked her at first stepped out in front and said he would be One of the Five to act as a Committee on Tar and Feathers. There was no less than 18 Volunteers.

MORAL: Never marry anyone who came from Somewhere Else.

Razor Has Lasted Long. When razors were weapons and not hoes, an ancestor of Oliver Bolard, age seventy-two, Berlin (Mich.) farmer, bought one made of Damascus steel with a bone handle. That was 200 years ago. Since then the razor has been in daily use in the Bolard family, being handed down from father to son, the present owner having obtained it when he was nineteen years old. Constant honing has worn off the maker's name and the handle is no thicker than a piece of cardboard, but Bolard asserts the razor has still another century of service left.

Historic Trees. The trees on the front terrace of Carvel hall at Annapolis, Md., are between 250 and 300 years old. They are Allantus trees, the Chinese tree of heaven. No one seems to know how they happened to be planted on the front terrace of Carvel hall. They were brought from China in a sailing ship considerably over 200 years ago. The house in front of which they stand is the Prince George street entrance of Carvel hall hotel. It was built in 1764 by William Paca, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and the third governor of Maryland.—Exchange.

Our Atmosphere. I know of no more encouraging fact than the unquestionable ability of man to elevate his life by a conscious endeavor. It is something to be able to paint a particular picture or to carve a statue, and so to make a few objects beautiful; but it is far more glorious to carve and paint the very atmosphere and medium through which we look which morally we can do.—Thoreau.

A World's Record

MORE than three thousand births without a single loss of either mother or child! That is the official Platt County record of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, in fifty years' family practice in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such entire confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you have constant need of this wonderful preparation of pure pepsin, activeenna, and fresh herbs. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A coated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Children take it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Take it! Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when sluggish or bilious, or you are troubled with sick headaches and no appetite. Take some for several days when run-down, and see how it picks you up.

It is a prescription preparation which every drug store has ready in big bottles, just ask anywhere for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

REMEDY FOR ILLS OF BODY AND MIND

Easy to Find Panaceas in Profusion.

Like advice, panaceas are offered for every ill, gratis. Some one knowing my passion for grapefruit, offered the suggestion that it should not be eaten with salt because it was an acid, and salt combined with acid was what you used to scour brass. Recalling my mother's big brass preserving kettle which she cleaned so easily with salt and vinegar, I recognized the effectiveness of such a remedy, but could not grasp the inference in regard to my digestive tract!

Our grandmothers had great faith in the administration of sassafras tea in the spring, as an exterminator of all the ills which winter had thrust upon us. Strong was their belief in the efficacy of little bags of asafetida tied about the necks of defenseless children to protect them from scarlet fever and other such afflictions. I thank my lucky stars that I escaped that garlicky remedy. I had my own hobbies, however, though I could not always convince my friends of their worth. One of my pet remedies was a cold compress which invariably put a stop to children's coughing in the night, even if the cough sounded croupy. My own children were so accustomed to that infiction that they raised their little heads and scolded wakened to see what I was doing to them. For heavy cold I used goose grease, and sometimes lard and coal oil was applied with success, though daintier friends objected to hearing of such plebeian remedies. But that was in the days when the markets were not flooded with all sorts and conditions of unguents. A wise woman used to say, rather inelegantly "use your head to save your heels," meaning, of course, that you would take fewer steps in a day, if you were more careful in planning your work.

Emerson's essay on "Compensation" has long been considered a remedy for a spell of the blues. Arnold Bennett suggests as a remedy for rusty machinery, the reading of the moral discourses of Epictetus. Having gone through them, a single page a day, well masticated and digested, he suggests that you go through Marcus Aurelius in the same way, and after that return to Epictetus, and so on, morning by morning, night by night, till your life's end. You will conserve your interest in yourself. What an abundance of ideas Mr. Bennett thinks that we possess! To an inquiring freshman at Harvard wanting to know how he would recognize beauty when he saw Professor Norton said: "Read Hamlet once a day for a month; once a day for a year, then once a year as long as you live." After you have read 365 times, it would be unnecessary to hunt up the book for the remaining years. The late Alice Freeman Palmer sent out her bysantine thought to her pupils and the world in the form: "See something beautiful every day, read something beautiful every day, and do something fine every day," a remedy which ought to be the habit of introspection which one else said made one mentally cross-eyed from looking inward too much.

The oath of the Boy Scouts is good remedy for selfishness: "I do my best to do my duty to God and my country . . . to help other people at all time." Surely the bells ring often enough in these days to insure the presence of many people to help at all times of my distress. Here is a receipt for my happiness:

This little strip of light
Twixt day and night
Let me keep bright
Today.
And let no shadow of tomorrow
From the dead yesterday gain
My happiness today.
Then if tomorrow should be sad
Or never come at all, I've had
The chance and privilege of Today.

April of 1776 was a month of sacrifice. The entire year had been one of privation for the American patriots, for they were really patriots in those times. April of 1932, with the entire year, can well be classed as one of "gimme." Graft to a very large extent has taken the place of love of country, and a willingness to deny personal gain for the advancement of the nation as a whole. Selfishness is rampant in America today. Could George Washington, Jefferson and the other leaders of the late '70s come back to earth, they would not recognize the land for which they suffered and sacrificed. Factionalism, graft, gangsters, infidelity—all are now playing a leading role in a country which in the days of Washington was governed by fairness and loyalty. It would be enough to make these men think that perhaps too much progress has made the people go the wrong way, forgetting their brother in their greed for personal gain, social prestige, etc. America could and should be the most philanthropic nation on the globe. But her interest in the other fellow has sadly waned during the past decade, and now it seems to be a warfare of each one getting in the lead, no matter how it shall be done. Authority in high places, wrongfully managed, is a detriment no nation can successfully overcome. When selfishness takes the place of fairness and genuine public interest, there is only one thing which can result, and that is the masses suffer, and the status of the country as a whole is reduced to such a minimum as to have a tendency to take it from the rank of a leader and place her in a second rate sphere.

There is plenty of howling about reducing the taxes. This has been done for so many years those who do the chief catavalling do not really understand what they are asking for. There is a way in which the taxes can be cut down, and that is by cutting out a number of offices which the State now has. By this is meant the combining of two or more offices, thus having one officer do the work of two or more people as it is done now. That will mean the salary account will be cut down thousands of dollars per month in the different counties of Texas. It will mean the saving of several hundred thousand dollars in a year's time. When all the counties in the State have combined from one to three offices are taken into consideration it will mean a big saving in the tax payers' money. With this plan followed out all over the United States it would be an easy matter to balance the budget—that is it would be an easy matter to get the thing in shape provided some bunch of political spendthrifts in the employ of the "mighty people" did not get some extravagant idea about the needs of their constituents and have fool appropriations which will eat up all the saving caused by the consolidation plan of the offices. There is only one way of reducing the taxes for the property owners, and that is by using business principles along this line. Theory and foolish spending of money for something the people do not need and do not want will only do one thing and that is keep the tax rate high and the accomplishment of what the people want and need from being done. When business men are placed in office there will be some relief from the excessive taxes now having to be paid, but so long as Tom, Dick and Harry fill the offices the people can expect dissatisfaction all up and down the line.

'There is glory enough for any man to live and die a Texas.'

The world is all at once becoming terribly alarmed over the fact that the figures of statisticians show more suicides per day at this particular time than ever before in the history of the world. The fellows who always hop in and figure out such problems as these immediately became busy to see if they could find out the cause for so many people deciding all at once to snuff out their lives, but this appears to be one issue they can not cope with. The trouble with everybody, at this time, is that all are living on their surplus nerve energy. The rapid pace through which the world is being put is simply driving the citizenship mad. Those who travel these days must go at one hundred miles an hour, and better. That is why the railroads are losing out on their passenger trains. The folks must now go in airplanes. Even the auto is becoming too slow for many. Business is being conducted on the same lines. There is no time for any kind of deliberation. Speed is the cry of the day. It is rush all up and down the line. Another thing is that this same rush and hurry has entered the social life of the nation. Night has been turned into day. There is one constant round after another of so-called pleasure. The tension of the nerve force is at its highest all the time. This can go on for a certain length of time—then something must snap. The result is some one jumps out of a twenty-story building, takes poison or puts a gun over the heart, pulls the trigger, and then another name is added to those who have gone this route a few days previously. There must be some kind of slowing up else the whole world is going to get in the suicide class. Another thing, the universe is trying to leave the Bible, God and all things religious out of its daily program, and is making an effort to run the whole thing on a human basis. This will not do. Any nation which attempts such a thing can only fail, and finally be wiped off the face of the earth. That is why there are so many suicides. When human beings reach the point they have nothing to hope for, either for the present time or the future, their minds become unbalanced and they destroy themselves. The world today is going at too fast a pace.

This is the greatest day we ever saw for people to say they can't. It seems to be a stereotyped habit. Not only with people in this country, but all over the world. And not only with people, but with governments, from a J. P. department to the kings and potentates of the universe. This is generally unusually true when it comes to paying old debts. The nations of the East tell the United States that they can not pay. They are willing to borrow more money from us and turn round and pay the same money back, provided we will loan them a little more for "personal use." It is also noticeable among many individuals. They owe an account or a note and when approached on pay day they say "I can't." This method became in vogue two or three years ago when it was generally advertised that people who held accounts against others would have to sit idly by and wait for their money. But it is certainly being used overtime now. The country must come back to the place where people will know they are expected to pay accounts on time regardless of conditions before we get out of the indolent way we now have of handling our accounts. A specific example of this was noticed only a few days past. One man owed another. The debtor told his creditor, when approached for settlement, that he just couldn't pay. The creditor told him he would have to pay. The outcome was that within a few days the account was settled in full, and it was with money that the debtor did not have to borrow. This thing of thinking that creditors can wipe out old accounts and forget about them is all "blooey." Old accounts are going to have to be paid before the world can get back on a sound financial basis. Not only will accounts have to be paid by the individual, but nations are going to have to pay each other and get rid of their accounts. To think of anything else would be just like expecting some member of a family to keep up all the brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts, grandmas and grandpas, and all the "in-laws." It just simply would not work very long.

Bill Rogers has it down about right when he said that the conference Hoover had called Roosevelt to was a good plan to pass the buck on to the newly-elected President before he began to draw his salary. But who could blame Mr. Hoover? There are a lot of us that would like to pass our business conditions on to someone else if we had the opportunity. No, Mr. Hoover, we don't blame you for wanting to get out from under it and leaving some of the bad taste for the next President to lay awake at nights and fret over. Of course we think that Mr. Roosevelt is kind of "chumpy" to be wanting to take on troubles this early in the game, but if he don't know any better, then peace be with him. But he will have enough of them after next March Fourth, and perhaps by the time the next four years will roll around he will want to lay down in "green pastures" and while away the rest of his time among seed ticks and chiggers. We imagine that "scratching" chigger bites and using meat rinds would be more fun than being President of the United States anyway.

Most of the farmers of this country have a problem on their hands now they hardly know what to do with, and that is using the feed that has been raised. But few have barn room enough to store it and keep it over for another year.

It can not be sold at a price that is worth the gathering, so, apparently, it is a grey mule on their hands. The only thing that could be suggested would be to buy a few calves or hogs and feed it out. In some places ranchers have let farmers have cattle to feed on a certain percent when the stock are sold after being fattened. This would likely prove of value to the rancher and the farmer. At least it is a proposition worth trying where the farmer has feed that would otherwise go to waste and rot in the fields on the stacks.

DEPENDABLE SERVICE

Golden Gate City

San Francisco's Skyscrapers.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

SAN FRANCISCO is to have a new superbridge across its broad bay, to be financed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. For the first time the city will possess a highway connection with the rich and populous trans-bay country.

San Francisco stands on a peninsula. North and east of it is the great harbor; to the west, the Pacific. So most travelers reach it by water. Its voice is the hoarse blast of ferryboats on the bay. The sound never ceases. Counting commuters, nearly 55,000, 000 people a year pass through the vast Ferry building at the foot of Market street, a city within itself. The proposed bridge, for which $62,000, 000 has been advanced by the government, will be used by many who now ride ferryboats.

Only 83 years ago, when gold-mad human hordes swept across the prairies to San Francisco, it was an infant Mexican village. Today it is a great metropolis with 635,000 inhabitants, bartering with Alaska, Japan, China, the Philippines, India and Australia.

Its vast panoramic Embarcadero, or water front, fairly smells of China tea, silks, straw mats, Alaska fish, Manila hemp, coconuts, pineapples, raw sugar, Singapore rubber, and coffee from Latin America. The crude adobe pueblo, where "Boston boats" first came to trade arms, tools, trinkets and calico for the hides and tallow of Mexican ranchers, has become today our key port on the Pacific.

A great city had to rise here, for the same reasons that New York grew at the Hudson's mouth, Rio de Janeiro and Sydney and Hong Kong on their great harbors, Shanghai on the Yangtze, and Istanbul by the Golden Horn. This vast haven inside the Golden Gate affords such an ideal site for a busy international city that, as one writer says, if San Francisco did not already exist men would at once start building it.

Not only in its eventful growth, but in the story of its very beginnings, you find San Francisco legitimately a child of the sea. In early days sea paths were the easiest way to this coast.

Drake Near There in 1579.
By sea Sir Francis Drake came, on that pioneer world cruise of 1579. It must have been foggy even then; for he missed the Golden Gate to land a bit north, at what is now Drake's bay. Claiming the country for his queen naming it New Albion, and celebrating the first Christian service in what today is California, Drake sailed away. Nearly two centuries passed. Still no white man had seen the Golden Gate. Inland from it were Digger Indians, living precariously on roots, rats, bugs, and snakes, often starving in a region now so rich in milk and honey that it exports food to much of the civilized world.

But down in Mexico things were happening—events of profound portent to future California and San Francisco. Cortez had seized the realm of Montezuma. Slowly, for generations afterwards, the gold-hungry Spaniards drifted to the northwest, some by sea, many through what is Arizona now, and thus up this coast. With them came the priests, carrying the Cross to the Indians. Often it was a contest to see whether a priest could baptize an Indian before the Indian could slay the priest. Haltingly they advanced, but stubbornly.

In time the missions, orchards and irrigated farms of the padres were scattered along the meandering trail from Guadalupe up to San Diego—and finally to the Golden Gate itself. Along this same Camino Real, or "Royal Road," flanked today by golf clubs and "hot-dog" stands, came Don Gaspar de Portola, governor of Baja California, seeking a bay called Monterey. "Royal Road" they called it, suphemistically; but what Don Gaspar actually followed then was a faint trail fading into hills and brush. Lost, floundering, he stumbled upon a magnificent landlocked harbor. And he named it San Francisco. That was October 31, 1769.

How the City Grew.
As if foreshadowing the liberal spirit of the city, San Francisco itself was founded in 1776—the same year that also made July Fourth the nation's birthday. It was a Spanish captain, Juan Bautista de Anza, who laid it out and set the pattern for later "realtors."

Sprawling idly by the bay, and first named Yerba Buena, Anza's town site saw things come to pass that molded, through the years, the character of the city: the growth of the vast haciendas, huge herds, bullfights, fiestas, burning Judas in effigy, church processions, rodeos and swaggering vaqueros in such feats of horsemanship as "loping" full speed with a tray of filled wine glasses, spilling none. More priests and colonists from Mexico, with new fruits, food plants and grains, all to multiply eventually into astounding productivity.

By 1806, Russian trappers, hunting sea otters in the kelp beds, drift down from Sitka. Agents of the tsar build a fort at Bodega, up the coast, colonizing there, with smooth intrigue, to make Alta California part of the Russian empire.

Shrewd New England traders, on three-year cruises to Canton via California, call here to barter. Their trade goods, wrote Dana in his "Two Years Before the Mast," included spirits, teas, coffees, sugars, spices, hardware, crockery, clothing, boots and shoes from Lynn, calicoes from Lowell, cart wheels from England, capes, shawls, jewelry and combs. With these they paid for hides, tallow and furs. California hides early gave New England a monopoly in the boot and shoe-making trades. And the furs taken from here to Canton, then a world market, brought prodigious profits, founding many Boston fortunes.

Bearded and buck-skinned Missouri and Kentucky men begin trickling in. Then the Hudson's Bay company, coming to build a fur post here; English navy merchant ships, and more moves on the checkboard of destiny, with a plan now to make this a British colony.

With the 1820's comes the end of Spanish rule. A new flag, the Mexican, waving now over San Francisco. Intrigues increase as years pass; disputes arise between foreigners and natives, and justice grows blinder. But it's a long walk to Mexico, seat of power. And one-legged Santa Anna has graver problems nearer home.

Annexation and Gold.
War with Mexico. Back in Washington sits President Polk, the resolute. Scott, Doniphan, and Zachary Taylor are in Mexico; Fremont, Kearny, and Kit Carson in California. Into the little Plaza of San Francisco come the United States sailors to run up the American flag. California is annexed, 1848.

Rarely 100 people in the village then; a newspaper, a school, and two ramshackle wooden wharves. But soon Marshall found gold near Sutter's mill. It was the richest strike in history. With their jackknives men gouged chunks of pure gold from hill-side seams. Seven Americans, with the help of Indians, "took out 275 pounds of gold in a little more than six weeks. . . . Two men in seven days obtained $17,000 from a trench a few feet wide."

The news spread east. Polk commented on the find in a message to congress. No such excitement had ever swept the nation. By 1849 the whole world seemed gold mad. On every continent men talked of California, and in ever-increasing thousands they moved on San Francisco. In that year 230 American vessels reached California. During three weeks, in the spring of '49, nearly 18,000 people crossed the Missouri river, westward bound.

Electrical Wood Tester

The "electric eye," a robot which is helping man to solve problems of traffic, science and industry, has now been joined by "electric fingers."

This apparatus works magic for the lumber dealer who wishes to know whether his wood is well seasoned. Inserted a fraction of an inch into a board, the electric fingers will announce on a dial the moisture content of the wood; the process takes only a few seconds, whereas older methods require a week to obtain the same information. The new instrument was developed by Dr. C. G. Suits of the General Electric research laboratory, and M. E. Dunlap of the United States forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis.

POSTS FOR WOMEN
ASKED BY LEADER

Washington, Nov. 13.—The National Woman's party Sunday made public a letter to the president-elect Roosevelt from the chairman, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, urging Cabinet and diplomatic posts for women, but only for women who are far women.

Saying the United States had lagged behind some European countries in naming women Cabinet members and diplomats, Mrs. Wiley said women were justly impatient and deeply concerned lest American women be ignored further.

She told Roosevelt he had a glamorous opportunity to distinguish his administration for all time by being the first American President to give this recognition.

COURTESY

Courtesy is the one medium of exchange which is accepted at par by the best people of every country on the globe. It is sentimental cloaked in reasonable and business like expression—the embellishment that adds tone and has more to matter-of-fact routine—the oil which lubricates the machinery of commercial good-will and promotes the smooth running of the many units of an organization.

Courtesy radiates a spirit of good feeling that we are not working entirely for what we get out of work in a material way but for the pleasure of polite transactions and friendly associations as well. Life is not too short and we are never too busy to be courteous.

The vital force in business life is the honest desire to serve. Business, it is said, is the science of service. He profits most who serves best. At the very bottom of the wish to render service must be honesty of purpose. And, as I go along through life, I see more and more that honesty in word, thought, and work means success. It spells a life worth living and in business, clean success.

ALBANY MAN IS KILLED AS OIL TANK EXPLODES

Albany, Texas, Nov. 12.—Joe H. Dixon, 33, oil man of Albany, was killed instantly Thursday afternoon when a 100-barrel oil tank exploded in the Southern part of town. His son was hurt severely by blinding oil.

The force of the explosion, believed to have occurred from a spark from a cigarette Dixon was filed in a book kept for that purpose, to be designated as voters' registration record, each application to be numbered in the order of filing. A certified copy of such application, after being received, to be furnished by the clerk to said voter, which shall give to such voter the right to vote in such voting precinct (unless otherwise disqualified) in any election. Should any voter move out of the voting precinct as fixed by such application and received, such voter should apply to smoking, shook near-by residences and blew off the top of a steel-walled tank. Dixon was on the tank making an adjustment in a natural gas line running from his residence 200 feet away. Near-by oil tanks were not ignited.

BODY OF YOUTH FOUND IN SANDS OF RIVER

Pueblo, Colo., Nov. 14.—The body of Gilbert Laturum, 22-year-old Pueblo youth, was found Wednesday in a shallow grave in the sands of the Arkansas River, ten miles east of here. Police said they believed he had been slain by gangsters.

Laturum disappeared October 25 after attending a dance. His family told authorities he had never been connected with liquor interests. Police said a bullet hole in his back indicated he had met the fate of several Colorado gangsters.

Mr and Mrs. Austin Ellis Van Horn, Texas, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ab. Holt several days last week.

WEST TEXAS Offers Industrial Opportunities

It has been the history of West Texas that after every national depression this section returns to normal—and marches ahead to greater prosperity—more rapidly than any other section of the country.

Present fundamental conditions are sound, and West Texas' wealth of natural resources—unsurpassed in any other part of the country—promise future progress of a magnitude that will dwarf the sensational development which a few short years ago rivaled in this section the attention of the entire nation!

—AND ALERT INDUSTRIES ARE TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THIS ASSURED DEVELOPMENT!—

An adequate, flexible and inexpensive power supply is vital to industrial activity. Here in West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity," the industrial necessity is able and amply supplied by the West Texas Utilities Company.

Industry recognizes power as one of their prime problems. They recognize, too, that in West Texas this company has solved that problem by making their power investment for them—and is able to furnish energy at a lower cost than it could be produced in any other manner.

The West Texas Utilities Company, dependably serving 125 progressive West Texas cities, makes available more than 100,000 horsepower of electrical energy, distributed from three major generating stations and 22 auxiliary plants over a 2,500-mile transmission line network.

For detailed information on any subject concerning West Texas, write the company's Industrial Department, Abilene, Texas.
