TRAIL DUST

By Douglas Meador

Fate keeps my hopes as prisoners in the province of futile labors where barren fields mock the empty granaries of desire, and hold hot brands against the eyelids of my dreams as a token of defeat. Yet, in the sequestered chapel of faith, new courage is fitted with armor hammered at the forge of prayers and waits only the light of tomorrow for the adventure of endeavor.

Time polishes the long-cut facets of memory as a swift crystal stream laves the white sand in its path and the light reveals a hidden charm. There is a sweet, clean fragrance in the memory of my mother's kitchen of Saturday afternoon where she ironed the family laundry; an odor of starch and soap and the inspiring warmth of a kitchen fire.

When the dispatch to be delivered into eternity is handed me, I should like as a stirrup-cup, one last glimpse from the grassy hills above the village of my birth; of motionless cattle standing with their faces toward the sunset, the purple ledges of the plains in the distance and a golden sky reflecting in the water-holes.

By the side of the smooth, black road, a worn-out wagon with one axle propped on a scantling, is awaiting a transfer of its cargo. It is the end of the trail with an unfinished journey charged against the broken strength of a veteran. It is debris scattered along the path of progress but holds some manifestation of sentiment as a halo for service rendered to the very gates of finality.

As before, we are friends and the interlude of rivalry is a book of sealed pages which neither of us care to recapitulate except as a man might like to study a varnished shoe which he had worn as a child. He won the girl with such ease that I have wondered if he ever considered me as a serious contender, altho my saddle pony was frequently tied at the crooked bois d'arc hitching post located in front of her home. However, after I had witnessed her glances during a singing one night, when the music reached a certain pitch, there was nothing to do but accept the silent misery of spurned affection; glorious, barbarous pain.

Riding away alone in the cold moonlight, it seemed that life would be more gentle if the night should last forever and the trail be unending.

He is a very poor man because he has nothing but money to offer as a medium of exchange for friendship. Like a snarling dragon chained to anchors fastened in the darkness, a cattle train waited on the siding and shivering cattle looked through the bars of their transitory prisons as driven slaves beneath a lash. Snow whipped the walls of the red caboose and swirled in yellow light from the windows as tiny moths drifting in from the night. Steam hissed from a leaky coupling somewhere along the string of cattle cars and wind flapped the swinging gates of empty loading corrals. With a garish flare of light the passenger train roared by as a tortured giant whose heart was a fire.

The cattle train moved cautiously on the cold rails stretched as two black wires over the snow toward Kansas City and presently the red lanterns on the caboose were erased by the night. A pack of coyotes howled on the far side of a mesquite thicket which lay north of the loading corrals and wind rattled the swinging gates. Snow drifted against the rails and covered cross ties in the shallow cut by the siding.

Sometimes a sunset on the plains is like an unfinished song; as if the singer might have been summoned to a loftier stage.

Needlegrass is swept before the first norther as white ripples on a lake and huddles in the cow trails to await winter's insolent moodiness from the postern of hammered silver skies.

Protest Classing For Local Cotton

Group Meets Monday Night To Ask That Change In Service Be Granted

Indignant farmers and business men met in the sales room of the Matador Auto Company Monday night and voted a protest against alleged discrepancies in the classification of cotton shipped from this county to a Quanaah compress in order to receive government loans. The meeting included several members and officials of the Matador Chamber of Commerce and a protest sent direct to Congress Marvin Jones, was made under the sanction of the organization. Examples of the alleged discrepancies included claims that different classifications were made from cotton ginned from the same wagon and from lint out of the same field.

General Dissatisfaction
It was indicated that there was a general lack of satisfaction throughout the county when cotton had been sent out to the compress for classification. A delegation from the committee planned to meet with Mr. Jones in Amarillo Tuesday but in seeking an appointment, learned that the congressman was to leave immediately for Washington. The group, was advised, however, to write its grievances direct to the office of Mr. Jones in Washington, where full consideration would be given.

It was cited at the meeting that much more profitable classifications had been received where cotton had been sent to other compresses.

Early County Pioneer Dies At Home Here

Mrs. John Vaughn Is Called From Ranks Early Settlers

Death again stood before the ranks of Motley county pioneers early Monday and summoned the spirit of Mrs. John Vaughn to join the venerable host in eternity. Mrs. Vaughn died at her home in northeast Matador after a brief illness. She was 75 years, 9 mo., and 24 days of age. Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church in Matador at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and interment made in East Mound cemetery. Mrs. Vaughn was converted in the Methodist church for membership into the Christian church in 1883 and lived a consecrated Christian life. She was of gentle nature and beloved by all who knew her.

She, with her two sisters, were included with the eight single girls in the county about the time of its organization. She was married to John Vaughn, October 8, 1899 and to this union two children were born both of whom survive. They are Mrs. J. L. Snow of Cooleidge, Arizona and Johnnie Vaughn, Jr., of Matador. Besides her husband, Mrs. Vaughn is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lillie Thompson of Denton, Texas and Mrs. D. C. Keith of Matador.

NEW NEON SIGN IS INSTALLED

Adding much to the night appearance of Bob's Oil Well Garage recently erected by L. B. Robertson adjacent to Bob's Oil Well at the intersection of Highways 18 and 28, is a new Neon sign placed in operation Tuesday evening. The sign is the third Neon installation made by Mr. Robertson and gives a beautiful effect to the property when approached from any direction. The Bob's Oil Well Garage, which was opened recently, maintains a 24 hour service for travelers. The new sign which is placed on the north front of the garage, is in two colors and may be read from either east or west.

Rummage Sale Held By Y.W.A. Members

An "old clothes" sale is being conducted by the Young Women's Association of the Baptist Church and is held on Saturday afternoons in a space provided by Lea Implement Co., in their place of business, in the Luckett building. The rummage sale, which was held last Saturday, was so successful that the young ladies decided to continue it for a few Saturdays, and they will greatly appreciate any donations. Anyone desiring to donate clothes for sale are asked to notify Mrs. Ray Patton, who will call for them. The young women also express appreciation to Mr. Lea for his cooperation in permitting them to hold the sale in his store.

Boulder Dam Discussed At Lion Meeting

Committee Selected For Ladies Night Arrangements

Lion G. E. Hamilton, who visited Boulder Dam during his vacation this summer made an interesting address regarding the great achievement, at the regular meeting of the Matador Lions Club held at the Baptist church here Tuesday. "It is truly a spectacle which defies the words of man to describe," Lion Hamilton said, "and I recommend it as one of the most interesting and awe-inspiring sights it is possible to witness. Located in Black Canyon on the line between Arizona and Nevada, the great engineering enterprise, impounds the water drained from a territory equal to 1-13 of the entire nation. When the lake is filled it will be capable of generating 1,835,000 horse power. The three cardinal purposes of Boulder Dam are to prevent floods down the fertile valleys below the site, to supply irrigation and to generate cheap electricity."

Visitors Introduced
After the delicious steak luncheon served by the Baptist ladies, two guests of the club, Rev. Frank Beauchamp of McAadoo and Jack Bradshaw, now connected with county agent Frank A. Buckley's office, were introduced. Boss Lion Fay Jacobs appointed Lions R. E. Campbell, chairman, Bert Ezzell, Claud Harp and Douglas Meador as a committee to make arrangements for a ladies' night program to be held in the near future.

DUSTY NORTHER DROPS MERCURY TO 40 DEGREES

Matador's first norther of the year struck with full blast Monday afternoon with a dust-laden wind racing through town at a speed of 40 miles per hour.

The temperature dropped from around 80 in the afternoon to about 40 after midnight. While the norther arrived to find many local residents unprepared for cold weather, the wind brought relief to cotton farmers as it dried the moisture from the cotton fields after the continued rainy weather. Fields in every direction were white with cotton when the sunshine brought cotton-pickers back to work. Cotton wagons filled the highways Tuesday afternoon and yesterday and all three of Matador's gins have been busy since Tuesday. Altho no damage resulted from freezing in this section, many automobile owners took precaution by draining their cars Monday night.

Trench Silos To Store Big Crop Of Feed

Hundreds Of Tons Go Into Pits Weekly In This County

Huge trench silos, vast yawning pits in the earth, are swallowing hundreds of tons weekly of the enormous feed crop which the fertile soils and bounteous season have produced in Motley County this year. J. F. Anderson, of the Darden Canyon community, is filling his second large silo which will bring his silage supply to 500 tons. Another large silo will be dug and filled soon.

Mr. Anderson has purchased a modern silage cutter in collaboration with C. B. Glenn and L. A. Stearns of the same community, and has planted a large acreage of the various feed crops. Maize stalks, even after the main head has been removed, constitute a valuable feed in the silo, enriched as they are by myriads of sucker heads which have matured since the summer rains. Mr. Anderson suggests to his neighbors that thousands of tons of such good feed can be saved in this manner for use in times of shorter feed crops. He highly recommends silage for beef cattle and backs this assertion with market weights of his calf crop and cows of 100 pounds or more above average.

NUPTIAL VOWS ARE MADE BY YOUNG COUPLE

Mrs. R. N. Riggsby announces the marriage of her daughter, Pearl, to Mr. Kenneth Jeffers of Floydada, in a ceremony performed there Saturday night, October 16, 1937, by Rev. Shaw, pastor of the Baptist Church of Floydada.

Wedding attendants were Mr. Ray Sims of Floydada and Miss Johnnie Ruth Brashear and Mr. Don Dobie both of Matador, who returned to their homes here following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers remained in Floydada until Sunday when they visited here with friends and relatives.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers finished high school in Matador and are a popular young couple here. Mrs. Jeffers has held office positions since her graduation, while he enrolled at Howard-Payne College at Brownwood. Upon his return to Matador last year, he accepted a position at City Drug Store, resigning recently to accept a similar place in White's Pharmacy at Floydada. Mr. Jeffers is the son of Mrs. Claude Jeffers, and was reared here. They will make their home in Floydada.

The many friends of this young couple join in wishing them much happiness and success in their married life.

Powerful Team Goes Down In Spirited Battle Friday

LOCALS WIN 16-12 Matadors Back Into Old Stride With Good Prospects

Like the ancient Trojans the Matador Matadors moved a wooden horse into the territory of the Spur Bulldogs on the Matador Arena Friday afternoon and left the surprised visitors to carry home defeat with a score of 16 to 12, after one of the most spirited grid battles of the conference. Spur faced the Matadors confidently without a single threat to their supremacy in the conference this season while the local eleven had not a single victory to reflect upon as the game started.

With a freak play safety 2 points for the Matadors in the first quarter, which was followed by a touchdown by the Bull Dogs, the game gained momentum which was reflected by the fans for both teams. Spur made two touchdowns but failed to score either extra point, while the Matadors finished the last quarter with two touchdowns, extra points and the safety to their credit.

Boosters With Bull Dogs
The Bull Dogs brought a large delegation of fans, a band and lively pep squad to follow their plays which resulted in pandemonium when local fans mingled their support during the exciting stages of the game.

Regarding the game, the Texas Spur said beforehand in last week's issue: "The Bulldogs are pre-game favorites because of their record so far this season, but may be riding for a fall. The Matadors have lost every game to date but have shown steady improvement, especially since they held the class A Plainview team 7 to 12. The Bulldogs are in excellent shape following a week's rest."

No Game Friday
The Matadors will not have a game this week according to the schedule and it has not been possible to arrange a scrimmage game Superintendent B. F. Tunnell announced Tuesday. The Matadors will next meet the Flomort eleven on November 4th, the location of the game yet to be decided. The Matadors will also have Friday October 29 as an open date.

Many who have observed the teamwork and progress of the Matadors believe they will be strong contenders for the first place in the conference altho they are yet to meet some powerful teams.

El Progresso Club To Meet Next Week

El Progresso Study Club will meet Thursday afternoon, October 28 at 3:30 o'clock for a program on "Scenic Wonder's Day." Mrs. Albert Traweck, Jr., will be hostess and Mrs. L. C. Harp leader. M. Reilly. A round table discussion on the subject of "The Most Beautiful Spot I Have Ever Visited" will be conducted by the leader, and a business session will conclude the program.

Matadors Defeat Spur In Grid Tilt

The Matadors defeated the Spur Bulldogs 16-12 in one of the most thrilling games of the season. Matador's first two points came in the first quarter when the Bulldogs kicked near their own goal line. The ball assended almost straight up and came down and bounced over the goal line. By hard driving plays, the Matadors pushed the Bulldogs back over the goal line for a touchdown and the extra point. After the half, the spirit was higher among the Matadors. With power plays and completed passes, the Matadors took the Bulldogs back for another touchdown and extra point in the last quarter.
The Bulldog's two touchdowns come in the second quarter.

FRESH BLUNDERS

The reporter from the freshman class found the young ladies of the class have very decided opinions concerning the young men in the class and other young men who brag. The following girls expressed their ideas:

Frances Carpenter: "I don't like a boy who is all the time bragging about himself. It seems to me as if he is trying to attract someone's attention."

Alice Thompson: "I think a boy who talks about himself is very foolish. I certainly do not admire such a person. For instance, a certain boy in our class brags about himself to his class mates from 8:45 to 3:15 every day."

Lucille Plumlee: "A boy who talks about himself thinks he is good-looking, intelligent, and very important. In fact, he thinks the whole world could not get along without him."

Pearl Hart: "A boy who is always talking about himself may think he is making a 'hit' with all the girls, but if he knew how much girls detest that sort of thing, he would not use the capital 'I' so much."
Juanita Mize: "I know I am one of the many girls that detest a bragging boy. In my opinion they are conceited, good-for-nothing show-offs."

"Reliable Ginners"

I have many satisfied customers and am reaching out for more. The cotton farmers who have tried my plant, find a nice sample and a large turn-out. Government men like my cotton.

The most of my cotton is going in to the government at top prices. I have not had any complaints and no cotton from our plant has been turned down because of poor ginning, in fact there has not been a bale ginned by me and offered the government, which has not been accepted. Try my plant and then gin where you can do the best.

I buy cotton at the highest market price on grade and staple. Trade your cotton seed for meal, cake and hulls while you can get a trade-in value.

CANNING SHOW HAS INTEREST TO HOMEMAKER

Handiwork Examples Attract Attention Here Friday

Women of this vicinity who failed to take advantage of attending the demonstration given by Miss Gladys Kimbrough, food specialist representative of Ball Bros. Company Friday morning, missed an unusual opportunity not only from culinary, but from a home-making standpoint as well.

Miss Lida Cooper, District Home Demonstration Agent from the Extension Service department of A and M College, was present for the meeting, which was held in the basement of the Methodist church, and which was held through arrangements made by Miss Cooper with Frank A. Buckley, County Agent. Accompanying Miss Cooper were Mrs. Rayburn Karrh, Mrs. J. P. McGarr and Mrs. W. H. Messick, all of Plainview and members of Hale County home demonstration clubs, who presented illustrated discussions on various phases of their club work and displayed examples of their handiwork, preceding the canning demonstration.

Woolen Coverings Shown

Mrs. McGarr discussed the advantages of woolen coverings over those of other weights and textures and exhibited attractive blankets, comforts and quilts made from home grown fleece. Mrs. Messick lectured on "Rugs to Rugs" and displayed several lovely home made rugs, with a matching chair pad for a bed room rug. Mrs. Karrh gave an impressive talk on the home pantry and its importance to home needs.

In addition to Matador ladies present, Mrs. Clark Forbes of Afton, Mrs. J. D. Green and Mrs. Freeman Thacker both of Roaring Springs, attended.

CLAUDE LIKES HURD PLAYERS

The Hazel Hurd Players, who started showing in Claude last Monday under the auspices of the Claude Fire Department, have proven themselves far above the average in their line of entertainment, in fact, many Claude people have pronounced them the best show group ever to visit this neck of the woods. Yes, they have proven themselves to be master showmen with first class ability to entertain with entertainments of a higher nature than the average tent show run of plays.

From the beginning to end of each show they give their many patrons good clean fun, real acting and everything else that goes with a good show. The Waikiki Novelty Boys orchestra entertain the crowds each evening with many numbers mingled with fun and humor which is worth the price of admission itself. Hazel Hurd is pioneering in a new method of showman-ship and this is one of the many new features. The boys are better than good.

Textbook Heroine in College

DENTON, Texas, Oct. — Texas school children know Nancy Harris as the gay little heroine who rides ponies to adventure in the state-adopted texts, "Real Life Readers," which they use in their first classes in school.

But Nancy, whose fan mail has reached from coast to coast, is growing up, and this year is a freshman at the North Texas State Teachers College, where her father, Dr. B. B. Harris, is dean.

Above, Nancy is seen as she was when Dr. Cora M. Martin first conceived the idea of a series of readers about real children. The picture is one of those used to illustrate the books.

Below, Nancy today, a charming little co-ed of 15.

Governor Says Most Powerful Lobby Now Seeking Tax Escape

AUSTIN, Oct. 17.— Governor Allred charged in a fireside chat Saturday evening that the most powerful lobby in Austin legislative history confidently awaited the verdict of no taxes while the

"destiny of our unfortunate people rested in the hands of the State Senate."

"Unless this Legislature within the next eight working days raises additional revenues," Allred declared, "payments to our needy old people will be suspended for two or three months after November 1st. Not only that, but unless this Legislature raises additional funds, even after the payments have been completely suspended two or three months, the amount of each check will have to be cut down."

"In addition to the urgent need for more money for our aged, we are obligated by a vote of the people to help the blind and to assist the underprivileged, neglected, unfortunate children! As yet the Legislature has not provided a thin dime for this purpose!"

"The house has passed a tax bill on natural resources just as it did during the regular session. The tax bills passed then died in the Senate State Affairs Committee; and these senators who are now loudest in their condemnation of me were members of that committee."

"These tax bills died in committee without the remainder of the senators ever being given an opportunity to vote on them. The bill the lower house has just passed is now before the same committee. So I say that the destiny of our unfortunate people is in the hands of the State Senate."

"The biggest, most powerful lobby Texas has ever witnessed is gathered in Austin, complacently and confidently awaiting the verdict, 'no taxes.'"

"Out over the state, others, unable to come to Austin, some of them without voting power, are watching too."

Denying that his program levied taxes upon the people, Allred said, "I have only proposed a reasonable tax upon those who are able to pay; upon a few great pipe line companies, upon those who are draining our oil, sulphur and other irreplaceable natural resources."

"The truth is that most of those who condemn me and who say we do not need new taxes, are themselves advocates of 'laying heavy taxes upon the people.' These people are the biggest taxers of all. They are the advocates of a general sales tax to be levied upon bread and beans, blue shirts and overalls, milk and medicine—all the necessities of life."

The governor placed his economy record beside that of the Senate and said his recommendations against increased appropriations in the regular session had been ignored while "those senators who criticize me and cry through the press that they want to economize, voted for every one of the appropriations of which they now complain."

Allred pointed out that he had vetoed seven million dollars in additional appropriations "while these senators then voted to override my veto and tried again to give Harris County three and a half million dollars of the taxpayer's money."

"The record shows that I am stronger for economies than any one of the small group in the senate who howled to high heaven for ten days that if economies had been submitted to them they would work wonders. On the tenth day they declared by their votes that I had already submitted the subject of economies to them. But it remains to be seen whether they will perform in a statesman-like manner all the wonders they promised."

"How can this small group in the senate economize at the expense of the old folks when we haven't provided enough money for them as it is? How can they provide by economies for the blind, and for dependent children and for the teachers, when they haven't levied a single tax, for any of these purposes?"

The cry against taxes at the special session was raised by special interests, and the governor, who charged a campaign of propaganda had been raised to frighten the people after he had announced his program of taxing pipe line companies and other natural resource groups.

"These death bed converts to economy, these advocates of taxes upon the poor, these men who indicate social security as a dole, do not represent the people of Texas. To them I say that when we have placed a just tax upon our natural resources, 85% of which goes outside of the state, when we have passed an income tax levied upon the earnings of twenty pipe line companies who have made over seventy-eight million dollars net profit in one year, when we have done these things, then it will be time to talk about a sales tax!"

"I didn't have to call this special session. I could have let things slide. I could have taken the easy route; and these very interests would have called me great. But I've gone about the state, and I've seen misery and want. I've received letters from needy old people, from the blind and from others who point to the squalor and poverty of underprivileged homes."

"I've done my part. I've called this legislature in special session and made recommendations. For these things I shall continue to fight! But the destiny of our unfortunate people lies in the hands of the Legislature of Texas. It is now up to them."

Accident Hazards In Home And On Farm Cause Of Greatest Annual Death Toll

IF YOU live on a heavy traffic corner in a great city, it may be hard for you to believe that the bedroom in which you lie vainly trying to sleep while automobiles hoot and crash on the corner, is less safe than the busy traffic lane.

If you live on a farm you consider your cool barn a safer place than the machine room of the city factory where lathes and belts whirl all day long.

But in both instances you are wrong. Public attention, concentrated on automobile deaths and injuries, is being directed by the American Red Cross to the fact that accidental deaths in the home claim a greater annual toll. Automobile fatalities last year for the nation numbered 37,800; while people killed by accidents in their homes totaled 35,500. Safety drives in industries and utilities have reduced accidents until the deaths last year were 2,300 while on the farm, where safety is only now being taught by the Red Cross, annual death toll was 4,500.

The bedroom is shown by safety experts to be the most dangerous room in the house, largely due to walking in the dark. On the farm, machinery causes the greatest number of accidental deaths, with injury by animals ranking second.

The American Red Cross launched its third annual Home and Farm Accident Prevention campaign this fall. More than ten million check lists showing hazards were carried home by school children, including members of the Junior Red Cross. Parents were asked to check these lists against conditions which might exist and from which accidental death or serious injury might result if repairs were not made, or caution observed. This widely acclaimed safety program is one of the most services of the Red Cross supporter through its annual roll call for members conducted by chapters and their branches in 12,000 communal ties.

of Wilma McCain, secretary. Work was continued on the quilt and the third chapter of "Lottie Moon" was given by Adele Burleson and Ruie Hobbs. Refreshments were served and songs were sung until a late hour when the young ladies adjourned.

The next meeting of Y. W. A. is to be held with Miss Clotele Willie on November 2.

TIMELY TOPICS

A certain African tribe discourages long-winded speeches by requiring all orators to stand on one foot while sounding off. A fine idea, but a better one would be to compel them to stand on their heads.

An old-time ball player avers that the term "charlie horse," applied to diamond artists who developed a kink in the leg, originated at Sioux City, Ia., some 40 years ago, when an old broken-down horse named Charley hobbled about dragging the diamond.

When the Wasco Indian chief Duc-Sa-Hi built and operated a ferry across the Deschutes river in Oregon back in the '60s for the convenience of early settlers, he little thought that his humble though useful service would have lasting commemoration. But such came when a new $50,000 bridge at the ferry site was dedicated in his honor.

The wisest of men get fooled once in a while. An object treasured and proudly exhibited for 20 years by the Smithsonian Institution as "the world's oldest ear of corn," reputedly grown in Peru, has been found to be merely a cleverly moulded piece of baked clay.

Among recent silly stunts was that of Raymond Phelps, a crippled young rancher of Colorado Springs, who climbed Pike's Peak on his hands and knees to its 14,000-foot summit in 13 hours. But the temporary notoriety achieved may have been sufficient recompense for the patellar wear and tear involved in the laborious climb.

Many novel excuses have been offered by citizens seeking to evade jury duty, but one recently advanced by an Iowa man is probably unique. He declared that inasmuch as his wife had been drawn on the jury he couldn't serve, because no agreement would be possible.

The title of "meanest men" can be bestowed, police say, upon Ed Fryauf and Paul Goldschmidt of Davenport, Ia., who stole an old-age pension check and bought beer with it.

From the very beginning of their marriage six years ago, contract bridge was the cause of all the quarrels of Mrs. Allen Blazer and her husband, she testified in her divorce suit in Chicago.

A beet weighing 20 pounds and measuring 18 inches in length and 8 inches in width was grown by Joseph Dellabalma on his ranch at Orick, Calif.

A sow on the farm of J. A. Jordan of Crestview, Fla., set what many regard as something of a record when she gave birth to a litter of 27 pigs.

After fire destroyed his house, W. R. Hopkins of Alameda, Tex., made his water tank over into a two-story home.

For having danced to the music of a Salvation Army meeting, J. J. Roca of Dover, O., was fined $10.00 and reprimanded by the mayor.

W. G. Davis, a childless widower of Liverpool, left his $60,000 estate in trust for the care of his nine dogs.

A divorce was granted Mrs. Genevieve Drevitson of Newbury, N. H., after she testified that she and her husband, Carl, had not spoken to each other for 20 years.

The president of a chain of grocery stores, L. H. Windholtz of Norfolk, Va., offered to supply free food to bandits if they would cease robbing his stores.

"Your Honor, the woman is dance mad and cares nothing for home," testified Fred L. Marsh of Chicago in his divorce suit.

Taking an oath in court to tell the truth was not enough for Frank Brassford of Upper Marlboro, Md., so he offered to raise both hands, stand on his head and raise his feet.

Henri Valdeur, an uncle of Amiens, France, was committed to jail for a month for sending rival undertaker ten miles the body of a man who had died.

"Judge, I just can't help it, a burglar; it's just a habit of mine," said John Ferguson of Chicago when arraigned for home breaking.

Returning from a party at which he won a goose, Earnest Hiner of Hawlin Township, Mich., discovered that thieves had stolen all his chickens.

To protect his reputation, Peter Sierecki of Milwaukee contested his wife's divorce suit. She charged that he wore his underwear while taking baths.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD CHILDREN

When taking pictures of children snap them in a natural pose—doing something.

"STAND up straight now and look at me." "Put your hands down darling, and smile. I want to get a good picture to send to Aunt Minnie."

Haven't you heard these two and many similar expressions on the part of parents when they are taking snapshots of their children? Let's hope you are not numbered among them for unless your child is quite apt at posing the result will be rather uninteresting snapshot which does not do the child justice.

First of all, as you know, youngsters are the cutest when they are perfectly natural. If a lot of fuss is made to get them to stand just so, or an effort is made to get them to do a certain thing, the is made to get them to do a certain thing, they will look too posed in the finished print.

There are two types of child pictures, I might say; just plain record pictures and the other kind you should strive to get—story telling pictures. A little tot standing straight as an arrow with arms stiffened against the sides of the body and staring at the camera is a good example of a record picture, but snap a picture of that same little rascal making mud pies, or playing traffic policeman, and you have astory picture with real human interest appeal.

Children's pictures should always be taken fairly close up, rarely more than ten feet from the camera. If you have an ordinary box camera don't get closer than six or eight feet unless a portrait attachment is placed over the lens. With a portrait attachment you can get as close as three and a half feet to your subject and get sharp, distinct pictures that will show every curl and dimple. By moving a lever on the newer type box cameras, however, you can shoot as close as five feet to your subject without a portrait attachment.

Watch your backgrounds! A nice, attractive background adds so much to your pictures. Try to avoid having the sun shining directly in the child's eyes, for the poor little fellow can't help squinting under such conditions and neither can you. Let the sun come from the side. This gives an interesting lighting and what professionals call "roundness."

Follow these "tips" and you'll get real joy out of your snapshots. John van Guilder.
