EMERGENCY HELP- The Tribune was late last week, as many subscribers observed. The problem was a paper folder which suddenly quit after a few hundred papers. The force spent five hours attempting to make the machine function, and finally resorted to folding by hand. Above helper is Brenda Renfro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Renfro. She is 31/2 and her mother is a Tribune employee. When Mrs. Renfro returned to the plant, after going home to prepare her husband's breakfast, her daughter came to help in the emergency. —Tribune photo
