PRICE SEVEN CENTS

TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

The dismal streets of Juarez the worn river beds where generations of humanity have flowed the fabric of dreams, of hope and love, of fear and hate, the tangled vines of despondency. Sanals become thin and tears are set in the dust.

Saving money would be a luxury if we could forget that it is available for the almost continuous emergencies.

The crust that often forms on a hard-baked effort at applying knowledge without working.

With women's skirts being shortened to a point where modesty almost prohibits a glance, any optometrist who does not increase his list of male patients should give serious consideration to changing his profession.

Beware the man who presses you with facets of his exemplary life without admitting his weaknesses, and frequent abandon of compassion.

In addition to its designed service, the girdle also shapes opinions, many of which may be flected with idle speculation.

About the only advantage in not having a set course in life is that wrong roads are as good as any on which to get lost.

Crushed Beneath Flaming Wall In Performance Of His Duty

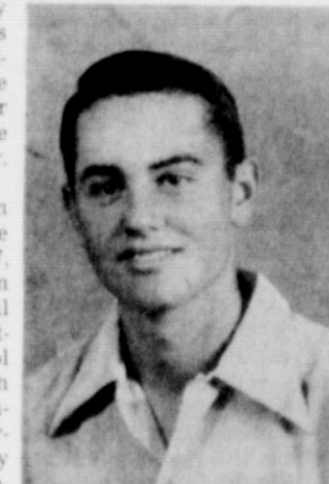

RIOT-CRAZED NEGROES in Watts, (a suburb of Los Angeles) California, brought death to a native son of Motley County, Warren Earl Tilson, 31, when they destroyed $142,000.000 worth of property and caused 33 deaths in a 42-block area. The senseless rioting, resulting from the police arresting a drunken Negro driver, spread from night to night as bands of savages burned and looted stores and other places of business. Troops Tuesday night had restored order to the stricken area. Most of the casualties were Negroes and much of the property destroyed belonged to Negroes.

Warren Earl Tilson was a fireman, assigned to the burning area of Watts. He was crushed beneath a falling wall, and is believed to have died instantly.

A second service for the young fireman will be held here today at the First Methodist Church at 2:30 p.m. The body was flown here after a previous service had been held in California. Officiating here will be the Rev. J. L. Williams of Smyer First Methodist Church and the Rev. W. F. Gaede, local pastor.

Born At Whiteflat Warren Earl Tilson was born on the Tilson homestead in the Whiteflat community, August 7, 1934. He attended school in Whiteflat for four years until Whiteflat was merged with Matador, and attended high school here. He completed his high school education in the Augusta Military Academy in Virginia, in 1954 and immediately entered the military service. After about two years, he was discharged in 1956.

Previous to his discharge and while stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., he was married to Miss Carole June Wannebo of Tacoma, in Seattle, in November, 1954. Mrs. Tilson is expecting their first child in about five weeks. After his discharge, young Tilson went to Southern California and for a time was employed by a government messenger service. Five years ago he became a member of the Los Angeles Fire department, and for his first three years performed hazardous rescue work. He was then transferred to a regular engine company. His home was in Torrence, California. Survivors include his wife, Carole June Tilson of the home;

Aspermont Man 'Buried' in 1919, Is Still Around

ASPERMONT — Byrd Cochran, a rugged white-haired rancher who is in his 96th year, can still mount a spirited cow pony and help bring in the cattle.

This is quite a feat for a man who has "died" and been buried once.

Cochran, who still lives in the rough Double Mountain country in Stonewall County, was officially declared dead and then buried in 1919.

He did it he said, to escape what he said was a bum murder rap in New Mexico.

According to research by Frank X. Tolbert of the Dallas Morning News, Cochran became involved in a New Mexico range war in 1919 as a member of a sheriff's posse.

He was charged with the murder of a cowhand there and returned to Stonewall County, of which Aspermont is the county seat.

Friends here were convinced he was innocent and arranged his "death" to wipe the slate clean.

There was a bad influenza epidemic raging in the area at the time, so influential friends of Cochran's arranged for him to "die" of the flu.

The county records in Aspermont still contain the death certificate. It says "Bryan J. Cochran" (the family has since dropped the "J") died of "influenza and heart failure." It was signed by a physician.

To make the hoax complete, the rancher's friends dug a grave and buried him.

Cochran said he took an auto inner tube full of air with him into his casket. The services were brief and he was dug up as soon as the mourners left.

A tombstone was erected and still marks the "grave."

"My late first wife was mightily distraught by what was going on," Cochran said recently. "She gave the wrong date for my birthday (on the tombstone). I was really born in 1869."

The tombstone has the date Oct. 10, 1883.

Word was sent to New Mexico that the man wanted for murder was dead. The case was closed.

Cochran, whose legs are bowed from years in the saddle, still lives in a big, masonry ranch-house on the spread where his "grave" is located.

He'll sometimes pose beside the tombstone for visitors. And if they're lucky, he'll show them something special — the casket he was buried in 46 years ago.

ALLERGIC TO WHAT?

When a vertebra, (spinal bone), is subluxated, (out of its normal position), and presses upon the spinal cord or its nerve fibers, thereby shutting off the supply of nerve energy to an organ, cell or tissue, then that organ, cell or tissue becomes SUSCEPTIBLE or SENSITIVE to the environment and an allergy results.

A nerve involvement to the respiratory system weakens that area allowing a possibility of Hayfever, Sinus or Asthma to occur when certain irritants are around you such as pollen, gin smoke, dust and etc.

A nerve involvement to certain tissue areas of your body weakens that tissue. Certain foods you eat, soaps you use or lotions you use irritate that weakened tissue. This usually shows up as a skin rash or a scalding look to the skin.

A woman of 19 came to our clinic with Hayfever and a severe redness and itching of the tissues on her hands, arms, face and neck. After this woman received proper chiropractic care the Hayfever cleared up as did the tissues restore back to normal.
