TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Achievement appears to function better when it operates in a state of organized disorder.

More than half a century ago General Pancho Villa attempted to use the gambling houses and horse races in Juarez as a means of financing his revolutionary army. The returns were not sufficient, so he opened and operated some gold mines following the battle of Juarez. He did not know about the easy gold in Gringo's pockets, which does not have to be mined. The scenes have changed and Juarez is changing. There is still dust in the streets; dust that perhaps was once wet by blood or tears, but the poor hungry barefooted soldiers are gone. Juarez is prosperous and an entirely new conception of life is being built away from the slums and poverty. It is as modern as the communities in cities across the river to the north. Juarez is rising like a Phoenix from the old ashes of "typical border town" stigma. It still has a long way to go but so do many American cities whose poor have looked with hopeless eyes for decades on streets of slums.

Prices are advancing in Juarez and a taxi driver said it was because of the Olympics; being held in Mexico City.

There must be a shortage of pretty girls or the air lines don't find them, or I am getting more critical. Once it was a special treat to see the pretty hostesses on the flying ships, who walked with the grace of fashion models, and could give you a smile that would last for days. On the trip to El Paso one girl looked like she had slept in the back seat of a car and forgot to comb her hair.

Destroyed self esteem is always found in the pathetic debris of a quarrel.

The beauty of a love affair may bring enchantment to many of the drab valleys of life that were otherwise barren of everything except conventional survival.

Many of our mothers would have been shocked at wearing a petticoat twice the length of a miniskirt.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Gilbert of Houston visited here recently with his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gilbert.

Grandchildren Die In Highway Wreck

Two grandchildren of Mrs. Jewel Landrum were killed in a highway accident about 10 a.m. Saturday when a van truck, driven by their mother, crashed into a tree near Alvord on U.S. 281. Three other children and the mother were seriously injured.

Albert Landrum, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Landrum of 3623 Hayden, Amarillo, was dead at the scene. A sister, Donna, 5, died about 1 p.m. of injuries in Decatur Clinic Hospital.

The mother, Marilyn T. Landrum, 28, is in critical condition at Harris Hospital in Fort Worth where she was transferred after receiving treatment at the Decatur hospital. A daughter, Netta, 11, also in the Fort Worth hospital, suffered broken legs and internal injuries. Two other daughters, Frances, 8, and Sandy, 7, were treated at the Decatur hospital, both with internal injuries, and have also been transferred to Harris Hospital.

The children were thrown from the van, which was being driven south on the highway by Mrs. Landrum. Young Albert was thrown into a tree.

Patrolman Edward D. Sanders of the Decatur office, Department of Public Safety, said the Landrums left Amarillo about 4 a.m. Saturday en route to Irving where they were to meet the husband and father, who is an employe of Red Ball Motor Freight Co. in Memphis, Tenn. They were to meet at the home of his brother.

Sanders said a light sprinkle had been falling when the accident occurred. "There's a curve just at the edge of Alvord," he said. "It gets pretty slick when it's raining."

"They came around the curve and skidded to the left side of the road," Sanders said. The van left the highway and ran into the tree, pinning Mrs. Landrum behind the wheel.

Jim Jackson of Amarillo, Mrs. Jewel Landrum's brother, came to accompany her to the bedside of the injured family. Another brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson of Wichita Falls joined them in Fort Worth.

The Landrum family formerly lived in Odessa, and funeral services for the two young victims were held there at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Church of Christ. Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home of Odessa was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Bertha Jackson, Matador is a great-grandmother of the Landrum children, Mrs. Jewel Landrum being her daughter.

COME TO CHURCH SUNDAY

In the second quarter, with only seconds to go, quarterback Ronnie Welling passed 6 yards to Don Cox for the touchdown and first score of the game. Cox then kicked the extra point and the figure 7 appeared on the scoreboard as jubilant fans cheered the equally happy Matadors off the field for the half-time break.

In the third quarter the tempo did not change until Paducah scored two points on a safety received from a miscued pass-back from center Cox, and the ball squirted out of the end zone.

In the fourth quarter the Matadors were unable to stop Dragon Hal Ryan on a four-yard set-up around end. The Dragons failed on the try for extra points.

Coach Max Kennedy said after the game, "We made several mistakes which hurt, especially in the later stages of the ballgame, but these were mental mistakes and mistakes which can be corrected."

He further declared, "I was pleased with the effort our young people made against Paducah. We stayed after them for 48 minutes and this we must do if we are going to be a consistent winner."

The Matadors will meet the Crowell Wildcats here on Burleson Field Friday night at 8:30 in their first home game of the season.

West Texas Utilities Co. Part of Interconnected System Network

For More Than 25 Years, WTU and Eight Partners in Power Have Operated in Harmony to Provide a Highly Dependable Power Supply for Texas

It is nice to have neighbors you can depend on... and electric company people long ago discovered that the "good neighbor policy" works out well in business.

That is the simple principle behind the Texas Interconnected System, a network composed of nine major power systems in Texas. Whenever trouble occurs on one electric system, that system can instantly borrow power from neighbors... other members of the TIS. Of course, the operation of the TIS is more complicated than just one neighbor borrowing from another.

The subject of interconnection of electric systems is currently receiving considerable interest in the news. But, it is "old hat" in Texas where the major power suppliers have been operating successfully on an interconnected basis for more than a quarter of a century.

If a major generating station of one of the TIS members suddenly goes out of service, the system is designed for other plants to automatically pick up the load from the "spinning reserve" power that is available at all times.

This is just one way the TIS integrated system and inter-company ties work to keep electric service dependable in our service area... as well as throughout the State.

The Texas Interconnected System is composed of West Texas Utilities Company and eight other power systems which operate wholly within the State of Texas. In a state as large as Texas, with great variations in climate and geography, the membership of the TIS is divided into two groups to simplify operations: The North Texas Interconnected Systems (NTIS) and the South Texas Interconnected Systems (STIS). In the NTIS are Dallas Power & Light Company, Texas Power & Light Company, Texas Electric Service Company and West Texas Utilities Company... all investor-owned companies. The STIS is composed of two investor-owned companies, Houston Lighting & Power Company and Central Power & Light Company; two municipal power systems, the City of Austin and the City Public Service Board of San Antonio; and one state authority, the Lower Colorado River Authority.

The Purpose of TIS
The purpose of TIS is to continue to insure a reliable supply of power to about 8,000,000 people served by the nine-member electric utilities. It maintains an ample supply of what is called "spinning reserve" which is spare generating capacity in operation and on the system ready to take on load instantly.

Both groups are joined by a 345,000-volt line extending north to Dallas from Houston Lighting & Power Company's W. A. Parish Plant and by 138,000-volt and 69,000-volt lines from the Lower Colorado River Authority system and between Central Power & Light Company and West Texas Utilities Company.

A second 345,000-volt line is being constructed from the Parish Plant to NTIS with completion scheduled for mid-1969. These are and will be linked with 345,000-volt lines connecting Dallas, Fort Worth and West Texas in the NTIS area. The entire system is continually being expanded to keep ahead of the growth in generating capacity of the member companies. Over the years, the interconnecting transmission facilities throughout TIS have been increased in capacity and number in parallel with the increasing size and complexity of the individual members' systems.

At the present time, there are in service 1240 circuit miles of 345,000-volt lines and an additional 860 miles have been scheduled for installation prior to 1972.

Operated Successfully
For more than 25 years the North Texas systems and the South Texas systems with joining service areas have operated on a synchronized basis. Anticipated load growth along with the installation of larger and more economical generating units and Extra-High-Voltage transmission lines have made closer cooperation desirable.

The nine-member companies serve a combined area of 195,000 square miles (75% of Texas) extending generally to the Red River on the north, the New Mexico border (excluding the Panhandle) and the Monahans-Wink area on the west, the Rio Grande and the Gulf of Mexico on the south, and Paris-Tyler-Lufkin-Houston on the east.

The Texas Interconnected System maintains a spinning reserve of not less than the capacity of the largest generator operating in North Texas plus 100,000 kilowatts, and the capacity of the largest generator operating in South Texas plus 100,000 kilowatts. This totals well over a million kilowatts which is shared by the nine member companies. The System has a 1968 load-serving capability of 16,300,000 kilowatts—more than 3½ million kilowatts above the peak load of 1967.

Not A Power Pool
TIS is not a power pool in the strictest sense of the word in that the nine member utilities do not pool their resources to finance, build or operate power plants and transmission lines. Each utility is responsible for the construction and operation of its own facilities. However, the nine utility companies do operate as one large system interconnected with 345,000, 138,000 and 69,000-volt transmission lines.

WTU has five transmission interconnections with the South Texas Systems. Three of these are with Central Power & Light Company commonly known as the Sonora-Uvalde 69,000-volt tie; the McCamey-Del Rio 69,000-volt tie; and the Sonora-Del Rio 138,000-volt tie.

The other two are 69,000-volt ties with the Lower Colorado River Authority. One is the Mason-Llano tie, and the other is the Mason-Fredericksburg tie.

Eight 69,000-volt interconnections with Texas Electric Service Company join WTU with the North Texas Systems. These ties to the east are known as the Vernon-Electra tie, the Munday-Holiday tie, Cisco-Leon tie, and the Santa Anna-Brownwood tie.

The four interconnections to the west are the Roby-Eskota tie, Merkel-Eskota tie, Sterling City-Chalk tie, and the Rio Pecos Plant-Crane tie.

Both within the WTU system and the other interconnected systems, fullest consideration is given to continuity of service—utilizing modern protective devices, alternative power supply sources and transmission facilities. Interconnection with the neighboring systems has strengthened WTU's network as well as giving all member systems a very high degree of service reliability.

Advantage To Members
In the TIS, each member system is responsible for providing the capacity to meet its system load and its reserve requirement. The advantage to participating members is that power is instantly available in an emergency from neighboring systems. This provides our customers with further assurance of dependable service at all times.

Reliability of a power system is a measure of the assurance of the system to supply uninterrupted electric service to the major points of distribution. The pattern of reliability in this area has been greater than 99.99%, and electric customers have come to expect almost continuous availability of electricity at the flick of a switch.

Such reliability is attained by good planning and operation. To achieve the maximum level of reliability within its system Texas Interconnected System operates through an Administrative Committee consisting of one representative from each member system, and two subcommittees, Planning and Operating.

Vice President and Chief Engineer John A. Hutchison represents WTU on the TIS Administrative Committee which is responsible for the overall coordination of the planning and operation of the System. Planning Engineer Holman King is WTU's representative on both the Planning and Operating Subcommittees.

The Planning subcommittee studies transmission facilities, abnormal system conditions and major outages, and anticipates future generation installation and reserve needs.

Committee Concerned

This committee is particularly concerned with the interconnected transmission system since it is the principal medium for achieving reliability. The group also studies the adequacy of the transmission system through use of large capacity digital computers and load flow programs.

The Operating subcommittee develops standards for operation of the system, relay settings, dispatching procedures, allocation of spinning reserve and coordination of maintenance schedules. A major consideration of this committee is the operation of all generators on the system. If a generating unit is suddenly lost, an equal amount of reserve power from other generators on the system must respond instantly. This committee is concerned also with recommending policies which will assure adequate spinning reserve at all times, including those periods when some units are out of service for scheduled maintenance.

Another of its assignments is to investigate and recommend operating procedures such as sequence of switching operations after a possible major system disturbance, and to devise reliable and effective means of testing adequacy of the interconnected system under emergency conditions.

Model Of Efficiency

Energy security centers in Dallas and Austin coordinate the operations of the interconnected system. Modern up-to-date load frequency and tie line controls automatically regulate the generation of power to meet load requirements. A continuous record of power flow on all tie lines is provided system dispatchers to permit them to observe the operation of the total system at all times.

How well has the Texas Interconnected System operated in the past? It has been a model of efficiency. There has never been a TIS system-wide interruption although there have been some emergency situations that have proved the value of the interconnected system.

There are times when generating units at WTU power plants have tripped off the line. Even some of the larger units in other parts of the TIS have suddenly been disconnected from the system. But the spinning reserve took over without a hitch. Our customers do not normally know there is any problem because their lights do not even dim.

That is the kind of service we strive to provide—the kind that customers take for granted.

Travel on controlled-access divided highways is considered 2.5 times as safe as travel on undivided primary highways.

Texas has more than 20,300 bridges and more than 2,000 grade separations on the State highway system.

High School has Four New Faces

New faces are popping up around every corner of M.H.S. as it begins a new school year. Besides a new crop of freshmen, M.H.S. has gained four other students. Mary Ann and Clarence Woosley come to Matador from Tahoka where they attended Tahoka High School. Mary Ann is a junior and Clarence is a sophomore. Deadra Davis comes to Matador from Weslaco High School. She is a freshman. Also joining the freshman class is Leslie Bacterman, who attended Dimmitt High School in Dimmitt and La Plata High School in Hereford last year. The students and faculty proudly welcome these four students, as well as the freshmen, to Matador High School in a hope that they will contribute greatly to the success of the 1968-69 school year.

First Pep Club Meeting is Held

The first official Matador Pep Club meeting for the 1968 football season was held September 9, in the gymnasium. President Wanda Matney presided. Mr. Moore and Mrs. Fair explained all the rules of conduct regarding football games, money making enterprises and the football banquet. Uniforms were selected and will consist of white tops and black skirts or slacks. The cheerleaders closed the meeting by teaching the girls two new yells for the pep rally Friday.

Seniors Receive Their Class Rings

"Look what I got" is one of the most popular sayings around high school. However, it is said mostly by the seniors who are showing off their senior rings. The rings, which were standardized in 1967, are gold with red stones. Most of the students received their rings the day they registered. The others were presented their rings the first day of school.

Class Officers Are Selected

The high school classes have elected class officers for this year. Each class has four officers and one or two sponsors who are high school teachers. The president of each class is in charge of the morning devotional given in assembly, and he presides over class meetings. The vice presidents act in the president's absence. The secretaries handle the classes' money and keep the records. The reporters write the classes' news. The senior class officers are: President, Don Cox; Vice President, Mark Hill; Secretary, Darrel Marshall; and reporter, Judy Marrs. The junior officers are: President, Brenda Wason; Vice President, Glen Moss; secretary, Ronnie Welling; and treasurer, Debra Stockton. Sophomore officers are: President, Jerry Jones; Vice President, Lee Hurt; secretary, Debbie Smallwood; and reporter, Jeanette Day. Freshman officers are: President, Krista Price; Vice President, Charla Wason; secretary, Ann Timmons; and reporter, PERKY Marrs.

New Elementary School Teachers

Matador Grade School has two new teachers: Mrs. Larry Heard and Mrs. Charles Johnson. Mrs. Heard teaches the third grade. She is in class with the third graders all day, but says that she is praying for a music teacher. Mrs. Heard taught the first grade three years ago in Fort Worth. She attended Hardin Simons University in Abilene. Mrs. Johnson teaches seventh grade math and science and keeps their home room. She also teaches science for the sixth and the eighth grades. Mrs. Johnson is a familiar face around M.G.S. since she has taught in the school off and on for several years. She taught remedial reading and history year before last.

accompanied by his wife) was introduced by Lions Club secretary Judge Forrest Campbell.

Willis extolled the Lions because much of their work is with children, declaring: "... this world is a splendid place to the child who is filled with joys and enthusiasm ... the radiant curiosity of the rain, the storms, the snowflakes and miracles of nature ... the child is simple, natural, serene ... with a love of God and love for each other ... it is a child's faith that leads to a richer life because faith is the greatest power on earth ... it is in the heart of a child who loves without question ... the salt that savors the joys of life ... we could all use more of the precious spirit of childhood ..."

Willis also cited the eye transplant program of the Lions. "Lions have a feeling of compassion for the handicapped ... they care enough to share ..."

A list of guests other than members and their wives, included: Carlie Long, President of the Roaring Springs Lions Club, and Mrs. Long; Mr. and Mrs. Judson Watson of Flomot; and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Karr and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Glenn, all of Spur.
