Nebraska Plan Provides Better Language Background for Student

(Second in a series concerning new methods in teaching English)

Under the Nebraska Plan, all or practically all, of the elementary English begins with the study of children's literature of a high order. The children will study language with their literature and learn to understand it by reading carefully selected samples or by playing games which give them the clues as to how we use our language to communicate.

The composition area of the grade school program asks students to write in a series of modes or manners and to experiment with different language forms they have studied. Composition will not always be a written activity.

Like the early epic poets, small children will begin their composition work orally. The written composition will be largely narrative writing in grades three and four. However, in the upper grades, usually five and six, they begin the kind of expository writing which they will develop more elaborately in grades seven through nine. All areas studied are composition units.

either language and composition or literature and composition. Basically a brief outline of the Nebraska Plan to be used in grades one through six will include:

Literature: studies in folklore, comedy, animal, adventure, myth, fable, other lands and people, history, satire and biography.

Language: structural studies of the nature of language, form classes (nouns, verbs, adverbs, adjectives), morphology (word endings), syntax (word structure), dialects and history of the language.

Composition: writing in a literary manner which the children have examined and by experimenting with different language structures. It is hoped that when children reach the seventh grade they will have developed considerable understanding of the nature of language and considerable of the ways it may be used. This does not take the place of reading in the elementary school with the present reading program in the Secondary School.

Earth-Springlelake Takes Honors at Baseball Tourney

Earth-Springlelake slipped from behind to defeat the Floydada Red Sox, 4-2, and take home a championship trophy from the district Little League Baseball Tournament here, Thursday, August 3. The tournament opened July 31 with five teams in competition. Matador, hosts for the single elimination tourney bowed to the determined Earth-Springlelake nine, 15-9, July 31 before a capacity crowd. Playing with the Matador All-Stars were Danny Ray Payne and David Johnson of Quitaque. Payne worked behind the plate, relieving Hal Martin in the dwindling stages of the game. Earth clinched a 2-0 lead in the first from runs gained on errors. By the third inning they had a safety margin of 6-0. Skilled fielding, good pitching and Matador errors allowed the victorious nine to make substantial increases in the score throughout the ballgame, producing the final 15-9 rout. Proceeding Matador out of the tournament were the Floydada Tigers. In the tournament opener, Abernathy belted the Tigers 2-1. Abernathy, who had run rampant the night before, was unable to control the Floydada Red Sox Tuesday night. After a see-saw game, the Red Sox wound up on top, 5-3.

Comes From Behind

The Red Sox clashed with undefeated Earth-Springlelake and after a six inning tug of war, slipped 4-2, Thursday night. This game was a real joy to watch. Both teams exhibited great spirit, sincere sportsmanship, and determination and used their heads to make some really fine plays. As in Greek war games, the contenders were serious but friendly. Floydada scored two in the top of the first before Earth garnered a single run during the second. Concentrated effort by Earth put runners in scoring position several times but sagacious play by the opposition always erased the threat. An error by the catcher in the fourth allowed Earth to come abreast 2-2. Mark Barnes, a swift hurler for the Earth nine, scored to edge his team out front 3-2.
